WESTERLY CHAMBER MAY SEND FLOAT TO GREENWICH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Dec. 14.—At the December meeting of the Westerly chamber of commerce with President Lewis Stanton in the chair held in the council chamber in the town hall this evening it was voted to accept the invitation of the town of East Greenwich, R. I., to participate in the 250th anniversary of its founding, a request having been received for Westerly to send a float. President Stanton is to confer with the Westerly Historical society regarding the Westerly float, when it is thought that some of the costumes used in Westerly's 250th anniversary held in June, 1919, may be available.

D. Girard Shea and Dr. Richard Shea were voted members of the chamber and F. A. Sullivan spoke of the expenditure of the money in the Worcester and Hartford conferences to combat depression in industry, $100,000 having been spent in Hartford.

Henry L. Burdick of the Watch Hill Improvement society told of the work of Zenas W. Bliss of Providence, in connection with state electric power for Rhode Island.

HANCOCK CORPS HOLDS ELECTION OF OFFICERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Dec. 14. — Hancock Woman's Relief corps, No. 26, department of Connecticut, held its 39th annual election of officers this evening in Vets hall, Walton block, Pawcatuck, and the following officers were chosen: President, Mrs. Mattie D. 18 DEATHS FROM COLD WAVE IN MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, Dec. 14—(AP)—Winter gave color to Christmas shopping today in a dozen states in the Mississippi basin, and promised another twenty-four hours of zero temperatures before it departs.

The cold wave which moved from Alaska and the Pacific northwest toward the Ohio valley Sunday and Monday had settled today across an area from Ohio to Idaho, with temperatures at zero and lower from the Indiana-Illinois line westward.

The edge of the bitter blast which swirled across Missouri and Kansas began to abate late today and the thermometer climbed in that vicinity, but the weather bureau said no warmer weather tonight.

The death toll mounted to 18, swelled by 5, with the death by freezing of an unidentified Chicagoan, the burning to death of an aged man who sought to warm himself in a Denver hayloft, and a death by freezing at Park City, Utah. At Milwaukee, Joseph Morawaitz, 80, was found dying in an unheated room. John Zizzo, a junk dealer, was frozen to death at Neenah, Wis.

In North Dakota, three school teachers and five pupils caught in a blizzard near Mandan, Saturday night while coming home through a sparsely settled region from a basketball game, trekked a dozen miles across the prairie in 16-below zero weather to safety.

Kansas City, Chicago and Boise, Idaho, were the three points of today's zero triangle, but the brunt of the storm had passed in the south tonight, and was passing in the far west.

The United States government has definitely decided to give up its lease of the Veterans' bureau hospital at Allingtown on June 30 next.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

General Auto Paint Shop

The General Auto Paint Shop, No. 254 West Main street, doing business under the name of the Falls Auto Paint Shop for a number of years past, wishes to call the attention of the automobile owners and others contemplating work of any kind in the painting line, that the General Auto Paint Shop, under the personal supervision of the owner, Charles Jaskiewicz, is fully equipped to do any and all work in his line which includes not only automobile, but baby carriages, vehicles of any sort, propelled by gas or hand power, team wagons, trucks, sleighs, also the refinishing in latest shade of furniture of any kind whether large or small pieces, together with sign painting and commercial lettering as good as the best. I also wish it known, especially by the automobile owners that I have a first class equipment for the performing of the perfect lacquer finish.

After doing business at Falls avenue, and later at the Falls section of the city, and having outgrown both places, four years ago I bought and established a plant at No. 254 West Main street, which plant is to be known now as the General Auto Paint Shop, the change in name being made so that people will not be confused and think I am still doing business in the Falls section of the city. If you will remember the name and location of plant and entrust your work with me, I will see to it that you get the very best of workmanship and service to be had.

Palace Theater

Today is the last times that the great picture Variety will be shown at the Palace classed as one of the screens greatest pictures of all times with the worlds foremost actor Emil Jannings supported by Lya De Putti and an all star cast. The Norwich picture fans have come in large numbers for the first three days of this engagement the second picture featuring the western screen marvel Fred Thomson with his famous horse Silver King has been classed as his best to date. Lone Hand Saunders gives this popular actor unlimited chances to display his wonderful stunts. Starting Thursday for three days the Palace management states that they have another great vaudeville bill of five big time acts and have spared no expense to give the Norwich theater goers the best acts in the country. The first famous Bill Grimm comedy from the pen of H. C. Witwer will be shown and the feature attraction is My Official Wife, the Warner production, starring Irene Rich and Conway Tearle, directed by Paul Stein and coming to the Palace theater tomorrow for a three day run, was filmed during the month of July in Hollywood, notwithstanding which it contains a scene of swirling winter in snow-swept Russia. And the scene is not a "fake." It was taken in the mountains within 50 miles of Hollywood.

One need not go far above Hollywood to find any sort of "location." The sets for My Official Wife were built in the snow, some time before the sequence was to be shot. A native mountaineer was paid to keep the director informed as to weather conditions. Upon his report that snow was beginning to fall, generators, lighting equipment, and the company was rushed out of Hollywood summer up into the wintry hills.

Though the filming of the scenes required 18 hours, the blizzard was still showing no signs of abating, and much difficulty was experienced in moving the heavy trucks for the return. A few hours later the erstwhile "Russians" were in folderols or white flannels, enjoying smokes and cool drinks under palm trees or rose-colored pergolas down in Hollywood!

FAMOUS BILL GRIMM COMEDY — PATHE NEWS

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

As the train pulls into Norwich tomorrow two of the best known comedians in the world will step off and head for the Broadway theater, where they have a three day engagement. This team of comedians, Glenn and Jenkins, whose comedy act, Working for the Railroad, has been a standard laugh getter for years on the Keith-Albee circuit, was booked by special arrangement by the Broadway management. The many local fans who have seen them both in the Keith's palace and Hippodrome theaters in New York city, were very much surprised to learn that they are to be here. They admit that for a comedy act there is none funnier.

Four other acts are also scheduled, which comes up to the standard of entertainment now being set by the Broadway theater.

Obey the Law, a Columbia picture starring Bert Lytell, which opens at the Broadway theater for three days tomorrow has been hailed by screen critics as a new type of crooks film. It is a picture without bloodshed and red melodrama, but what it lacks in physical violence is made up in the mental shrewdness, depth of plot and suspense.

Lytell, as the super-crook, already has won renown as the most gifted screen analyist of uper-crook roles who ever strugged his way through a trying celluloid ordeal. He has the support of such notable players as Eugenie Gilbert, Edna Murphy, Larry Kent, William Welsh, Hedda Hopper and Sarah Padden.

Breed Theater

Buster Keaton has taken his frozen face into the prize ring. At least, he masquerades as a pugilist, gets himself involved in a peck of trouble and finally has to fight the world's champion. And what a fight it is!

The famous comedian's hilarious venture into the realms of fistiana forms the basis of the plot of Battling Butler, Keaton's latest picture which comes to the Breed theater today and Thursday as the main attraction of a double feature program.

Battling Butler is different; it has an absorbing plot and is invested with elaborate settings that would do credit to the biggest dramatic productions. The supporting cast, including captivating Sally O'Neil, Snitz Edwards, Tom Wilson, Francis McDonald, Mary O'Brien, Eddie Borden and Buddy Fine is excellent.

The comedy gives Buster the opportunity to again show his versatility. He portrays a rich young idler who falls in love and then has to pose as a prize-fighter in order to win the girl, whose family believes him to be a weakling because of his fine clothes, valet and luxurious surroundings. The comedian takes the name of Battling Butler, but when the real Battler appears on the scene, Buster finds himself hopelessly tangled in the web of deception. How he finally triumphs and whips the champion in a vicious battle that makes the fight in the original Spoilers look like a petting party, provides a sensational climax in which thrills vie with mirthful moments.

Battling Butler was produced by Joseph M. Schenck for Metro- Goldwyn release.

There is a treat in store for those who are fascinated by the interior of that forbidden realm, the artist's studio—and which of us can truthfully say he is not?—Off the Highway, a scrumptuous screen version of the famous Tatterly which is the second feature on this program, is richly endowed with scenes laid in the haunts of the palette, smock and brush.

The tremendous cast is headed by William V. Mong, Marguerite De La Motte and John Bowers. It was directed by the reliable Tom Forman, under the personal supervision of Hunt Stromberg.

The Dawn of a Better Cigarette

This new and better cigarette has long been due . . . now it is here. And the news of it . . . the story of it is being told to every mother's son within range of your store.

Smokers are fast waking to the dawn of this better cigarette—this cigarette that is so much smoother.

Old Gold has been on its way for years . . . years spent by America's oldest tobacco organization in perfecting a distinctively different blend that would appeal to the popular taste as no other cigarette ever has.

And Old Gold will appeal, for Old Gold has already been put to the test . . . to thousands upon thousands of critical, exacting tests! It's a sure fire hit.

For here is a cigarette with plenty of punch, without any punishment. Many of your customers have been calling for a new cigarette deal. They will find it in Old Gold . . . then they'll send you!

In Old Gold they will find a "he-man's" cigarette—a cigarette with plenty of kick, without any tongue bite or throat sting.

That's why men are switching to Old Gold.

That's why you should give Old Gold a big play on your counters . . . in your windows.

POETRY

December

A sign that night is drawing nigh
The sun is sinking in the West,
December skies like this, so clear,
Disclose to eye a picture dear,
To soul, a thought of home and rest.

The eastern sky is flushed with rose
And luminous the whole east glows
To greet the coming of the sun.
December morns when bright and fine
Exhilarate like drafts of wine,
And life's a new day just begun.

December woods with song don't ring
As ring the woods in bonnie-spring!
But we can see on snowy tree
The flicker's yellow plumage gay,
The flash of blue from saucy jay,
The black cap of the chick-a-dee.

December woods are rich with green,
For there the Christmas wealth is seen,
In laurel, holly and the pine.
The Child's birthday we honor still
With peace on earth, to men good will
And with that thought our wreathes we twine.

December gives us Christmas Day
With merry laugh and jocund play,
But soon departs its final light,
Sadly we hear the tolling bell
Bidding the grave old year farewell
As borning greets a New Year bright.
—Boston Transcript.

Not Commonplace

Think you the world is commonplace?
Behold our baby's shining eyes
That see each humble, homely thing
With wonderment and glad surprise.

The tassel on the study lamp—
Its charm one likely never guesses
Until he sees the rapt delight
Our baby's rosy face expresses.

Burnished buttons on a dress,
A neighbor's scarlet hat—
Our baby finds a world of joy
In lovely things like that.

The sailing clouds, the wind-blown trees,
A barking dog, a kitten small—
Our baby views them with concern
Nor thinks them commonplace at all.
—Maude DeVerse Newton in The Christian Science Monitor.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Prof.—You can't sleep in class, Stude—I know it. I've been trying for half an hour.—Exchange.

"I would face death for you."

"Why didn't you face that bullet then?"

"He wasn't dead."—Washington Star.

First rook—I'd like to take Pershing's place in the army.

Second rook—What do you mean?

First rook—I'd like to retire from it for life.—Pathfinder.

"Is it true," counsel asked, "that you were the only sober man at the party?"

"No, of course not," said the witness.

"Who was, then?"—Tit-Bits.

"I'm engaged in the dairy business at present," remarked the lawyer.

"You don't say!" exclaimed his friend, the doctor.

"Fact!" rejoined the legal light. "I'm milking an estate."—Boston Transcript.

Employer — We seem to be having a great deal of rain nowadays, John.

Gardener—Yes, sir; they clouds doan't seem to 'old th' watter same as they used to, sure-lye.—Tit-Bits.

Customer—Is this nine dollar violin a genuine Stradivarius?

Pawnbroker—No, no, no! Stradivarius fiddlers are awful expensive—they come high! Here is a genuine Stradivarius I sell for 16!—Detroit News.

"Stop that yelling," called the irate parent from the foot of the stairs. "Shut up and go to sleep."

"I won't," said the dutiful son. "Nurse said if I kept on trying a green cat with red eyes would come and sit on the foot of my bed—and he hasn't come yet."—Washington Star.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STRONG

NEW YORK, Dec. 14—(AP)—With total sales crossing the 3,000,000 mark for the first time in six weeks, stock prices resumed their upward movement today under the leadership of the industrial shares, the general average of which touched the highest level on record. The rally took place in the face of a stiffening of money rates, but this was regarded as temporary and due to the heavy mid-month demand for funds.

Bullish enthusiasm was created by the announcement of another series of "Christmas dividend," by reports of unusually heavy holiday trade and by dividend and merger rumors involving several of the large railroads and the smaller automobile companies. Commission houses reported an expansion in public interest although professional continues to dominate trading in most of the speculative stocks.

Railroads was again a sensational feature, soaring over 7 points to 169 3-4, or within a small fraction of the record high. The McCrory store issues, Loose Wiles Biscuit common and second preferred and Kelsey Wheel all closed 3 to 7 points higher.

Renewed buying of General Motors carried that stock up above 152 but it later reacted to 151 1-4, up 1 1-4 net. Chrysler which was strong yesterday, closed fractionally lower on profit-taking. Mack Trucks crossed 101 but slipped back a point from the top. Pierce Arrow preferred closed 3 points higher. Rumors mergers in circulation in Wall street place Chrysler and Packard in one combination, and a number of small companies in another, but all these lack confirmation.

U. S. Steel crossed 153 for a net gain of over 2 points. Among the score or so industrial issues to break into new high ground were Du Pont, South Porto Rican Sugar, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, Consolidated Cigar and Columbia Carbon.

Rails moved ahead with the industrials, but not to the same extent. Nevertheless, Atchison, Erie first preferred and Hudson & Manhattan preferred, touched new 1926 peak prices, and Pittsburgh & West Virginia was bid up nearly 3 points.

Call money held steady at 5 per cent all day. Time money was quoted at 4 5-8 to 4 3-4 instead of on a flat 4 5-8 per cent basis. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

With the exception of a moderate decline in some of the distant wheat options, commodity prices generally were firm. Cotton closed 4 to 10 points higher on buying influenced by a bullish consumption report. Raw sugar was unchanged and coffee prices advanced slightly.

Heavy short selling of French francs and Italian lire gave the foreign exchange market an irregular appearance. French francs were quoted nearly 5 points below their recent high and Italian lire showed an extreme decline of nearly 20 points from the recent high level. On the other hand, demand sterling ruled 2-4 of a cent higher around $4.84 3-4.

GREENEVILLE

The 3-act play, "June Time" tonight, Greeneville Cong'l. Church, 8 p. m.—adv.

TAFTVILLE

The monthly meeting of Peter Gallas post, No. 104, American Legion, was held Monday at 7.30 p. m. at the store of Stanislas Benac on Hunters avenue, Commander Thomas P. Sears presiding. The membership drive has brought many new members, the post having doubled its membership in the past two weeks. As a special inducement, the post is holding its present class open until January 1st, after which they will be advanced.

The treasurer's report was read and accepted showing the post in excellent financial condition. Edward Kelley, chairman of the nominating committee submitted the following names to serve as officers for 1927: Commander, Thomas P. Sears; vice commander, Stanley Rokowski; adjutant, Leon Molleur; treasurer, Stanislas Benac. They were unanimously elected.

The post plans to conduct a whist about the middle of next month. A committee consisting of Thomas Labbee, Edward Kelley and Victor Gaudin were appointed by Commander Sears to complete arrangements.

The members of the Dramatic club gave the play "June Time" which they presented last week at the annual fair of the Taftville Congregational church, Tuesday evening at Tolokett hall in Occum for the benefit of the Versailles Methodist Episcopal church. There was a large audience which thoroughly enjoyed the comedy. Those taking part were Miss Elsie Heap, Miss Dorothy Campbell, Miss Flossie M. Meyer, Oscar E. Mathewson, Jr., Harold E. Linderson, Miss Louise Sirist and Robert E. Cooper.

STATE'S HIGHWAY SYSTEM HAS INVENTORY VALUE OF $38,656,700

Connecticut's state highway system has an inventory value estimated at $38,656,700, according to the annual report of the state comptroller to the governor and the general assembly. Of this amount, the value of trunk line bridges has been placed at $4,026,500 and ferries at $14,000, leaving a value of $34,616,200 placed on the 1953 miles of roads in the trunk line and state aid system.

The report shows that the capital investment in graded roads of all types without surfacing, is represented at $19,520,900. This is considered the permanent value, which does not depreciate. The valuation per mile has been put at $10,000 at the graded road stage.

In bituminous macadam surfacing, the valuation is given at $3,806,160 for 239 miles. This surfacing has a value of $20,000 per mile, the report shows with depreciation at the rate of twenty per cent a year. In bituminous concrete surfacing, the state has about 164 miles, also valued at $20,000 a mile or a total of $3,477,180 after deducting a depreciation of fifteen per cent.

Concrete and brick surfacing covers about 323 miles, having a value of $30,000 a mile, and depreciation at the rate of five per cent a year. This leaves a net inventory value of $8,811,990 for the concrete and brick roads.

The bridges have inventoried as follows: Milford-Stratford $1,500,000; Thames River $650,000; depreciation 10 per cent.; Westport $1,27,600, depreciation 5 per cent.; Derby, $250,000; Saybrook-Lyme $426,000, depreciation 5 per cent; East Haddam $206,000, depreciation 5 per cent; Portland $145,000, depreciation 10 per cent.; Mystic $350,000, new construction 1925-1926 $368,000.

BOOSTERS MET AT NEW PYTHIAN FARM HOME

About 60 members of the Pythian Boosters club gathered on Sunday at the newly purchased Pythian home, known as the Connecticut Farm Home association. The object of the gathering was to spend the afternoon at the farm and to look over the property. The property is located on the road formerly known as the Norwich Essex turnpike and is about 17 miles from Norwich or New London and about two miles from Devils Hopyard state park.

At 2 p. m. a fine luncheon was served consisting of cold meats, sandwiches, cakes, fruit and coffee. The entire luncheon was prepared from provisions raised on the farm. The luncheon was held in the large dining room of the main building which can easily accommodate a hundred guests. After lunch a conference was held with the officers of the farm organization who made the Boosters more familiar with the project, pointing the way to make the home self supporting, and also enlightening the visitor upon the vastness of the developments now in course of being carried out.

F. B. Ames, president and general manager of the farm home corporation outlined the project and enumerated the various resources now in the possession of the home. He also outlined a plan to make the home one of the proudest possessions of the Pythian fraternities in the New England states. Manilius H. Norton, vice president of the home, gave a stirring talk on the origin of Pythianism citing the influence exercised upon Pythian principles by the teachings of Pythagores who stressed the tenets of friendship among the members of the human family. Mr. Norton's remarks were received with generous applause. A. P. March, deputy United States marshal at Hartford, made an eloquent address pointing out that from this humble beginning a nucleus is being formed around which, in a very short time will evolve an institution which will be the pride of the state of Connecticut. He brought his listeners back to the early days when the Pilgrim fathers landed but a handful upon the rocky shores of Massachusetts, how they struggled and toiled amid the most terrible difficulties and from a humble beginning, by their constant sacrifice and determination and that of their followers was evolved this glorious country, the United States of America. He finished his address by pleading that the Boosters should not be discouraged by difficulties which are bound to be encountered in a project of such large nature and he expressed confidence in the sincerity and industry of the Pythian brothers and sisters of the domain to make this home an everlasting monument of fraternal friendship and human helpfulness.

President Clendenen of the Booster club promised wholehearted cooperation by the Booster organization. Mr. Troland for Trumbull lodge of New London pledged the support of its members and Dr. S. M. Goldberg spoke of the contribution which Wauregan lodge, No. 6, of Norwich intends to make toward the support of the home. He pledged every member of the lodge to purchase liberally of the stock of the corporation.

The sisters present took an interesting part in the proceedings and enthusiastically approved a proposition made by Mrs. Lillian Rogers of Norwich that the Pythian sisters of various temples in the domain contribute articles of hand embroidery and hold a bazaar for the benefit of the home. Mr. March also suggested that the members may contribute old discarded furnishings which find a ready market among the farmers adjacent to the farm home. Mr. Ames added that when the winter is over the products raised on the farm and the revenue derived from camp sites and from visitors seeking recreation will be sufficient to cover the maintenance expenses of the home.

LOCAL U. S. MARINE IS GUARDING MAILS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

QUANTICO, Va., Dec. 14—Among the United States marines who were first selected to guard the mails against possible attacks by bandits is Frederick Carlson, of Norwich, Conn., who was stationed here prior to his assignment to this important duty.

He is one of several picked men from Quantico who began their duties as mail guards immediately after President Coolidge had given his approval. They are now furnishing protection to the mails in transit, guarding important postal centers, and insuring the safe delivery of valuable mail packages. They may not return to their post for several months.

Carlson is 22 years old and was born in Norwich. He is a brother of Raymond E. Carlson, 16 St. Regis avenue, Norwich. He joined the marine corps in December, 1925, and was assigned to duty at Parris Island, S. C., later being transferred to Quantico. It is the first time marines have guarded the mails since November, 1921, when they were assigned this task for about four months. During this period no mail robberies occurred.

HAD TO KILL HORSE AFTER COLLISION IN FOG

With dense fog making a condition that caused hazardous driving Monday night, E. Leroy Lamb of West Mystic driving a sedan, crashed into a horse drawn carriage, driven by Peter Lockwood of North Stonington, causing injuries to the horse, which made it necessary to have an animal shot. The horse was valued at $175, and damage of approximately $15 was done to the carriage. The Lamb automobile was slightly damaged, sustaining a bent fender and a broken window.

The accident happened on the road which runs from Old Mystic to North Stonington, near the home of John D. Avery.

NOANK SHIP MASTER DIES AT HIS HOME

Capt. Benjamin W. Latham, 77, of Noank whose skill as a master of fishing vessels was once known all along the Atlantic seaboard, died Tuesday morning about 6.30 o'clock at his home in Noank. Though in failing health for nearly six years, he had been confined to bed only three weeks.

Captain Latham was born in Noank, Nov. 28, 1849, son of the late Silas and Lydia Latham. His forbears were all followers of the sea. When Benjamin Latham was nine years of age he first went to sea with his father, having emphatically protested his unwillingness to attend school. Later in life he expressed regret in his failure to study in school, but thereafter he conducted his own education diligently at home and while at sea.

With his brother, the late Captain Silas Latham, Captain Benjamin Latham built up a fleet of fishing vessels and together they were the first to send a fleet of vessels into southern waters. The two brothers established a wide and profitable business and it was during those years that the Captains Latham achieved recognition as two of the most capable and resourceful masters in New England.

Captain Ben Latham later devoted his efforts to swordfishing. In those days rival fishermen engaged in heated competition to be the first to bring their catch to market. Captain Ben Latham became known in Boston as the first to bring in the catch for many seasons. During his career as a fisherman, Captain Latham owned nearly a score of fine fishing vessels, the last of which was a handsome craft called the Star. This vessel was named at his request, by his daughter, Miss Ethel Wood Latham, who in 1918 was past grand matron of the grand chapter, Order of Eastern Star.

Captain Latham was affiliated with various branches of the Masonic order. He was worshipful master of Relief and Charity lodge, A. F. and A. M. of Mystic in 1911 when the Masonic temple was built in Mystic. He was also a member of Benevolent chapter, R. A. M.; Mystic council, R. and S. M.; Palestine commandery, K. T., and of Charity chapter, No. 51, O. E. S.

He was married in Noank June 15, 1873, to Emma F. Peckham of Noank, who survives him. He also leaves a daughter, Miss Ethel Wood Latham, of Noank, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Chadwick of New London.

LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE FOR STATE COMMERCE CHAMBER

President Ernest E. Rogers of the Connecticut chamber of commerce on Tuesday announced the appointment of the legislative committee for the approaching winter. Its personnel follows: Major Frank H. Johnston, New Britain, chairman; William P. Calder, Bristol; C. L. Campbell, Hartford; J. T. Chidsey, Bristol; Arthur D. Coffin, Winsdsor Locks; C. J. Daniels, Meriden; Charles Welles Gross, Hartford; C. C. Hemenway, Hartford; Judge William C. Hungerford, New Britain; James Lee Loomis, Hartford; Lucius F. Robinson, Hartford; Maurice S. Sherman, Hartford and Charles M. Walker, New Haven.

Major Johnston, the chairman, is a former director of the chamber of commerce of the United States, a former president of the state chamber, and has had a long experience in organization work. The new legislative committee of the state chamber will hold its first meeting at Hartford on Friday to map out a policy and program for the approaching winter.

The state chamber has invited Robert A. Crosby, secretary of the Bridgeport chamber of commerce, president of the Connecticut Commercial Secretaries association, and chairman of the chamber of commerce committee of the state chamber to attend Friday's meeting and present the viewpoints of the various local chambers of commerce throughout the state as to possible legislation.

Programme for Baptist Meeting

The mission study class on "The Second Century of Baptist Missions" which has been held prior to the mid-week service at the Central Baptist church on Thursday evenings for a number of weeks, will be omitted this week. This is necessitated by Mrs. Pitt's absence in Philadelphia, attending the funeral service of her uncle.

The plans for the mid-week meeting will be carried out, as planned, however. There will be eight brief talks, as follows:

"When World Foundations Were Shaken," Miss Edith Ellis; "The Long Arm of the War," Mrs. Harry Kromer; "In the Wake of the Storm," Miss Alice M. Dean; "Building New Foundations," Mrs. W. H. Whitman; "Developing an Indigenous Christianity," Mrs. Luther D. Packer; "For the Relief of Human Suffering," Mrs. Lucius Brown; "The Emergence of Christian Leadership," Mrs. George A. Ashbey; "Problems of Today," Mrs. David A. Pitt.

WIFE BRINGS SUIT TO OBLIGE HUSBAND'S SUPPORT

On the ground that her husband, Arthur Chester Brown of Salem, formerly of Norwich, compelled her to leave their home in Norwich in December, 1925, and has since then failed to furnish her with support, Mrs. Isabel Yeomans Brown of this city has brought suit in the superior court to compel him to furnish suitable support. The marriage of the couple took place Sept. 7, 1904.

It is alleged in the papers in the suit that the defendant, Arthur C. Brown, has transferred to his mother, Margaret C. Brown of Norwich, without consideration, 45 acres of land in the town of Salem with many houses, buildings and structures thereon of great value, for the purpose of preventing the same being attached for the just claim of his wife on a secret and wrongful trust that the property shall be held by Margaret C. Brown for the defendant's sole use and benefit and to defeat such just claims of his wife, and that such property, shall, to all intents and purposes, remain and be the property of the defendant grantor, Arthur Chester Brown. A small portion of the real estate has since been sold and conveyed away by Margaret C. Brown for which $8,000 was paid by the grantee to Margaret C. Brown, who holds the same under the trust mentioned as the property and money of A. C. Brown, it is alleged.

The defendant is a person of large means, it is alleged, and owns property, real and personal, of the value of many thousands of dollars, has a large income therefrom, and as a cotton mill manager, mill agent and superintendent, can earn a very large income and salary.

From time to time during the past year, the plaintiff has applied to the defendant for wood, maintenance and support, which were wholly refused to her by her husband, he falsely claiming and asserting to his wife, it is alleged, that he had no means or money whatever and that he was absolutely dependent on his mother, Margaret C. Brown for his own support.

1. That the court order and decree that the defendant, Arthur Chester Brown, provide for the plaintiff, Isabel Yeomans Brown, a maintenance suitable to his means and sufficient to enable the plaintiff to support and care for herself.

2. That, to insure said support, to order and decree that a proper portion of the defendant's property be placed in the hands of a trustee in trust for that purpose.

3. Or, in some way grant to the plaintiff such relief as shall seem to this court meet and proper in the circumstances.

4. Or, by way of legal relief, that this court order and decree under the statute in such case made and provided that the defendant provide and contribute to the support of the plaintiff, and that the defendant become bound with sufficient surety to abide and perform such judgment.

Mrs. Brown petitions the superior court by way of equitable relief.

WETMORE PROBATE APPEAL WITHDRAWN FROM COURT

Withdrawal without costs from the docket of the superior court was made here Tuesday in the case of Herbert and Ralph W. Wetmore of New London against Mrs. Emma Wetmore, executrix of the estate of Daniel Wetmore, late of that city and owner of the Arbella, a summer boarding house at Ocean Beach. The case was an appeal from probate and was assigned for trial Tuesday before Judge Allyn L. Brown and a jury.

The Wetmore estate, worth about $15,000, was left almost entirely to Mrs. Wetmore, and the two sons were practically cut off by their father. Mrs. Emma Wetmore is not their mother, as their father had married several times.

Attorney Thomas E. Troland, counsel for the appellants, stated that the sons and the father had quarreled, and probably because one of the sons had joined the navy, he had cut them off in his will.

Attorney Arthur T. Keefe, counsel for the executrix, pressed the case for trial in order that the estate might be settled up.

Paradoxical though it may seem, a good old age is often a very bad one.

THE C. L. CLASS MEMBERS HAD CHRISTMAS PARTY

The C. L. class of Trinity Methodist Sunday school met Monday evening at the home of Rev. and Mrs. J. Harlow Graham on Williams street, 25 being present. The room was decorated in holiday colors and an enjoyable Christmas party was held. There was an interesting and amusing exchange of gifts. Later the hostess served fancy cookies, cocoa and candy.

Oakdale Girl Recovering

Justine Parker, the eight-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Parker of Oakdale is still confined to her bed from injuries received five weeks ago, but is improving daily. She was injured when she was struck by an automobile while on the way home from school.

NORWICH TOWN

There was a large attendance at the December meeting of Home chapter of The King's Daughters, Monday afternoon at Johnson home. The leader, Mrs. William E. Manning, opened the meeting with scripture reading and prayer. Reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and approved and two new members were received into the chapter. This also was the annual roll call, a number being absent due to illness, etc.

The nominating committee, Mrs. Thomas Keene, chairman, Mrs. Robert W. Cochran and Mrs. Edward Briggs, submitted the list of officers and committees for 1927. Nearly every one in office the past year was re-appointed Monday as follows: Leader, Mrs. William E. Manning; vice leader, Mrs. Charles Cross; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Frederick N. Clark; recording secretary, Mrs. Earle H. Christman; treasurer, Mrs. Herbert R. Branche. The committees are: Flower, Miss Lizzie Ortman; membership, Mrs. William R. Balcom; work, Mrs. Neville Bliog; entertainment, Mrs. Louis T. Engler. The last mentioned succeeds Mrs. Arthur Fulton, resigned.

The chapter voted $5 to the Near East relief; also to the Salvation Army $5 to add to its Christmas fund. A special committee appointed to look after the purchasing of gifts for Johnson home, comprises Mrs. Eugene Saunders a past leader, Miss Frederica Roos, R. N., and Mrs. George A. Turner. In keeping with the Christmas spirit, Mrs. Manning who arranged special music for the afternoon, also read a paper entitled "A Christmas Legend." Mrs. Elizabeth Hartley Laird, who was expected to sing was unable to be present, due to illness. Mrs. Charles Burke substituted very acceptably and gave two numbers, O Little Town of Bethlehem and Holy Night, Silent Night, Mrs. John Olsen playing the piano accompaniments. The meeting closed with the collection and Home chapter motto. The retiring chairman of the entertainment committee, Mrs. Arthur Fulton and assistants served cake and coffee during the social hour.

Home chapter sewing circle was entertained Tuesday at the home of the treasurer, Mrs. Herbert R. Branche, of Mohegan road.

Monday afternoon, December 20th, a special meeting of the sewing circle will be held at Buckingham Memorial, to tie two quilts.

Kenneth Connell, second son of Selectman and Mrs. P. T. Connell, of Norwich Town, will return at the week end or the holiday recess from Fordham, N. Y., university, where he is a first year student and has done well this term both in studies and athletics.

At M. E. vestry concert by male quartet, Frank Mell, reader, tonight at 8. Adm. adults 50c, children 15c.—Adv.

JURY IN FALL-DOHENY CASE LOCKED UP FOR THE NIGHT

Unable to Agree After Deliberating More Than Seven Hours at 10 p. m. Justice Hoehling Announced a Recess Until 10 a. m. Today—Arguments Consumed Twelve Hours; the Judges Charge About an Hour—the Jury Retired at 2.47 p. m. With Three Alternatives Before Them: Conviction, Acquittal or a Report of Inability to Agree—Fall and Doheny Had to Be Convicted or Acquitted Together—At the Discretion of the Court the Penalty Could Be Different Between the Two.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The fate of Albert B. Fall and Edward L. Doheny, on trial on charges of criminal conspiracy in connection with naval oil leases, will not be known before tomorrow.

The case was given to the jury at 2:47 p. m. today. At 10 o'clock, after seven hours and 13 minutes' deliberation, it was locked up for the night.

Justice Hoehling, who previously had indicated he would wait in his chambers until midnight for a verdict, ordered a recess until 10 a. m. In the meantime, even should the jury continue its deliberations, it will be unable to return a verdict.

Attorneys left the courtroom without commenting on the inability of the jury to reach a verdict, as did also the former secretary of the interior and Doheny, whose loan of $100,000 to Fall was the basis of the government's conspiracy charges.

Some of the defendants' friends were plainly disappointed at the failure of the jury to reach a verdict as they had hoped for a quick acquittal.

The courtroom was crowded when Justice Hoehling, after conferring with counsel on both sides, sent word from his chambers of the recess until tomorrow. Although he had expressed a willingness earlier to wait until midnight if there appeared any possibility of disposing of the case tonight, there was no indication that his decison to adjourn court prior to that time was predicated on any specific information from the jury room as to the status of proceedings there.

Under the watchful eye of two guards, the jury was held in quarters in the courthouse attic. A dormitory adjoins their room.

Fall and Doheny returned to their hotel for the night.

PROCEEDINGS CLOSING DAY OF THE FALL-DOHENY TRIAL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Court and counsel in the Fall-Doheny conspiracy trial today drew the labors of four arduous weeks to a fagged and weary jury.

With the echo of final argument and voluminous instructions from the court still ringing in their ears, the twelve young men filed into their jury-room prison at 2:47 p. m.

Three alternatives were before them —conviction, acquittal, or a report of inability to agree.

The defendants, Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior and Edward L. Doheny, wealthy California oil man, were inseparably linked together in the blank verdict forms which the jurors carried with them to their drab quarters. Two had to be convicted, or acquitted together, although, in the discretion of the court, the penalty could be different as between the two.

The penalty is fixed by law at two years' imprisonment, a fine of $10,000 or both.

Clustered about in eager-eyed knots in the courthouse corridors as the jury began its deliberations were the women folk of the jurors—present today for the first time.

Within the courtroom, chatting jovially with attorneys and friends were the elderly Doheny and the younger, but less bright eyed, Fall.

Pursuant to the admonition of Justice Adolph A. Hoehling in his charge that the examination of exhibits in the jury room might tend to isolate the evidence contained therein from correlated facts of equal significance, the jurors began their deliberations with only the text of the conspiracy indictment before them.

No Objections to Charge

Justice Hoehling's charge, which required about an hour, contained 18 paragraphs tendered by the prosecution and 30 framed by the defense, followed by about fifty brief observations of the court on points of law and evidence.

Both sides served formal notice they noted in the record no exceptions or objections to any part of the charge.

More than twelve hours of argument by counsel ended shortly before noon with the last word of former Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio, in behalf of the government. He closed with a plea that the jury consider Doheny's $100,000 loan to Fall on November 30, 1921, in the light of its potential influence upon government in the event of an acquittal.

Contention of Prosecution

During the trial it was the contention of Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, also a government prosecutor, that this transaction was a vital factor in the award to Doheny interests of the Elk Hills, Calif., naval oil reserve lease and the Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, oil storage project while Fall was in the cabinet.

Pomerene's argument followed that of Mark B. Thompson, a New Mexico friend of Fall and Wilton J. Lambert, also of defense counsel and Frank J. Hogan, chief of the defense corps of attorneys.

Defense of Fall

Thompson went directly to Fall's own statements to the senate oil committee regarding the $100,000 loan from Doheny.

"He lied, gentlemen, of course he lied. He lied to shield a friend from a pack of politicians led by Senator Walsh that little pale wolf from the hills of Montana."

"Of course he lied—and gentlemen, every red-blooded man in New Mexico is proud of him for it."

At another point Thompson said:

"That was the cleanest money that ever passed from one man's hand to another's."

Lambert, also speaking in behalf of Fall closed with a parting shot at the closing prosecution arguments of Roberts.

"As long as Roberts lives, the beloved Houdini will never die."

Hogan concluded his five hour argument began yesterday with this statement:

"I am not the attorney of record for Fall, but I would be proud to be. The trials of his life have been broken nothing in this staunch friendship."

Pomerene began with deliberate, soft spoken blows to the heart of the defense case.

"When this reserve was set aside by the government," he told the jury, "it was set aside for the use of the navy—now it is no longer a naval reserve, but Doheny's reserve—and all this accomplished in secret."

So effective was Mr. Pomerene's argument that tears came to Doheny's eyes. He wiped them away with a large colored handkerchief. Tears also were in the eyes of Mrs. Doheny and her daughter as they left the courtroom.

The former senator read a verse of poetry which appealed for protection against the undermining of government by the gnawing "worm of fraud," and also made this statement to the jury:

"I regret the desecration of the tomb of President Harding in the defense attempt to bring forth his shroud to cover up the enemy of this transaction."

RUMANIANS PREVENT ARMS SHIPMENT BY BOLSHEVIKS

BUCHAREST, Dec. 15—(AP)—An attempt to send a boatload of arms and ammunition across the Dniester river by Bolsheviks at a point near Tighina has been frustrated by Rumanian frontier guards after a spirited fight, the authorities here are informed.

The Rumanians, knowing the time for the arrival of the boat ambushed the soviet party, who responded to the demand for surrender with a volley. A sharp exchange of fire took place between the Rumanians and Bolsheviks. The latter, under cover of a heavy mist and also protected by machine-gun fire of soviet guards on the opposite bank of the river, escaped. There were no casualties on the Rumanian side.

Rumania, according to the newspaper Universul, will place the matter before a Russo-Rumanian mixed commission.

LABOR TROUBLE AGAIN BREAKS OUT IN VATICAN

ROME, Italy, Dec. 15—(AP)—Labor troubles again have broken out in the Vatican. The agitation among minor employes of the holy seat based upon discontent over the apportionment of the new wage increases culminated tonight with the report that Monsignor Samper, Papal Major Domo and prefect of the Apostolic palaces, had tendered his resignation to the Pope after a special meeting of high prelates.

The Vatican denied that Monsignor Samper had tendered his resignation or that there would be any change among the Vatican officials. The report, however, was given wide circulation and caused a stir in ecclesiastical circles because for a long time Monsignor Samper had been mentioned as a possibility for the College of Cardinals.

ORMISTON INDICTED ON CHARGES OF CONSPIRACY

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15—(AP)—Kenneth G. Ormiston, fugitive radio man in the Aimee Semple Mcpherson case, was indicted on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice by the Los Angeles county grand jury today.

Officials who had asked the action to facilitate his return from Chicago found their plans legally blocked, however, since Ormiston is yet in the hands of private investigators.

Before an officer can be sent to Sacramento to ask Governor Friend W. Richardson to issue a requisition for the return of the radio man, the district attorney's office said it will be necessary that Ormiston be arrested. In a legal sense, the officers said, the radio man still is at large.

PLEADED NOT GUILTY TO MURDER OF HER HUSBAND

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 15—(AP)—Mrs. Edith Bishop pleaded not guilty when arraigned today on a charge of slaying her husband, Luther Bishop, state detective, who was shot to death in bed at his home here Dec. 5.

Preliminary hearing was set for Dec. 21.

The county attorney's office announced that any attempt to obtain the widow's release on bond would be opposed. Mrs. Bishop was arrested last night on the murder charge and is being held in the county jail.

Investigators declare that Bishop, a two-gun man, was shot to death with one of his own pistols. The weapons were found in a closet at the home.

WORLD FAMOUS CHURCH MAY BECOME DANCE HALL

LONDON, Dec. 15—(AP)—One of the world's most famous churches, the Sophia Mosque, may become a dance hall, says a Constantinople dispatch to the Daily Mail, if such a proposal made by a group of business men to the local prefecture materializes.

The business men claim that the building no longer is suitable for religious services.

The Sophia Mosque is recognized as the most glorious triumph of Byzantine art. It was built in the sixth century by Emperor Justinian as a Christian temple. After the Mohammedan conquest of Constantinople in the fifteenth century it became a Moslem mosque.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS

DUBLIN, Dec. 15—(AP)—All persons detained by the Irish Free State in connection with recent raids on the barracks of civil guards were released by order of the executive council.

LONDON, Dec. 15—(AP)—A Lloyds' despatch from Reykjavik, Iceland, says the Norwegian steamer Balholm has been wrecked at Akrar, Faxe bay, and the crew and passengers drowned. No details are given.

HOHENHEIM, Wuerttemburg, Germany, Dec. 15—(AP)—A violent earthquake was recorded today on the seismograph of the agricultural college here. The quake was at a distance of 150 miles, presumably in northern Switzerland or Tyrol.

PARIS, Dec. 15—(AP)—Frederick Oscar Besner, an American whose home address was not made public, has applied for a divorce here from Lillian Smith Besner. The wife opposed the petition on the ground that the husband had not established a French domicile. The court, however, decided that a domicile had been established, and decided to hear the case later on its merits.

U. S. CATHOLIC EPICCOPATE ISSUES LETTER ON MEXICO

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The Catholic episcopate of the United States today issued a pastoral letter which declared that the present troubles condition in Mexico is caused by the defiance of the fundamental principles of liberty as they are understood in the United States. This is the first collective letter of the bishops since 1919. And its purpose, it was stated in authoritative circles, was not to revive the religious controversy but to set it at rest forever.

The bishops state that their reason for speaking on the Mexican situation is that the Mexican government has itself appealed to the American public, the pastoral saying:

"The government of Mexico cannot, therefore object, under such circumstances, if the case of the things presented for judgment be considered in the light of American principles as embodied in our fundamental laws."

Recounting the work and influence of the Catholic church in Mexico over a score of years the pastoral letter, speaking for the church, says:

"Show me one good thing in Mexico I did not give you. Show me one genius for whom it was not responsible. Show me one step toward the light that I did not help you take. Take out of your country all that I put in it, and see what remains."

The bishops state the letter is no appeal for political intervention or action of any sort, declaring that "our duty is done when, by telling the story, defending the truth and emphasizing the principles, we sound a warning to Christian civilization that it foundation is again being attacked and undermined."

STORY OF MUTINY ON THE SCHOONER CHAS. A. DEAN

WILMINGTON, N. C., Dec. 15—(AP)—Fear for their own safety and not mutiny led the crew of the four-masted schooner Charles A. Dean to seek to induce Captain A. W. Albert to keep the vessel at a greater distance from the shoal waters about the North Carolina coast than he wanted to, members of the crew said today at the Oak Island coast guard station.

Coast guardsmen said that the crew members told them that they thought the captain was hugging the shore line too closely with the 1,070 ton vessel on Monday night and that they asked him to further put to sea. Instead, they said, he drew a pistol and presumably ordered them into the hold. They refused and defied them to discover his intent.

On Monday night, the vessel went aground on Frying Pan shoals and when coast guardsmen and pilots attempted to board the captain Albert ordered them off and showed his weapon. Last night when the guardsmen returned with arms, he permitted them to board the vessel and take off the crew of three white men and five negroes, but refused to leave himself or the ship. The crew was returned to the ship today and four tugs from this port and Southport are trying to pull the schooner off the shoals.

Attaches of the coast guard station said that they had been informed that there had been some drinking among the members of the crew but when they boarded the vessel last night no liquor was found. Members of the crew, however, were quoted as saying there had been liquor on board but that "it had been disposed of."

SUIT AGAINST GOODYEAR COMPANY REOPENED

AKRON, O., Dec. 15—(AP)—Reopening of the Laura L. T. Weiss suits against the present management of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company and its $85,000,000 refinancing plan of 1921 was made possible today by a ruling of Judge S. D. Kenfield that the cases had not previously been settled in common pleas court.

A journal entry made by the late Judge William J. Ahern, Jr., stating that the suits were adjudicated was a "clerical error" the court ruled. Judge Kenfield held that the suits were merely held in abeyance and can be taken up in court again."

Today's ruling, it was believed, will result either in a request for immediate reopening of the hearing, which would bring evidence in the Weiss suit again before the court or the filing of a new action. It was indicated that the present ruling will be used by stockholders interested in the common stock voting trust in pressing other actions now pending here and in the state supreme court in Columbus.

TRIAL OF McDERMOTT FOR SLAYING OF DON R. MELLETT

CANTON, Ohio, Dec. 15—(AP)—Over the objection of defense counsel, the state today introduced its first testimony tending to show that members of the Canton police department were in league with the underworld, which is supposed to have plotted the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, for which Patrick Eugene McDermott is on trial.

William Bitzler, a "surprise witness" took the stand to detail movements of McDermott four days prior to the shooting, and testified that McDermott boasted of his contempt for the police department.

Two days before the slaying, July 16, McDermott said he was on a party with prominent Canton men and boasted he could do anything he liked without fear of police interference, Bitzler testified. Their witness told of drinking bouts with McDermott, but said that on the night Mellett was slain "Pat" refused to join him because he had a "job to do."

Will Be No Immediate Income Tax Reduction

Chairman Smoot of Senate Finance Committee Favors Applying Surplus to Debt Reduction.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The door against immediate tax reduction, already closed by house republican leaders, was bolted today by Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee, as senate democrats pounded suddenly for action.

The democrats led by Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, told the senate a $500,000,000 surplus was in sight for this fiscal year and volunteered not to stand in the way of a republican bill.

Senator Smoot replied that he not only favored application of the surplus to retirement of the public debt, but he doubted the wisdom of the proposal of President Coolidge for a cut on next year's income tax payments.

"It would mean a saving of only 25 cents to the small taxpayer," he said, "and would benefit only the large corporations and taxpayers with large incomes."

Senator Harrison, insisting the "American people want tax reduction," called upon congress to carry out the expressed wish of President Coolidge for a non-partisan tax credit plan or "some tax relief."

Senator Swanson, democrat, Virginia, charged that republicans were using tax reduction for political campaigns and were saving a huge tax cut for the eve of the 1928 election.

The debate, broadening, touched on the tariff and war debt settlements and finally Chairman Warren of the appropriations committee, urged Senator Smoot and the others to cease the "political oratory" in favor of consideration of a supply bill.

Praising the administration for not seeking to bring up the French debt settlement for ratification at this session, Senator Harrison described his "amazement" at reading of a fund of almost 7,000,000 francs in the French budget for "propaganda purposes" which he said would be used largely in this country.

Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, challenged Senator Smoot's contention of prosperity and insisted it was confined to bankers and speculators. The Utah senator replied that income tax returns showed the prosperity was "universal."

$5,977,329 EXPENDED ON 127 MILES STATE HIGHWAYS DURING 1925

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—The department of agriculture reports completed roads having federal aid received a net addition of 9,417 miles during the fiscal year of 1926 of this sum $2,273,863 was expended in the state of Connecticut where the total cost was $5,977,329 covering 127 miles. Traffic surveys to show the utilization of various highways have been made in Connecticut and Maine of the New England states and will shortly be made in New Hampshire and Vermont. The department adds these surveys collect valuable information and places highway programs on a scientific basis.

The house naval committee's views on naval conditions were brought to the attention of President Coolidge.

MRS. JEANNE GOLD HAS BEEN ADMITTED TO THE COUNTRY

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)—After being detained at Ellis Island by immigration officials because her passport had expired four days ago, Mrs. Jeanne Gold, a native of Wakefield, Mass., was admitted to the country today without bond by a board of special inquiry.

Mrs. Gold arrived yesterday from Valparaiso on the Grace liner Santa Luisa, accompanied by a maid and twelve trunks, and carrying a Spanish passport which, according to immigrations officials, had expired while the ship was still at sea.

Arson Charge Against the Girl Bank Robber

Miss Rebecca Bradley of Austin, Tex., Accused of Having Set Fire to a House at Roundrock, Tex.

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Mrs Rebecca Bradley Rogers, University of Texas graduate charged with bank robbery, was arrested here late today on a charge of arson, filed against her at Georgetown, Texas, by Harry Dolan, county attorney of Williamson county.

Mrs. Rogers was arrested at Seton Infirmary here where her husband Otis Rogers, attorney of Amarillo, Texas, is confined. She was taken to the local police station, photographed and then hurried to Georgetown about 40 miles from here.

John Cofer, Jr., the young woman's attorney, immediately sought a habeas corpus action in the district court here [illegible].

Mrs. Rogers is charged with setting fire, Friday, to a house in Roundrock, about 15 miles from here.

Officials of the Farmers State bank at Roundrock, said a girl, answering Mrs. Rogers' description, hung around the bank for several days last week, and Friday afternoon rushed into the bank, shouting "Fire, fire."

SCOTCH LABOR LEADER WAS ANGERED BY RETORT TO QUERY

LONDON, Dec. 15—(AP)—David Kirkwood, the fiery Scotch labor M. P., who likes to call a spade a spade, has come a cropper in the house of commons that is giving his political friends and foes alike a chuckle.

It happened during a discussion on the appointment of two judges with Indian experience on the judicial committee of the privy council at £2,000 a year.

Mr. Kirkwood thought this far too much, and roared: "What have these judges got that I haven't?"

"Brains!" came a stentorian voice from the conservative benches.

The house collapsed, Kirkwood roared back that he would take the others on, one and all, on any kind of brainy prowess, but even his political friends laughed heartily.

GOV. TRUMBULL TO MAKE NO RECESS APPOINTMENTS

HARTFORD, Dec. 15.—(AP)—No recess appointments will be made to fill vacancies now existing in the state tuberculosis commission and on the Fairfield county common pleas bench, Governor Trumbull said today. There has been a vacancy in the tuberculosis commission since the resignation of Wallis S. Ailis, of Norwich last summer and on the bench since the death of Judge John J. Walsh of Norwalk some weeks ago. Nomination for the unexpired term of Judge Walsh will be made to the general assembly after it convenes next month and it has seemed advisable, Governor Trumbull said, to delay the appointment to the tuberculosis commission until after the legislature convenes. No further recess appointments will be made before the opening of the legislature unless an emergency requires immediate filling of a vacancy, the governor said.

MRS. HELEN TATELMAN DENIED A SEPARATION

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The plea of Mrs. Helen Tatelman for a decree of separation from her husband, was denied today when Supreme Court Justice John Ford ruled that "a man who doesn't like to look at a pretty woman had something abnormal about him."

Mrs. Tatelman, who married Harry Tatelman, cotton goods salesman in December 1923, said that on her honeymoon trip to Montreal her husband had "flirted with a pretty girl on the train."

"I don't know that there is anything wrong about smiling at a pretty girl," the justice said. "I'm smiling at you now and right in the presence of your husband."

PURCHASING PERSONAL EFFECTS OF VALENTINO

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 15—(AP)—Several hundred persons among whom no motion picture stars or other prominent persons were recognized, bought numerous articles of furnishings and personal effects of the late Rudolph Valentino at auction here today.

No unusual prices were obtained. Several pieces of over stuffed furniture, candlesticks, fancy ash trays and tapestry being knocked down for nominal sums.

Articles were placed on sale by request today. The full length portrait of the late screen lover, for which Pola Negri expressed deep admiration, still stood in its place, no one having asked that it be put up for sale.

Selecting the Gifts for the Holiday.

—:O:—

The prudent buyer of Christmas gifts, of which there is an endless variety, will save a great deal of time and considerable money by carefully reading the announcements of the Norwich merchants in The Bulletin from day to day, for these advertisements tell him of the most appropriate gifts for the person or the occasion that he has in mind.

The merchants have provided an attractive assortment of holiday goods and display them in such a manner that selections need not be made in haphazard manner and on the spur of the moment if the task of shopping is not delayed too long.

Get the Christmas spirit, make up your mind to avoid the jam as much as possible by using the early hours and get your packages that must be sent by mail into the postoffice early enough to permit of delivery before Christmas.

Remember it is possible to do much to help others and relieve the strain of a busy season by avoiding the last minute hurry and crush.

$500,000 DRY 'UNDER COVER' FUND DEEMED UNTENABLE

After Bitter Attack on the Provision By Wets in the Senate, Vice President Dawes Ruled the Proposal "Clearly Out of Order"—Assistant Secretary Andrews Had Asked Fund For Use by Prohibition Agents—Wet Senators Denounced the Men For Whom the Fund Was Intended as "Spies, Sneaks and Snoopers."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Senate wets today let pass without protest the $13,000,000 appropriation in the treasury supply bill for the enforcement activities of the prohibition unit, but scored a victory against the provision for "under cover" agents.

Led by Senators Bruce, Maryland, and Reed, Missouri, democrats, they let loose an assault against the proposed use of $500,000 for "under cover" men whom they described as "spies, sneaks and snoopers."

Vice President Dawes finally ruled that the proposal of Assistant Secretary Andrews, chief of the dry forces, for authority to spend $500,000 without regard to present auditing requirements was "clearly out of order" in that it contemplated new legislation in an appropriation bill. The proposal had been eliminated in the house on similar grounds, but was reinserted by the senate appropriations committee.

While the senate wets were making their assault on the $500,000 provision, a movement got under way to formally organize them, for the first time since the dry law went into effect, to map out a campaign of procedure on other prohibition proposals.

Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, issued invitations to 20 senators for a conference at an indefinite date, but the list was not made public.

During the senate discussion, Senator Bruce denounced the "under cover" provisions as "tyrannical" and the proposal was generally attacked because it premitted the "secret use" of funds.

"There will be no liberty left in this land," asserted Bruce, "if this system is allowed to run to its extreme consequences."

Senator Reed contended it was futile to authorize the use of $500,000 for employment of an "army of spies" because "when you stop liquor at one source it breaks out at another."

Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, told his colleagues that if prohibition is bad for the country there is only one way to get rid of it, and that is to enforce it to the limit.

SENATOR A. R. GOULD WAS EXONERATED SIX YEARS AGO

PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 15—(AP)—United States Senator Arthur R. Gould was exonerated six years ago by an investigating committee of the New Brunswick parliament on bribery charges, State Senator Frederick W. Hinckley revealed tonight after word had been received from Fredericton, N. B., that th official records of the investigation into the St. John Valley and Quebec railway matter, involving Mr. Gould, were missing from the files.

Senator Hinckley said he had been unaware of this investigation until Monday, when he appeared as counsel for Mr. Gould before the senate committee, to which had been referred charges that he paid a bribe of $100,000, in 1918 to J. K. Flemming, then premier of New Brunswick, in connection with a contract for rights to build the railroad. He intimated that the senate inquiry may go to United States supreme court before it is concluded.

The charges, made in the senate in an effort to prevent Senator Gould from taking his seat, to which he was elected on November 29 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Bert M. Fernald, and first brought out in the election campaign by a committee associated with Fulton J. Redman, the democratic nominee, were based upon the report of Chief Justice Harrison A. McKeown, before whom was arbitrated a $400,000 claim against the province of those interested in the railroad. Mr. Gould explained in the campaign that the $100,000 was a political campaign assessment, paid against his wishes.

MRS. CECILE DUVAL HAS BEEN ORDERED DEPORTED

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Mrs. Cecile Duval, young Chilean wife of Alexander Duval, a steamship oiler, was ordered deported today on the same ship on which she arrived after a hearing before a board of special inquiry at Ellis Island.

Mrs. Duval arrived in the United States clothed in greasy overalls in which her husband had attempted to smuggle her aboard the ship and into this country. Her identity was discovered ten days out of Valparaiso when another oiler saw through her disguise and attempted to make love to her. A fight started between him and her husband which called attention of the captain to the woman's presence.

Officials at Ellis Island said Mrs. Duval might appeal from the decision of the board.

TROUBLE OVER DANCES SPONSORED BY HENRY FORD

DETROIT, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Parents of several hundred school children in Dearborn, home town of Henry Ford, are in controversy with the village school board over the benefits of the old fashioned dances sponsored by Mr. Ford.

The board had before it today a petition signed by more than 200 parents demanding that the schools discontinue the teaching of dancing "in the interests of a higher standard of morality." In answer to the protest, the board announces a public exhibition of the old fashioned dances, to be held tomorrow night under the direction of instructors employed by Mr. Ford.

Characterizing the protest as ridiculous, Dr. Edward F. Fisher, president of the school board, said the signers of the petition would be specifically invited to attend.

ALFRED KING, FRIEND OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN, DEAD

NORTH ARLINGTON, N. J., Dec. 15—(AP)—Alfred King, friend of President Lincoln and sponsor of the raising of the battleship Maine, from the bottom of Havana harbor, died at his home here today at the age of 86. Mr. King was born in Maine and enlisted there in the Union army during the Civil war, and to that state his body will be sent for burial.

OBITUARY

Richard Baldwin Coggswell

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 15—(AP)—Richard Baldwin Coggswell, for nearly sixty-two years an employe of the New Haven railroad and its precedessors, died this afternoon at the home of his son, Richard W. Coggswell, treasurer of the City Savings bank. He was 78 years old He was retired by the railroad company early this year, after having been for much of his period of service, a clerk in the local freight house. He entered the service of what was then the Housatonic railroad as clerk, on May 1, 1864, assisting his father, who was agent at Lee, Mass.

A FLAT DENIAL MADE BY DEPOSED DRY AGENT GREEN

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Colonel Ned M. Green, deposed prohibition administrator for northern California and Nevada, had his day in court today in his trial on charges of embezzling government liquor, but he was not permitted to testify that he was the victim of a plot to remove him from office.

Colonel Green put on record a flat denial that he had violated the Volstead act. He testified his duties sometimes required him to drink confiscated liquor, but that he always had done his drinking in his hotel room. Previously, he had told the court his duties often made it necessary for him to examine the labels and bottles of liquor seized by prohibition agents.

The defendant attempted to relate the facts of a supposed conspiracy by certain unidentified men and women to remove him from office, but was blocked by prosecution objections. His chief counsel, Theodore J. Roche, then explained that it was hoped to show that Colonel Green had been asked to raid a certain still, but discovered that it was part of a plot to compromise him with the government.

"Are you trying to prove," the court asked, "that the government was behind this alleged conspiracy to oust Colonel Green?"

"I am not," Roche replied, "but I hope to show that the conspiracy was participated in by certain governmental agents."

SLIGHT RELIEF FROM COLD WAVE IN THE WEST

CHICAGO, Dec. 15—(AP)—Thermometers which have flirted with zero weather or under since Sunday west of the Appalachians and north of Kansas ascended a degree or two tonight but brought scant relief from unseasonably bitter weather.

Not until tomorrow night, will the cold wave pass, the weather bureau said, although its back will be broken before morning.

Temperatures today were similar to those of yesterday, sinking to 26 below zero in the northwest and standing about at zero through Illinois, Indiana and Ohio mercuries recorded marks ranging from zero to eight above.

Traffic and communication had recovered today. Two deaths from cold in Chicago raised the storm's fatalities over the west to more than a score, but the list was kept down by rapid work of relief organizations. Chicago police found their cells filled with refugees again tonight, many of them returning to the cement floors which they left this morning to skirmish for food and clothes.

By Friday or Saturday, the weather bureau promises, temperatures will have returned to normal.

BANDIT BROTHERS WERE CAPTURED BY A POSSE

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Two brothers, believed by police to be the pair who risked their lives by crossing the ice-sheeted Missouri river today in escaping posse, after they had terrorized Modale, Iowa, citizens by shooting up the town and robbing the Modale Savings bank of $8,150 were in custody here tonight.

Two Modale men were wounded, neither seriously, in the shooting.

The men, Dave and Ray Hardy, 40 and 31, were arrested as they drove up to their rooming house in a taxicab, although they denied any connection with the robbery, police said they found $3,151 in the cab.

The brothers said they crossed the ice near the scene of the robbery to escape and walked 25 miles into Omaha, where they hired the cab.

The robbery and chase along the Missouri river lowlands in Iowa and Nebraska were full of thrills. Before they crossed the ice, they burned their stolen car and changed clothes.

The holdup, in which Robert Swan, bank cashier, and Taft Jackson, a passerby were slightly wounded, likewise was bold and dramatic.

TRIAL OF BLAKESLEE SUIT FOR WORLD WAR WORK

HARTFORD, Dec. 15—(AP)—The constitutionality of the state act under which C. W. Blakeslee and Sons of New Haven, seek to recover $158,-000 from the board of water commissioners to meet the increase of costs during the World war in building the Richards Corner dam in New Hartford, was attacked by Allan K. Smith, counsel for the water board, before Judge Nickerson in the superior court today.

The ground of Mr. Smith's attack was that the twenty fourth amendment to the state constitution prevented the board from paying the New Haven contractors more than their contract called for, regardless of the emergency of the World war.

Gifts for every age and taste

How Are You

Keeping Christmas?

THERE IS A BETTER THING THAN THE OBSERVANCE OF CHRISTMAS DAY, AND THAT IS KEEPING CHRISTMAS. ARE YOU WILLING TO FORGET WHAT YOU HAVE DONE FOR OTHER PEOPLE, AND TO REMEMBER WHAT OTHER PEOPLE HAVE DONE FOR YOU; TO IGNORE WHAT THE WORLD OWES YOU, AND TO THINK WHAT YOU OWE THE WORLD; TO PUT YOUR RIGHTS IN THE BACKGROUND, AND YOUR DUTIES IN THE MIDDLE DISTANCE, AND YOUR CHANCES TO DO A LITTLE MORE THAN YOUR DUTY IN THE FOREGROUND; TO SEE THAT YOUR FELLOWMEN ARE JUST AS REAL AS YOU ARE, AND TRY TO LOOK BEHIND THEIR FACES TO THEIR HEARTS, HUNGRY FOR JOY; TO OWN THAT PROBABLY THE ONLY GOOD REASON FOR YOUR EXISTENCE IS NOT WHAT YOU ARE GOING TO GET OUT OF LIFE, BUT WHAT YOU ARE GOINO TO GIVE TO LIFE; TO CLOSE YOUR BOOK OF COMPLAINTS AGAINST THE MANAGEMENT OF THE UNIVERSE, AND TO LOOK AROUND YOU FOR A PLACE WHERE YOU CAN SEW A FEW SEEDS OF HAPPINESS — ARE YOU WILLING TO DO THESE THINGS EVEN FOR A DAY? THEN YOU CAN KEEP CHRISTMAS.

WILLIMANTIC REFUSES TO CLAIM LATHAM AS RESIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 16—George B. Latham, who was caught red-handed while rum-running through St. Albans, Vt., and who has acquired wide publicity because of statements which he made upon being arrested and of the unique smoke screen device found on his car, is not a resident of Willimantic, but of a section of the town of Coventry, known as Flanders situated some five miles from here, westerly of Babcock Hill, Latham is well known here, however, and up to about a year and one half ago when he suffered the loss of one leg in an automobile accident, he carried well the sobriquet of "Daredevil Latham." Young men in town recall him clearly as the motorcycle hero of their youth. Latham was not only a fast, but a stunt rider as well and he became widely known for his performances. He defeated all comers in motorcycle races that were held some years ago at Recreation park, then known as a fair grounds. Nearly two years ago his motorcycle collided with a parked automobile near Manchester and as a result his leg was amputated. Despite this handicap he continued to drive, securing an automobile. Ostensibly he made his living selling electric novelties although it was generally known that he received a large sum of money in a settlement out of court as the result of a suit he brought following the accident. For some time previous to the accident he had been employed as a fireman on the New Haven railroad. He has continued to reside with his sister in Flanders. A frequent caller at a local garage he made a trip to Canada with one of the mechanics some two weeks ago but no liquor was brought back on this occasion. Last Thursday he tried to persuade one of the mechanics to take another trip to Montreal but the latter declined, and today he is thanking his lucky stars.

A new record is anticipated at the Willimantic postoffice during the holiday season of 1936. Postmaster Frank M. Smith issued this prediction Wednesday because of the fact that both outgoing and incoming holiday mail which started with a rush Monday has now reached a volume far in excess to 1935. The sub-station is also doing a larger business. Foreign money order business, most of which is now completed, was nearly fifty per cent greater than last year. Domestic money order business is also greater than 1935. One substitute clerk has already been called in and two more stand ready to enter service during next week's eleventh hour rush. Fred LeClaire has been awarded the contract to transport the larger holiday packages. Assistant Postmaster Daniel A. Sullivan who underwent an operation for appendicitis at St. Joseph's hospital some time ago returned to his duties this week and all hands from Postmaster Smith down are now on deck.

Miss Agnes Vegiard of Hartford, recently of this city, installed the following newly elected officers of the Women's Benefit association at its meeting in the Al-Pierre Tabarin building Tuesday evening: Mrs. Mary Lombardo, commander; Mrs. Agnes Bocash, lieutenant commander; Mrs. Ida Grady, past commander; Mrs. Agnes Vegiard, junior commander; Mrs. Mary Barber, record keeper; Mrs. Margaret Moran, publicity reporter; Miss Mary Mathieu, finance keeper; Mrs. Mary Brooke, collector; Mrs. Ida LaValise, chaplain; Mrs. Katherine Bedford, sergeant; Mrs. Josephine Gifaus, sentinel; Mrs. Mabel Menditto, picket; Mrs. Aline Dubreuil, pianist. Mrs. Lombardo and Mrs. Bocash were elected to their respective offices for the second consecutive year.

A most interesting talk on the D. A. R. work at Ellis Island among the immigrants was given at the December meeting of Anne Wood Elderkin chapter, D. A. R., held at the home of Mrs. Frank Larrabee, by Mrs. Frederick Latimer of Hartford. Mrs. Latimer is state chairman of the work of the D. A. R. at Ellis Island and she told in detail of a recent tour of inspection of the island. Connecticut stands near the top on the list of those states which contribute to immigrant work. Previous to the introduction of the speaker by Mrs. Larrabee, two groups of songs were rendered by Mrs. Doris Hall MacBee of Willington. The regent, Mrs. Herbert R. Chappell had charge of the meeting. In noting gift day in the chapter every member brought an appropriate gift to be sent to Ellis Island. For a social hour and tea the hostess was assisted by Mrs. Minnie Kramer, Mrs. Lizzie Litchfield, Miss Mary Pomeroy, Miss Mabel Johnson, Miss Faith Webster and Mrs. Ruth Potter.

WILLIMANTIC WHITE WAY PLANS NEARLY COMPLETE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 16—With but one decision remaining—that of deciding what type of standard will be used—Willimantic stands assured of a "white way" along its principal business streets. Some fifty lights, ranging from 600 to 1,500 candle power are to be installed. Wednesday local officials of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company including Manager John F. Ahern and Superintendent David Lorse met with Aldermen William E. Jackson and Charles H. Beebe of the common council and Daniel E. Cogan of Boston, a street lighting expert. There is a possibility that curb standards will be used along Main street and the bracket style on the side streets included in the system. Alderman Jackson said after the meeting that this is exactly what will be done. He also said that a gradual illumination system will be worked out. From Windham to High streets the lights will be 600 candle power, from High to Walnut, 1,000 and from Walnut to Lincoln square, comprising the center of business activity of 1,500 candle power, then diminishing in the same along Main and Union streets to the Jackson street intersection. If weather conditions are favorable the work of installing the lights will be completed in about two months.

The executive committee of the Tolland county council of religious education held a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. here Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Exner J. Matthews of South Windham, president, in charge. Wallace L. Woodin of Hartford, state secretary discussed plans for the program of the committee and arrangements of the budget. Other officers of the council are: First vice president, Rev. Charles G. Johnson, of South Coventry; secretary, Miss Edna Latham of Columbia; and treasurer, Frank Condon of Rockville.

Considerable business was transacted at the quarterly meeting of the directors of the Willimantic welfare bureau held Monday night. John P. Carlson presided. Secretary Miss Elizabeth P. Anderson read her report for the three months showing 329 calls made to the bureau office, 342 outside visits and 328 telephone calls received. She described the work being done and told of children being brought to physicians for treatment; boarding homes found for some and commitments made in the state farm and Mansfield Training school. Considerable has been also done in ironing out domestic difficulties. The Welfare Bureau Christmas tree and program will be held at the town hall Thursday, December 23.

The junior class of the Willimantic State Normal school elected the following officers this week: Miss Gertrude Dondero, president; Miss Grace Rathbun, vice president; Miss Frances Hoey, secretary and Miss Virginia Paine, treasurer.

Margery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Mills of Valley street is making good recovery at St. Joseph's hospital where she underwent an operation for mastoid.

The third of a series of whists was held at St. Paul's parish house Tuesday night with eleven tables in play. Mrs. W. H. P. Sweet won the ladies' first prize and Miss Flora Baker the second. Bixby Merrill and O. S. Loveland took the men's awards. Refreshments were served.

Neighbors and members of the Woman's Benefit association have presented a Sunshine basket to Mrs. Nora Dillon of Meadow street, who is now a patient at St. Joseph's hospital.

Mrs. Otto B. Robinson entertained at bridge and a luncheon Tuesday evening in honor fo Mrs. T. R. Parker, Mrs. J. W. Hillhouse and Mrs. H. C. Murray. Mrs. Parker and Mrs. Hillhouse will leave soon for California and Mrs. Murray for Florida. At cards Mrs. E. B. Latham held highest score for the ladies and George F. Taylor for the men.

Miss Miriam S. Skidmore, supervisor of training at the State Normal school is in New York and Atlantic City, N. J., on a month's leave of absence.

Rev. and Mrs. John H. Knott of Chaplin have gone to Miami, Fla., to remain until April 1.

Miss Betty Mara Lynch of Huntington, W. Va., is at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. Mara Lynch in South Coventry for the holiday recess.

Ralph Sunderland of Stafford Springs and West Ashford was a visitor in this city Wednesday.

Henry Robinson of Manchester Green is the guest of relatives here for a week.

Mrs. Wilbur L. Cross and Mrs. Fred W. Tracy returned Wednesday from a visit to their homes in New Haven and Bridgeport, respectively.

General Secretary Albert B. Smith of the local Y. M. C. A. attended a meeting of the general secretaries of New England in Boston, Mass., Wednesday.

C. Harry Branch was in Providence, R. I., on business this week.

Chauncey H. Macfarlane was on a business trip in Boston, Wednesday.

Mrs. Ella M. Blanchard is entertaining Mrs. Maria Barker of Lebanon for a week.

Mrs. G. L. Gardner and son, and Mrs. Warren of Danielson have been guests of Mrs. Gardner's mother, Mrs. C. H. Backus in South Windham.

Initiation of new members was held at the bi-monthly meeting of Willimantic lodge, No. 1811, B. P. O. E. held in the Elks home Wednesday evening with Exalted Ruler Clarence Mathieu in charge. The Elks gratefully acknowledged the receipt of a valuable gift in the form of five beautiful and expensive paintings from the estate of Willard W. Hayden. The paintings will add greatly to the mural decorations at the home which is now in the course of being furnished.

GOSHEN

The mission of the church in the community was the theme of the sermon by Rev. Stanley Selleck on Sunday afternoon. A legend of the first Christmas tree was given for the Junior sermon. A number of new children were present giving a substantial increase to Miss Gillette's primary department. There was a good attendance considering the slippery state of the roads.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Jones and family were visitors in Norwich Saturday. In the evening a number were invited to their home to rehearse for the Christmas pageant. After rehearsal a social hour was enjoyed. An object of attraction was a very artistic set of andirons that supported the backlog. They dated back to 1812. A set of brass handled shovels and tongs of antique design also attracted attention.

Miss Hilda Tilton spent the week end at her home in Topsfield, Mass.

Arthur W. Lathrop and William Bukeley of Hartford spent a few hours Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Lathrop.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart of New Jersey are spending some time assisting Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Lathrop with their home work.

Ralph Hinckley is working in Windham.

Friends of Rev. Lydia Hartig who has been in Ekonk during the summer and fall are pleased to know that she is now spending several months supplying the Congregational church in Boxrah. Miss Hartig began her duties on Sunday, Dec. 13 and expects to remain until about the first of April. She was pastor of the church here for four years, leaving the first of last April.

The Goshen Glee club and the Community club will give an oyster supper on Wednesday evening. E. W. Jones, Edward H. McCall, E. H. McCall, Jr., and Bradford Jones, are the committee on arrangements. This is an annual affair and is looked forward to with interest. The ladies are invited to bring pies. There will be after supper remarks as usual.

The old time fiddler is still a person of much interest. Over the radio on a recent evening was heard the strains of three old time favorites, Ocean Wave, The Wood Sawyer, and Turkey in the Straw, played by Fenton Randall of West Virginia, who is 76 years of age and who used a fiddle made 226 years ago.

PLAINFIELD

The following program was carried out at Plainfield high school during a recent assembly period: Talk, "The Why of Athletics in the High School," George Muller, football coach, the first in a series of talks to be given by members of the faculty which will take the form of explanations of the presence of certain courses and related subjects in the high school curriculum. Mr. Valentine gave a talk on the "Place of Commerce" in the High School last Friday during assembly. Opening march played by Ruth Potvin '36. Hymn, sung by the school, accompanied by Lena Pipher '37; Glee club selection, "The Rally," Stella Duxbury '36, accompanist; duet, "Ring on Sweet Angelus," Dorothy G. Pike '37 and Rose L. Paransino '37.

Philip Battey of the United States navy came home from Norfolk, Va., Sunday morning for a ten days furlough. His home is in Moosup.

Thomas Geer of Moosup has moved to the Tillinghast cottage on the Plainfield road, in Central Village.

Several from here attended a baked bean supper given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society at Sterling Hill, Tuesday evening. There was also a sale of candy and fancy articles.

The Farnsworth mill company of Central Village is running the mill from 8 o'clock until 4 o'clock, four days a week, to save lighting.

The Lincoln club gave a social and entertainment in the Congregational church vestry Monday evening. Refreshments were served. The committee comprised Ray Greene, William Hall, Fred Jeffries, Harry Baldwin and Harry Hilton.

DEER HUNTING SEASON

The plan for legislation to shoot deer in this state is only a natural development. It is a method which is employed in other states during a fixed period each year and it is a means for keeping down the number of deer.

And yet just because there are deer and other states do it is not necessarily a sufficient excuse why Connecticut should resort to such a practice in view of the danger which could be expected to go with deer hunting. Massachusetts has had its tragedies this month and Maine always has them while the big game hunt is on.

If Connecticut has more deer today than it desires or needs it is the result of protective legislation. They have been given every inducement to multiply in this state and it is here that they still get protection even during the week when they are hunted across the line in Massachusetts. The farmers may have different experiences with deer but there are those with whose crops they raise havoc, and while they are permitted under the existing law to shoot those which are found doing damage most farmers are too busily engaged otherwise to sit down and watch their crops like a shepherd would his sheep.

As for the desire to decrease the number of these animals which are getting their living off the farms there can be no great surprise. It is the contention of many that we ought never to have been brought to such a situation for the deer have in no way benefited the state, and yet there is a strong feeling that inasmuch as they have been encouraged they ought now to be subjected to slaughter.

One thing is certain, however, and that is that there are already enough hunting accidents and fatalities without increasing the number by opening up a deer hunting season that is certain to put human life in the balance. The members of the general assembly ought to furnish some interesting and diversified views in regard to such a plan if it gets a chance to express itself.

In other states hundreds join the ranks of hunters just because of the chance to get big game and it is the danger from such a small army during the open season that needs to get consideration.

SETTLING WAR CLAIMS

For the safeguarding of the claims of Americans resulting from the war, property of German citizens in this country was seized and is being held by this government. The desire is to have Germany pay such claims, but if it cannot or doesn't do so in accord with the awards made this property in the hands of the custodian can be employed for that purpose.

There is some question when Germany is going to be able to meet such adjustments. It cannot do so now without upsetting the Dawes plan something which could hardly be sanctioned or encouraged by this government, and it is figured that it may be many years before it can. In the meantime American claimants would like their money and the owners of the seized alien property would like to recover their belongings. On the other hand there is opposition to the idea of actually using the property of German citizens to meet the obligations of the German government.

In order to change this situation, it has been proposed that the German property be returned, which would be of much advantage to that country in meeting present conditions and would hasten the time when the claims could be paid. On the other hand it has been proposed that this government meet the claims of its own people through a bond issue, the bonds to be paid off as fast as Germany forwarded the money. To these plans objections have been raised quite the same as it is probable that they will be to any plan that is put forth.

The latest idea is presented by Chairman Green of the house ways and means committee who submits a bill calling for the immediate payment of 80 per cent. of the war claims and the return of 80 per cent. of the German property. This would leave 20 per cent. of the claims for the future and till they are paid 20 per cent. of the property would be held as security, but the greater part of the amount at stake both for Americans and Germans would be put into their hands. This is a compromise measure for the disposition of a matter which has been hanging fire for a considerable time but there is no assurance that it will get the desired approval.

FOR VOTING MACHINES

In speaking before the quarterly meeting of the United League of Women Voters in Providence this week, the mayor of that city expressed himself as strongly in favor of the idea of acquiring voting machines for that city. This indicates a changing opinion in the Rhode Island capital where ballots are still used on election day, resulting not only in delayed announcement of results but in all sorts of confusion and dissatisfaction, especially when the vote is close. The election of Mayor Dunne was in doubt for a number of days until a recount of the ballots could be made, and during the recount supposing changes by the figures were made because of errors in hurried counting election night.

The fact is that whenever the ballot is used just such complications arise. Every voter, Many a voter is deprived of his franchise because of the interpretations given to his intentions, because his pencil proves a certain line, or becomes through poor quality or something else he made the cross in the wrong space and it is so often the case that recounts disclose irregularities when ballots are used that a close vote invariably means a protest and a demand for another interpretation of the will of the voters.

The mayor of Providence had an experience which would naturally cause him to look well into the merits of the voting machine or something that would prevent the recurrence of such a situation. He doesn't claim to have gone into the matter exhaustively but from such study as he has made he is convinced that they are efficient, correct and speedy.

These are the days of the automatic machines in many lines of endeavor. They work faster, better and more accurately than the human agent. They do what the operator expects them to do, and in the case of the voting machines they do it so well and effectively that it is inevitable that those communities which have suffered from repeated handicaps of ballot voting and counting will be interested in effecting an early change for the better.

BEING IN A HURRY

Each week the motor vehicle registrar of Massachusetts presents a list of those killed in automobile accidents, giving their age and the place where the accident happened and indicating whether they were pedestrians or occupants of cars. He accompanies this list with the plea to be careful and prevent such a record during the succeeding week.

Week to week records do not show that such appeals have the desired effect, although the number of deaths varies. In his latest communication Registrar Goodwin believes that the deaths were caused because someone was in a hurry. Without a doubt this enters into many of the cases. The failure to see where they are going, to make sure the way is safe or the unwillingness to yield a inches to someone else figures prominently in connection with many highway accidents.

The responsibility for this rests upon highway users. It is recognized as a day of speed, rapid transportation and much carelessness, but the time has not as yet arrived when there is a complete monopoly on the part of anyone concerning the highways.

It is to be expected that the pedestrian will be shown his full rights that he will not be run down just because he is crossing the street and that he will not be frightened to death by those who like to see him jump. On the other hand there is no justification for the occasional defiance which is shown by those who deliberately push back in front of rapidly moving cars when it isn't necessary or to step in front of them or into the line of traffic without looking.

There is much responsibility when rests upon all users of the highway to give the other fellow, whether pedestrian or driver, a fair deal and to do his utmost to avoid accidents. Being in a hurry does not always give consideration to the other fellow.

MAILING FIREARMS

Opposition that was to be expected developed in the senate when an effort was made to get consideration for the bill which would prohibit the use of the mail for the transportation of revolvers, pistols and other firearms capable of being concealed on the person.

The object of such a law is to keep such weapons away from the criminal class and those who should not have them in the belief that it would result in fewer deaths, many of which are needless.

Objection was raised to the bill on the ground that it would prevent the law abiding citizens from protecting themselves against the criminal class and reference was made to the Sullivan law in New York state as a case where the public was handicapped in possessing firearms but the criminal class was in no way bothered.

Because of the experience with the Sullivan law it has been made evident that difficulties are bound to be experienced as long as the people, good or bad of that city are able to write to another state and have firearms mailed to them. Children have been getting them in the same way and using them accidentally or intentionally for the killing of friends or members of their families. State laws become a joke as long as it is possible to get such firearms through the mail but whether congress can be made to see it to the extent of federal legislation is another thing.

EDITORIAL NOTES

These are the days when there is a chance for the liberal use of the Red Cross seals.

Will Rogers has been made mayor of his California home town. Now he will have a new source for jokes.

The man on the corner says: Getting a good foundation for sleighing doesn't bring much appreciation these days.

That capital knows a good thing when it sees it is shown by the way the treasury certificates were oversubscribed.

Trouble might be checked up better if they had a finger printing system for that group of nations making up the Balkans.

"New peak reached in New York mortgages," says a headline. The higher the buildings go the higher the mortgages.

With the first of the year pedestrians in New York will be given the right of way, but that doesn't mean camping in the street.

Accidents may happen even where it is believed safe to coast, but that doesn't justify the neglect of proper precautions for safety.

The prediction is made that it will be possible in 1931 to drive a car 50 miles for five cents. That ought to bring down the price of gasoline.

GOOD BUSINESS

Hello, pop.

Say, pop, I want to ask you something. You remember me asking you could I go to the circus? Sure you do, pop. Don't you remember 'bout three weeks ago I asked you an' you said I could if I earned the money myself? Please, pop, you remember, 'cause I want today and I didn't ask mom and she says I ought to be punished for not asking you or her and I did. Remember? Gee, I'm glad you do. Gosh! that's a relief!

Did I earn the money myself? Course I did. But it was awful hard 'till I got some business. First, I went next door to Mrs. Young and she had just had her roof shingled and I got the job carrying the old shingles into the basement for her. I'll bet there was a million shingles and all I got was a dime.

Well, then I went over to s' Mrs. Smith and I rang her doorbell and asked her if there was anything I could do for her and she said, "Why bless you son, yes. Will you go to the store for me?" and I said "Sure." An' all the way over I kept sayin' to myself, "Charge her a quarter, charge her a quarter," an' when I got back she said, "Thanks you little man," and closed the door. Can you beat it, pop?

But it sure learned me something, pop, it sure did. When Mrs. Tengwald wanted me to mow her lawn you can bet I had the price all fixed up with her before I ever started. I got 20 cents for that an' that made 30 cents all together.

But see, pop, it was hard to get more. Nobody wanted nothin' done, no lawns, no weeds, no nothing an' then I saw Mr. Spaulding back his car out of his garage and—bang!—he went into the fence and good-by! Two boards. An' I went into Mrs. Spaulding an' told her about it an' told her if she wanted 'em fixed I would fix 'em for 30 cents.

That was only 15 cents a board, but she only wanted to pay me 5 cents a board. Ain't people tight, pop?

Well, Mrs. Spaulding only wanted to give me 10 cents and I wanted 30 and we chewed the rag back and forth for a while and then I went 50-50 with her and did it for a quarter. An' that made me 45 cents and the time was gettin' awful close.

An' I hunted around for a couple of days and I was sure gettin' anxious and I told Mr. Spaulding about it and he said, "Well, Bobby, I'll see what I c'n do for you," and he backed out of his garage and—bloey!—went two more boards an' I got the job fixin' 'em.

That time I had to buy a nickel's worth of nails, so I only made 30 an' that made me 65 cents altogether. But I had an idea, pop.

When the delivery boy for Scott's rocery come around I talked to him for a while and when he tried to turn around in the alley he accidentally knocked two boards out of Mrs. Whiting's back fence. What's the matter, pop? All right, I'll go on, but what do yuh wanta look so mad about? Wasn't that business?

Well, that give me some more money, but there was one trouble with the delivery boy. I had to give him half. There you go lookin' mad again. All right, all right, I'll go on.

Well, I didn't mind givin' half so much 'cause when he come in the afternoon he knocked two out of Mrs. Hurat's fence an' I got the job.

But the next day, gosh! He wouldn't do nothin' for me. Some old hen had called up his boss and told him that his delivery boy "had suddenly grown very, very careless and was knocking down everybody's fences." An' he got bawled out and almost canned and I had to give him some more of my share of the money to keep him satisfied.

So I had to find somebody else to go in business with and I talked to the vegetable man when he came. An' he laughed and said "All right." But he made an awful mistake. He bumped into Mrs. Smith's fence and knocked out three boards and the old tightwad made him pay for fixin' 'em. An' I charged her double, too, for givin' me only a "thank you" for going to the store for her.

An' the vegetable man was awful mad at me, but I didn't care, 'cause I had more than a dollar and I had enough for the circus and some lemonade and peanuts, too. An' I went an' I didn't ask mom 'cause she wouldn't have let me go alone and you said I could go a long time ago.

But you know, pop, after I got there I got to thinkin' how hard I had worked for that money and I decided to save it. I watched my chance and I sneaked in for nothin'. An' gee boy! What a circus!

Smatter now, pop? What you goin' to do? Aw, gee, pop, you said you wanted me to learn business!—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Sir Joseph Duveen, who has come into public eye by paying a record price, for a single painting—$360,000—is the present head of the most famous art firms which ever existed, a firm with a world-wide reputation as dealers in all sorts of antique and artistic wares. First of the Duveens to attract attention was the late Sir Joseph Duveen, uncle of the present bearer of the same name and title, who established himself in the seventies, in Oxford street, London, in a small shop, where he sold old Dutch potteries and later period furniture. He had a natural intuition for discerning the artistic worth of things and he prospered. Some 40 years or more ago, at a time when the United States was beginning to respond to the influences of art, the firm opened a branch in New York, where it soon established a clientele among the foremost art buyers in America.

YOUR HEALTH

DIET IN RELATION TO WEIGHT

By H. R. Kime, M. D., Orlando, Fla.
Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

Any sudden, marked reduction in one's usual weight is a warning that something is wrong with the body machinery. A physical examination will generally reveal the abnormal condition.

Some people seem to be underweight, naturally, while it seems to be natural for others to be fat. This is partly the result of heredity and, if not a marked departure from the average weight, is not a serious menace to health.

Once you understand the characteristics of food you appreciate, for example, why some people need more meat than others, and why others should eat meat sparingly and more carbohydrates.

Now protein, largely contained in meat, furnishes material for growth and repair of tissues. Fats and carbohydrates, which are the sugars and starches, on the contrary, furnish material for energy of the body.

When more protein is eaten than the body needs, it is not usually stored up in the body; which is exactly what happens when carbohydrates and fats in excess of body needs are taken. Increased weight, then, is most often the result of eating too much fats and carbohydrates.

Should you increase exercise without increasing fats and carbohydrates in the diet, the additional demand in supplied by material stored up in the body. A loss of weight results.

But without the proper guidance of your physician there is grave danger of depriving the body of necessary food requirements. Resistance is lowered so that the body is a prey to disease germs.

Should fats and carbohydrates be reduced at the same time exercise is increased, there is a double demand on the body stores. This situation must be handled with care, especially if there is any disease of vital organs.

In reducing the wise physician first determines, by physicial examination, the condition of heart, blood vessels, lungs and kidneys, because over exercise and marked reduction of diet in diseases of these organs may easily produce serious results.

If he determines that the amount of carbohydrates is to be lowered, he will do so and increase the bulky foods by ordering such things eaten as turnips, and best greens, spinach, lettuce, string beans, cabbage, etc. These bulky vegetables lessen hunger and also act as a laxative.

The same general physiological principles, may be applied to increase weight. If living a sedentary life under mental strain, increase exercise, lessen the mental strain, giving periods of mental rest and get plenty of fresh air and sunlight.

Make the Most of Books

By James Mosher Proniman, Litt. D.

Novel and Drama

The novel and the drama are classed as fiction because they present pictures that are usually not representations of actual fact, but no novel or drama is worthy of consideration which is untrue to what might happen in human life or to the great essential truths of human relationships. This is not a distinction between moral and immoral novels and dramas, for an immoral book may be true to facts in human experience, but they are the facts of pathological conditions and not of health.

An immoral book is one in which vice is made attractive and evil is condoned and unpunished. The Elizabethan drama never made vice triumphant and the sinner always was made to pay the just penalty for his sin. The drama of the Restoration, narrower in human interest than that of the Elizabethans, differed from the latter notably in the attitude towards vice; sacred relationships were matters of jest by the dissolute courtiers and their followers and vice was objectionable only when found out. When our ideas of right and wrong are confused and our conceptions of morality undermined by a book, it is to be avoided. For it can only do us harm. No good book ever makes sin respectable though it may of necessity present scenes in which disreputable characters appear; one of the greatest examples of this is Vanity Fair.

Stories That Recall Others

English as it is Spoken

A young woman went into a store and asked to see some strands of pearls. The young woman clerk showed her the merchandise and a little later, as she was clasping the strand about the woman's neck, she pinched her skin with the clasp.

The clerk, rechising what she had done exclaimed: "Oo, deed I ouch you."

All Worms Look Alike

Junior was busily dressed helping his mother crack some nuts in the cellar. Mother found a nut that had a worm in it. Junior exclaimed:

"Oh, mother, may I save this one for daddy?"

"No, dear, daddy wouldn't care to eat that one."

But he wrapped the nut in a piece of paper and placed it beside the furnace. That evening when daddy came home his son eagerly grasped his hand and pulled him down into the cellar.

"Why did you save this one for me?" his father asked.

"So's you kin go fishing next summer."

"Go fishing?"

"Yeh, you kin use it for a fishin' worm," was his retort.

SAINTE ANNE DE BEAUPRE

Burning of the temporary basilica at the village of Sainte Anne de Beaupre, Quebec, aroused widespread interest.

"In recent years the shrine of Sainte Anne has attracted thousands of pilgrims and tourists from all over the United States and Canada," says a bulletin from Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society, describing the village.

"Sainte Anne was an honored shrine of the French Canadians of Quebec before some of the 13 American colonies were founded," the bulletin says, "but within the last few years it has become a Lourdes of America.

"The village of Sainte Anne on the Beaupre coast lies 20 miles down the river from Quebec. Unfortunately the village is not within view from liners sailing to Montreal and Quebec, because it lies behind the Isle of Orleans. The main ship channel of the St. Lawrence is on the opposite side of the long island.

"Yet the origin of the Sainte Anne shrine is definitely linked with the ships that sailed the St. Lawrence. French Canadians cherish the legend of a tiny ship manned by Breton sailors that was tossed about in a bad St. Lawrence storm. In Brittany they were accustomed to pray to their patroness, Sainte Anne, so now in dire peril of shipwreck they prayed to her. They promised, if they were saved from the fury of the storm to build a sanctuary at the spot where they should land. Their boat kept afloat during the night and when morning dawned the sailors reached shore at Petit Cap. True to their vow they raised the chapel for which the village is now named, Sainte Anne de Beaupre.

"The visitor sees that Sainte Anne is still regarded as a special protector of sailors. Most of the flag poles in the village are equipped with booms like a ship's mast.

"A trip along the Cote Beaupre to Sainte Anne is like no other in America. One leaves upper Quebec passing through lower Quebec to cross the St. Charles River where Jacques Cartier anchored his ships in 1535. In Limoilou, a suburb, is the beginning of the Beaupre road. All the way to Sainte Anne the habitat houses crowd close to the road. They are steep-roofed cottages on the old Norman French model. Dormer windows like eyes in the roof give each house a quality of intelligence and interest in all that passes. The houses stand at the front of the long narrow farms which are usually 150 to 250 feet wide and a mile or two in length.

"Sainte Anne itself is fat with hotels. They congest the narrow streets. They crowd in upon the numerous religious buildings. Booths selling tiny shrines, mementoes and trinkets usurp sections of the narrow sidewalks. The main street of Sainte Anne on a warm Sunday is as difficult to navigate as Broadway at 8 p. m.

"The temporary basilica which recently burned stood beside the main road. Over and beyond its modestly high roof rose the bare skeleton of the new basilica under construction. The new basilica has cathedral dimensions. It may follow Old World designs but it is made with New World strength. Two years ago it was a steel cathedral with the wind using its beams and bars for organ pipes. Today it has a two-story skirt of solid rock. Soon even steel ribs of the roof will disappear under a more comely covering. There will be no further fear of fire when it is ready.

"Over what is to be the main door of the new basilica stands the large statue of Sainte Anne. The patron saint has her back on the busy scene of construction behind. For three years she has stood there, her calmness in contrast with the raucous riveting and screeching of winches.

"This statue of Sainte Anne stood over the entrance to the old basilica which was destroyed by fire in 1922. The blaze gutted the inside of the church but the statue did not fall. When the fire was out Sainte Anne still stood presiding over the ruins.

"There are many things to see at Sainte Anne de Beaupre. There is the Cyclorama, the round building entirely devoted to an enormous painting of the closing events in Jesus' life on earth. The painting was made under the direction of Paul Philippotaux who also did the Battle of Gettysburg and the Siege of Paris. Then there is the Memorial church built on the site of the third chapel of Sainte Anne. In front of it flows a spring which now is regarded as having healing properties. Near the spring an old gentleman sits in the sun, a bushel basket of empty bottles beside him. To pilgrims who wish to take water back home he sells his assorted bottles.

"Beside the smaller chapel is the graveyard of those whose special wish it was to be buried near the shrine. Over 3,000 dead lie there, more people, it is said, than could stand upright on the same space of ground. An outrider ridge of the Laurentian mountains presses Sainte Anne village close to the water, but the hillside has been well utilized. Bordering a path winding up the ridge face are bronze figures of the stations of the cross. A few hundred beyond perches a chapel housing the most unusual flight of stairs in America.

"No person may go up these stairs on his feet. It is the Scala Sancta and, like its counterpart in Rome, is reserved for the faithful, to climb on their knees. At the top of the stairs is a shrine.

"On special days of pilgrimage more than 30,000 people crowd into the tight little village of Sainte Anne. The Beaupre road is supplemented by a street car line to bring the thousands to Sainte Anne. In the crowds are always the sick and the crippled coming to pray before the statue and the sacred relic of a finger bone of Sainte Anne."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Jerry Muskrat Has a Fright

When no danger is in sight,
Then watch out for sudden fright.
—Jerry Muskrat.

It sounds queer, but it often is true that the safest time is the most dangerous time. The reason is that when you feel perfectly safe you are very likely not to be watching out for danger. It is just as necessary to watch out for danger when you feel perfectly safe as it is when you don't feel so safe. The little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows know this, but just like little human people they forget sometimes. It was so with Jerry Muskrat.

If there is any time of year when Jerry Muskrat feels safe it is in winter after Jack Frost has frozen the Smiling Pools and the Laughing Brook. There is only one enemy that can get to him then, of whom he is really afraid, and that is Billy Mink. Billy can, of course, go right into Jerry's house. But Billy isn't likely to do it. Billy isn't looking for trouble, and when he faces Jerry Muskrat he faces a whole lot of trouble. He would have to be pretty hungry.

You see, with ice on the Smiling Pool Jerry Muskrat can go and come under the ice as he pleases. He has his nice, warm house out in the Smiling Pool, and he has his castle in the bank. He can go from one to the other, and as he always has plenty to eat, he lives a very comfortable, easy life while some of his friends are having a hard time of it. Storms and cold mean nothing to Jerry Muskrat. If the weather is unusually cold Jerry knows nothing about it. It isn't unusually cold down under the ice. It is always just the same. The ice may grow a little thicker but that is all. If there is a bad snowstorm Jerry knows nothing about it. It can snow and snow and snow without making the least bit of difference to Jerry Muskrat.

So Jerry Muskrat had become somewhat careless, as is the way with people who are too long in security and peace. He forgot it was possible for any of his enemies to be hunting for him. Having grown tired of staying in his house and in his castle, he burrowed under the snow. You see, he had a back entrance to his castle on the bank, and this entrance was up on the Green Meadows. He dug the snow out of this entrance, and then from it made a tunnel, just as Danny Meadow Mouse makes tunnels under the snow. It gave him something to do and a chance to explore around a little. He was still out of sight under the snow and above him was a crust. Underneath that crust he felt very much as he did when he was under the ice in the Smiling Pool. He felt just as secure. No sharp eyes could see him there.

So it was that Jerry was taken by surprise. Without any warning there was a thump above his head. For a startled second Jerry didn't move. Then he turned and started back along that little tunnel for the safety of his castle in the bank. At the same time there was another thump on that crust above him, and it broke. Down came something on his tail. He knew that something was a paw. Whose paw it was he didn't know, but it was somebody's paw, for he felt the claws in it. Jerry squealed, and how he ran! My goodness, how he ran! He could hear some one frantically digging behind him. He popped down into his hole at last and was safe. There, quite out of breath and wondering what it was all about, he realized that a little more and he would have been caught. He realized that he had the narrowest of narrow escapes. "Who could it have been?" muttered Jerry. "Who could it have been, and how did he know I was there? He couldn't have smelled me through that snow, and he couldn't have seen me through that snow. Yet, whoever it was, he seemed to know exactly where I was. Well, anyway, he didn't get me, and that means he never will, for I'll never, never be so careless again. No, sir, I'll never be so careless again."

"Who could it have been?" muttered Jerry.

Girls! Buttermilk Creates Beauty Overnight

The first application of Howard's Buttermilk Cream will astonish you. It creates beauty almost like magic, but the most wonderful thing about it is the fact that while it turns the dullest, most lifeless complexion to radiant beauty and makes red or rough hands or arms snowy white, yet there is not the slightest sign of its use. It actually vanishes from sight and the most heated atmosphere will not produce the least shininess or greasiness of the skin.

It is absolutely harmless and will neither produce nor stimulate the growth of hair. Furthermore, you will find it the most perfect base for powder. Within twenty-four hours this wonderful combination will work a marvelous transformation. For sale by Lee & Osgood Co.

THOMAS ROBINSON

The announcement of the death of the late Thomas Robinson, at Chicago, on the 29th inst., at the mature age of 83, was not unexpected by residents here familiar with the precarious state of health he has been in for the past six months, as the result of paralysis. In the last days of his life his thoughts were largely set upon this, his adopted city, and he had often expressed a desire to visit once more the place which he was largely instrumental in building up and which will bear the impress of his public spirit and business energy long after he has been forgotten.

He came to this town in the spring of 1818, before stage or railroad communication had been established between the leading cities of New England, riding in on horseback at the age of 22 from Worcester, Mass., and entered the book and stationery business in the old Bunnell building which was destroyed by fire in 1840. In 1831 he became a partner with John Dunham in the printing business, and subsequently purchased an interest in the Norwich Weekly Courier, then the only printed paper in the town, which he held for three years.

In 1836 he purchased the lot on Main street and built the brick building now occupied by Mr. Pilgrim-Brewer, which was at that time the first building that had been built in Norwich for 15 years. In 1837 he was one of the prime movers for the founding of a "female academy" in this city, and by his energy as much as by that of any one man, the stately edifice in School street, west of the Jail hill schoolhouse, was erected and flourished for several years as an institution for the education of women.

He was a surveyor and civil engineer of note and was engaged in all the leading engineering projects of his time. He surveyed for the establishment of a canal communication between this city and Worcester in 1833, and then it was that the water power of the Shetucket river was revealed, and he was a leading spirit in the utilization of the stream and treasurer of the association that built the dam and buildings at Greeneville.

Writing of him to the press at the time he left this city, seven years ago, to go to Chicago to spend his declining years with his son and daughter, the Hon. John T. Walt paid the following tribute to his energy as one of the active spirits in the building of Norwich and Worcester railroad:

"Mr. Robinson in connection with the late Judge Rockwell, George L. Perkins, Asa Child, Charles W. Rockwell, Jedediah Huntington, I. G. W. Trumbull and other citizens of Norwich obtained a charter for the road and received subscriptions to the capital stock. He was chosen one of the directors and temporary treasurer of the company. In 1837 when through mismanagement and fraud, it seemed as if the enterprise must fail, Mr. Robinson was appointed general agent and assumed control of the corporation. Work resumed by the contractors along the line of the route; funds were obtained for its successful prosecution; and in 1840 the road was opened, equipped and put in full operation. To the indomitable courage and unflagging efforts of Thomas Robinson were the people of Norwich indebted for the early completion of this work."

This enterprise led to a demand for more wharf room and he planned, surveyed and constructed the central wharf. He also laid out and surveyed the Yantic cemetery, Laurel Hill and the streets in the section of the city in the neighborhood of Grove street. Laurel Hill was named by Mrs. Robinson when her husband's labors had been completed, it having before been known as Pepper's Hill.

In 1843 he purchased the business of Samuel C. Starr and continued in the book and stationery business until he retired from active life.

He was a consistent, Christian gentleman, and was one of the organizers and founders of the Trinity church parish in this city. He held the position of warden for many years, and was a vestryman from the organization of the society until 1873, when he with his estimable wife went west.

For half a century he devoted himself to one and all enterprises that would prove beneficial to the place, and was honored and respected by the people who regretted his departure and will sincerely mourn his demise.

(From the Norwich Bulletin, January 3, 1880.)

The funeral services of the late Thomas Robinson took place at Trinity church at 2 o'clock, Friday afternoon, the remains having arrived from Chicago in charge of his son during the afternoon. The pulpit lectern and reredos were draped in mourning, and a cross of bleached farna graced the altar. A beautiful floral cross and crown were laid upon the casket and a bank of fragrant flowers placed to the right of it. The services, after the Episcopal form, were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Jewett, assisted by the Rev. C. A. Spooner of this city. Among the hymns sung by the choir was The Rock of Ages which was very effectively rendered. The bearers were the Hons. John T. Walt and John T. Adams, and the Messrs N. S. Gilbert and E. H. Learned.

John J. Malley of Taftville, was celebrant of the mass, Rev. John J. Reilly, deacon and Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, subdeacon. Henry LaFontaine was in charge of the music for the service and at the offertory Roderick F. Sullivan sang Pie Jesu. For the waiting hymn, Mr. Sullivan sang Lead Kindly Light and at the recessional, Mr. LaFontaine played Jesus Lover of My Soul. There was a large attendance at the service, relatives and friends coming from New Haven, Bridgeport, Waterbury, New York, Willimantic, New London, Jewett City and Norwich. The many floral pieces testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held by all who knew him.

Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery where the committal service was read by Msgr. M. H. May. The bearers were Michael Pounch, George Roberts, Thomas Fields, Myles Sullivan, John O'Connell of New London and Charles Leavery of Bridgeport. Arrangements for the funeral were in charge of Hourigan Bros.

Charles Nelson Rogers

The funeral of Charles Nelson Rogers was held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of his son, Fred C. Rogers of Uncasville, Rev. Charles H. Smith officiating. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the service and the many floral tributes bore testimony to the love and esteem in which the deceased was held by all who knew him. Burial was in the Comstock cemetery where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Smith. The bearers were Ambrose Sullivan, Pearson and Wilson DeBeare and Ernest Rogers. Arrangements for the service were in charge of Undertaker George G. Grant.

OBITUARY.

Austin De Wolfe.

Following a short illness the death of Austin De Wolfe, 80, occurred Tuesday in this city. Mr. De Wolfe was born July 8, 1846, in Bozrah, the son of William A. De Wolfe and Elizabeth Hall De Wolfe. He had resided in Trading Cove for many years. Mr. De Wolfe was united in marriage with Sarah Ann Avery of Bozrah. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Lily Bell Smith of Franklin, one son, Carl De Wolfe of Springfield, Mass., a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Randall of Salem, six grandsons and one granddaughter, Miss Sarah Ann De Wolfe.

Routel Zablowski

The death of Routel Zablowski, 46, occurred suddenly about midnight Wednesday at his home in Amston. He was born in New York, but had made his home in Amston for a number of years, where he conducted a grain store. Besides his wife he leaves several children. The body will be sent by Shea and Burke to New York, where burial will take place Friday.

Lazar Markoff

After an illness of long duration the death of Lazar Markoff occurred on Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at his home, No. 164 Talman street. Throughout his illness Mr. Markoff had been tenderly cared for by members of his family.

Mr. Markoff was among the first of the Jewish residents of Norwich, coming to this city from Russia about 40 years ago. For many years Mr. Markoff conducted a grocery business on Talman street, retiring from active work some years ago due to failing health. The Markoff store in the east side section was among the first to be opened in that section of the city.

Prominent in Jewish circles in Norwich, Mr. Markoff was affiliated with the United Brothers synagogue and the Norwich Benevolent association, taking an active interest in both societies.

News of his death came as a shock to friends throughout the city, and those left to mourn the loss of a loved one have the sympathy of many friends.

Mr. Markoff is survived by his wife, Sarah Markoff; four daughters, Mrs. Abe Ableman of Norwich, Mrs. Bessie Lubins of Newark, N. J., Mrs. Herman Saget of Lowell, Mass., and Miss Rose Markoff of Norwich; also three sons, Max Markoff of New London, Dr. Kopland K. Markoff and Aled Markoff of Norwich. Several grandchildren and great grandchildren also survive him.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 16—The president today sent to the senate the following Connecticut nominations: United States Circuit Judge Thomas W. Swan. Postmasters, Centerbrook, Harry N. Prann; North Stonington, Charles E. Gray.

The senate has confirmed the nominations of the following Connecticut postmasters: Guy M. Barlett, Andover; Charles K. Bailey, Bethel; Helen S. Ladd, Bloomfield; Elbert B. Austin, Cromwell; Thomas C. Brown, Elmwood; Anthony Hassen, North Windham; Archibald Macdonald, Sharon; Edward Adams, Taftville.

Many a man's failure is due to the fact that he aimed too high with a short-range gun.

COMMON COUNCIL SETS HEARING FOR PROPOSED ZONING ORDINANCES

Proposed zoning ordinances for the city, together with a zoning map and district descriptions to accompany it, were presented to the court of common council at an adjourned council meeting Wednesday night, by the council's committee on zoning, Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney, chairman. After receiving the ordinances, the council named Jan. 26, at 8 p. m., for a public hearing on them, the hearing to be held in the town hall. A reproduction of the zoning map and the main provisions of the ordinances will be found on page nine of this issue.

The council meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock by His Honor, Mayor Milo R. Waters, and the minutes of the previous session were accepted without reading, this being the usual proceedure. The committee on zoning then submitted its bulky report on the proposed zoning ordinances. With the proposed ordinances was the following statement, signed by Aldermah Sweeney and the remaining members of the zoning committee:

Your committee appointed for the purpose of considering the matter of zoning, so-called, in the city of Norwich, beg leave to report that they have given the matter their attention; that they have prepared a proposed ordinance and a map and district descriptions to accompany it, all of which they submit with this report; that they believe a public hearing should be held by a committee of the court of common council on the proposed ordinance in accordance with the provisions of the law enacted by the last legislature; and they therefore recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, that a public hearing be held by a committee of six of the court of common council of the city of Norwich, consisting of the mayor, Aldermen Sweeney and Lillibridge, Councilmen Aldrich, Spellman and Clegg on the 26th day of January, 1927, at 8 p. m. in the town hall in the court house building, which hearing may be adjourned from time to time if necessary, on and in relation to the proposed ordinance and accompanying map and district descriptions and the regulations and boundaries therein, submitted to this meeting of the council, with the report of the committee on zoning; and that public notice of said public hearing be given according to law by said committee appointed by this resolution and the clerk; and that after such hearing the committee hereby appointed report their recommendations to the council in time for the regular February meeting.

The report of the committee was accepted and the resolution submitted by them, naming January 26th as the date for a public hearing was adopted.

The council then received and referred to the finance committee and corporation, a notice of a claim for damages by Louis Zimmerman, No. 17 Boswell avenue. Notice of the claim was made as the result of a fall Mr. Zimmerman suffered December 6th on what is alleged to have been a defective sidewalk in front of No. 195 Franklin street.

The council adjourned shortly before 8:30 o'clock.

NORWICH MAN ADDRESSES ASSOCIATED SERVICE CLUB

The Associated Service club of New London, an organization composed of superintendents, foremen and bosses of the varied industries in New London, Groton, Montville and nearby towns, held a meeting on Monday, at the Y. M. C. A., in New London and it was voted to carry on the monthly meetings and conferences during the winter. A nominating committee was appointed which was composed of John C. Cook of the Corticelli Silk company; William W. Johl, Max Pollack and company; F. S. Fowler, New England Collapsible Tube company, H. S. Bennett, Bascom Printing Press Mfg. company and F. J. O'Connor, D. S. Milton Machine company. They were instructed to bring in a report at the next meeting.

A supper was served and the business meeting was presided over by C. [illegible] Flaherty of the Robert Gair company of Montville; John A. Holland, Norwich, safety engineer for the [illegible] Co., who is located in the New L[illegible] was guest of the [illegible] and International Nickel Co. Flaherty, in introducing the speaker, [illegible] Holland as an [illegible] to talk [illegible] and Holland spoke for half an hour on general safety matters in industrial plants. He told of the number of employes that were killed in industry each year and also the number of lost hours. He illustrated several fatal accidents which occurred in the past throughout the country and some in New London and vicinity. He told they could be prevented by education, organization of the foremen and employes and by engineering revision. Also told of several amusing incidents which happened during his career as a safety engineer.

Mr. Holland said that the safety engineer is employed by the company he represents because he is a mechanical and many times can give valuable information about plant equipments. He also said that safety should begin with the management of the industry and should go down the line to the tool boy, and that the day has arrived when all foremen are being held responsible for all accidents which happen under their supervision. He informed those present that the only way that they could reduce their liability insurance cost is by inspection, protection and good accident experience. He said that the employer many times stressed on the carelessness of the worker when a serious or fatal accident happens, but informed his hearers that this was a poor alibi and it is an alibi that is not acceptable any longer, as it is possible to equip all machinery in such a way that even a violator of rules cannot be caught.

He concluded by saying that production increases and accidents decrease where employer and employe meet on common grounds in order to discuss the problems that daily come before them and requested his hearers that when they go back to their shop to make safety a part of their daily work. He answered several questions and was given a vote of thanks.

SOMERSET LODGE HOLDS ITS ANNUAL ELECTION

The annual communication of Somerset lodge, No. 34, F. and A. M., was held Wednesday night at the Masonic temple, presided over by Richard P. Gregson, Worshipful master. The usual reports by Treasurer Herbert M. Larned and Secretary Arthur M. Thompson were read and accepted, showing the lodge to have enjoyed a successful year.

The annual election of officers then took place, the elective and appointive officers for 1927 being as follows: Worshipful master, Henry Follenius; senior warden, Raymond Sherman; junior warden, W. Avery Gallup; treasurer, Herbert M. Larou; secretary, Arthur M. Thompson; senior deacon, Harry F. Kromer; junior deacon, Arad R. Manning; senior steward, Clarence B. Messinger; junior steward, Herbert H. Corey; chaplain, Rev. Edward C. Dunbar; marshal, Richard P. Gregson; organist, J. Frank Corey; tyler, James C. Fitzpatrick.

At the conclusion of the election the officers were installed by Past Master George A. Keppler as grand master and Past Master John A. Ferguson as grand marshal. The presentation of a past master's jewel to Retiring Master Richard P. Gregson, was by Past Master Herbert R. Kind.

The lodge will commence work on Wednesday evening, Jan. 5, when the E. A. degree will be worked.

During the past year seven members were lost by death, as follows: Edward M. Dodge, March 15; Joseph E. Ayer, March 28; Henry J. Adams, May 29; Joseph Wooley, June 22; William Bowden, June 25; John C. Darby, July 21; Orrin M. Price, Dec. 1.

Movies For Battery B

On Monday night at the drill of Battery B motion pictures were shown of the correct and incorrect ways of doing various movements and operations. Col. William Clark of New London explained the pictures. On Thursday evening Sergeant Martin of New London is to show and explain pictures to the combat train. Members of Battery B are also welcome to attend this meeting.

GOV. TRUMBULL CHAPTER HOLDS REGULAR MEETING

Governor Trumbull chapter, D. A. R. of Lebanon, held its regular meeting Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Mrs. William Clark at her home in Lebanon. The meeting opened with repeating the Lord's Prayer, the salute to the flag and the singing of America. Reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and accepted.

A card was received from Mrs. Walter Burgess thanking the chapter for flowers sent her during her illness. There was also a letter from Kenmore association, Virginia, thanking the chapter for its contribution.

Mrs. Elsie G. Hewitt was received into membership by the regent, Mrs. A. R. Manning. A paper on Benjamin Huntington was read by Mrs. William Clark and current events were given by Miss Blanche Smith. Twelve were present, including one visitor, Mrs. Frank E. Clark of Amston, regent of Col. Henry Champion chapter of Colchester. She gave a few words of greeting from her chapter and briefly explained their work. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Clark, assisted by her sister, Mrs. Arthur DeWitt.

MISSION SERMONS AT CHRIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

At the mission of Christ Episcopal church Wednesday evening, the missioner, Rev. Walter E. Bentley preached on the topic, What We All Need and How to Get It. There was the usual devotional period, followed by the question box.

The missioner is holding the attention of a large crowd of people each evening. With regard to the mission Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong, rector of the church said: People who are not attending the mission services are missing a great treat and a most quiet pleasure.

The missioner is a priest of wonderful experience and his addresses are strong and full of power. He is finding Christ church people wide awake and ready for a splendid future ahead with the spirit of the crusade, a call to personal service for the Master. Everyone is welcome at the evening meetings.

GAVE PLAY JUNE TIME AT GREENEVILLE CHURCH

The play June Time, presented by the Dramatic club of the Taftville Congregational church, drew a large audience Wednesday evening when it was staged at the Greeneville Congregational church. The players took their parts in the same manner which had won applause in previous presentations and the audience was most liberal with its applause. The members of the Dramatic club were the Misses Elsie Heap, Dorothy Campbell, Flossie M. Meyer and Louis Sigrist, Oscar E. Mathewson, Jr., Harold E. Linderson and Robert E. Cooper.

Arrangements for the Taftville club to present the play at the Greeneville church were made by Alexander Finlayson, superintendent of the Sunday school of the Greeneville church.

BOLDUC LEADS IN PINOCHLE TOURNAMENT

With several new players entering the pinochle tournament conducted by the Foresters of America in their rooms on Shetucket street, the standing was changed Wednesday night. Stanley Staub won first with a score of 7,220, Fred Trembley second with 7,000 and Elroy Bolduc and M. J. Dugan tied for third with 6,490.

First division standing: Bolduc 13,160; Rigney 13,780; Tatreault 12,520; Rubel 12,380; La Doux 11,940; Staub 11,150; Trembley $10,930.

It is expected that the number playing will increase next Wednesday night.

Wednesday afternoon the Mah Jongg club was entertained by Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins. The prizes were won by Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert, Mrs. Flitt Brayton and Mrs. Aurin Eliot Payson.

Blessed is he who maketh Christmas presents and expecteth nothing in return, for he shall not be disappointed.

JAIL SENTENCES FOR TWO CHICKEN THIEVES

Nick Yakush of Yantic and John Arson of Lebanon will serve 30 days and 60 days respectively for stealing 40 chickens from the farm of Hyman Cohen of Lebanon, who lives about a mile from Arson's home, having been found guilty of theft in the Lebanon court Wednesday night by Judge John Kinnaird.

Yakush was charged on one count, theft of chickens, and was fined $25 and costs, a total of $86.57 and given a jail sentence of 30 days. Arson faced two counts, theft and receiving stolen chickens, being fined $25 on each count and given 30 days in jail on each count, costs bringing the fines to $116.62. The hearing was held at 6 o'clock in the office of Justice Kinnaird and was one which aroused considerable interest throughout the town. A third man, implicated was placed on probation by Justice Kinnaird. William T. Curry was prosecutor in the cases.

The arrest of the three men came about through the work of Sheriff George Hoxie of Lebanon who found 25 of the stolen chickens at the farm of Arson in Lebanon. Both Yakush and Arson denied their guilt but the evidence piled up by Sheriff Hoxie was conclusive. In his search for the chicken thieves Sheriff Hoxie was assisted by Constable Lucius Fenton of Norwich Town.

Yakush and Arson were brought to the county jail at Norwich following the court session.

COOKING CLASSES START FOR THE WINTER SEASON

Taking advantage of the opportunity to receive instruction in cooking in its various branches is becoming the vogue in Norwich. Miss Gladys L. Peckham, home service expert, had a class of 49 housewives Wednesday, at the lecture room of the Norwich gas and electric department, when influenced by the nearness of the holidays, she demonstrated making Christmas candy.

But from now on there is to be a cooking lesson given the Junior guild and Camp Fire girls of the United Congregational church the third Friday of each month, at the Community house.

Also at Park Congregational church, there are 25 in the class which began lessons Nov. 1st and which meets the first Tuesday in every month. The last lesson was on making Christmas cookies.

At St. Joseph's fine new school a new course in advanced cooking is to begin Jan. 4th and is to continue each Tuesday evening. Between 60 and 70 will take this course.

There will be a class on holiday candy making at the Shetucket street lecture room on Friday afternoon of this week; but there will be no Friday lesson, Dec. 24th.

Next week, the Wednesday afternoon class will be given instruction in the preparation of holiday menus.

This class was shown Wednesday how to make fondant. Miss Peckham's recipe calling for 4 cups of sugar, 1 of water, 1-4 teaspoon of tartar, or 1 tablespoon of syrup. The candy made was delicious Turkish delight.

NAMED RECEIVER FOR G. W. PANTS COMPANY

Following a brief hearing in the superior court in this city Wednesday morning, Judge Allyn L. Brown, named Abraham Strom receiver of the G. W. Pants Co., of Norwich. Mr. Storm will act as receiver under bonds of $5,500. He is proprietor of the Blue Star Overall Co. of this city.

The petition for the appointment of a receiver was brought into court by Philip Gottesfeld of Norwich, against the other two members of the firm, Jacob Goldberg and Jacob Weisman, also of this city, in which Gottesfeld claimed that he and his partners cannot agree upon the dispositions of the partnership effects and the settlement of the affairs of the partnership.

ROTARY CLUB MEMBERS HEAR TALK ON COAL

The advantages of the smaller sizes of anthracite coal were ably explained by C. A. Sommer of the Anthracite Coal service of Philadelphia who spoke before the Rotary club at the weekly meeting on Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. Sommer told of the advantages of the small sizes such as buckwheat coal in various types of heating equipment saying that there was as many heat units in the small coal as in the larger sizes. There is also less slag in the small coal than in the other but is not suitable to all types of heating plants. There is another side of the use of small coal in manufacturing plants. The ash is fine and is used in manufacture of cement blocks and in some places the ash sells at 50 cents per cubic yard, thus greatly reducing the cost of production. Mr. Sommer answered questions relative to his subject.

At the business session President Edwin A. Harris presided and Walter A. Turner had charge of the singing.

Flowers for Bank's Anniversary

BRAINARD OPPOSED TO COMPULSORY INSURANCE

HARTFORD, Dec. 15—(AP)—The attitude of the Connecticut state legislature toward the state insurance department was sharply rapped tonight by Francis R. Stoddard, former superintendent of insurance of the state of New York, in addressing 500 insurance men at a banquet held at the Hotel Bond, which brought to a close the third annual Connecticut insurance day program.

"If your legislature does not treat your insurance department with more liberality and refrain from such excessive taxation of your companies, New York will get most of the new companies that otherwise might be incorporated in Connecticut," said Mr. Stoddard.

Lieutenant-Governor J. Edwin Brainard, in extending the greetings of the state, declared himself very much opposed to any form of compulsory insurance in Connecticut. He warned the insurance men against sympathizing with "acts made and passed by idealists who very rarely understood thoroughly the matters about which they were making cumbersome and decidedly unnecessary laws. The type of man who would advocate compulsory automobile insurance is the man who has never driven a car, and short-sighted idealists unable to foresee the dangerous consequences of such an act," said the lieutenant-governor.

NORWICH MEN NAMED ON CIVIC COUNCIL

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 15—(AP)—An exodus from the industrial cities of New England to those western communities that "have realized that to attract the work-man type they must give the largest amount of service," was prophesied tonight by Walter J. Millard, of Cincinnati, field manager of the National Municipal league, speaking at the annual dinner and meeting of the Connecticut Civic association here.

The association today decided to prepare a bill to be presented to the 1927 legislature legalizing the council-manager form of government for any city in the state.

The members of the council for the coming year were chosen as follows:

Charles G. Morris, James W. Hook, Henry W. Farnham, John H. Higgins, F. J. Kingsbury, Emily H. Whitney, Donald Adams, George J. Bassett, Thomas H. Swan, Clarence W. Brown, Charles E. Clark, D. H. Remingway, N. O. Osborn, Fred Dawless, G. D. Welds and Robert Deming, of New Haven; William A. Aiken and Henry A. Tirrell of Norwich; Irving H. Chase, A. R. Kimball and Claire Brackenridge, of Waterbury; C. G. F. Williams and Judge Arthur Perkins, of Hartford; Emily Sophie Brown and William T. Rodenback, of Naugatuck; David S. Day, of Bridgeport; Clarence R. Hall, of Fairfield; Miss Katherine Ludington, of Lyme; Allen B. Lincoln, of Ashford; Mrs. C. E. Lyman, Jr., of Middlefield; Seth L. Pierrepont, of Ridgefield; Horace D. Taft, of Watertown.

FIRE MARSHAL SAYS MURPHY BLD'G IS MENACE TO PUBLIC SAFETY

Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton has asked the court of common council to examine the so-called Murphy building at No. 37-41 West Main street, with reference to its safety. The request from the fire marshal was made in the form of a communication received by the common council at its adjourned meeting Wednesday evening in the council chamber. In the communication, which is signed by the fire marshal, Deputy Chief Henry R. Taft and Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney, the building is referred to as a "menace to public safety."

Accompanying the request for council action were a copy of a letter, dated March 15, 1926, sent to Joseph Sternlieb, owner of the building, calling attention to its unsafe condition and a report by Paul H. Zahn, Patrick F. Sweeney and W. S. Spencer, verifying the fire marshal's opinion in regard to the safety of the building.

The fire marshal's letter to Mr. Sternlieb follows: "You will recall the conversation I had with you some months ago, telling you that I considered the so-called Murphy block, located on West Main street, in a dangerous condition. Also I warned you not to rent the same owing to the above condition.

I have again examined the building with my deputy and am still of the same opinion as in our conversation. In view of all the facts I decided to have recognized builders of this city make a careful examination of the same and report to me. I am enclosing you their report and request you to care for the same and return it to this office at your convenience. I trust you will take immediate steps to remove or tear down the present Murphy building, so-called, before someone is injured. I am of the opinion that tenants should vacate immediately."

The report to the fire marshal of the builders, Paul H. Zahn, Patrick F. Sweeney and W. S. Spencer, follows:

"We, the undersigned, have examined the brick building on West Main street, Norwich, Conn., known as the Murphy building, said building being located easterly from the property of the Peck-McWilliams company. In our opinion, this building for a distance of 37 feet 3 inches from the property of the Peck-McWilliams company, is unsafe for tenants. All outside walls that can be seen, show cracks of recent date. Floors are very weak and in some places have settled 12 and 13 inches."

After the city clerk had read the communications a resolution was introduced naming Alderman Alfred G. Lillibridge, and Councilmen William H. Aldrich and Frank L. Rinella, a committee to examine the building for and on behalf of the council as to the building's safety under the provisions of the general statutes, and setting December 28th, at 2 p. m., as the examining day, reasonable notice of the examination to be given the owner by the city clerk.

Alderman Sweeney in moving the adoption of the resolution stated that Chief Stanton had condemned the building over a year ago. The building is now vacant with the exception of one tenant, the alderman said. The building is tipped eight inches and is liable to fall at any time. I think we ought to take some action, the alderman said.

The resolution was unanimously adopted by the council.

BAN JOHNSON GIVEN UNQUALIFIED SUPPORT OF AM. LEAGUE OWNERS

CHICAGO, Dec 15.—(AP)—The American league today restored President Ban Johnson to the full power and authority which the club owners took from him two years ago, at the behest of Commissioner K. M. Landis.

Seven of the eight club owners elected Johnson to the major league advisory board, which both the big leaguers are prepared to insist upon reviving. Two years ago, the American league magnates with the exception of Phil Ball, of St. Louis, voted a strong recommendation of the commissioner and an equally strong criticism of Johnson. Today, all the club owners except the Chicago White Sox restored Johnston to full sway.

Since the time of the Landis endorsement, when Frank Navin of Detroit, replaced Johnson on the advisory board, the commissioner took no notice of the two major league representatives who were supposed to counsel him on league matters.

The National league representative has been President John Heydler throughout the commissioner's seven year term.

In adopting the Johnson resolution, the club owners repeated their endorsement of Landis for another seven-year term, but no mention was made of an increase in salary.

Ball was the club owner who offered today's Landis resolution, and E. S. Barnard of Cleveland seconded it.

Then Clarke Griffith, of Washington, arose to offer the resolution restoring Johnson to the advisory board position, and giving him the league's backing in the Landis dispute.

Phil Ball seconded the resolution and all the club owners except the representatives of the White Sox gave their assent. Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Sox, was home indisposed, but his son and his club secretary declined to cast the Sox vote.

Ball also is the prime mover in the league committee appointed yesterday to confer with the commissioner on restoration of the advisory board to full activity. His associates are Barnard and Col. Jacob Ruppert, of New York, but they had made no effort yet to seek the commissioner, pending the arrival of the National leaguers tomorrow morning for the joint major session. The Heydler circuit has a similar committee with a like purpose, and the scene of the conference is expected to be the joint session over which the commissioner will preside tomorrow.

Efforts to learn the commissioner's reaction to these moves to share his supreme authority, have been unsuccessful, as he has remained secluded in his hotel with a slight cold.

Until the all-important matter of the renewal of Landis' contract had been threshed out, the player trading market was largely occupied with dickering between new managers, getting terms to be submitted to the club owners after the league business affairs had been settled. Connie Mack announced the only deal of the meeting so far, purchase of a minor league outer-gardener, but the framework of a large number of player exchanges was laid by the new pilots.

Mack also issued one of the only two definite announcements heard on the ivory market so far, that he had not signed Eddie Collins.

Bucky Harris "hoped" the other, that Walter Johnson would pitch for the Senators next year, instead of entering the insurance business.

CLARK ON WAY TO AMERICA FOR TITLE BOUT

LONDON, Dec. 15—(AP)—Elky Clark of Glasgow, British and European flyweight champion, has sailed for the United States to fight Fidel Labarba of Los Angeles for the world's flyweight title at Madison Square Garden, January 21.

Clark rated the best 112 pounder Britain has produced since Jimmy Wilde, will attempt to bring back the championship which Wilde lost at the Polo Ground, New York, in 1923 to the late Pancho Villa.

The Britain obtained a temporary release from a contract to fight Alf Barber for the Lonsdale title belt here in order to concentrate on preparations to meet Labarba. Illness with tonsilitis twice prevented Clark from meeting Barber and the bout now has been postponed indefinitely. Clark has won the Lonsdale emblem twice before and a victory over Barber would give him permanent possession.

Since the death of Villa, Labarba has been recognized generally as world's flyweight champion as a result of a victory over Frankie Genaro of New York, who held the American title. The winner of the Clark-Labarba bout, however, will have undisputed claim to the world's championship.

The match will be at 12 rounds, by a special ruling of the state athletic commission, which ordinarily compels title bouts to be at 15 rounds.

Labarba has been a professional only since 1924, when he won the Olympic fly weight championship as an amateur.

BAN ON ROSENBERG IS TEMPORARILY LIFTED

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)—The ban placed by the New Jersey boxing authorities a few days ago on Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, world's bantamweight champion, was lifted today to permit him to go through with a 10-round match against Pete Mack at Jersey City next Monday night.

In making this announcement, Promoter Humbert J. Fugazy said that the decision was influenced by the charity purpose of the show, which is for the benefit of a Christmas fund. Rosenberg was suspended from New Jersey's eligible role originally because of the ban placed upon the title holder by the Illinois boxing commission.

The Rosenberg-Mack bout shares chief interest in the Jersey City show with the heavyweight tilt between Bud Gorman and Jack Delaney, the 175 pound champion.

Titles are not at stake in either bout.

BLADES HAS CARTILAGE REMOVED FROM KNEE

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 15—(AP)—Ray Blades, star St. Louis Cardinal outfielder, was operated upon today to remove loose cartilage resulting from an injury to his left knee which kept him out of the game the latter part of the season. Dr. Robert Hyland, club physician, said the operation apparently was successful, but it would be several weeks before it could be definitely determined whether Blades could play next season.

SHEIK LEONARD FIGHTS AT PITTSFIELD TONIGHT

Sheik Leonard of Norwich, now back under the management of Milan O. Welch and Andy Parker, is booked to box Tommy Haffney of Pittsfield, Mass., in the main ten-round bout at the Pittsfield Arena this evening. This is the Sheik's first bout since he kayoed Sailor Schatraw of the Coast Guard at New London several weeks ago.

PLAINFIELD EVENS SERIES WITH MERIDEN ENDEES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 15.—In one of the fastest games of basketball ever witnessed on the Plainfield court Plainfield defeated the Endees of Meriden here tonight by a score of 20 to 13. The first half was a trifle slow and everything pointed to an easy victory for Plainfield, which was leading at half time by a score of 13 to 7. Meriden came back strong in the second half tying the score and finally forging ahead. The score with three minutes to play was 18 to 15 in Meriden's favor. Dissinger caged a spectacular basket from the center of the floor and with a half minute to go he dropped in another three-quarters the length of the floor putting the home team in the score of 19 to 18. A foul basket gave the Plainfield the other point.

The last half minute was fiercely fought but neither team was able to score. Dissinger was easily the star of the team caging several long shots. For Meriden Silverman was the star.

In the preliminary game the Buddies defeated the C. F. C. team of Norwich 31 to 16. Mercier was the star of the Plainfield team in this game while Brown was the high scorer for Norwich. The summary:

CELTICS AND SILK SOX VICTORS IN PUTNAM LEAGUE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 15.—There were two games of basketball at the Armory last evening, the Celtics winning from the Headquarters Company by a score of 30 to 16, and the Silk Sox defeated the K. of C. by 41 to 37. The first was a well played game but the one between the Silk Sox and the K. of C.'s is said to have been the finest exhibition of basketball that Putnam fans have ever witnessed. Every point was hotly contested and it was either teams game until the final whistle.

Bove was the star of the game as he scored 29 of the 37 points for the K. of C. and Murphy was shifted from forward to guard in order to hold him. Bove also made ten goals from field.

Murphy playing for the Celtics who tips the scale at about 100 played a fine game against half a dozen heavy weights. Seventeen of the points made by his team are credited to him. Two of the players in the Silk Sox-K. of C. game grew so enthusiastic that they were ruled off the floor.

PIRATES WILLING TO TRADE TWO PLAYERS

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates are willing "to swap a couple of players on reasonable terms" but nothing developed at the National league meeting because "it seemed that everybody wanted fifty cents for a nickel," Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pittsburgh club, said today on his return from the New York session.

The Pirate chief said there may be a chance for a deal later but added that "even if we do not succeed in making a trade we are not in bad shape for the 1927 season." Reports that Eddie Collins or Tris Speaker might come to the Pirates were termed "unfounded" by Dreyfuss. He also denied there was any intention of trading infielder Hal Rhyne.

NAT. LEAGUE WOULD SET MAXIMUM PRICE ON PLAYERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Establishment of a maximum price for player purchases, revision of the minor league draft agreement and more harmonious working arrangements between the two major leagues and Commissioner Landis are some of the recommendations which National league representatives carried toward Chicago tonight for discussion in the newly appointed "steering" committee of the two circuits.

The question of the draft and player prices were dove-tailed in one main objective supported by all the magnates. They desire to reduce the "high price of baseball."

Discussing a suggestion that the leagues agree on a top price of $30,000 for minor league players, President John A. Heydler admitted that the bidding of owners for valuable minor league stars had become a "cut-throat game."

"Unless some steps are taken to bring about a mutual understanding," he said, "the practice of creating 'farms' probably will be more extensively adopted. It will be hard to restrict the owners to a maximum price for players, but with Commissioner Landis at the head of the game, it is my opinion that some such agreement probably could be enforced."

All the National league teams own 'farms'—minor league clubs for the development of young players—except Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. Barney Dreyfuss, president of Pittsburgh, has announced he would call for a showdown tomorrow on the subject of 'Farming.' He is among several owners who recently have paid high prices for outstanding minor league players.

Heydler was asked whether the "steering" committee would recommend curtailment of the powers of Landis, as was indicated at yesterday's American meeting in Chicago.

"That is not the thought at all," he said. "We are all satisfied with Commissioner Landis. Personally, I do not think Landis would stand for any such attempt. If American league owners have that in mind, I think they will be disappointed."

HORNSBY MAY GO ON AUCTION BLOCK AT JOINT LEAGUE MEETING

NEW YORK, Dec. 15—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby today loomed as the central figure in one of baseball's biggest prospective deals as National league magnates embarked for Chicago to attend the joint meeting of the two major leagues tomorrow.

Unless Hornsby recedes from his contract demands on President Sam Breadon, the star second baseman and manager of the world's champions will be placed on the market next month, according to information which reached the magnates. At least two clubs, the Giants and Cubs, gave indications of opening negotiations for his services.

Neither Breadon nor other club owners would discuss in detail what was characterized as "the most serious split in baseball" as they departed. Significance nevertheless was attached to the fact that Manager John McGraw of the Giants cancelled a Twentieth Century Limited reservation to occupy the same pullman with Breadon on a Pennsylvania train.

It is a matter of common baseball gossip that McGraw and his own second base star, Frank Frisch, have been at loggerheads. The Giants leader would jump at a chance to replace Frisch with Hornsby. Not only as a move to strengthen the club's infield, but also to prove a counter metropolitan attraction to Babe Ruth.

The magnates pointed out that probably only the Giants or Cubs would be prepared to negotiate for Hornsby, whose present player contract calls for an annual salary of $27,000. President William Veeck of the Chicago team also was on the same train with Breadon.

"Breadon and Hornsby are of the type that is hard to bring together," said one man close to the situation. "Both are determined, hard-headed men and the breach between them is wide. Hornsby demands a new contract as manager for three years at a salary said to exceed $50,000, Breadon is willing to raise the pay check to $30,000, but that is as far as he will go. Furthermore, he cannot see a three-year contract."

Friends of Breadon pointed to the fact that Hornsby's value as a player dropped last season with his assumption of the club management. He complained of trouble with his back and his batting average slumped 36 points, from .403 to .317.

The disagreement between president and player-manager dates back over a long period and includes other questions that that of salary. One element of the controversy involves Branch Rickey, Hornsby's predecessor as manager and now an officer of the club.

Hornsby's contract as a player has one more year to run, but his contract as manager has expired.

RULES THAT BERLUND'S DEATH WAS ACCIDENTAL

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 15—(AP)—Death of Harry Berglund, light-heavyweight boxer of St. Paul, was held accidental by the coroner today, and Berglund's opponent, Carl Augustine was released after being held in custody over night.

Berglund, who was 21 years old, was known in the ring as Berg, died early today from a cerebral hemorrhage suffered when his head struck the floor of the ring after Augustine had knocked him down with a left hook, 15 seconds before the end of the fight.

Berglund's death was the first in a professional ring here since boxing was legalized in Minnesota. There have been two deaths in amateur or unauthorized fights.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

By the Associated Press

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals will repeat next year in the world's series, if in the firm conviction of Bill Killifer, former Cub catcher, who was first assistant to Rogers Hornsby, the Card pilot. Killifer says he is undecided about returning to the Cardinals next year.

Recent financial reports showing that Pennsylvania and Yale each grossed around $750,000 in 1926 football receipts indicate that each probably approached $1,000,000 in returns from their 1926 games. Bigger crowds, particularly in Pennsylvania's reconstructed stadium and higher ticket prices for climax games contributed to the increase. These two colleges top all others in the east that have made football a big business.

The Ottawa Senators, undefeated leaders in the National Hockey league, play the ice sport after the polished fashion of the Athletics' famous 1910-14 baseball machine and Knute Rockne's Notre Dame football arrays. Smoothly efficient team work has given the Canadian sextet a record of nine victories and one tie, that against the Toronto St. Patrick's, so far.

While the managers were trading talk, two of the baseball scribes decided to close at least one trade for the day as Jim Crusinberry of Chicago and Joe Williams of Cleveland exchanged hats.

Lacking any news to give out about new players, Bill Carrigan, who returns to the Boston Red Sox after years of absence, announced that his club would train next spring at New Orleans.

Major league baseball, played every day over a period of six months, attracted total attendance of approximately 10,000,000—assuming that the American league's mark was close to the National league figure of 4,950,000. By comparison, it was estimated that college football, concentrating on one day a week over a two months' season just closed, drew nearly 15,000,000 fans.

Talk of 1928 "Iron Men" such as Brown put on the football field has prompted Bucknell university to claim a record for Dr. A. R. E. (Polly) Wyant of Chicago, who played seven years of varsity football without once taking time out or missing a minute of action because of injury. Dr. Wyant, a tackle, played four years at Bucknell, graduating in 1893 and three more at the University of Chicago. He arrived at Chicago simultaneously with A. A. Stagg, who served as coach, captain and fullback, all in one year. There were no eligibility rules limiting competition in those days.

ENOCH ARDEN TALE TOLD BY PRINCESS TROUBETKOY

BOSTON, Dec. 15—(AP)—An Enoch Arden tale, with modern variations, was told to Chief Justice Hall of the superior court today by Princess Nadejda Troubetkoy, who claims to have been a member of the Russian battalion of death. She is seeking a divorce from Victor Alexander Turin, whom she married in 1917.

In the version of the Enoch Arden story told by the princess, a woman who remarried in the belief that her first husband was dead, learned of her fatal mistake when he sent her a demand for $20,000 "hush money." The judge took the case under advisement.

Princess Troubetkoy said Turin deserted her eight months after their marriage and later heard that he had been killed in battle. Members of Turin's family, she said, told her the man had been killed, and his name appeared in French newspapers as a casualty. She went to France and searched for 18 days without success to obtain proof or Turin's death.

Two years afterward, the petitioner said, she married Captain Wallace S. Schutz of Milwaukee. While they still were on their honeymoon, the princess testified, she received a letter from Turin demanding $20,000.

"When I saw this letter," Princess Troubetkoy continued, "I said to my husband: 'Wally, I have no right to live with you. I must go to my husband. My place is with him.' I went to Paris and searched but could find no trace of him. I have never seen Wally since."

Captain Schuts had the marriage annulled, the princess said. She testified that Turin at present was acting for the screen.

SOCIALISTS ENDEAVORING TO RAISE TROUBLE IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—(AP)—An incipient political crisis arising from the socialists' opposition to the government in connection with supposed reactionary elements of the reichswehr is likely to come to a head immediately. At a meting of the socialist party today a resolution was adopted that unless the government resigned tomorrow, the party would forthwith present a motion of non-confidence.

Another resolution was adopted in favor of entering a big coalition comprising the socialists, democrats, centristy German people's party and Bavarian people's party, on condition that the government resigned.

STATE POLICE GUARDING AGAINST LYNCHING

MEDIA, Pa., Dec. 15—(AP)—Rumors that an attempt would be made to lynch Ollie Strickland, 25-year-old negro, and confessed slayer of Miss Emily Collins, caused the authorities tonight to throw a large squad of state police, deputy sheriffs and constables around the Delaware county jail, where the negro is held without bail for trial.

Miss Collins, 18, was slain when she refused to hand over to Strickland some packages containing Christmas gifts she had purchased for her invalid father.

Upon receipt of a telegram from Governor Pinchot that he had information from a reliable source that an attempt would be made to lynch Strickland, Sheriff Isaac W. Johnson swore in a large number of deputies and increased the guard about the jail to more than 100. Forty state policemen were sent here from Harrisburg.

MARINE CORPS FLYERS IN SERIES OF ACCIDENTS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15—(AP)—A series of accidents has attended the Marine corps flyers winging their way on the second stage of a triple transcontinental expedition between Quantico, Va., and San Diego, Calif.

Major Ross Rowell, in command, reported to headquarters today that two of the twelve planes which started from Quantico December 1 crashed yesterday without injury to the occupants. The machine piloted by Gunnery Sergeant J. I. Hockman, crashed at Fabens, Texas, and the other driven by Marine Gunner Wodaroszyk fell near Tucson, Ariz. The latter craft exhausted its fuel and went down in the Mesquite.

Still another machine went down near near Del Rio, Tex., Saturday with a broken propeller blade.

SCHULER LEADS IN WEST SIDE PINOCHLE

Schuler moved up into first place in the West Side Pinochle club standing Wednesday night, his high score, 8,245, enabling him to climb up from fourth position. C. Peckham moved into second place from third and A. Jordan dropped back to fourth place. The scores Wednesday evening:

Schuler, 8,245; Lewis, 7,655; C. Peckham, 7,535; Bailey, 7,055; Underwood, 6,915; E. Peckham, 6,775; Boynton, 6,530; Ellsworth, 6,355; J. Jordan, 6,035; Pettis, 5,530; Parker, 5,695; A. Jordan, 5,645.

The standing to date: Schuler, 31,175; C. Peckham, 28,685; Underwood, 28,185; A. Jordan, 27,640; Lewis, 27,450; E. Peckham, 26,630; Boynton, 25,950; Ellsworth 25,850; Parker, 25,760; Bailey, 25,530; Pettis, 25,295; J. Jordan, 25,245.

Relief From Riveting?

City dwellers whose nerves have been put on edge by the noise of riveting machines wherever buildings are going up may get relief in the near future. Their hope lies in electric welding, for its recent growth suggests that some day the staccato voice of the riveter may be a thing of the past for most construction work.

There is more true philosophy in an inch of laughter than there is in a yard of sarcasm.

THREE HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE AT DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 15.—Revelations of a 15-year old girl, who on Wednesday was taken from this town to the Long Lane farm for wayward girls at Middletown, has resulted in the arrest of a young married woman, Rose Green Pero, 20, wife of Harvey Pero of Brooklyn, and Gilber Pellerin and Edgar Lasnier, local youths, all of whom are held under bonds of $1,000 for trial at the superior court.

In default of bonds, Lasnier is in jail. Pellerin is at liberty under bonds. They are charged with abuse of a female child. Both have pleaded not guilty, but cause for holding them was found by the court here. Mrs. Pero is charged with enticing a minor child. She demurred to the complaint, was bound over under $1,000 bonds. Wednesday afternoon she was in jail at Brooklyn, but her case had been continued until today in order to give her further opportunity to get bail.

The revelations made by the young girl who has gone to Long Lane farm include alleged happenings she experienced on a trip to New London with Mrs. Pero. It was indicated here Wednesday that arrests among the sailor population stationed about New London are probably to follow the cleaning up of this end of the case, the sailors to face charges similar to those pending against Pellerin and Lasnier.

The minor girl told a sordid tale of her experiences with men and in the course of her revelations named several with whom she claimed to have had illicit relations.

When Personal Tax Collector Arthur A. Dean opened his office for business Wednesday morning—the last day for paying this tax—1,100 residents of the town of Killingly who are liable to pay it had not done so.

Beginning this morning a force of clerks will start mailing out notices to the delinquents. They will be given a brief period of grace to meet the obligation, but in all cases will be required to pay a fee of 25 cents for their delay, this in connection with the necessity of mailing them notices. Failure to heed the notices will mean that prosecutions for collection will be begun through the town court. This will involve court appearances on the part of those who have failed to pay and a very considerable expense for court costs, enough to pay the personal tax for several years.

Former Warden Walter Anderson has a revised and completed draft of the proposed new borough charter. This draft will be presented to Warden Harry E. Back for perusal and in due time will come before a special borough meeting for the consideration of the electors.

Danielson's present charter is antiquated and in many features obsolete. This fact has been recognized for years and has been the subject of more or less discussion for revision. Mr. Anderson has spent a great deal of time in study of the old charter to determine what parts of it should be retained, what new features should be added and what should b erevised. Incidentally, he has studied the charters of other communities in search of good points for incorporation in Danielson's proposed charter.

If the forthcoming special borough meeting should approve the draft as it is presented, or a revised draft, the matter will be before the legislature of the state at the January session.

It appears that there has been a misunderstanding here by the fish and game commission's interpretation of the law pertaining to rabbit hunting while snow is on the ground, not that this matters a great deal now that the rabbit hunting season has closed, but to keep the record straight.

Some time since it was announced that rabbit hunting would automatically cease when there was sufficient snow on the ground to permit of tracking the quarry.

Writing about this to Supt. John W. Titcomb, Secretary Harold B. Atwood of the Danielson Rod and Gun club received the following reply Wednesday:

"In reply to your letter of Dec. 11, the interpretation of the law for the protection of rabbits given in one of the papers is incorrect.

"It is unlawful to hunt rabbits with a ferret when here is snow enough for tracking, but not unlawful to hunt rabbits with dogs under existing conditions."

This letter should make clear to all interested what the restrictions are when there is snow on the ground.

At a meeting of Killingly grange Monday evening a rehearsal in preparation for degree work is to be carried out next Monday night was held by the officers. A committee on refreshments has been appointed and the committee has its plans well matured. At the close of the degree rehearsal Lecturer-elect Walter G. Bruce held a short conference with the officers-elect and outlined his literary program for the coming year. It has been planned to have the program printed in the near future.

Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the undertaking rooms of A. F. Wood a funeral service for Dayton D. Jordan, who died suddenly in East Providence Sunday, was conducted by Rev. Rober C. Stimson of the Methodist Episcopal church. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were James Torrey and George Torrey, nephews of Putnam, George O. Thomas and Henry E. Anderson.

At the Goodyear church last Sunday Rev. Charles A. Downs preached on Called To Be Saints from the text found in Cor. 1: 2, and indicated that there are quite a few people who hold an entirely erroneous idea of what constitutes sainthood. The choir rendered special music, with Joseph Green and Miss Irene Cobb accompanying with trombone and piano.

PUTNAM GIRL IN SERIOUS CONDITION AT HARTFORD

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 15—Miss Hazel Converse, a teacher at the new Bulkley high school at Hartford is a patient at the Hartford City hospital suffering from a hemorrhage of the spine. Miss Haze. Converse is a graduate of the Putnam high school and a daughter of Henry L. Converse of this city.

The accident happened on Tuesday of last week when she was on her way home from her school duties. She slipped on the icy street and fell striking the back of her head with great force. She went home after the fall as she suffered but little at the time but later her head began to pain her and on Thursday she was taken to the hospital and Dr. Paul Swett, one of the noted specialists of Hartford was called in consultation and he pronounced the injury as causing a hemorrage of the spine and very serious but by no means hopeless. Miss Converse has been suffering intensely for several days and has been kept under the influence of opiates to alleviate the pain.

Her father, Henry L. Converse, has been the mail carrier on route No. 1 in the city of Putnam ever since the establishment of the free delivery system and has visited her and is keeping in daily touch with the hospital by telephone concerning her condition. There is no operation that will correct the condition but it is hoped that nature will remedy the trouble.

The Rev. Robert W. McLaughlin, D. D., pastor of the Piedmont Congregational church at Worcester, Mass., was the speaker at the December meeting of the Elisabeth Porter Putnam chapter D. A. R. The subject of his address was "The Hunt for a Pair of Slippers" and in it he dwelt on the importance

The hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. Sylvia W. Averill, chairman, Mrs. Myrtle H. Bradley, Mrs. Isabel G. Milot, Mrs. Blanch M. Vaughn, Mrs. Nellie S. Andem, Mrs. Gertrude S. Thayer, Miss Adrianna Hutchins, Mrs. Florence L. Kelley, Mrs. Grace H. Franklin, Mrs. Jessie H. Gilpatric, Mrs. Marion H. Mayfield, Mrs. Beatrice G. Wheaton, Mrs. Emily O. Butler and Miss Ruth deCoudres.

Announcements have been received of the marriage of Miss Dorothy Paine Wright to John Allan Bishop at Springfield, Mass., on Sunday December12. Miss Wright is the daughter of Mrs. Eliza L. Wright and the late Edward L. Wright, who was a well known jeweler of Putnam for many years. Mrs. Bishop is a graduate of the Putnam high school and afterward completed a training as a nurse at the Massachusetts General hospital at Boston.

An interesting meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held at the home of Mrs. Leon Walker on Grove street. Rev. Mr. Fuller of this city gave an instructive talk, Miss Alice Stevens sang two soprano solos accompanied by Mrs. Pearl Wheaten at the piano. The hostess served refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Olin Shead of Woodstock have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Iola May Shead to Waldo H. Gratton of Worcester, Mass. Miss Shead is a graduate of the Southbridge high school and is at present employed in Southbridge. The date of the wedding has not as yet been announced.

At the annual meeting of the Woodstock Agricultural society, the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, William C. Child, Woodstock; Alexander Maitland, Thompson; secretary, William M. Gallup, Woodstock; treasurer, Fred C. Lawton, Woodstock. The vacancies are to be filled by appointment.

In the ladies' department, Mrs. Wendell R. Witter of Putnam was elected president; Mrs. Carl Eke, Mrs. George M. Sampson, Mrs. A. E. Johnson, vice presidents; Mrs. J. T. May, corresponding secretary and Mrs. Louise Child, recording secretary. The directors were all re-elected.

The rural schools in the districts under the supervision of Martin B. Robertson of this city will close on Friday of this week for a two weeks holiday vacation.

Arthur S. Chadwick, shipping clerk at the National Rhea company died Wednesday morning at the Day Kimball hospital following a peculiar accident at the mill Monday morning. In crossing the floor his foot slipped and he fell in such a way that an intestine was punctured. He was taken to the hospital and an operation was performed at once but it proved unavailing.

Mr. Chadwick was 55 years of age and came here several years ago as a clerk for the Manhasset Mfg. company. He was an active and interested member of St. Philip's Episcopal church and for a long time had been its choir master. He is survived by his widow and two children, both of whom live here, Miss Ethel Chadwick and Mrs. J. R. Groves.

The checks for the five per cent dividend to creditors of the First National bank have been returned from Washington, D. C., where each one was personally indorsed by the comptroller of the currency or his secretary. They will be ready for distribution to the creditors of the bank at the Citizens National Thursday morning. The amount of the dividend is $90,856.05. This is the fourth dividend that has been paid by the receiver and brings the total up to 70 per cent. It is estimated that out of the remaining assets of the bank there will be enough realized o permit the payment of ten, or possibly, fifteen per cent. more.

Herbert W. Bowen, who has been seriously ill at his home in Woodstock is much improved and it was said this morning that he would be able to sit up in a few days.

Samuel Reynolds, George F. Miner, Leon T. Wilson and Otis S. Morrarty of this city and members of the Mystic Shrine attended a meeting of that order at Hartford.

Herbert W. Bowen of Woodstock, former consul to Vensuela, whose illness was regarded as serious last week is now reported as improving.

Mrs. Imogene Arnold of Willimantic is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. George Sumner at Woodstock.

Dock Riley of North Grosvenordale has been called to his former home in Alabama by the death of his father.

The Woodstock Academy Gleaner, published by the alumni of the Academy and edited by Mrs. William Gallup is now ready for distribution to those who wish a copy of this very interesting book.

Paul F. Bauder of Pomfret has gone to Battle Creek, Mich., to join Mrs. Bauder and Miss Bauder.

Arthur Olney of Thompson is a patient at the Memorial hospital in Worcester where he recently underwent an operation. He is reported as making a good recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lielle of Thompson sailed on Saturday for France on the Majestic.

Mrs. Bertha Brewster has returned to her home in Providence after a week's visit with Mrs. Louis E. Law of Grove street.

Miss Nellie Chandler leaves this week for Texas where she will spend the winter with her sister.

WARRENVILLE

The trial of Oscar Baker for shooting a deer on land owned by Mr. Meyers was set for last Saturday but was postponed until December 18th. Wallace Goodhall was attracted by the sound of a rifle shot. He discovered three men carrying a deer in bags to a car. Two of the men ran. Mr. Goodhall acts as agent for Mr. Meyers who lives in Washington, D. C., and has large tracts of forestry. Lawyer King of Willimantic represents Mr. Baker who admits trespassing but says the deer was found dead.

Old time managers, actors, and playwrights, testifying in the probate court in Boston, recounted the days when the late Lotta Crabtree was the star in such attractions as "Zip," "The Little Detective," "Musette" and "Le Cigale."

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

ERADICATE HORSE BOTS BY TREATING ALL ANIMALS

Anyone who has had anything to do with horses is more or less familiar with botflies and the annoyance they cause. Until recently, however, when a species known as the nose fly, new to this country, began to spread over the Noth Central states, but little attention has been given to control of the pests. Investigations made a few years ago by the United States department of agriculture clearly point to a very effective and economical treatment for the control or even eradication of all three kinds of horse bots. The results of these studies are discussed in Farmers' Bulletin No. 1561-F, just issued.

The annoyance of the flies during the summer when they are laying their eggs on the hairs of the horse is serious, especially that of the nose fly, which often makes the animals uncontrollable. Although the nose botfly is restricted to the North Central and the northern Rocky Mountain states, it is gradually spreading, and steps should be taken to control it. The eggs of the botflies are taken into the digestive tract of the horse where they hatch into bots or maggots and become attached to the stomach and intestines. They require about a year for development before being passed on, during which time they not only interfere with digestion but may actually cause stoppage, resulting in death.

Certain repellents, such as a mixture of pine tar 2 3-4 ounces, kerosene 1 1-4 ounces, laundry soap 1 ounce, powdered resin 1 ounce, and hot water to make 14 ounces, have been found to some extent effective in keeping the flies away. A protective device to cover the throat and chin of the horse will aid in reducing the annoyance and egg laying on these parts when horses are at work. The device consists chiefly of a piece of canvas suspended under the jaws and extending from the throat latch to the bit rings.

Devices and repellents to reduce fly annoyance do not necessarily reduce or control the number of bots. However, it has been found that internal treatments with carbon disulphide capsules, a poison which kills the bots or maggots in the digestive tract, is effective and satisfactory. When all horses, mules, and colts in a community are treated systematically for two or three years to insure that no living bots drop to the ground the number of bot-flies in the area will be greatly lessened. This treatment should be given in December or January, after the flies have finished their egg laying. Suggestions for control or eradication of horse bots by community effort are outlined in this bulletin.

In certain sections where control work against horse bots has been in progress, many farmers declare that the number of cases of colic and other digestive disturbances has been greatly reduced, and that horses are kept in better flesh on the same feed than was possible before control work began.

BLACK WALNUT TREES A GOOD INVESTMENT

Farmers in the upland and hill sections of the south, the Ohio river basin, or the central Mississippi valley regions will make a good investment by planting a bushel of black walnuts this fall. That is the advice given by the forest service, United States department of agriculture.

There are about 1,500 nuts in a bushel and they should be planted about two inches deep in waste strips, idle corners, and along fence rows. The walnut is a tree that requires good soil and the nut should not be planted in shallow, dry or poor land. If hogs or squirrels are running over the land the nuts should be buried in a soil pit or kept in a damp cellar until spring and then planted.

Walnut is one of the two finest cabinet woods known to the world, and it is widely known that logs or stumps have a market value of from $150 to $200 a thousand feet.

The growing of valuable trees as a means of farm improvement has been recognized by farmers throughout the country. The possibilities of the black walnut are unusual as it will yield a good yearly income from the nuts until the trees is ready to harvest, and it will add materially to the value of the farm.

The crop of walnuts is large this fall, according to the department, and farmers over a large area from Pennsylvania to Arkansas and Iowa have an unusual opportunity to make a good paying investment by planting many of the nuts on their farms.

USE SEED POTATOES LIBERALLY

The importance of using a liberal quality of seed potatoes is not generally recognized by commercial potato growers. The recent accomplishment of a firm of California potato growers in producing 1938.3 bushels of potatoes on a measured acre and an average yield of 100½ bushels on 9 acres would not have been possible if only the usual quantity of seed had been planted. These growers consider the liberal use of seed a good investment. In the production of their phenomenal yield seed potatoes were planted at the rate of 40 bushels per acre or more than twice the quantity used by our most progressive potato growers.

Experimental results indicate there is a close correlation between the quantity of seed used and the yield per acre. Planting large-size sets insures a better germination and a larger set of tubers, therefore it is a desirable practice provided the resultant plants have an abundant supply of plant food and moisture. Large size sets mean more stems and tubers per set, consequently more nourishment is needed to develop these tubers to market size.

United States department of agriculture Bulletin 1245-D dsicusesses size of potato sets and also compares the relative value of whole and cut seed. It should prove valuable to potato growers interested in the production of maximum yields.

An excuse nearly always goes lame in the home stretch.

LIME YOUR LAWN NOW FOR RESULTS IN SPRING

Fall liming of the lawn brings thick, green grass in the spring, just as liming of the garden means more abundant vegetables in the summer.

Many established lawns need rejuvenation, and now is one of the best times in the year to sprinkle lime freely on the lawn. Winter snows and rains will carry the lime deeply into the soil producing results when the warmth of spring arrives that far exceeds the trouble and cost.

Since at least 75 per cent of the farm land in the humid regions of the country is more or less deficient in lime, the acidity in areas devoted to lawn may be regarded as equally common in fact, acid soil is most prevalent in cities, due to smoke, gas, etc. Consequently, the question of lime is a pertinent one for most lawns, whether they be of sandy loam or of a clay substance.

A lawn soil should be like that of a garden, having good depth and a large reserve of moisture capacity and plant food. There should be friable soil to start with, neither extremely fine or coarse, and with the surface food well stocked with humus from manure, and plant food from fertilizer. This is soil that should be well limed. Clover, so much desired in a good lawn, must have a liberal amount of lime in order to flourish.

If pratical, in treating the lawn, topdress after the lime with a fair amount of manure. The coarse part should be raked off in the spring before growth starts. If manure is not available, apply commercial fertilizer in the spring. If the turf is very thin, apply additional seed of a good lawn mixture after the fertilizer has been applied or the manure raked off.

The care of the lawn is also important. All the larger weeds, such as plantain, dock and dandelion should be cut out and the lawn kept clipped. Close cutting leaves the soil too much exposed and encourages drying out. For that reason set the mower rather high so as to leave a protecting stand. Frequent mowing is preferable so that the clippings can be left on the ground to form a mulch without smothering the plants. Do not sprinkle except in case of extreme need, and then do it thoroughly so that the soil is wet through to four inches deep.

This form of treatment will usually work wonders in the texture of a lawn and incidentally give great satisfaction to the owner and substantially add to the value of the property. A sweet and rich soil will be the result.

At a largely attended meeting of the Holy Name society of St. Mary's church, New London, held at the Diocesan bureau, it was voted to have a communion breakfast at one of the leading hotels on the second Sunday in January.

HOW CITY IS DIVIDED BY THE PROPOSED ZONING ORDINANCES

The proposed zoning ordinances as amended by the court of common council at their adjourned meeting Wednesday night, are published herewith and contain an explanatory note of 1500 words. The map on this page provides the key to the provisions of the proposed ordinances a summary of which follows:

The city is divided into four classes of zones and designated: Residence districts, class A; residence districts, class B; business districts and unrestricted districts.

Residence District, Class A.

In the residence district, class A, the permitted occupancies are as follows:

The office or place of business of a surgeon, physician, dentist, architect, lawyer, dressmaker, milliner, or musician when situated in the person's private dwelling or apartment, including also the workshop of such person when situated in the same building, but employing not more than two other persons.

Clubs, excepting clubs the chief activity of which is a service customarily carried on as a business; churches and convents, schools, libraries, public museums; philanthropic, charitable or religious institutions other than correctional institutions, hospitals and sanatoriums, railroad passenger stations, farming, truck gardening and nursery business, not including roadside stands, farmers' markets, boarding and rooming houses, but not dogs; playgrounds and parks.

A five-car limit is placed upon a garage, except that a private garage shall be more than four feet square and billboards, signboards or advertising signs and show or display windows shall not be erected, except that of 24 sq. ft. or less in area and not more than nine feet square is prescribed, for "For Sale" or "For Rent" signs.

Residence Districts, Class B.

In residence districts, class B, the same permitted classifications are contained as in class A, except that the work shop of a mechanic or artisan in connection with his dwelling or apartment, is excluded. The same limitations as to garage and sign apply here.

Business Districts.

The following 11 classifications of trades and uses are barred from business districts:

Ammonia, chlorine or bleaching powder manufacture; arsenal; asphalt manufacture or refining; assaying (other than gold or silver); blacksmithing or horseshoeing; boiler making; brewing or distilling of liquors; bone black manufacture; bottling establishment; cement, lime, gypsum or plaster of paris manufacture; coal, wood or bones; coal tar products manufacture; creosoting; dyeing or dry cleaning establishment employing more than five persons; electric central station power plant; fat rendering; fertilizer manufacture; garages for more than five motor vehicles, not including a salesroom where motor vehicles are kept for sale or for demonstration purposes only; gas manufacture for illuminating or heating; manufacture or storage of acetylene gas, aniline dyes, asphalt products, bleaching powder, chlorine, coal tar products, explosives, fireworks, glue, size and gelatine manufacture, incineration or reduction of garbage, offal, dead animals or refuse; iron, steel, brass or copper works, junk, scrap paper or rag storage or baling; lamp black manufacture; match manufacture; milk bottling and distributing station; oil cloth or linoleum manufacture; paint, oil, varnish or turpentine manufacture; petroleum refining or storage; printing ink manufacture; raw hide or skins storage, curing or tanning; repair shop, for motor vehicles exceeding one and one-half ton capacity; rolling mill; sausage manufacture; shoddy manufacture or wool scouring; slaughtering of animals; smelting of tin, copper, zinc or iron ores; stable for more than five horses; starch, glucose or dextrine manufacture; stone working, carving or cutting; storage of explosives, gunpowder, sulphuric, nitric or hydrochloric acid manufacture; tallow, grease or lard manufacture or refining; tar distillation or manufacture; tobacco manufacture; wood distillation or turpentine manufacture.

Also the following uses are barred from business districts: any manufacturing, compounding, processing, packaging or treatment of products, except bakery goods, candy, cosmetics, drugs, dry goods, food products, jewelry, pharmaceutical goods, soap, and toiletries; assembly of electrical appliances, radios and phonographs; automobile or machinery assembly; boot or shoe manufacturing; canvas or canvas products manufacturing; carpet or rug cleaning; clothing manufacturing; electrical machinery, apparatus, supplies or parts manufacturing; electrotyping or stereotyping; enameling; engraving; fur goods manufacturing; hair products manufacturing; ice cream manufacturing; laundering or dyeing; leather goods manufacturing; musical instrument manufacturing; pattern making; printing; publishing; rubber products manufacturing; sheet metal products manufacturing; shoe blacking manufacturing; soda compounds manufacturing; textile manufacturing or weaving; tobacco manufacturing or treating; toilet preparations manufacturing; umbrella manufacturing or covering; upholstering; wearing apparel manufacturing; wholesale business or storage; wire products manufacturing; wood planing mill; woodworking; yeast manufacture.

It is also provided for business districts that uses and occupancies are permitted in that are noxious or offensive by reason of odor, dust, smoke, gas or noise, but car barns, railroad yards or repair shops are excluded.

Amusement shall not be excluded.

The business districts any manufacturing, storage or industrial use not prohibited, but already mentioned as prohibited, provided not more than 25 per cent of the floor space is so used, but printing shall not be deemed manufacturing.

Unrestricted Districts.

The term "unrestricted districts" is used to designate the districts for which no regulations or restrictions are provided by the zoning ordinance.

Existing Buildings

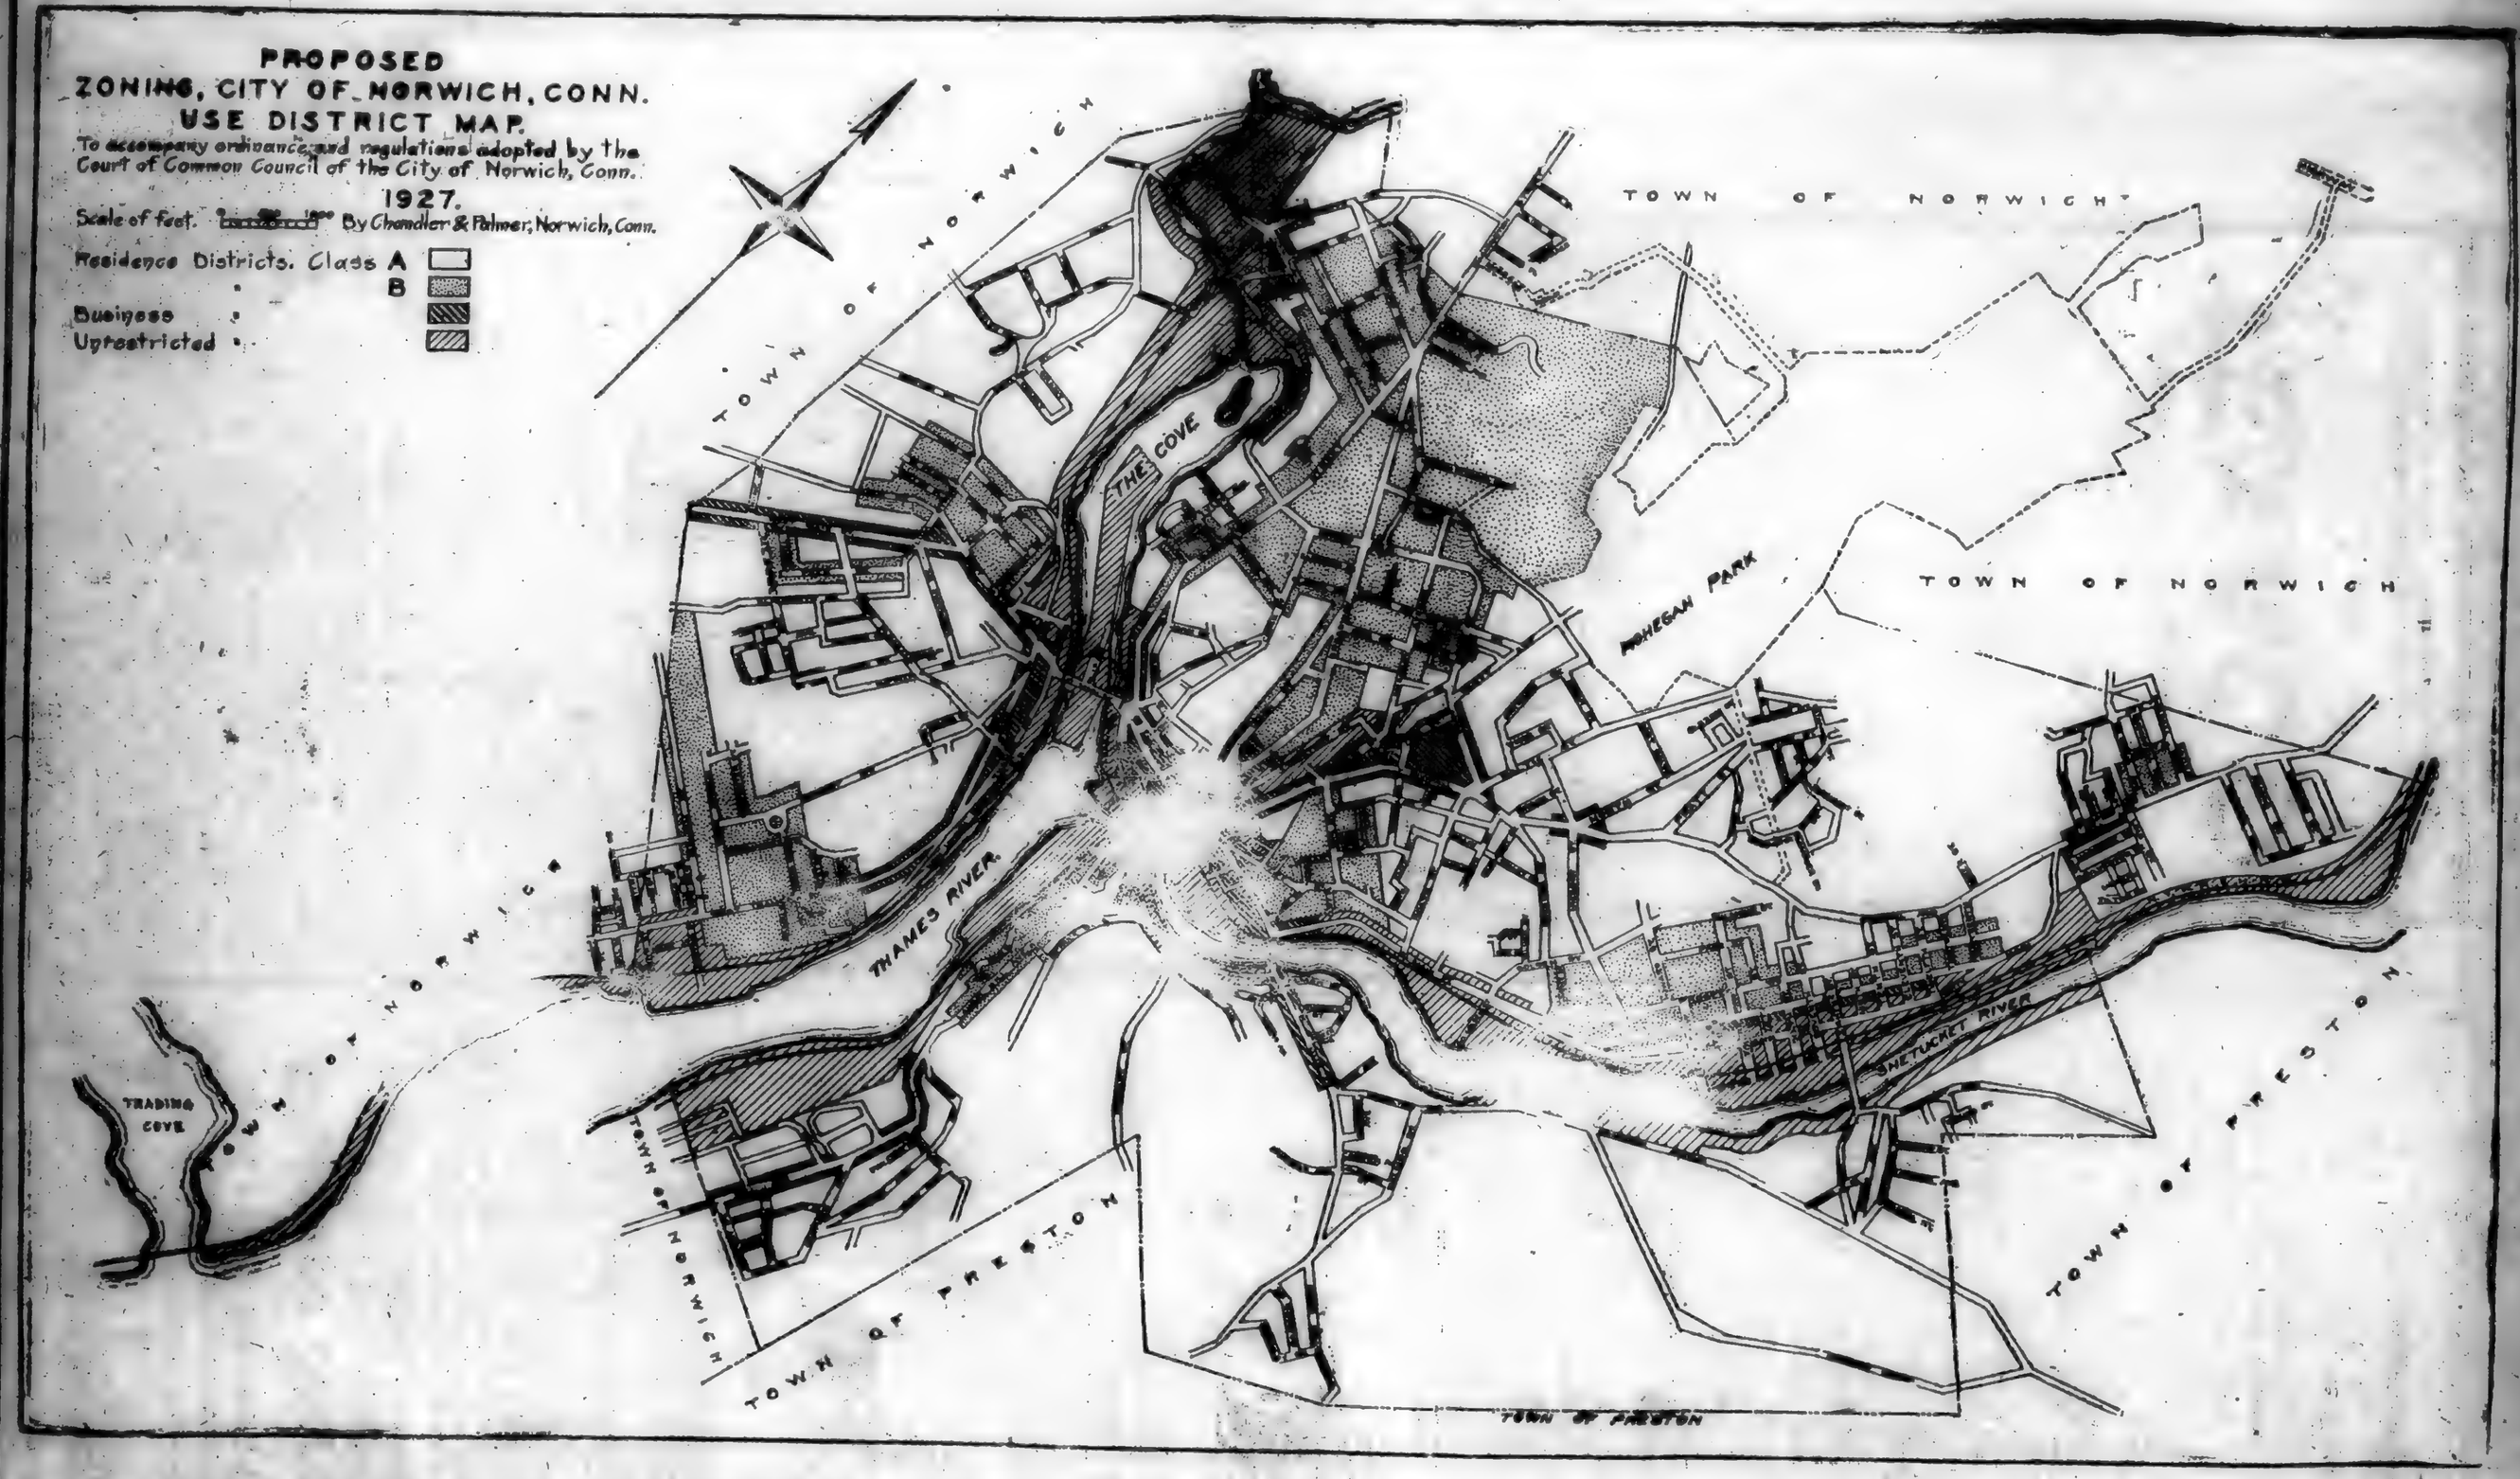
Any use existing at present in a building or premises, which does not conform to the new zoning regulations, may be continued, and nothing in the zoning ordinance shall cause any change in the present lawful use of a building for which a building permit has heretofore been issued.

Area Districts and Set-Backs

Three classes of area districts, known as A, B, and C, which correspond respectively to residence districts, class A, residence districts, class B, and business districts, class C, are established.

The minimum area district No new building shall occupy more than 75 per cent of the area of the lot, nor shall it be nearer than five feet to the street line. In class A area district the building shall be 10 feet from the street line. On Washington street, on Union and Grove avenues, on Dolon street, on the northerly line of the Little Plain road and on Broadway north of Otis street, in class A area district there shall be a set-back line, a 30 foot block front-age line.

In the class C area district there



NOANK

Martin Lamb while delivering refreshments in the Village Tuesday morning near F. L. Baldwin's store on Front street, saw a red fox. Probably it was the first time in the history of the village that fox paid a visit to the streets. The neighbors started a chase but the fox was too fast and made quick time to the woods on Pearl street. The people living on that street were afraid Mr. Fox might come out at night and steal a duck, so the shutters and doors were closely barred.

Captain Benjamin Latham, 77, died at his home on Pearl street, Tuesday morning after a brief illness of heart trouble. He had been confined to his bed for three weeks. Captain Latham was born in Noank and followed the sea for many years. He was married to Miss Mary Ann Noank who survives him. He is also survived by a son, Captain Benjamin Latham, and a daughter, Mrs. Ethel Latham and a granddaughter, Miss Elizabeth Chadwick, of New London.

Several members of the Chatter club went to Ledyard by automobile Thursday evening for one of the bunco parties they went over to the hall and danced. The Acme orchestra played for the dancing. The club gave The Dream Pirate and Other Tales and those who listened and gave the club great applause. T. Bracel did a few tricks with a broom. Those in the party were Mrs. Ethel Porter, Joe Handon, Mary Robertson, T. Bracel and Marion McGrath.

Fishermen here have been going fast on account of the foggy weather. Pearl street was like a river for the water was running off in the street.

Mrs. Ruth Pentecost Maher left for a visit in Portsmouth, N. H.

Captain Charles F. Potter of Norwich was in Noank Tuesday as guest of Captain and Mrs. Frank Tinsley at dinner which was served from the Davis house of household goods from the Davis house to the Shandor building on Pearl street.

The boat Yarmouth had a few up to Mystic Tuesday. It was low tide near Six-penny Island and the boat went on the mud and had to be towed off. The vessel was not damaged. The captain was not used to the river and the course for it from Montauk, L. I. He had the wrong idea about the course and was about to shove power on when the tide Lathrop company in Mystic. The boat showed up well before it hit the mud and the owner is well pleased with his new craft.

Frank Muse has gone to Montville for a week's visit.

Mrs. Henry Moore of Lawrence, Mass., is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Louis McCarthy is in Brooklyn, N. Y., for a brief stay.

Sent Body to Bridgeport

Mary Wasem, whose death occurred in Norwich on Tuesday was taken in charge by Cummings by Undertaker Cummings and sent to Bridgeport on Wednesday where she is to be cremated. The funeral was held in St. Michael's cemetery, Bridgeport.

Tomorrow is worth more to the hurrier than yesterday.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion. Creomulsion contains creosote that is world famous for its ability to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and relieve the cough.

Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes inflamed membranes and checks germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for use in coughs and colds, bronchial irritations and other forms of respiratory troubles. You can also obtain creosote and other forms of respiratory healing elements which are contained in Creomulsion, while the creosote and other elements are carried to the seat of the trouble, attacks the seat of the trouble, allays the irritation, soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germs.

Creomulsion is powerful but safe and pleasant to take. Its use is unsurpassed in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory troubles. You are assured of results or money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

WESTERLY

IF WALKS ARE NOT CLEAR SNOW REMOVAL WILL COST $7

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 15—The beginning of Westerly's fourth snowstorm of this winter commencing shortly after noontime Wednesday is a reminder that at the meeting of Westerly highway commission, held Monday, it was voted to have enforced Chapter 89 of the general ordinances, police rules and state laws, concerning cleaning of sidewalks by property owners or occupants.

ALLING BLOCK EXTENSION TO BE SUBJECT OF HEARING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 15—The proposition of erecting a business structure above the waters of the Pawcatuck river has again come up in Westerly. This time the proposed construction, an extension from the rear of the Alling Rubber block at 29 High street, is desired on the Westerly side of the Pawcatuck river. This is but several hundred yards from the building which Max Novogroski proposed to erect on the Pawcatuck or from the west bank of the river adjoining the down stream side of the Broad street river bridge.

Following is a copy of a letter received Wednesday morning by many Westerly town officials and abutting property owners:

Notice of Public Hearing

The war department, having under consideration the application of The Green Strea, Inc., for authority to ex-Green Stores, Inc., for authority to extend the Pawcatuck river at Westerly, R. I., a public hearing will be held by the undersigned in the council chamber in Westerly town hall, at 3 p. m., Monday, January 3, 1927.

All interested parties are invited to be present, or to be represented at the above time and place, particularly navigation interests and the officials of any county, city, town, or local association whose interests may be affected by the construction of the proposed work. They will be given an opportunity to express their views upon the suitability of the location and the adequacy of the plans in reference to navigation, and to suggest changes considered desirable in the interests of navigation.

Oral statements will be heard, but for accuracy of record all important facts and arguments should be submitted in writing, as the record of the hearing will be forwarded for consideration by the war department. Written statements may be handed to the undersigned at the hearing, or mailed to him beforehand.

The plans submitted by the applicant show an addition to the present structure extending 19 to 24 feet westerly over the water of the Pawcatuck river. The extension is supported by cantilever trusses with clearances of 12 foot above mean high water at the river bank and 19.5 foot above mean high water at the outer edge.

R. F. FOWLER.
Major, Corps of Engineers.
District Engineer.

U. S. Engineer Office,
Providence, R. I.
December 14, 1926.

Mailed from Providence, Dec. 14, 1926, at 2 p. m., the War department, engineer office, U. S. A.

The Alling Rubber company building was 118.9 feet on High street 66 feet on the north and 8 feet on the south line.

The Green Stores, Inc., leased the block from the W. S. Alling Rubber Co. Inc., Feb 10, 1926, for a term of 20 years, dating from July 1, 1926, to June 30, 1946 Subsequently on July 1, 1926 the block was sold by the Alling interests to Louis A. Cerf of Montclair, N. J., and William Winter Drew of Stamford, Comn., but the Green Stores lease is in effect just the same.

Recorded in the office of Westerly town clerk are the following transfers:

Dec. 14. Rudolph A. Saunders to Claude R. Saunders, real estate, of about 25 acres with all buildings and improvements located on the west side of the Woody Hill road bounded on the north by lands of Charles H. Crandall, west by lands of Charles H. Crandall and John F. Maxson and south by lands of Bertram Earle and Richard E. Newton.

Claude R. Saunders to Rudolph A. Saunders two tracts of land with all buildings and improvements, the first on the east side of the Woody Hill road, bounded on the north by lands of Anna J. Ople, east by lands of Andrew H. Waters, south by lands of Margaret M. Gavitt, east and south by lands of the late Edward Bliven, now Thomas Winn, and on the west by land of John K. Dunn.

Dec. 15. Maynard Land company of Providence to James Gormally of Pawcatuck, lots Nos. 159 and 160, Melrose Heights plat.

Francis Cropin of East Boston to Rose Collins, lots Nos. 50, 51, 52 and 53 on Elmwood avenue, revised plan of Misquamicut park.

A membership total of 1849 in the annual roll call for 1927 in the Westerly chapter of the American Red Cross has been announced, as the result of the drive conducted during the past month. The total cash receipts thus far are $2,958.40. These figures will be increased slightly by returns from one of the outlying branches that has not yet issued its report. Of the cash receipts, the sum of $100.45 was raised through collections taken in two local theatres. The annual roll call was directed by Mrs. C. Byron Cottrell and Miss Elizabeth Haswell. Under the supervision several teams of women carried on a house-to-house canvass in Westerly, Pawcatuck and outlying communities, soliciting memberships and donations at the same time.

A staff of regimental officers will pay a visit tonight (Tuesday) to Battery E, 243rd Coast Artillery corps, for the purpose of giving gunners' examinations to non-commissioned officers of the local unit. Col. Cyril L. D. Wells has issued orders that no non-commissioned officer in the regiment will be allowed to hold his rating unless he qualifies by passing the required gunners' examinations.

Corporals must pass the second class gunners' test; sergeants, the first class gunners' examination, and first sergeants, the experts' test.

Harold L. Stedford of Richmond, R. I., arrested Tuesday by Deputy Chief of Police William L. Kay of Hope Valley, was before Clerk Herbert P. Clark at Wednesday morning's session of the third district court. The complaint was the operation of an automobile on the old Providence road, in the town of Hopkinton, when intoxicated.

Stedford pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve five days in the Providence county jail. Stedford was operating an automobile in Hopkinton Tuesday and a compaint was made to Deputy Chief Kay by a woman, who claimed that Sedford's car nearly drove her off the highway. He was examined by Drs. Edwin J. Knerr and M. H. Scanlon and pronounced to be under the influence of liquor. Stedford claims that his home is in Waterford, Conn., and that he was operating the automobile on a Connecticut operator's license.

Funeral services for Amelia Vitterito were held Wednesday morning from her home, 53 Pierce street. A solemn mass of requiem was celebrated at 9 o'clock at the Church of the Immaculate Conception by Rev. Henry Bruno, S. M., Rev. J. P. Cassagne, S. M., being deacon, and Rev. Lawrence Fahy, S. M., sub-deacon. After the final absolution Martin H. Spellman sang "Passing Out of the Shadows." Burial was in St. Sebastian cemetery, where the committal service was by Fr. Bruno. Eight little girls acted as bearers, Minnie Cherensia, Mary Capizzano, Minnie Sposato, Rose Vangiere, Susie Gencarella, Minnie Sposato, Virginia Bruno and Nancy Turano.

Miss Vitterito was the daughter of Santo and Angelina Vitterito, and was 13 years old. She had been suffering from heart trouble for the past two years. Besides her parents, she is survived by two sisters and two brothers.

The 26th annual election of Granite City camp, No. 9159, Modern Woodman of America, held in Stillman hall Tuesday evening, resulted as follows: Past consul, Stanley Laing; consul, Orrin Tarbox; advisor, Richard Opie, Jr.; banker, Willlard P. Hall; clerk, William E. Martin; escort, Melville Spear; watchman, Spencer Lawton; sentry, Herbert Magee; trustee (3 years), William A. Rook; camp physician, Dr. S. C. Webster; musician, George H. Murphy; camp deputies, Charles Crandall, Orrin Tarbox, Stanley Laign. The installation will be Tuesday, Jan. 11, with Past Consul J. A. Church as the installing officer.

After the election an old fashioned New England supper was served by the social committee of the camp. During the social session violin solos were played by George H. Murphy. Remarks on Woodcraft were made by several neighbors and there was singing of familiar songs.

Miss Dorothy P. Stillwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Stillwell of White Rock, has left to resume her duties as musical accompanist in the high schools of Rochester, N. Y. During the past few months Miss Stillwell has been studying music in New York.

John G. Hunter, formerly of Pawcatuck Woolen mills, Potter Hill, now with Hall Bros., Hallville, left Westerly Tuesday night on a business trip to New York.

Walter H. Snyder has recovered from his recent illness.

Isaac G. Smith returned Wednesday night from a business trip to New York.

OBLIGING NEW LONDON P. S. DRIVER HAS HAD HIS LICENSE RESTORED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 16—At a hearing in Hartford this morning, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel granted the petition of Abraham Davidson, proprietor of the Union Cab Co., State street, for the return of his public service operator's license. The license was suspended about eight months ago, Davidson being convicted of violation of the liquor law in selling a bottle of whiskey. It developed at that time and again today that Davidson was approached by a young man of acquaintance since boyhood, with a request that Davidson secure a bottle of liquor for his friend. Davidson accommodated his friend. It later developed that the purchaser of the liquor was a stool pigeon for the state police and used his acquaintanceship with Davidson to procure the liquor and enable him to establish a conviction. These facts had much to do with the return of the license today.

WASHINGTON IS GIVEN UP TO CIVIL AUTHORITIES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 15—George Joseph Washington, colored, mess attendant at the United States coast guard, local section base, No. 4, State pier, was delivered to the civil authorities this afternoon by Commander Frank S. Young, in charge of the pier. A warrant had been issued by Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Holzanderaky for the arrest of Washington on a charge of assault with intent to kill. Commander Young was compelled by rules regulation on the war department for Washington's delivery to the local police and pending the order to release Washington by the civil authorities, the accused has been a prisoner at the base. Washington was brought to the police station this afternoon by Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh and was locked up in default of bail of $10,000. He will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning. Witnesses were summoned for court appearance this afternoon, these including Alice Marks, Robert Simms, Cowboy Williams, coast guard, and Dr. Frank M. Dunn, surgeon, who attended Wilson at the time he was struck on the head with a milk bottle and received a fractured skull.

THEODORE MORRIS HELD FOR SLASHING SWEETHEART

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 15—Theodore Morris admitted, when in the police court this morning, that he slashed Dorothy Lewis with a knife to kill her. The parties are colored and they have rambled about what is called the colored belt in this city for years. Theodore has been employed in restaurants. He was in love with Dorothy and represents that he was engaged to marry her. Then jealousy took place in their affairs with the result that the wickedest of purposes took possession of Theodore. There had been a little party at the home of Jim Bowser, after which Bowser, Mrs. Lewis and Morris went out and procured a bottle of booze from which they all drank. Later Morris conceived the idea that Bowser was not the sort of associate he wanted for a friend on whom he intended to marry and so admonished her to cut the companionship of Bowser. Dorothy was not inclined to do as requested and told Teddy so in words that were manifestly plain and emphatic. He thereupon proceeded to the restaurant where he had earned wages and procured a potato knife that was such as to kill and attacked his sweetheart. He missed her on the arm, but the wound was not dangerous. She went to the hospital, but was released the next day. Morris has made a written confession of what he did and has told of his purpose. He is awaiting trial in the superior court now on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

Willis A. Jones, about 60, died this afternoon at his home, on Ocean avenue, after a brief illness. He is survived by his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Walter Ickrath and a son, Walter Jones, besides a brother Walter Jones, former assistant postmaster. Mr. Jones had been employed for several years as bank watchman, making hourly inspections of the several banks, with his co-workers, William Elwood. He was taken ill about two weeks ago.

Abraham L. Nathins and Benjamin M. Nathins, of New Haven, have sold the dwelling house, Nos. 53-55 Connecticut avenue, to Antonio and Mary Gigliotti.

The funeral of Mrs. Gertrude B. Colt wife of Judge Alfred Colt, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the First Church of Christ and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the Second Congregational church. The bearers were Charles E. White, George Whittlesey, Jas. A. Brannara, Clyde C. Williamson, H. W. Rafferty and Frederick S. Hitchcock. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Lulu Pratt of 15 Berkley ave-nue and George Shore, 113 Bank street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

The three story wooden building, 66 Hempstead street, owned by a lodge of colored membership, was threatened with serious damage when a chimney fire was discovered there last night. A telephone message to fire headquarters summoned Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and the Northwest Hose company. The fire was located and speedily subdued although it required two tanks of chemicals to accomplish it. The damage will not be great.

At Lawrence Memorial hospital this afternoon it was said that there was no material change in the condition of Alexandro Mariotti, Goshen street resident, who was shot in the back and legs Monday night by Santo Scira, 213 Shaw street, city emgyre, when Scira found Mariotti at the entrance of a goat house on the Scira premises. It was stated that Mariotti was not suffering as much pain as he did yesterday, but that his condition was still considered critical. According to statements made by acquaintances of Scira one of the goats owned by him had died recently and, it is claimed, from an attack made upon it. It is also claimed that Mariotti was unquestionably the attacker of the animal and that his visit to the goat house Monday night was for the same purpose, only that he was not successful in accomplishing his desire because he was discovered and shot by Scira. Scira is now a prisoner at the county jail awaiting a hearing in the police court next Tuesday morning by which time, it is believed, it will be known whether Mariotti will recover or not. Scira's bail, which was fixed at $10,000 when he was presented in court yesterday, will be furnished by relatives and friends when his case comes up in court next week.

Francis Joseph, a night guard sil-ver, was in a restaurant last night when Policeman George Cockell entered for his midnight lunch. A companion of the sailor advised him not to be too boisterous as an officer had entered. Then Francis became aware and announced that he did not care for any officer who walked. He became a little louder than that even, so he was walked to the police station and was held to answer. Today he was fined $5 and went to jail taking with him the admonition of Judge Crandall that it would be well for him to treat officers as he expected to be treated himself, decently.

Richard W. Joime was last night chosen worshipful master of Brainard lodge of Jerry during the coming year. He succeeds Charles Potter and takes the lodge in its most prosperous condition. Fred W. Edgerton was chosen secretary to succeed the late George A. Stirdy and Edward Chidsey was appointed marshal. Mr. Edgerton has been a trustee of the lodge, but to take the office of secretary he resigned that place and the board will now comprise Carey Congdon, Edward Prentis and Alfred B. Pollock. Brainard has grown within a few years so that it is exceptionally prosperous.

A. & P. STORE HOLD-UP MAN BROUGHT FROM NEW HAVEN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 16.—The New London police were requested by the New Haven police tonight to maintain a lookout for a young man, who held up and robbed a clerk in an A. & P. store in New Haven this afternoon, the crook securing $30. The crook is described as being 24, about five feet eight inches in height and weighs about 130 pounds. He wore a grayish colored suit and gray cap, but no overcoat. He ran from the store and entered a Studebaker touring car, which carried Connecticut registration, E-9366. The thief's appearance indicated that he is a dope fiend.

COLCHESTER WOMAN FINED FOR HAVING HOME-MADE BOOZE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 15—Mrs. Victoria Burbar, of Colchester, was presented before Justice of the Peace Baker at that place this morning charged with violation of the liquor law in keeping liquor with intent to sell. She pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs, which she paid. Mrs. Burbar was arrested yesterday afternoon by a raiding squad of state police from the Groton barracks and following evidence being obtained that the Burbar house was a place used for the sale of home-made liquor. Included in the evidence the officers obtained in the raid was a 15-gallon still, four quarts of home-made whiskey and 150 gallons of mash.

William Heyna, 35, chief petty offi-cer at the United States Coast Guard, local section base, No. 4, married and residing at 218 Huntington street, was arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officers John Courtney and Lawrence Parks, charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, driving an automobile without having a license and driving an automobile that was unregistered. He furnished a surety on his bond of $100 for his presentation in the police court tomorrow morning. Heyna does not own the automobile. It was purchased by another chief petty officer from a coast guard officer and the purchaser, being unable to drive, secured the service of Heyna to do the driving. Assuring Heyna of the latter were arrested for any law violation that the owner would bear the expense. About 5 o'clock the automobile was driven through State street, turning into Bank street where Officer Courtney was on duty and the officer observed that the auto did not carry registration. He sounded his whistle for Heyna to stop, but the latter continued through Bank street. Officer Courtney secured the services of another automobilist and put after Heyna. As the officer's auto was approaching Howard street, Courtney blew his whistle several times and Officer Parks, realizing that a chase was in progress, held up all traffic with the result that the auto Heyna was driving was also held up. Then Officer Courtney detected Heyna to be under the influence and took him violating the rules regarding the auto to be registered and the driver to have a license.

Councilor James A. May has se-cured the number of signatures to his petition necessary to compel the city council to authorize the holding of a special city meeting to permit the taxpayers to cast their ballots as to whether the city shall employ the services of Mr. Swan of New York at a salary of $12,000 to prepare plans for the zoning of the city, as authorized at a recent meeting of the council. Councilor May expects to file the petition with City Clerk Julian D. Moran next Monday. It will then be the duty of that official to determine the validity of the signatures. If a sufficient number is found to be those of bona fide voters the petition will go to the council and a date for the election will be fixed.

This light fall of snow this afternoon early evening made some of the pedestrians treacherous walking of the while. There was little snow on the ground and that little was trampled down so that it was indeed slippery.

Santos Scira, who shot and severe-ly wounded a fellow whom he found at his chicken coop and goat shed on Monday night, is in jail because he failed to provide a bond of $10,000 ordered for his appearance in the police court next Tuesday. His relatives have come forward with the property that would enable him to obtain his release, but they and he have decided that he will stay in jail rather than endeavor to secure a bail bond. The claim is made that he is comfortable in the jail and that his liberty would not add to his comfort.

The hotels are experiencing the slowest times they have known since last winter. Few travelers seem to be on the road and the season for merchandising is not productive of trade.

People residing south of Howard street and along Pequot avenue are mightily pleased with the prospect of a bus line for their accommodation is going to and away from their homes and places of business. A bus line is something they have not known about since the days of the old stage coach, when L. L. Childs was the operator of it. When the section known as the Pequot was built up the tradesmen went to and from their work in teams. The mechanics worked ten hours a day then and were at their labors at 7 o'clock in the morning and did not quit until 6 in the evening. Some changes have taken place in the hours of labor and the facilities of getting to and from work since then. It was no uncommon thing for mechanics to work three or four miles to and from work in the period mentioned. Now the mechanics, or many of them, go to work in their automobiles daily.

LODGE-ENCAMPMENT UNITE FOR SOCIAL EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 15.—The joint Ladies' night of Obawebetuck lodge, No. 15, I. O. O. F., and Windham Encampment, No. 10, was held at the town hall this evening, about 150 couples attending. Dancing was enjoyed and a feature entertainment was provided through a Hartford bureau. The committee in charge comprised George H. Millard, Jr., C. S. Palmer, J. A. Isham, R. B. Scribner, A. J. Mathewson, and Charles H. Beebe.

TWO STONINGTON RAIDS RESULT FROM COMPLAINT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 15—Stonington Patrolmen William Gutman and Frank Burrowe raided the places of Marion Post and William Schafer in Stonington borough this afternoon, as a result of a complaint alleging the keeping of intoxicating liquors for sale. Bail was furnished for their appearance in Stonington town court Monday morning next.

H. P. CHASE AUXILIARY HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 15—Harley P. Chase auxiliary, Connecticut department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, held its second annual meeting this evening in Vets hall, Pawcatuck. Mrs. Margaret Greenman presided. The following officers were elected and will be installed the first Wednesday in January:

President, Mrs. Bessie Cranston; senior vice president, Mrs. Annie Francis; junior vice president, Mrs. Mabel Perry; chaplain, Mrs. Stella Keegan; recording secretary, Miss Lucy Passetti; treasurer, Miss Irene Marnell; trustees, Miss Helen Bean, Mrs. Margaret Greenman.

During the meeting two members were added, ten having been taken in during the past few weeks. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting. A committee met with members from Marley P. Chase post Veterans of Foreign Wars, to arrange for a joint post and auxiliary observance of New Year's eve with a Christmas tree.

As a result of a through beating up which Walter Rhodes, residing on Boylston street, Westerly, was reported to have received the first of the week at the hands of Joseph W. Marceau, a trooper of the Rhode Island department of state police while he was proceeding along the Boston Post road, an investigation was held Wednesday afternoon at the office of Attorney Rathbun. At the conclusion of the conference, at which Capt. John H. Harwood of the Rhode Island state police was present, also Amoss Champlin, a witness of the assault, the statement was made that the matter would probably not reach the court. According to one account, Marceau in company with Warren D. Nichols, both Rhode Island state troopers, were proceeding along the Post road when Rhodes appeared to them as a suspicious person. He was ordered to stop, but took to his heels. One of the troopers pulled his gun and in the melee Rhodes received such rough usage that is needed the attention of a doctor. When the case was taken up with the state police this hearing was asked for.

Even if a man's good deeds live after him, he isn't in a position to care.

TODAY'S EVENTS

This is the anniversary of the historic "Boston Tea Party," in 1773.

Miss Lillian Russell were still alive she would observe her 66th birthday anniversary today.

One hundred years ago today was born Giovanni Bonati, the Italian astronomer who discovered the great comet that bears his name.

Seventy-five years ago today began the trial in the suit of Edwin Forrest, the actor, for divorce from his wife, which continued 14 years and was one of the most remarkable on record.

Members of the foreign diplomatic corps in Washington will be entered by the President and Mrs. Coolidge at dinner in the white house this evening. This is always one of the most brilliant functions of the social season at the executive mansion.

Accompanied by all the pomp and ceremony which centuries of custom have prescribed for the occasion, the pope today will hold a public consistory in the Royal Hall of the Vatican, where hundreds will gather to witness the brilliant spectacle.

Official representatives of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada today will wait upon Premier W. L. Mackenzie King to make their representations as to what organized labor urges in connection with the dominion legislative program.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Wesleyan Guild to Meet

The Wesleyan guild of the Trinity M. E. church will hold their evening meeting on Thursday, Dec. 16 at 7.30 p. m. A social program will follow a short business meeting. Friends of the guild are invited to this gathering. Mrs. William E. Manning will give a few readings and other interesting features have been planned by the program and fellowship committees. Refreshments will be served by the hostesses.

Breed Theatre

The team of George Sidney and Charlie Murray bids fair to become as famous on the screen as Weber and Fields were on the stage. In the many pictures in which this rotund son of Abraham and the wry faced son of Erin have appeared never have they been as funny as they are in M. C. Levee's comedy, "Sweet Daddies," coming to the Breed theatre Sunday. "Sweet Daddies" is one of those wholesome comedy affairs with a particularly funny twist at the end. The plot scheme gives ample room for the broad and genuinely comical situations and at the same time has episodes appealing to the heart of the most unemotional.

Jobyna Ralston, Harold Lloyd's winsome leading lady, has an important role in "Sweet Daddies." Vera Gordon is also seen in a featured role.

Others in the cast include Jack Mulhall, Gaston Glass and Aggie Herring. Alfred Santel directed.

Broadway Theatre

"There is a Santa Claus" and he has brought to the Broadway theatre, for three days starting today, that standard Keith-Albee laugh getter and laugh spasm known throughout the world as one of the funniest acts in existence. Glenn and Jenkins in "Working for the Railroad," "Train for the East-for-to-go and way station," if one happens to be working for the railroad in that exceedingly important capacity of a porter this frequently unintelligible cry is the sign to get busy. The porter's exposure and long handle suit, hair brush and Glenn and Jenkins are a pair of comedians who have brought the railroad porter into fame as a stage character and through their superior capability of funsters they succeed in making "Working for the Railroad," one of the best travelers to be found in the theatre. In song, dance and dialogue they unfold the trials and tribulations and the pleasure of those who sacrifice themselves in the service of the railroad.

The management is also offering four other extraordinary acts of vaudeville each one of which is noted on the vaudeville stage for their high entertaining qualities.

For the first time in the history of either stage or motion pictures, a dramatic super-crook story has been presented without a single scene of bloodshed or gunplay. This is the novel fact about the Columbia production, "Obey the Law," starring Bert Lytell, which will open a three day engagement at the Broadway theatre today.

In the supporting cast are Eugenie Gilbert, Edna Murphy, Larry Kent, William Welsh, Hedda Hopper and Sarah Padden. Al Raboch, artist, writer and actor, was the director. The picture is based on an original sketch by Max Marcin, famous writer of stage successes.

The story is one of intense life in the half world, yet the action is carried through without resorting to the usual artificial stimulus of gunplay and killing.

A new Kinograms will conclude this perfect bill of hits.

Palace Theater

Another great vaudeville show opens today at the Palace. The bill headed by the famous band of Al Lavine and his syncopators will bring to Norwich the latest musical numbers played in his hot and peppy style. This act is sure a treat for musical lovers. The Revue Boheme is the most gorgeous song and dance revue of this season. Alexander and Elmore will give you plenty of laughs. You will marvel at Billie Dale the one man vaudeville show and enjoy the Wheeler Duo: some skating act. If you like good vaudeville don't miss this show. The feature film will be the famous story My Official Wife. An addition to the program will be the famous H. C. Witwer Bill Grim story The Lady of Lyons in a two reel comedy and the current Pathe news. Irene Rich, featured with Conway Tearle in My Official Wife, the Warner picture, directed by Paul Stein, which comes to the Palace theater today for a run of three days, wears a galaxy of gowns of dazzling beauty. She is seen at first as Helene, Countess Orloff the courted beauty of aristocratic Petrograd society. Then, in the quaint brilliant garb of a Russian peasant. There are the later scenes when she is a singer in the glittering Viennese cafe, and when she comes as a guest, in all the regal splendor of the past, to meet the humble young nobleman whom she has sought for years that she might avenge a past wrong, but whom she now loves, though he wears the severe livery of a waiter, instead of the gold lace and epaulettes of the days before war. A splendid cast supports Miss Rich and Mr. Tearle.

Phyllis Wentsch, 22, of Pawling, N. Y., was given a suspended sentence to the Connecticut State Farm for Women by Judge Alfred C. Baldwin in the criminal superior court in Bridgeport. The girl had pleaded guilty last week to a charge of burglary lodged against her.

MRS. ROBT. CARSON FALLS, BREAKING BONES IN LEG

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 15.—Mrs. Robert Carson, residing at the corner of Chester avenue and Cross street, slipped on ice in her yard and falling broke both bones of the lower right leg, this afternoon about 4 o'clock. She was taken to the private hospital where an X-ray was taken. Dr. J. Gordon Anderson reduced the fracture.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

OPEN REMODELER PLAUT-CADDE'S STORE TODAY

Today (Thursday) throughout the day and until ten in the evening an opportunity again will be offered the public to be the guests of The Plaut-Cadden Co. when this company opens its extensively remodeled store for inspection. This occasion marks the first official announcement of the company's complete recovery from the disastrous fire which ravaged the store several months ago and the object of the opening is to permit the public to view the wonderful transformation that has been made in the interior of the store, the result of months of preparation.

The present interior of the store will be a revelation to those who have not seen it. Many extensive changes and improvements have been made and no expense has been spared to make the store more pleasing to the eye and at the same time to adequately display the vast assortment of fine home furnishings, pianos, orthophonic victrolas, radios, jewelry, music, etc., as well as the great stocks of beautiful Christmas gift merchandise and the many other varied lines of merchandise the company has for sale.

It will be well worth one's time to attend this opening of eastern Connecticut's largest mercantile establishment. A day and an evening of pleasure and interest are assured all who attend. To make the occasion well worth while to the visitors the company will again offer to every visitor an opportunity, without any obligation, to share in the distribution of merchandise. This remarkable feature of the opening day should prove very alluring to the visitors and doubtless thousands of people will again be on hand to take advantage of it.

The day's program will be of an informal nature, consisting of continuous musical entertainment augmented in the evening by a special concert by Pep's Melody Boys in person and a general inspection of the store.

It is expected that a record breaking crowd will visit the store during the day and evening and nothing will be left undone by the company to assure the visitors an enjoyable and interesting time.

JEWETT CITY

DISTRESS IN NORTH DAKOTA APPEALS TO SCHOOL CHILDREN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 15—A letter received from Mrs. Paul Rice (Clara DesJardines) who with her husband, a physician, is located in Solen, North Dakota, tells a heart-rending story of the suffering among the Indian and Russian residents. The crops were a failure this year, families are without much food and very little clothing and in the winter the temperature drops to forty below zero. Tuberculosis and other diseases caused by such conditions are prevalent. The people have had to sell nearly all their stock in order to live. An effort is being made through Riverside grammar school to send warm clothing, children's and adults' shoes, etc., to Mrs. Rice to distribute among these people, who come to her husband for help. Supt. Clement has caused a box to be placed in the halls for contributions brought by the children. A note was read in each room telling the children about the great need of these people. It was thought that results might be more satisfactory if publicity were given to this worthy cause and many would be glad to help these people by sending clothing to the school by the children.

Plan's tonight, Renee Adoree and Ralph Graves in "Barney."—adv.

Joseph Connor & Sons of Norwich, have purchased the stock and fixtures of a Voluntown store recently offered in a trustee's sale. A three-line advertisement in The Bulletin, three days, brought an even two dozen letters and calls from people wishing to take advantage of the offer.

Charles Spicer is unable to work as a result of a fall from a ten foot step ladder which broke a rib.

The local council of Knights of Co-lumbus held a largely attended whist Tuesday evening in their rooms, twenty-five tables being occupied. Following were the winners: Ladies, first, Mrs. Oscar Lafavre, second, Alice Jodoing consolation, Miss Valeda Boule; gentleman's, first, Richard Dudkowski, second, William Douglas, consolation Charles Maynard.

Mrs. Martha Brown is ill at her home on Mathewson street.

The American Legion auxiliary has sent five boxes of Christmas gifts to Allington hospital for the disabled veterans. This is financed from the funds received from the sale of poppies.

Mrs. F. H. Gilbert had a fine view of one of the big white Arctic owls, Wednesday, near her home. He flew by the house and sat on a pole on the Preston road for an hour or more. She sees a pretty sight every day when six cock pheasants parade across the road to her garden to be fed. Later four of the hen pheasants come from another direction. Every day she feeds them, but they are very shy.

A women's meeting is to be held in the Congregational church this (Thursday) afternoon, to be addressed by Dr. Rees.

NORTH STONINGTON

Mrs. Leonard Main, Mrs. Leonard R. Main and Mrs. Lucian Drury, Mrs. J. D. Avery and Mrs. J. W. Knaffenberger attended the Social Corner meeting of The Bulletin at Mystic Tuesday.

The Women's league of the Baptist church served dinner last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Lucian Drury. The menu included meat loaf, baked beans, escalloped potato, relishes, rolls, pie and coffee.

The Womans union of the Congregational church held a sewing bee Wednesday afternoon of last week at the home of Mrs. C. L. Gray. Tea was served.

Wheeler school is presenting the play, A Servant in the House, on two evenings before the close of the term.

Miss Dora T. Main left Friday for Bronxville, N. Y. She will be away through the winter, visiting in the homes of several relatives.

Both the Baptist and Congregational Sunday schools will have a Christmas tree on the evening of Dec. 21.

Miss Hannah Margaret Walsh of 103 75th street, New York city, daughter of the late Robert B. Walsh, New York importer, and Judge William L. Tierney of Greenwich, were married yesterday in the Church of the Dominican Fathers in New York.

POETRY

The Quiet Places

I will go back unto the quiet places.
I am confused and weary with the crowd
Of many voices speaking many words
That have no meaning for me. In my heart
They fall like little coins of little worth,
And I am heavy with the weight of them.
And I am dumb and lonely in the crowd.
Lonely and dumb.
I will go back again
Unto the quiet places where my feet
Trace over the old footsteps on the stairs
With new and buoyant tread. I will go back
And laugh at all the unforgotten tears
My eyes have wept at dawn. I will go back
And pick the small dropped stitches up again,
I will do all these things, for I have seen
How all the trees do so, and all the fields;
New leaves for old, new grasses, blade for blade.
New cherry blossoms where the ripe fruit hung
Young green upon the ancient deodar,
Young lambs upon old hills. And I have seen
New light in old sweet eyes that looked in mine,
Remembering the magic of their May.
I will go back unto the quiet places,
Come with me, you who will, and find again
What things were lovely and are lovely still—
Singing, and dreams, and silence by the way,
And small bright words that fall upon the heart
Like dew at morning time. I will go back
Unto my own four walls, and when the night
Has shed its blessing on the quiet place,
I will remember faces in the crowd,
And eyes that smiled, and lips that spoke vain things—
And other lips that faltered in their speech,
Or spoke no word at all.
Oh, quiet places—
Here is the sewing and the harvesting!
—Barbara Young.

Fate

Two shall be born the whole world apart,
And speak in different tongues and have no thought
Each of the other's being, and no heed.
And these, o'er unknown seas, to unknown lands
Shall cross, escaping wreck, defying death;
And all unconsciously shape every act
And bend each wandering step to this one end—
That, one day, out of darkness they shall meet,
And read life's meaning in each other's eyes.

And two shall walk some narrow path of life
So nearly side by side, that, should one turn
Ever so little space to left or right,
They needs must stand acknowledged face to face,
And, yet, with wistful eyes that search in vain
And groping hands that never clasp and ache
Calling in vain to ears that never hear,
They seek each other all their weary days
And die unsatisfied—and this is Fate!
—Susan Marr Spalding

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"What did you think of Mary's get-up at the dance?"

"I never knew she felt down."—Tit Bits.

"Who was Shylock, Aunt Ethel?"

"My dear! And you go to Sunday school and don't know that?"—Judge's Kind Old Lady—Why are crying, little boy?

Little Boy—Boo hoo, I'm crying because I can't catch that wasp.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

"Jones is very kind-hearted to animals."

"That so?"

"Yes, why, when he found the cat sleeping in the coal bin, he ordered a ton of soft coal."—Washington Star.

Nurse (to obstreperous young charge)—Oh, Miss Betty! And just after you've been kneeling and asking God to make you a good girl!

Betty—Well, I didn't really want to be.—Boston Transcript.

Mathews—I'll bet it was hot on the desert! No shade, either, eh?

Jenkins—No, the only shade there was my own shadow, and I nearly broke my back trying to sit in it.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

"I am told you play golf on the Sabbath," said the Rev. Mr. Goodman sternly.

"Yes," admitted Miss Kute, "but on that day I only use the sticks I won at our church fair."—Pathfinder.

Suitor—There's only one thing I'd rather accomplish than marry your daughter, sir.

Father (warily)—What's that?

Suitor—Handle a niblick the way you do, sir.

Father—Aw shucks, well, come on out to lunch.—Life.

KALEIDOSCOPE

The sigarobe is the most valuable tree in the Hawaiian Islands.

The snowshoe rabbit changes its coat from brown to white in winter.

The cultivation of rice was introduced into South Carolina from the island of Madagascar in 1696.

The green gage plum is named after Sir William Gage, who popularized its cultivation early in the eighteenth century.

Helium, a gaseous element, was discovered in a spectrum analysis of the sun by Lockyer, thirty years before its existence in the earth was proved.

The record for speedy growth among trees belongs to the bamboo, which, during the rainy season, can almost be seen to grow. New shoots will rise at the rate of nine inches in each twenty four hours.

A North American boa constrictor said to measure fourteen feet and nine inches in length, was killed by Joseph Irving, of North Strafford, N. H., on a trip through the White mountains. He has the skin on exhibition at his home.

The root of a tree which is almost an exact reproduction of a goat's head is on exhibition at Portsmouth, N. H. Every detail is perfect, even to the "goatee" on the chin. There are horns, ears, mouth and eyes clearly defined and in exactly the right position.

Irvin Kearbey, a ten-year-old boy in Butler county, Missouri, has never had a tooth in his head and physicians who have examined him say that he never will have any. Irvin says that he can eat anything that any other boy can, even to the masticating of tough beefsteak. That the boy had no teeth is not unusual in the Kearbey family for a brother and a cousin never had any either.

To assist cross-country fliers in keeping their bearings, the Standard Oil company of California will mark the roofs of 110 of its stations between San Diego, Cal., and Seattle, Wash., with the names of the towns in which they are situated. In addition an arrow will be painted near by giving the true north. The lettering will be of sufficient proportions to enable the names to be read from altitudes as great as 2,000 feet.

Test intellectual discussions, manuscripts, friends and memories are the treasures of Frau Elisabeth Foerster-Nietzsche, the sister of the philosopher, who recently celebrated her eightieth birthday. This kindly faced and gentle mannered lady, though she admittedly never understood Nietzsche's lofty flights of imagination, nevertheless showed remarkable adaptibility in helping to immortalize her great brother's name, even studying philosophy after his death so as to be better qualified to popularize his works.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Heavy selling for both accounts in recent speculative leaders, coincident with a resumption of pool operations in a number of standard industrials and specialties, imparted considerable irregularity to prices in today's stock market. Trading was again on a large scale with orders spread over a broad list, indicating an expansion in public participation.

The principal news developments of the day were favorable. Call money dropped from 5 to 4 1-2 per cent as funds began to flow back here from the interior, and time money was again on a flat 4 5-8 per cent basis. The Boston Federal Reserve bank rate was announced as unchanged at 4 per cent. Directors of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad declared an extra dividend of 50 cents but made no change in the regular $6 annual rate. The weekly steel trade reviews reported little change in operations.

Such selling as occurred was regarded as a natural development after several days of steadily rising prices. Baldwin, aftre establishing a new high record for all time at 166 3-4, moved down to 162 7-8 for a small fractional loss on the day. General Motors, Chrysler, Hudson, Willys Overland and U. S. Rubber, which previously had been active on the up-side, also closed at small net recessions.

Rails, as a group, showed a stronger undertone than the industrials. Special strength of the Erie preferred issues, each of which advanced over 3 points to the highest price in ten years, was based on unconfirmed reports that dividends on the first preferred would be resumed at the rate of $4 annually at a meeting of the directors no Friday. Baltimore & Ohio closed a point higher at 108 1-2. Delaware & Hudson & St. Louis Southwestern each advanced over 2 points and New York Central, Atchison, "Nickel Plate" and a few others advanced a point or so.

U. S. Steel common crossed 155 to a new high on the current up-swing and then slid back to 154 5-8, up 1 5-8 on the day and 5 points below the record top established earlier in the year.

Allied Chemical was bid up over 9 points to 142 7-8 but lost nearly half its gain, with buying presumably influenced by unconfirmed reports of a stock split-up at the next meeting of directors. American Sumatra Tobacco was bid up to a new high on reports that a New York banking group had acquired control.

Oils moved upward under the leadership of Atlantic Refining, which scored an extreme advance of 6 points at 117 in anticipation of an early resumption of dividends. The Pan-American issues, Independent Oil & Gas and Mid-Continent Petroleum also recorded substantial gains. Superior Oil touched a new high on reports of heavily increased earnings through the discovery of oil on its Seminole property, Texas & Pacific Land Trust, which ordinarily changes hands in 10 share lots, jumped 320 points on a few sales to a new record high price at 1670, or more than treble the low price of the year.

The principal commodity markets were stronger. Active wheat futures advanced 7 to 1 1-2 cents a bushel in reflection of the firm domestic position. Cotton closed 23 to 36 points higher on reports of colder weather. Raw sugar was unchanged, and coffee prices held fairly steady.

The foreign exchange market was firm, with demand sterling quoted around $4.85 13-16 and French francs just below 4 cents.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Heavy selling for both accounts in recent speculative leaders, coincident with a resumption of pool operations in a number of standard industrials and specialties, imparted considerable irregularity to prices in today's stock market. Trading was again on a large scale with orders spread over a broad list, indicating an expansion in public participation.

The principal news developments of the day were favorable. Call money dropped from 5 to 4 1-2 per cent as funds began to flow back from the interior, and time money was again on a flat 4 5-8 per cent basis. The Boston Federal Reserve bank rate was announced as unchanged at 4 per cent. Directors of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad declared an extra dividend of 50 cents but made no change in the regular $6 annual rate. The weekly steel trade reviews reported little change in operations.

Such selling as occurred was regarded as a natural development after several days of steadily rising prices. Baldwin, after establishing a new high record for all time at 165 3-4, sold down to 162 7-8 for a small fractional loss on the day. General Motors, Chrysler, Hudson, Willys Overland and U. S. Rubber, which previously had been active on the up-side, also closed at small net recessions.

Rails, as a group, showed a stronger undertone than the industrials. Special strength of the Erie preferred issues, each of which advanced over 2 points to the highest price in ten years, was based on unconfirmed reports that dividends on the first preferred would be resumed at the rate of $4 annually at a meeting of the directors no Friday. Baltimore & Ohio closed a point higher at 108 1-2. Delaware & Hudson & St. Louis Southwestern each advanced over 3 points and New York Central, Atchison, "Nickel Plate" and a few others advanced a point or so.

U. S. Steel common crossed 155 to a new high on the current up-swing and then slid back to 154 5-8, up 1 3-8 on the day and 5 points below the record top established earlier in the year.

Allied Chemical was bid up over 8 points to 143 7-8 but lost nearly half its gain, with buying presumably influenced by unconfirmed reports of a stock split-up at the next meeting of directors. American Sumatra Tobacco was bid up to a new high on reports that a New York banking group had acquired control.

Oils moved upward under the leadership of Atlantic Refining, which scored an extreme advance of 6 points at 117 in anticipation of an early resumption of dividends. The Pan-American issues, Independent Oil & Gas and Mid-Continent Petroleum also recorded substantial gains. Superior Oil touched a new high on reports of heavily increased earnings through the discovery of oil on its Seminole property, Texas & Pacific Land Trust, which ordinarily changes hands in 10 share lots, jumped 320 points on a few sales to a new record high price at 1670, or more than treble the low price of the year.

The principal commodity markets were stronger. Active wheat futures advanced 7 to 1 1-2 cents a bushel in reflection of the firm domestic position. Cotton closed 22 to 26 points higher on reports of colder weather. Raw sugar was unchanged, and coffee prices held fairly steady.

The foreign exchange market was firm, with demand sterling quoted around $4.85 13-16 and French francs just below 4 cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Vigorous upturns in wheat values today resulted from more attention being given to domestic conditions and less to reiterated reports of world surplus stocks.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1 1-8c to 1 5-8c net higher, with corn 1-2c to 3-4c up, oats showing 3-8c to 1 1-8c advance, and provisions at gains of 5c to 70c.

At first the wheat market here had a downward slant induced by lower quotations at Liverpool, but the fact soon became apparent that sellers had over-reached themselves.

Active speculative buying quickly developed, and prices went climbing throughout the remainder of the day. Most of the buying appeared to be based on smallness of Chicago wheat stocks and on falling-off in the domestic crop movement. To some event, low temperatures over the United States winter crop region were also accounted a stimulating influence.

Corn went up in value with wheat, but lagged a little on account of possibility of large corn receipts.

Oats displayed independent strength, both May and July touching a new high price record for the season.

Country advices indicated that oats were scarce and the crop quality low.

Provisions were responsive to higher prices on hogs and to more liberal shipping sales of lard.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—(AP)—Bond trading moved at a slower pace today with buying activities apparently retarded by the billion dollar turnover of funds. These operations, involving government disbursements and tax collections as well as large dividend and interest payments, failed, however, to have any noticeable effect on the money market.

Selective purchases of railroad and industrial issues provided the market's only features. Erie General 4s mounted to a new high price for the year and the convertible 4s were strong on reports of favorable dividend prospects and a change in the executive personnel preliminary to the road's entrance into the Nickel Plate system. Delaware & Hudson convertible 4s jumped more than a point to 118 and New York, Antario & Western 4s, registered, gained nearly 4 points in active trading.

The strong buying movement in sugar company obligations, which has accompanied the rise in prices and improvement in the trade position of the industry, was carried a step farther today. Warner 7s were the leaders of this group, the 1941 issue advancing 3 1-8 points and the 1939 maturity jumping over 5 points. Cuba Cane, Cuban Dominican and Vertientes bonds sold around the year's best levels.

Coincident with reports that approximately $25,000,000 of Italian public utility financing would soon be brought into the market, active bidding developed for Italian government bonds which gained a half point on a turnover exceeding $700,000. Other foreign issues marked time.

New Bond offerings included $15,700,000 City of Los Angeles, 4 1-2 per cent bonds priced to yield from 4 to 4.35 per cent, $10,000,000 Detroit City Gas 24-year 5 per cent bonds priced at par and $7,000,000 New York State Water Service 28-year 5s priced at 94 1-2.

TAFTVILLE

Because of the great many cases of whooping cough being reported in the village, a whooping cough clinic has been arranged for Thursday afternoon at the Red Cross rooms in the Fonemah building. The physician in charge will examine children who have the disease, and where it is advisable, serum treatment will be given.

The members of the Dramatic club presented their three act comedy Wednesday evening in Greeneville for the benefit of the Sunday school of the Greeneville Congregational church. The play, "June Time", was the same given at the annual fair of the Taftville Congregational church last week and in Occum Tuesday evening for the benefit of the Versailles Methodist Episcopal church.

Members of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association, of which Alfred Linderson of North Third avenue is the local member of the board of directors, are receiving schedules of the 1927 program of the association. Among the speakers booked for the season is Secretary of Labor James Davis. The first meeting of the year will probably be held in Taftville.

William H. Whitehead of Boswell avenue was a business caller in Hartford Wednesday.

The weekly meeting of Troop 2, Boy Scouts, was held Tuesday evening in the recreation rooms of the Taftville Congregational church, with Scoutmaster Victor H. Davis in charge.

Ladies' auxiliary, Division 25, Ancient Order of Hibernians held the last whist of a series Friday evening in their rooms, which was largely attended. The proceeds of the whist series have added a neat sum to the treasury fund. The first prize for ladies went to Mrs. John Wunderlich; the second to Mrs. Louis Gregory and the consolation to Miss Laura Blanchette. The gentlemen's first prize was awarded to Alfred Senecal, the second to Henry J. Caron and the consolation to Ambrose Gregory. After play refreshments were served by the following members: Mrs. Patrick Hartnett, Miss Mary Malone and Mrs. William J. Malone.

The many friends of Fred Handy of Taftville are sorry to hear that he has entered the Backus hospital to be operated on for appendicitis.

JURY RETURNS $10,000 VERDICT FOR SIXTEEN YEAR OLD GIRL

A plaintiff's verdict for $10,000 was returned at 4:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the superior court by the jury in the damage suit brought against Samuel Kalmonowitz of Colchester by Louise Mensie, 16, of New London, through her father, Robert Young Mensie. The jury took the case under consideration at 3:25 o'clock in the afternoon. Immediately following the reading of the jury's verdict by Clerk George E. Parsons, counsel for the defendant filed a motion to set aside the verdict.

Trial of the case was started Tuesday before Judge Allyn L. Brown and the jury and the evidence of the case was laid in by both sides about 11 o'clock Wednesday morning. The arguments were completed at 1:25 o'clock and at 2:30 o'clock Judge Brown started his charge to the jury.

In the testimony Wednesday morning the defense brought out the fact that the Kalmonowitz car which struck the 16-year-old Mensie girl and causing her serious injuries on July 25, 1926, near the intersection of Broad and Raymond streets, after the girl had alighted from a trolley car, had good brakes. This was in contradict testimony offered by the plaintiff, that the brakes of the Dodge truck owned by the defendant were so loose that Officer Ray of the New London police force was able to push the car, when all the brakes were supposed to be on.

The defendant was on the stand a short time during the morning. Being questioned by Judge Brown he admitted he was nearsighted. He was on his way from Noank to Colchester with a load of fish at the time of the accident.

Testifying for the defense, Dr. Winthrop McGinley of New London stated that "there will be a certain amount of loss of function of the right knee." The girl will limp, but the doctor testified, her knee, if properly treated for a period of six months, will be normal again, and this would do away with the limping. The limping is caused, according to the New London physician, to the period of inaction. The doctor admitted on cross-examination that there will always be some sort of a stiffness of the knee joint, and that 80 per cent of the function of the right leg can be obtained.

A neighbor of the defendant, Louis Wellan by name, told the court that on the night of the accident he drove the truck, which was involved in the accident from New London to Colchester and tested out the brakes on Chesterfield hill, at which time he found them to be in good working order. Hyman London, garage proprietor of Colchester, testified in regard to relining the brakes on the Kalmonowitz truck on July 19. He said that he fixed the brake linings and that his son put them on the car and adjusted them.

Called to the stand in rebuttal by the plaintiff, Patrick Harkness, foreman at the car barn of the Connecticut Co. at New London, told the court that the one-man safety car had been tested by him on State street, New London and was found to be in perfect working order. On cross-examination he admitted that the car was standing still at the time he made the test.

Counsel for the plaintiff, Attorney S. Victor Prince of New London, stressed the point in argument, that the defendant was negligent in the operation of his automobile and that he was the sole cause for the girl being injured. Attorney C. Hadlai Hull, at great length in argument, stressed the point before the jury that the 16-year-old girl was not in the exercise of due care, when she jumped off the trolley car without looking into the path of the Kalmonowitz machine, and therefore had added "contributory negligence." Counsel for the defense also claimed that the plaintiff had failed to prove their case by a fair preponderance of the evidence.

SOCIAL WORKERS OF TWO COUNTIES MEET HERE

The Social Workers council of New London and Windham counties met Monday for luncheon at the Wauregan hotel. Following the luncheon, Miss Margaret Stack, R. N., director of public health nursing for the state department of health, addressed the group.

Miss Stack's topic was Physical Health: How to Care for It. She quoted Dr. Jesse Williams, director of personnel, Columbia university, in her definition of health: "Health is that quality of life that renders the individual fit to live most and serve best." She spoke of the best standard of health as "being that which one may have with knowledge, appreciation and realization of what is available for each individual."

Miss Stack emphasized the necessity for the proper care of the body, drawing a comparison with the care given an automobile to insure its continuous usefulness. She urged the value of periodic examination and gave as the fundamental points in maintaining physical health the following points, fresh air, nourishing food, recreation, good posture, avoidance of wrong habits of all kinds, care of bodily function and proper mental attitude.

Particular attention was called by the speaker to the proposed legislation concerning state aid to towns for public health nursing. There are 71 towns in Connecticut which are too small to maintain any nursing service. The bill which is proposed will be drawn on the same plan as that which reimburses the town for teachers' salaries, and will recommend that two or more towns share common the support of a public health nursing service. The state department of health will be glad to distribute further information on this important matter on request. It is estimated from a thorough study of some of the towns now without nursing service that the amount of relief now given by these towns will be materially lessened when the health of their population is cared for.

Mr. Hillyar of the National Probation association of New York, spoke briefly of the work which has called him to Confiecticut. He spoke of the development of probation work from its early days when it was looked upon as a "police" job, for which any unemployed person might qualify, to its present status, where the requirements are personality, knowledge and training. The national association now numbers from four thousand to five thousand including judges and social workers. Its work is the study of the social work of the courts in relation to juvenile and adult probation work. Mr. Hillyar has been recently in Wisconsin, Michigan and in Pennsylvania, and has been asked by the Connecticut Child Welfare association and the Connecticut Probation Officers association to make a similar study in Connecticut. The Connecticut juvenile court have established a juvenile court only in the localities where (in 1921) there was a city or town court leaving a large part of the state without any protection for the juvenile delinquent. Mr. Hillyar made a plea for the cooperation of the Social Workers council in this work.

BOZRAH SCHOOL PUPILS ALL JOIN JUNIOR RED CROSS

Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham of Gales Ferry, who is promoting the Junior Red Cross project among school pupils, has received most gratifying returns from the schools of Bozrah.

The Bozrah town schools include those of Bozrahville and Fitchville; and there is also a good report from one school in Lebanon, the Waterman district. The work has been greatly stimulated by the efforts of the school nurse, Miss Frances Kingberger of Fitchville. All the schools stand 100 per cent. Following are their reports:

Junior Red Cross of Bozrah: School, Bozrahville, teacher, Miss Mildred Murphy, (16) amount, $1.25; Center Fitchville, Miss Catherine Fields, (26) $1.36; Johnson Fitchville, Mrs. Ethel Abel (13), $1.15; Fitchville grammar, Fitchville, Miss Catherin Murphy (24), $2.45; Fitchville primary, Fitchville, Mrs. Grace Latimer (33), $1.37; Leffingwell, Yantic, Miss Alice A. Bishop, (19), $1.25; Rudd, Fitchville, Mrs. Winifred Crepeau (24), $1.36; total, $10.17; Waterman school, Lebanon, Miss Rose Sullivan, teacher, (20) pupils, $1.35.

DUWELL CLUB PLANS FOR 1,000 CHILDREN

Plans for the annual Christmas party for the children of the east side section given by the Duwell Athletic club, are swinging into shape as the holiday approaches. This year the party is to be held in Pulaski hall, and it is expected that fully 1,000 children will attend. The Duwell club, as last year, is being assisted in obtaining gifts by many east side people. Gifts not to exceed fifty cents in value are welcome and may be left at the Preston Public market, Marr's Confectionery store and the store of William Disco, Jr.

Word has also been received that Santa Claus will attend the party on the evening of Dec. 23rd, to officiate in the distribution of gifts to the children. It has also been announced that sufficient money is at hand to insure the success of the second annual Duwell Christmas party.

STATE CHAMBER LETTER ON METRIC SYSTEM BILL

The attached letter was Wednesday sent to the members of the Connecticut chamber of commerce by Clark Belden, secretary of the state chamber:

Representatives of the Metric association of New York and other scientific organizations appeared, December 10, before the senate committee on commerce to support senate joint resolutions Nos. 105 and 107, relating to the adoption of the metric system of weights and measures in the United States.

Senate joint resolution No. 105 authorizes the director of the bureau of standards to conduct a thorough investigation and study to determine the advisability of adopting the metric system for general use in the United States. The resolution further provides that "such director, after making such investigation and study, shall initiate and carry out, to such an extent as he may deem advisable, plans to encourage the general and common use in the United States of such system of weights and measures."

Senate joint resolution No. 107 authorizes the department of commerce to establish commodity quantity units for general use in merchandising, after 1935, standardizing the yard to the meter, the quart to the liter, the pound to 900 grams decimally divided.

It is estimated that between $4,000,000,000 and $10,000,000,000 would be required of American industry alone for the replacement of tools, dies and measures, should the metric system be adopted. Merchants and other business men also would be affected. In addition to the cost, it would be necessary to educate the sales people and the public.

A hearing will be held shortly to give the opponents of the two resolutions an opportunity to appear.

If your concern is opposed to the adoption of the metric system, you may care to write our Connecticut senators and congressmen and also the chairman, the senate committee on commerce, stating your view point.

Cordially,
CLARK BELDEN,
Secretary.

DEAN SWAN NAMED FOR U. S. CIRCUIT COURT JUDGE

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 15—(AP)—To Yale university officers the presentation of the name of Dean Thomas W. Swan, of Yale Law school to be judge of the United States circuit court for the second district to the senate by President Coolidge today came as a surprise apparently.

Immediately there rose before them, expectation being that Dean Swan would accept the appointment, the problem of finding a successor to Mr. Swan as dean.

Dean Swan himself said that he had nothing to say about the appointment when asked if he would accept. The query was prompted by the fact that last February when there was mention of his name as a probable appointee to fill the vacancy caused by Judge Henry Wade Rogers his predecessor as dean of the school, it was understood that he did not feel inclined to give up the deanship.

In university circles it was pointed out that the law school had been progressing to very high position under Dean Swan and that with new buildings for it to be erected in the not far distant future, a greater development of it had been forecast. Dean Swan came to the office with a reputation for brilliance as an exponent of law. At Yale alumnus he had taken at Harvard Law school in 1903 honors which included membership of his class and editor-in-chief of the Harvard Law Review, two appointments which for the first time went to a non-Harvard graduate in the law school.

Dean Swan is the son of the late Thomas W. Swan, B. A., Yale, 1869, of this city. He graduated from Williston seminary, East Hampton, Mass., and then entered Yale. He stood high at Yale and was graduated from Harvard Law school with distinction being marshal of his class and editor-in-chief of the Harvard Review.

PHIKUS WAS DRIVING WITHOUT LIGHTS IS CLAIM

When a hearing is held in the case of the death of Tony Phikus of Quaker Hill, Waterford, whose death in the hospital at New London, ensued from septic meningitis following injuries which he received when his automobile collided with a machine driven by Miss Susie C. Whittlesey of this city, it is expected that it will be brought out that Phikus was driving without lights at the time of the accident and also had a blanket thrown over the front of his machine.

Miss Whittlesey was driving to New London, on the night of Dec. 8 in order to take to the train Angelo Patri of New York who had been lecturing that evening at Slater hall under the auspices of the Norwich Teachers association, and Mrs. Elizabeth B. Davis, president of the association was with her.

As Miss Whittlesey was driving along the highway near Connecticut college grounds, the Phikus machine suddenly appeared out of the snow storm, without lights and crashed head-on into her car. Phikus was badly injured by cuts and lacerations and was taken to the hospital in New London, but left the hospital after several days against the advice of the physicians in charge of his case.

Septic meningitis developed shortly afterwards while he was at his home and his condition became so critical that he was returned to the hospital where he died last Sunday.

LIST OF DRIVERS WITH SUSPENDED LICENSES

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out Wednesday at the state motor vehicle department as part of an effort to reduce this highway menace. There are fifteen names on the list. One case was appealed. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivers operating motor vehicles.

Wm. P. August, Simsbury; Edward Clark, Granby; Frederick W. Costello, Eagleville; Wesley V. Crowell, Middletown; Charles Deneski, New Britain; Louis Fournier, Canton; Henry G. Hyde, New York, N. Y.; William B. Jones, New Britain; Francis Kerrigan, Noroton Heights; Fred Kiefer, Hartford; James J. Lynch, Waterbury; David J. Murphy, Hartford; Steven Sarisky, New Britain; John Stelljes, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Edward Von Klein, Bridgeport.

HELPFUL SESSION OF BIBLE STUDY CLASS

An interesting session of the Men's Bible class was held Wednesday evening at the local Y. M. C. A. The scripture was from Genesis, the story of Abram and Lot, and the following points were brought out in the discussion.

We might name the topic an unselfish uncle and a very selfish nephew. Abram went down to Egypt to escape a famine, and while there he had good success; he became very rich. However, riches do not usually bring happiness. A new peril came with Abram's money; his herdsmen and the herdsmen of Lot quarreled often, and it got to be quite a serious matter and threatened to cause a break in the friendship of Abram and Lot.

The magnanimous Abram solved the problem by offering to Lot any part of the land he wanted, and he, Abram, would take what was left. Lot had prospered largely because he had associated with Abram; and the land really belonged to Abram, but he waved his rights in the offer he made to Lot. There is a difference between ones rights and the right. There are all too few of the Abram type today. We usually stand for our rights no matter how it effects others. The man who wants to drink determines to have what he terms his rights, no matter how it affects his family or society.

Lot had the opportunity to play fair, but instead he really played the hog. He took all possible advantage of Abram's offer, demonstrating extreme selfishness, and this spirit is quite prevalent today. No man ever really gains anything in making a selfish choice. The secret of Abram's big heartedness was in the fact that somehow he kept in close touch with God. The statement is made that "Abram was called the friend of God."

This is a splendid compliment. He did not lose anything by being liberal and magnanimous; no man ever does. It is not sufficient simply to be just; one must be generous. A fine rule for living is found in Micah, the sixth chapter and the eighth verse. "Do justly, love mercy and walk humbly with thy God." The session was one of helpful interest.

FALL AND DOHENY FOUND NOT GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY

Under the Law the Government Can Take No Appeal—Government Prosecutors Have Not Formulated Their Plans Concerning Remaining Charges Against Fall and Doheny—Comment Made by Senators on Outcome of the Case.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—(AP)—The government lost today in the first criminal proceedings growing out of the senate committees investigation into oil leasing policies of the Harding administration.

A jury in the District of Columbia supreme court, after nineteen hours' deliberation, found Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, and Edward L. Doheny, lessee of the Elk Hills, Cal., naval reserve, not guilty of conspiracy to defraud the government in the 1922 leasing negotiations.

The verdict pivoted, in the jurors' deliberations, upon Doheny's $100,000 loan, on November 30, 1921, to Fall, described in defense testimony as a friendly transaction between old partners.

Under the law, the government can take no appeal.

The ten-minute climax of the sensational four weeks' trial presented, in the jury's return from its third floor conference room, a scene of electrifying dramatics.

The jurors filed into their box before a tense, eager and breathless throng at 10:08 o'clock this morning. Seven minutes later the room was deserted, having shifted its character in the interim from a federal court to the finale of one of the most celebrated criminal cases in a nation's history, to a malestrom of humanity reacting as if to a touchdown.

Thirty seconds after the jurors had nodded affirmation of the report delivered by their foreman, Justice Adolph A. Hoehling ended the case with the soft-spoken and direct statement:

"Very well, gentlemen; you are now discharged."

The acquittal produced senatorial reverberations almost before the jurors reached their homes.

Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, a principal in the sensational oil committee's revelations three years ago, said in a statement:

"Proof in a criminal case must show guilt of the defendant beyond a reasonable doubt; and in view of that rule, I apprehend that the widespread conviction that the transaction was a reprehensible one will not be dissipated."

Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, denounced the trial in unmeasured terms on the senate floor.

"An insult to justice!" he shouted forcibly at one point in an address delivered two hours after the verdict.

"With Fall and Doheny going free and Frank L. Smith coming to Washington, God help the nation!"

Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, chairman of the judiciary committee, made the trial comment that "you can't convict a hundred million dollars."

Owen J. Roberts, special government oil prosecutor, dismissed the verdict with these words:

"It has been submitted to twelve men, and fairly submitted. Of course we will go along with the other cases."

Four indictments growing out of the senate investigation, two against Fall and Doheny for bribery, one against Fall and Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of the Teapot Dome reserve, and one against Sinclair alone for contempt of the senate, are still to be disposed of by the prosecutors. Argument will begin tomorrow in another branch of the district supreme court on a motion to quash the conspiracy indictment naming Fall and Sinclair in the Teapot Dome case.

The defendants expressed jubilation over the verdict. Fall remarking:

"I have said all along I would leave it to the courts," while Doheny, who said that "the ordeal was a terrible one," made this additional comment:

"I hope that the American people, whose belief in trial by the jury amounts almost to a religion, will accept the verdict of this typically American jury."

From her room at the Carlton hotel, where she is confined with a cold, Mrs. Doheny through defense counsel said: "My prayers have been answered."

Counsel for both sides joined in commendation of Justice Hoehling for his conduct of the trial.

"The trial was orderly, dignified and scrupulously fair," Roberts said in behalf of the prosecution, and Atlee Pomerene, his associate, concurred.

"The court was fair in every instance," said Henry J. Hogan, chief of defense counsel.

Senator Walsh, speaking in the senate several hours after his terse public statement, and directing his remarks entirely to Senator Heflin's observation that the trial "never should have been held before a judge appointed by President Harding," said:

"I feel compelled to say that the conduct of Judge Hoehling was characterised by dignity, discernment and impartiality. I think the senator from Alabama would not have criticized the court's charge to the jury had he read it more carefully. x x x In justice to Judge Hoehling, I wish to say his conduct seemed to me to be past all criticisms."

Senator Heflin, replying to Senator Walsh, said his criticism of Justice Hoehling's charge to the jury was based on a newspaper story and not on actual reading of the charge.

"I do not know this gentleman. He may be all right. But he was appointed by President Harding, it was shown in the trial that President Harding approved the lease for the Elk Hills reserve He might unconsciously have been influenced I would rather some other judge in the district had tried this case."

The government prosecutors had not definitely formulated their plans to night concerning the remaining bribery indictments standing against Fall, Doheny and Edward L. Doheny, Jr., his son in the Elk Hills case. Defense counsel anticipate the indictments will be nolle prossed after the Sinclair trial, which likely will begin about January 10.

More than 600 congratulatory messages from the United States, England and Mexico, reached Mr. Doheny at his hotel this afternoon Two hundred others arrived at the office of Hogan, congratulating him upon his conduct of the trial.

FORMER CONVICT WINTERS IS INDICTED FOR MURDER

WOODSTOCK, Vt., Dec. 16.—(AP)—John Winters, a former convict, was indicted for murder today by the Windsor county grand jury in connection wroith the killing of Miss Cecelia Gullivan at her home in Windsor on November 7.

Another indictment charged him with attempted assault on Miss Bessie Panjaris, one of Miss Gullivan's neighbors, on the same night. Winters will be brought here tomorrow from the Windsor jail to plead to both charges. Trial is not expected to be set before the first of the year, as court adjourns next Saturday until January.

Miss Gullivan's body was found on the sleeping porch of her house on Noveber 8. She had been clubbed to death. Money and valuables in an adjoining room had not been disturbed. Winters and two other men, later released, were arrested the following day.

BOSTON BELL-HOP FOUND GUILTY OF LARCENY

BOSTON, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Hyman Lederman, Boston bell-hop, who drew $9,000 worth of bonds of the George M. Forman Bond and Security house of Chicago on his assertions that Mrs. Theodore N. Vail, widow of the president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company was ready to give him $300,000 in appreciation of his services to her at her hotel here, today was found guilty of larceny of $15,000.

The jury reached its verdict without definite assurance from Mrs. Vail as to whether or not she had ever given the boy a fortune or promised it. Lederman, according to evidence brought out at the trial, told the New York manager of the bond house that he had fallen heir to $900,000 from a woman who appreciated his attentions to her when she was at the local hotel where he worked.

GOV. TRUMBULL ADDRESSED "FATHER AND SON" BANQUET

ROCKVILLE, Conn., Dec. 16.—(AP)—No state in the union is the equal of Connecticut in its opportunity for putting manhood into boys, Gov. John H. Trumbull told the men and boys gathered here at the second annual "father and son" banquet tonight under the auspices of the Men's union.

In climate, in industries, and in educational facilities Connecticut is unsurpassed, he said. For every five boys who leaves the state, four return. His recent hunting trip in Florida served as a text for a talk on the benefits of the out of door life, developing and demanding integrity and honor in both physical and mental cleanliness. Getting a wrong start in life, he told the boys, is getting into the wrong niche, and can be remedied. Success, he said, comes from faithfulness to employers.

CHILDREN AS CAMOUFLAGE IN SHIPMENT OF WHISKEY

PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Four small Brunswick children alleged to have been used to camouflage a shipment of ten cases of whiskey from Boston, were brought to the city today in an expensive sedan, seized by federal prohibition agents. When they arrested Guy O. Gordon and Robert Kirkpatrick on the state highway near Saco after a chase from Wells.

Three boys and a girl, aged 8 to 12, children of the two men, were sent to their homes in a taxicab after being fed here. They did not seem to mind their unusual experience of doubling the road between Brunswick and Boston, a total of 100 mile, in 15 hours.

Beneath blankets on which the children were seated, the agents claimed to have uncovered the liquor. Gordon and Kirkpatrick were held in $1,000 bail for apperance next Tuesday.

TELEGRAM RECEIVED FROM MISSING MAN

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 16—(AP)—Mystery surrounding the disappearance yesterday of Eddie Conard, business manager of the A. G. Fields minstrel show, from the show car between Mobile and Pensacola, Fla., was believed by relatives here to be dispelled tonight when his home here received a telegram from him stating he had gone to New Orleans and was returning to Pensacola to join the show.

The telegram was received here after his wife, alarmed at his disappearance, had left for Pensacola to aid in the search for him.

AMPUTATE BOTH LEGS IN EFFORT TO SAVE BOY

GREENWICH, Conn., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Both legs were amputated at the knees today in an effort to save the life of 10 year old Nathan Wright, Jr., of this city, who was found half-frozen the morning of Dec. 7 in an automobile belonging to Phil Berber, parked in the rear of a paint shop.

The boy had run away from his home here the night of Dec. 4 When he was found it was necessary to cut away his shoes and stockings because of swelling. He was believed to be recovering, but suffered a relapse yesterday. He had run away before.

RECORD FLIGHT FROM CHICAGO TO NEW YORK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(AP)—A record flight from Chicago to New York was made today by transcontinental air mail pilots John F. Miletso and H. A. Chandler, who covered the 726 miles in four hours and 20 minutes flying time, clipping 14 minutes off the previous best service record. Their average speed was 167.8 miles and hour. Both flew Douglas planes wiht which the postal service is speeding up the air mail.

Guilty of Asking and Receiving a Bribe

District Attorney Kempley and His Assistant of San Diego, Cal., Convicted by Jury.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 16.—(AP)—District Attorney Chester C. Kempley and his chief assistant, C. Guy Sellick, were found guilty by a jury today of asking and receiving a bribe to misconduct a murder trial.

They were charged with accepting $40,000 from William R. Johnson of Chicago, to misconduct the trial of Thomas A. Johnson and Hugh McGovern, charged with the murder of George McMahon, McMahon's body, bearing gunshot and knife wounds, was found on a highway near here.

Agnes Keller, a convict in San Quentin penitentiary, was the principal witness against the attorneys. She testified that Kempley on his return from a trip to Chicago told her that $40,000 was ready for payment to him when Johnson and McGovern were acquitted. She testified that she acted as a go-between for William R. Johnson of Chicago, the alleged bribe-giver, and had paid $300 to Sellick and $100 or $200 to Kempley.

The jury found the officials guilty on two counts of bribery contained in the indictment on which they were tried.

The woman convict was found guilty on a charge of robbery here several months ago.

Kempley and his assistant announced, they would appeal. They were released on bond of $5,000 each.

At the November election Kempley was defeated for another term.

430 AUTO ACCIDENTS IN THE STATE LAST WEEK

HARTFORD, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Only three fatalities from automobile accidents were reported in the state during the week ending Dec. 13, according to the weekly report made by the department of motor vehicles.

The places where the accidents occured last week and the persons killed were as follows: Torrington, Joseph Nazu; Cheshire, Henry Perry; Darien, William Baird.

The total number of accidents during the week showed an increase over last year. There were 428 accidents in the state, 260 of which were in 14 cities, while during the corresponding week of 1925 there were 370 accidents of which 244 were in the same group of cities.

Hartford again reported the greatest number, 67, while New Haven took second place with 51 and Bridgeport third with 34. The totals in the other cities were as follows: New Britain 26; Waterbury 18; Stamford 13; Meriden 9; Greenwich 8; Norwich 7; Danbury 7; New London 5; Norwalk 4; Winsted 2; Middletown 1.

BROWNING WILL NEVER TRY TO ADOPT ANOTHER GIRL

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—"I shall never, never try to adopt another girl," Edward Browning said today in commenting on the suit of Mary Louis Spas against him on charges of attempted assault, imprisonment and death threats during the period she was his adopted daughter in 1925. Miss Spas asks $500,000.

"Never, I'm cured," continued the 52 year old real estate man who is also being sued by his child wife, Frances "Peaches" Heenan Browning for separation and alimony.

Of the charges of Mary Louise, he said:

"A parcel of lies. I don't believe this will ever come to trial, but I wish it would. I'd fight. She won't get a cent, not a red cent, while I live."

He showed reporters a photostatic copy of a letter signed by Mary Louise addressed "to the world" and saying she loved him and he was "the most honorable man on earth."

OLD SCHOOLHOUSE WAS SCENE OF LIQUOR RAID

WESTPORT, Conn., Dec. 16.—(AP)—The old Greene farms schoolhouse, once a part of the Bedford estate, was the scene of a liquor raid by state police today, in which John Kokofca and his wife, Mary, were placed under arrest. The building which was being used by Kokofca as a residence and small public house, is situated on Clapboard Hill road. The raid was conducted by Bernard Schully, acting as officer in charge of the state police barracks in Westport.

A five gallon still, a quantity of mash, and two gallons of "moonshine" liquor were confiscated in the raid.

REPORT OF MILITARY UPRISING IN PORTUGAL

LONDON, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Another military uprising is reported today from Portugal. Probably owing to the censorship no independent details have been received, but the Portuguese government has issued a statement to reassure the public mind.

It admits that some kind of subversive movement has occurred in the southern part of the country and announces that necessary military measures have been taken to insure public order.

Howling Blizzard Raged in Buffalo

During Heavy Snowfall the Wind Blew at the Rate of 30 to 50 Miles an Hour.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 16.—(AP)—A howling blizzard raged in Buffalo all day today.

The down-town section, which bore the brunt of the storm sweeping in off Lake Erie, was in semi-darkness most of the time.

Meanwhile in the outskirts of the city and in suburbs to the north the snow fell gently to a depth of eight to ten inches and 22 miles north of Niagara Falls no storm was experienced. Through the vagaries of the elements Buffalo proper was storm-bound while nearby communities escaped unscathed.

A fire which started in the Union Dock company's warehouse on the Blackwell canal, near South Michigan avenue, threatened the whole grain elevator district but was extinguished, despite the storm, when about $300,000 damage had been done. Most of the loss was due to the destruction of flour and feed stored in the warehouse.

Embers started numerous small fires across the canal but each was extinguished before much damage was done.

One man died of natural causes after struggling through the storm to work and several were treated in hospitals for frozen hands.

Trains as a rule maintained their schedules. Thousands of workers were late at places of employment as the storm slowed down trolley and automobile traffic.

Meteorologist Spencer termed the storm a real blizzard, such as is experienced in the Dakotas and Nebraska. It was caused by a strong southwest wind off the lake striking an extremely low temperature over the city. The wind blew at 30 to 50 miles an hour all day.

The snowfall brought the total precipitation for December to date up to 21 inches as compared with a normal fall of 17 inches for the whole month.

SWIMMER WILL STICK TO COAT OF BLACK AXLE GREASE

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Mrs Charlotte Moore Schoemmell of New York will not substitute a swimming suit for her customary coat of black axle grease in competing in the Catalina Island marathon off the California coast, her manager, George H. Maines, said today.

Taking cognisance of a Los Angeles story that Mrs. Schoemmell had agreed to wear a suit, Maines asserted that not only would she refuse to do so but said he had assurances from J. H. Patrick, representative of William Wrigley, sponsor of the $40,000 event, that no restrictions were contemplated on this score.

According to Maines, two other women contestants, Clarabelle Barret New York school teacher, and Eva Morrison, New England champion would be clad only in grease for the Catalina swim, scheduled January 15.

SAYBROOK MAN IS ONE OF FOUR UNDER ARREST

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Four men, one of whom, Kenneth Ferguson, 21, of New Brunswick, N. J., says he was until recently chauffeur for Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, one of the principals in the recent Hall-Mills murder trial, are under arrest here, two charged with larceny by short-change methods, and two with vagrancy. Ferguson and Albert Stevenson, 32, of New Brunswick, are said to have admitted the charge of larceny, John F. Gallagher, 38, of New Brunswick, and Don W. Messicks, 39, of Saybrook, Conn., are held for vagrancy. They are said to have operated in this city, Chicopee and West Springfield.

PLANE CRASHED INTO FACE OF MOUNTAIN

MEDFORD, Ore., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Patrick Patterson, piloting an air mail plane and flying low in a heavy fog, crashed into the face of Mount Ashland south of here today, wrecking the machine and causing serious injuries to himself. The airplane after striking the mountain, toppled on its side and Patterson was pinned down by the wreckage.

Wood-cutters extricated the pilot. They hauled him on a sled two miles to the highway and an ambulance brought him here to a hospital. His left hip was broken, left leg crushed and his right hand burned from contact with the exhaust pipe.

ANNUAL DIPLOMATIC DINNER AT WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Eight foreign ambassadors, 23 ministers and ten charge d'affaires, and their wives, were guests tonight of President and Mrs. Coolidge at the annual white house diplomatic dinner. Secretary Kellogg, Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee, and Chairman Porter of the house foreign affairs committee, also were invited.

SMITH UNDECIDED ABOUT ACCEPTING SEAT IN SENATE

Illinois Senator-Elect Has Arrived in Chicago For Conferences With Advisers and Friends—Has Been Appointed by Governor Small to Serve Out the Unexpired Term of the Late Senator McKinley—Senators of Both Parties Are Resentful Over the Appointment and Are Ready to Vote Against Seating Smith During the Present Short Session.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16—(AP)—Undecided, in view of today's adverse developments in the senate, whether to accept the appointment as United States senator from Illinois tendered him today by Governor Len Small, Frank L. Smith arrived in Chicago tonight to confer with advisers.

Smith was appointed to serve the less than three months which remain of the term of the late Senator William B. McKinley. He would have succeeded to the seat by election next March fourth.

Lacking any but newspaper information on the resolution offered today to the senate by Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, providing that the senatorial oath be not administered until the senate has considered the report of its campaign funds committee which developed large primary expenditures by Smith, the appointee planned first to inform himself of the attitude of the senate, and of today's developments.

He was met here by Allan Moore, republican national committeeman for Illinois, his campaign manager and closest counsellor.

Acceptance of the senatorship by Smith had been regarded as certain until tonight. A delay of several days in naming McKinley's successor was ascribed by friends of the senator-elect and the governor as to Smith's indecision about acceptance, and once the selection was made, its announcement was considered to carry with it the assumption that Smith had indicated to the governor his desire for the post.

The appointee said tonight, however, that he had neither accepted nor concluded whether to accept and that he would not make his decision until he had the advice of friends whom he came here to see.

REPUBLICANS IN SENATE AWAIT SMITH'S DECISION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16—(AP)—Pinning their last hope on the possibility that Senator-elect Frank L. Smith, of Illinois will not accept appointment from Governor Small to serve out the unexpired term of the late Senator McKinley, senate leaders settled down tonight in a nervous attitude of watchful waiting.

News of the appointment caused a great flurry in senate circles and the hope was openly expressed by leaders of all factions that Smith would refuse the tender.

As soon as the appointment became known, Chairman Reed called his special campaign expenditures investigating committee in session to pass on the report of the evidence bearing on the Smith case as gathered by the committee during the summer. The report later was presented to the senate but without conclusions or recommendations which Senator Reed explained would be submitted later.

"The present document is delivered to the senate chiefly because a number of senators have requested early information touching on the Illinois situation," he declared.

As soon as the senate met, Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, opened the attack on Smith by offering a resolution to prevent his taking the qualifying oath and to turn the whole case over to the Reed committee for recommendations The resolution went over for a day on motion of Senator Curtis, the republican leader, after Senator Watson, republican, Indiana, questioned the fairness of the resolution until Smith had accepted the appointment.

Senator Ashurst said he would call up the resolution tomorrow as he wished Smith to know the "feeling of the senate" before he accepted.

Both republican and democratic senators plainly were resentful over the appointment and some of those favoring his seating in the seventieth congress are ready to vote against him in the present short session for fear of letting loose the flood of debate over campaign expenditures and threatening a special session.

A report was circulated that before Mr. Smith took any action he would come to Washington to consult with senators.

"If he does that he will never take the appointment," declared Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire.

"I am very much disappointed," said Chairman Ernst, of the senate elections committee.

"He will never be seated," commented Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi.

"I will not break my back to seat him," declared Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania.

Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, went further than any by offering a prayer for the nation "because Smith was appointed and Fall and Doheny were acquitted."

With the explanation that the figures did not represent "the possible total expenditures on behalf of Frank L. Smith's candidacy," the special committee's report showed total primary campaign expenditures of $458,782, including personal expenditures by Smith of $258,547.

The committees apologised for its report on contributions, saying "so far as contributions are concerned your committee was unable to obtain a list o the contributors to the Smith campaign."

"It did state, however, that 92 per cent of the contributions to the Smith primary fund were made by "traction powers and public utility owners."

The report brought out that Samuel Insull, large public utilities owner, had contributed $125,000 to Smith, who was chairman of the Illinois commerce commission, which is empowered by law to fix rates and control the operation of public utilities in Illinois.

It is this contribution around which the senate fight centers.

FAMOUS CRIMINAL WAS CAPTURED IN BRIDGEPORT

STAMFORD, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Said to admit having been in jails and prisons on two continents, William B. Davis, alias E. W. Brewer, president of Brewer and company, Inc., of New York, Lillian William B. Bingling, nephew of the circus owner, and other names as circumstances demanded, was taken into custody here today about half an hour after a circular warning telegram from a New York detective agency reached the chamber of commerce.

"Davis" is said to be wanted in Trenton, Atlantic City, Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia and Chester, Pa., as well as in Camden, N. J., where he left a bank without waiting for the cash for a "certified" check which aroused the suspicions of a bank employe.

He is said to admit having been deported from England in 1919 following a bank swindle, being arrested in Toronto, in New York city, in San Francisco and serving a sentence in Elmira, N. Y., reformatory.

About half an hour after the warning telegram reached the secretary of the local chamber of commerce, "Davis" appeared with his story that as president of the big clinical manufacturing concern, Brewer and company, he wanted to start a factory in Stamford. The police were called at once.

A collection of checks from banks in various cities, together with a rubber-stamp outfit for "certifying" the checks, was found in his possession. Chambers of commerce are said to have been his media of introduction to banks in the various cities in which he has operated, his plan of bringing a new industry to the city serving as introduction to the chambers.

ARRESTED FOR MURDER OF MRS. SHULL AND HUSBAND

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 16.—(AP)—The state police announced today that Paul Schaeffer, wanted for the killing of George D. Shull, a Perry county farmer, and his wife, on their farm last week, has been arrested at Greensboro, N. C., where he was said to be visiting relatives.

Schaeffer is accused of killing Mrs. Shull in a barn and her husband in a field. Schaeffer then tried to kidnap their daughter, Mrs. Lester Kell, but she escaped from him when he had jumped out of a motor car to make some repairs after driving a short distance from the farm.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Fall and Doheny were acquitted.

The house took up the compromise alien property bill.

The senate passed the treasury-post office appropriation bill.

The treasury drafted a bill to legalize the manufacture of whiskey for medicinal use.

Senator Ashurst moved to bar Smith of Illinois, from the senate as a successor to McKinley.

ALIEN PROPERTY BILL DEBATED IN THE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Described both as a "fair" and a "miserable" compromise, the alien property bill was debated in the house today under a program calling for a vote on passage tomorrow.

Designed to settle claims of American and German nationals and to dispose of property held by the alien property custodian, the bill was declared by Representative Cox, democrat, Georgia, to reject the American policy of non-confiscation.

Chairman Green of the ways and means committee, which drafted the measure, defended it as a compromise approved by claimants as well as the entire committee. Other members of the committee, including Representatives Collier, democrat, Mississippi, and Hawley, republican, Oregon, supported the measure, while Representative Mills, republican, New York, asserted the United States had not confiscated the German property and that confiscation is not intended.

The legislative record concerning the property, Mills declared, clearly indicates that congress has held it merely as security for future payments by Germany.

Describing the proposal as "dishonest," and "a miserable compromise of principle," Mr Cox declared the committee was attempting to "wring" from the house approval of a bill of which the country must forever be ashamed."

ORGANIZING ICE COMPANY MERGER IN CONNECTICUT

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 16.—(AP)—New York interests who have been trying to organize a huge ice company merger in this state, today exercised their option on property owned by the late Harry W. Walker. The price paid for the Bridgeport companies is said to be about $1,500,000.

The companies involved are the Bridgeport Ice Delivery company, the Naugatuck Valley Ice company, the Berkshire Ice company, and the Sprague Ice company.

The sale includes all of the ice houses and ice ponds controlled by the estate of Harry W. Walker.

Today's transactions completed through the brokerage house of Dickmore and Co., of New York, but the names of the purchasers of the property were not made public.

Efforts are being made, it was said, to gain control of ice companies in Hartford and other cities of the state.

FOUR CHILDREN DRIVEN FROM HOME BY FIRE

ANDOVER, Conn., Dec. 16.— (AP) — Four children, the oldest ten, alone in a farmhouse about a mile from here, were driven into the cold tonight by a fire of unknown origin which destroyed their home. A fifth child, a boy of 12, at the head of the family while his father, John Bonkowsky, was at work in Hartford through the week and his mother in a Hartford hospital, was in the village when the fire started.

LITA GREY CHAPLIN TO SUE "CHARLIE" FOR DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 16—(AP)—A divorce court airing for the Chaplin marital troubles was promised today with the announcement by Lita Grey Chaplin through her attorney, George Beebe, that she would file suit against Charles Spencer Chaplin, screen comedian, within a few days.

Beebe said he was preparing the petition and that it might be ready tomorrow. He would not say on what grounds the divorce would be asked or what sum would be proposed as a property settlement. "All attempts to settle out of court the estrangement between Chaplin and Miss Grey have failed," Beebe said. "The only thing left for us is to file a suit for divorce."

Numerous hot exchanges between the comedian and his wife, who entrenched herself and two sons in the home of her grand parents after the separation, in which charges of cruelty and misconduct came from both sides, furnished material for speculations as to what the divorce complaint would contain.

Lloyd Wright, Chaplin's attorney, said the comedian's decision whether to file a cross complaint would depend wholly upon the allegations set forth in the wife's suit.

Mrs. Chaplin reiterated her determination to obtain custody of the two children, Charles Spencer, Jr., and Sydney Earle both under two years. Statements by Beebe at several stages of the negotiations between himself and Wright said that his client would demand that she be provided with the means to continue living in the "manner to which she was accustomed."

SOCIETY HAS MORE FUN AS ARISTOCRACY DECLINES

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Society is not so aristocratic as it once was but it's lots more fun, and the flapper is the one to thank for that, in the opinion of Bradley Martin, member of New York's oldest aristocracy.

"That gay, life-loving, forthright creature whom we call the flapper," he is quoted in an interview in the January issue of McClure's magazine, "is more honest in her attitude than her mother was and much more honest than her grandmother dared to be. For that reason, particularly, I approve of her."

TO OPPOSE EXTRADITION OF KENNETH G. ORMISTON

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Gov. F. W. Richardson today received a telegram from H. S. Martin, Chicago attorney, requesting an opportunity to oppose the granting of extradition papers for the return to California of Kenneth G. Ormiston, radio operator indicted in the Aimee Semple McPherson case.

No action was taken by the governor. District Attorney Asa Keyes of Los Angeles was notified.

CHARGES OF MONARCHIST CLIQUE IN GERMANY

BERLIN, Dec. 16—(AP)—Charges made in the reichstag today that a secret monarchist military clique is building up a huge illegal reserve army in Germany with munitions and airplanes hoarded in Germany and Russia tonight faced the bourgeoise coalition cabinet of Chancellor Marx.

Philip Scheidemann, head of the social democrats, whose accusations produced bedlam in the reichstag, demanded that the present cabinet be replaced by one in which every member was a republican.

He presented a motion of non-confidence in the government, but the fate of the cabinet remained in the balance when the reichstag adjourned until noon tomorrow without taking a vote.

Denouncing soviet Russia for giving moral, if not financial support to German militarists, he declared that as late as last September and October four ships landed at Stettin from Leningrad with munitions manufactured in Russia for a secret German army.

While the nationalists shouted: "Traitor! Blackguard! That's treason!" and Chancellor Marx, communist members and others denied the truth of the charges, Scheidemann cited names, places and figures which he said showed that Defense Minister Gessler was a "tool of the monarchistic junkers."

YANLE DRAMATIC CLUB ON CHRISTMAS TRIP

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 16—(AP)—Combining business with pleasure, the members of the cast of "Out o' Luck", offering of the Yale Dramatic association on this year's Christmas trip, left New Haven today on a trip which will include presentations at Cleveland, Milwaukee, Chicago, Indianapolis and Detroit and dances in honor of the party in each city.

The play to be presented was written by Tom Cushing, '03 from notes made during the St. Mihiel drive in September, 1918, and was first presented by the dramatic association last year. Nearly every episode is based upon actual happenings which came to the attention of the writer. The cast includes 16 male characters and one female, impersonated by Edward L. Mills, '28, besides supernumerary "German and American Soldiers."

CONVICTED PHYSICIAN DEFAULTED $15,000 BONDS

BOSTON, Dec. 16—(AP)—Dr. Thomas E. Walsh, found guilty a week ago of performing an illegal operation on Edith L. Greene, state ward, whose dismembered body was found in a cemetery here last July, today defaulted $15,000 bonds when he failed to appear for sentence. Judge Wilfred Gray issued a default warrant and district attorney told him that he thought he could find the physician.

MORE GIFTS FOR NEW ELKS' HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 16.—Among other gifts received by Willimantic lodge, No. 1311, B. P. O. E., other than three large mounted pictures and two bronze plaques received at the regular meeting Wednesday include an oil painting from Mrs. Susan T. Sullivan; four marble smoking stands from John T. Ashton and a valuable tree from Samuel Chesbro. A beautifully toned painting of the U. S. Frigate, Old Ironsides is also forthcoming from the recent Old Ironsides committee of the lodge. Exalted Ruler Clarence M. Mathieu has appointed the following members to act as a board of governors for the new home: For one year, John E. Brick, Charles A. Gates, Valentine L. Murphy; for two years, R. Ernest Melody; Joseph B. Riordan, James P. Mustard; for three years, Raymond A. Packer, Albert J. Fournier and Charles Downing.

At her late home, 27 Temple street, the funeral of Miss Elizabeth Desjardins was held Thursday morning with a high mass of requiem in St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. Rev. J. J. Papillon, the pastor, was celebrant. The choir of the church sang, with Mrs. Joseph F. Gaudreau at the organ. The body was placed in the receiving vault at St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Papillon read a committal prayer. The bearers were Leopold Beaulieu, Albertin Bonin, Arthur Cadotte, Florimond Jolie, Antonio Jolie and Henry Thiffeault.

A valuable rabbit hound owned by Mrs. Samuel Watrous of Columbia was killed by an automobile operated by an unknown driver on the highway early Wednesday evening. The body of the dog was not found in the road until about half an hour after the animal had disappeared from the yard. While mourning the loss of the hound, Mrs. Watrous is attempting to raise seven puppies born Dec. 2.

Delia Langlois of Hartford, formerly of this city, was taken to the Connecticut state farm for women in Niantic Thursday after committment by Judge Frank H. Foss at the police court session. The young woman was charged with non-support of her minor child which is now confined in St. Agnes' home, Hartford. She pleaded not guilty. First Selectman Ernest P. Chesbro testified that the accused had done practically nothing toward the support of the child. Miss Langlois has been in the toils of the law for some time on the charge mentioned. She was in police court some three months ago but the case was nolled at that time.

Mrs. Almira L. Robinson, 82, widow of James E. Robinson and a life-long resident of Scotland, died in St. Joseph's hospital Thursday morning. The deceased was born in the town of Scotland, April 3, 1843, a daughter of David D. and Almira E. Standish Wilson. Surviving her are two brothers, James D. Wilson and Byron E. Wilson of Windham; one sister, Mrs. Asthenia Stanton of South Windham, and several nieces and nephews.

Train No. 9, an electric bus and coach operated by the Central Vermonth railway, leaving New London, north bound, on week days at 5:30 a. m., and due in this city at 6:55 o'clock, fell victim to "dead" batteries Thursday morning and did not leave the terminal. A steam train, consisting of an engine, mail car and two passenger coaches was substituted, arriving here at 11:55 a. m. On this train about one half the amount of regular morning mail received in Willimantic and the New York newspapers was carried. Practically all of this delayed first class mail was delivered in the city during the afternoon.

All is not yet well with the restoration of the train service by the New Haven railroad between this city and Hartford for the benefit of commuters. Upon acquiring control of the bus line between the two cities, through the New England Transportation company, the "commuters' special" as it is sometimes called, was discontinued. This was so as to avoid a duplication of service over an identical route, according to the company. A petition, well weighted down with signatures, brought about a hearing before the state commissioners and the schedule over the rails was resumed but with a railroad bus coach instead of the train. Then another petition was presented to have the schedule advanced so that arrival in Hartford would not be any later than 8:30 o'clock or thereabouts. Now comes a third petition asking for the return of the regular steam train on the new proposed schedule. This petition likewise will carry a lengthy scroll well signed when presented before the proper authorities. The claim is that the commuters are generally dissatisfied with the accommodations offered in the coach. They want the steam train and they want it to arrive in Hartford so that they will have time enough to get to their places of employment.

"Health and Hygiene in Connecticut" was the topic of an interesting talk given by Dr. W. P. S. Keating, city health officer, at the weekly meeting of the Willimantic Exchange club held in the Nathan Hale hotel Wednesday evening. President Sherman P. Hollister was in charge. Dr. Keating described the work of the health department of the state. He was accorded a rising vote of thanks.

Officers of Eastern Star lodge, No. 44, F. and A. M., elected at the annual communication held Wednesday night are: Benjamin L. Larned, W. M.; John Phillips, S. W.; Edgar S. Butcher, J. W.; Charles F. Risedorf, treasurer; Harold J. Mason, secretary; J. S. Eaiman Hut, S. D.; C. E. Williams, J. D.; Theodore Crandall, E. S.; Norman Pultz, J. S.; Otto B. Robinson, chaplain; C. A. Taintor, marshal; Dwight E. Abel, organist. In his rejection as treasurer Mr. Risedorf passes the 33rd year mark of service in that position.

On the respective lawns of Alderman-at-large Aime J. Martineau on Pleasant street and Dr. Samuel J. Turcott on Jackson street are to be found individual Christmas trees, each 20 feet in height and gaily bedecked with electric light bulbs. The brilliantly lighted trees attract considerable attention.

Engine company No. 1 responded to two still alarms for chimney fires Wednesday night, the first being at 38 Oak street in the residence owned by Zephir Bergeron and occupied by Edward Guay. Three gallons of chemicals were used. The second call was from 74 Spring street in the building used by the A. M. E. Zion church. Six gallons of chemicals were used in this instance.

Replacing the Bear

Whether it is possible to build a steel vessel that can withstand the pressure of ice packs in the Arctic ocean sufficiently to replace the cutter Bear is a lively topic among coast guard men on the Pacific this winter. The Bear, wintering in San Francisco after her 97th summer cruise into the Alaskan arctic in the coast guard, constructed of thick oak in Greenock, Scotland in 1874. With $925,000 appropriated by congress, it has been proposed to replace the Bear, following next summer's cruise, with a twin-propelled steel vessel. The doubters declare no steel vessel can stand heavy ice pressure because the metal will first bend and then break. They also predict that the ice will quickly rip off one or both of the exposed twin propellers.

MYSTIC

MRS. FREDERICK MOSER DIES AT THE AGE OF 93

Mrs. Caroline Pendleton Moser, 93, died at her home, 47 High street Wednesday morning at 8.20, after a long illness. Mrs. Moser was born in Stonington borough, July 19, 1833 the fifth child of Johnathan and Caroline Pendleton. She grew up there, uniting with the Congregational church when young. May 5, 1858 was united in marriage with Frederick Moser, of Mystic by Rev. William Clift, and came to Mystic to live, on the East Side, where later Mr. Moser built a house on East Main street. Two sons were born to them, Frederic E. and Louis A. Moser. Mrs. Moser transferred her membership to the Congregational church here where she was a regular attendant and an active member until failing health prevented. After death of her husband and the marriage of her sons, she sold her home on the East Side and came to live with her son at whose home she died. Seven years ago she fell and was never able to walk again. She always sat by the window in her room and would wave her hand to friends as they passed by. She possessed an unusually cheerful and pleasant disposition and loved to have callers who were always greeted with great cordiality. She has been lovingly tended by her son and his wife and the last few months since she has been confined to the bed a nurse has cared for her. She leaves her son Frederick E. Moser and two grandchildren, Theodore P. and Carolyn Moser of Hartford, children of her son Louis A. Moser, who died following a surgical operation in May, 1912. Misses Jennie, Lizzie, and Louise Trumbull of Stonington are her nieces.

LEONARD BRIDGE

Passersby over Goshen Hill Sunday might have thought by the appearance of the snow-covered lawn in front of the home of William T. Curry, where automobiles, carriages and sleighs divided honors, that the old system of house meetings was being revived. But this gathering was of a somewhat different nature, being the getting together of a number of residents of Lebanon, Colchester and nearby towns who are forming a new council of the Royal Arcanum. They were met by Dr. Clarence E. Simonds of Willimantic, who examined the applicants, he being called in owing to the illness of Dr. E. J. Howland of Colchester, the local examiner. The local council should be instituted early in January and will be an additional factor in the neighborhood activities. The order celebrates its fiftieth anniversary next June by a cross-country trip to the Pacific coast. It was organized at Boston in June, 1877.

Henry Brown was taken to the hospital Tuesday afternoon in the hospital ambulance.

Leroy Geer saw a large snowy owl near the Geer home recently.

James A. Thomas and Clarence Thomas were successful in shooting two large red foxes Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Geer and Miss Myra C. Geer spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Theron Geer at Middletown. Miss Geer remained for a longer visit.

EKONK

(STERLING HILL)

The community was shocked and grieved at the tragic death of Mrs Sayles. She resided on Sterling Hill before going to Westerly to live, a few months ago. She was a kind and obliging neighbor and beloved by all who knew her. The bereaved family has received many expressions of sympathy from a large circle of friends.

The snow still lingers and in some places makes bad traveling.

Mrs. George Tanner, Mrs. Phebe Gallup, Warren Tanner and Mrs. Emma Wilcox motored to Norwich Monday and called on Luther Tanner, at Backus hospital. They found him slightly improved.

There was no service at Ekonk church Sunday.

Edwin Gallup and family attended church on Sterling Hill.

Mrs. Frank Fillmore and two children of Providence visited Mrs. Adelbert Gallup Tuesday and attended the church supper in the evening.

Mrs. Mary Sayles and sons Howard and Franklyn have gone to Westerly to stay with Joseph Sayles and help care for the two children. They are much missed in the community.

Mrs. Adella Walker is suffering with rheumatism.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Frink of New London were callers here Tuesday.

MOSCOW SCOFFS AT NEW "CALENDAR OF SAINTS"

Despite their scoffing at superstitution, which in the communist creed includes the Christian religion, Moscow party newspapers are openly sarcastic about the northwest region industrial bureau, whose authorship of a new "calendar of saints" has just been discovered. Russian custom is to christen children according to the names of saints on a clarendar, each child thus having two days each year for presents—a birthday and a name day. The new compendium explains the weird names that are being fastened on the new Russian generation.

Among the 365 selections, with their English meanings, are; Atheos, atheist; Taika, central committe of all union communist party, bolshevik; Yedinstvo, front of uniformity; Agitella, propaganda; Bresta, Brest-Litovsk treaty; Solidar, solidarity of workers; Sovnarkom, council of people's commissars of the U. S. S. R.; Decretima, official decree; Mettalin; metal trust; Textilin, textile trust; Sapburo, northwest regional industrial bureau; Collectiva, collective movement. Bebeline, Lassaline, Plekhan, Ustrus, Parada and many others are given after historical communist or socialist leaders.

New Musical Instrumem

A Russian musician, S. Gliev, has invented a new musical instrument which, he hopes, will replace upright and grand pianos. The instrument, which has an ordinary keyboard, is in the form of a box one yard wide and weighing only eight pounds. The usual strings are replaced by a steel comb, and the little hammers by tiny pinchers which touch upon the teeth of the combs. Russian composers and musicians, including Ippolitev-Ivanov and Avrapek, who have played the instrument at the Moscow Conservatory of Music, testify that it is capable of replacing existing tone and better intonations than the ordinary pianos. The new instrument has been named Pinchetone.

Glut of Tobacco

Bulgaria is suffering from a glut of tobacco. In the years immediately following the World war little tobacco was grown, but in 1920 the peasants realized that they could cultivate it more easily and at less cost than cereals. Production increased to an enormous degree and, as Greece and Turkey were at war and produced little, the Bulgarian weed found a ready market in Europe. All the big export firms made large profits and production kept on increasing. Now the slump has set in. Bulgarian tobacco being considered too dear, and there are vast stocks unsold. Efforts are being made by the government to barter tobacco for machinery, airplanes and general manufactures. But in many places the peasants have decided to return to cereal production.

Secret of Scent

Scent is still in many respects an unsolved mystery. We know that almost every object gives out tiny particles which produce the sensation of scent. But the size of these particles is minute beyond belief, for a grain of musk will scent a drawer for a generation without losing any weight. Again, why is it that on one day a fox leaves a scent which hounds can follow at full speed, while on the next there is so little that the pack is utterly at fault? Scent does not depend upon the weather—that much we know.

Damage by Termites

Recently a group of employes of a telephone company was criticised for burning piles of poles which seemed to be in good condition. It was explained that the poles were honeycombed with tunnels made by termites and that only by burning could the pests be exterminated. The damage done by termites on telephone and telegraph poles in the United States in the last few years would aggregate millions of dollars. The so-called white ant, or termite, constitutes a greater menace than is generally known. It causes damage by eating out the interior of beams and floors of old houses, of telephone and telegraph poles, by destroying furniture and by boring through stored books and other articles. The tunnels usually run with the grain of the wood. The presence of the pest often is not suspected until only the shells of the articles remain. While the termite is generally known as the white ant it is not an ant or akin to the ant. It belongs to the order Isoptera and while it has a superficial resemblance to the ant it is different in structure. There are many species of termites in the tropics whereas they constitute a much greater menace than in the temperate zones. In the United States only a few species exist. The termites live in colonies and build hills and nests. They have classes in the social order, workers, soldiers queens and males. The workers have large heads and strong jaws, which inflict damage on wooden structures. The soldiers guard them as well as the home itself.

DANIELSON

HOTEL AT DAYVILLE HAS CHANGED HANDS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 16—Sale by William Campbell of the Dayville hotel property to Harry Evergates of Danielson is announced. Mr. Evergates said Thursday that for the winter season it will be in charge of Walter Murphy, who has previously managed the house, and in the spring many alterations to the property will be made.

Mr. Evergates contemplates renovating the entire interior of the structure and otherwise giving it such attention as will assure Dayville of better hotel accommodations than it has known in a generation.

The Hotel for years was in the Kennedy family and was conducted for a long period by Frank S. Kennedy, still resident in Dayville, who sold it some years ago to William Campbell of Dayville. In the past several years it has been under different managements.

This hotel has been established a great many years and at one time was known far and wide and attracted much patronage from commercial travelers. It is located in the very center of Dayville, and Mr. Evergates feels that it can be made a profitable institutions.

On the subject of hotels in this town it may be mentioned that the project of giving Danielson a new and modern hostelry has not been abandoned. This is a project that is getting serious condition. William S. Brown, owner of the Attawaugan hotel, has had various offers for the site of the house which is centrally located, from persons interested in building a hotel here. Nothing of these offers have been fully satisfactory to Mr. Brown, who cherishes the ambition of building on his own account and may eventually do so.

The prophecy of the financial success of a new hotel here is based on the fact that an immense volume of motor traffic now rolls through Danielson over trunk line highways that radiate north and south, east and west out of this community. It is believed that this traffic would be one important factor in supplying business for a new hotel, and there are many other factors promising additional business. Danielson actually needs a modern hotel. In due time it will have it.

Sidney P. Marland is to be interlocutor for a minstrel that is to be presented in Putnam in February under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers association and Elisabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R., of that city.

Local stockholders of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company are being told in circulars that have come to them all about the fight that is being made for control of the giant corporation. These circulars are signed by F. A. Sieberling, H. B. Manton and R. L. Robinson, a majority of the voting trustees under the common stock voting trust.

The circular says in part: "On October 23, 1926, the president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company sent to you a communication which states that a proposed plan of refinancing is being blocked by a majority of the trustees under the common stock voting trust agreement. This charge requires a reply.

Mr. Litchfield's letter, he says, you urged you to have nothing to do with any committees of stockholders. That you may better decide what is to your interest, we are enclosing herein a copy of the petition filed by nine stockholders in the common pleas court of Summit county, Ohio. The committees are composed of men of the highest standing in the business world, and you may communicate with them if you so desire."

The circular goes on to say that many persons have felt that the plan of reorganization in 1921, was needlessly severe. It cost the company, directly and indirectly $20,000,000 in addition to the 275,000 shares of common stock, which represented one-third of the equity of the common stockholders in the company. This stock was acquired by financiers as a bonus. However, it is not the object of this communication to discuss the merits or demerits of the 1921 reorganization.

Our criticism is directed against New York brokers and the bankers affiliated with them, and we are criticising them because we believe the finances of the company have been too frequently managed in their interest as distinguished from the interests of the stockholders of the company.

If the proposed plan of financing should be approved, it will mean that $64,000,000 of securities will be sold to these same financial interests at prices to be fixed by the board of directors, a majority of which is under their control. This selling to themselves must stop if the company is to be profitable to the stockholders.

There is much more of the argument, all of which becomes of special interest to Killingly, for the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company has a manufacturing plant employing several hundred people in this town as well as many stockholders.

These stockholders, it may be said, are as a whole, sitting back and watching the fight for control of the corporation. They are getting dividends on their stock holdings, which look very good to them, nowadays with the Goodyear company making such a remarkable success in a world wide business enterprise. Control of the company is not a matter that holds great personal interest for any of them.

As strange a tale as has come to ear in many a day is that of a dog that crashed through a French window at a Broad street home one evening this week and leaped to the very center of a dinner table around which a party was assembled for a complacent hour, indulging in the evening meal.

Consternation immediately followed the terrifying appearance of the dog. It was later determined that the dog, a valuable animal owned here, had suffered some sort of fit and, running blindly, had crashed through the window and onto the table before falling exhausted. The animal later was returned to his owner.

The pressure of Christmas business is increasing daily at the Danielson postoffice. While the great rush of gifts is not as yet underway, the holiday season is productive of much other business. Postmaster Keech again advised on Thursday that early mailing is an essential to prompt delivery of Christmas gifts. The mails will be more crowded than ever before this year and more difficult to handle.

Men's strap watches from $16 up. Bracelet watches $12.50 to $65. Gents' pocket watches $12 to $75. Latest designs and models. Henry W. Chapin, Jeweler, 7 Center street, Danielson.—adv.

Call in and inspect our very complete line of Christmas gift articles. No obligations. If you do not buy you will receive a smile just the same. Henry W. Chapin, Jeweler, 7 Center street, Danielson.—adv.

There will be a Christmas sermon and special Christmas music by the choir next Sunday morning in the Brooklyn Congregational church. The opening anthem is to be There Are Shepherds. The soloists are to be Mrs. E. Stone and Mrs. Amos Livsey. Mrs. Stone will also sing a solo entitled The Star of Bethlehem. After the sermon the choir will sing the anthem The Birthday of a King. Amos Livsey will have the solo part.

Thursday afternoon at the undertaking rooms of A. F. Wood a funeral service for Sanford D. Pratt was conducted by Rev. Roger C. Stimson of the Methodist Episcopal church. The attendance included relatives and friends from various sections of Killingly and other eastern Connecticut communities. During the service Mrs. Harold B. Atwood sang Asleep in Jesus, and There is a Calm. The bearers were Robert Smith, Fred Smith, John Chase, Henry Chase, Henry E. Anderson and Herbert Lyman. Burial was in Westfield cemetery.

Mrs. Mildred L. Gallup, 37, wife of Rev. A. E. Gallup, pastor of the Danielson Nazarene church, died Thursday afternoon at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, where she was taken Tuesday evening to undergo a major surgical operation. The operation was successful, but Mrs. Gallup's general condition was such that she did not rally as had been hoped. Her death came as a decided shock to the members of the family and of the church, all of whom anticipated her recovery. The body was brought here late in the afternoon by Undertaker A. F. Wood. Mrs. Gallup leaves her husband and four children, three daughters and a son, the youngest three and a half years of age. Mrs. Gallup had not been in the best of health for the past two years, but her condition was not regarded as serious as it proved to be.

The formal opening of the new gymnasium of Killingly high school is set for New Year's night. At that time the K. H. S. basketball team will line up against an alumni association team that is being organized by Theodore Reeves, one of the classy members of the Danielson town team. Following the game, which is expected to bring not only practically all of the student body of the school together; but also many members of the alumni, there is to be a dance.

A rehearsal is scheduled at the Baptist church for Sunday afternoon of those of the chorus and cast of The Other Wise Man, a pageant that is to be presented on Sunday evening December 26 at the Baptist church by members of the Danielson Federation of Churches. This pageant is by Henry Van Dyke and has been dramatized for presentation in Danielson by Rev. C. J. Armstrong, pastor of the Danielson Baptist church. Thomas Day will have the part of Artaban, The Other Wise Man. Miss Marjorie L. Gaffney is coaching the cast. A quarter of the Methodist church is to assist in the presentation.

Miss Gaffney has the assistance of Miss Grace Stanton, Miss Emma F. Pilling, Mrs. J. W. Gallup, Ralph Bowen in various phases of the presentation. Special attention is being given to the music, the scenic and lighting effects.

One continues to hear about Arctic owls. They seem to be in this territory in great numbers. Woodchoppers tell of seeing them, as do other frequenters of forest lands.

Near zero temperature Thursday evening banned about every one from the streets of Danielson after business was done for the day.

Coasters were out again in force Thursday afternoon, notwithstanding the extreme cold weather that came unexpectedly after the light snowstorm of the night before.

LISBON

Because of having a severe cold, Rev. W. J. Reynolds was unable to preach Sunday. The pulpit was supplied by Howard Bushwell of Versailles who chose for his text, "I know that whereas I was blind, I would see."

Alfred Kennedy spent the week end with his parents, returning Sunday night to Newton, N. J., where he is employed.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Burnham and daughter, Marian of Baltonville, were callers Sunday at R. R. Barber's.

Miss Scarpa who taught last year at the Brick school has been engaged to teach the upper grades at the Learned school.

The Newent Ladies' Aid society was delightfully entertained Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. James B. Palmer, at Round Hill farm. The house which during the past few years has been fitted with the modern conveniences of a city home, is furnished almost entirely with antiques, making a veritable museum, which all guests enjoy seeing. Not the least of the attractions is the ribbon room, which is decorated with premium ribbons and loving cups and medals from the many fairs where Round Hill stock has been exhibited in years past.

A little truth goes a long way—if it isn't stretched.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM RED CROSS ELECTS OFFICERS FOR 1927

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 16—The following officers and members of the executive committee were elected at the annual meeting of the Putnam chapter, American Red Cross: Chairman, George W. Baker vice-chairman, Alexander Gilman secretary, Edith C. Bowen; treasurer, Emma M. Roberts; executive committee, Clarence E. Pierce, Charles Richard, Miss Katherine Byrne, Mrs. E. C. Morse, Miss Ellen Wheelock, Mrs. C. E. Richardson, Mrs. J. A. P. Gagne, J. J. Dupre, all of Putnam; Miss Harriet Lewis, Thompson; Mrs. Dyer S. Elliott, North Grosvenordale; Mrs. S. B. Overlock, Pomfret; Mrs. George M. Sampson, Woodstock.

A profitable year was shown by the reports of the secretary, treasurer, committees and nurse. The Red Cross nurse, Mrs. M. D. Torrey has had many calls for baby clothes which she has not been able to supply and any gifts of this nature will be much appreciated and will be called for if they cannot be delivered at the Red Cross rooms.

The executive committee made the following appointments: Publicity agent, Arthur S. Macdonald nursing committee, Mrs. E. C. Morse, Miss Ellen Wheelock, Mrs. A. V. Frost, Mrs. M. Sampson, Miss Jennie Willis and Miss Charlotte Manning.

News has been received in Putnam of the death of Cahill J. Meehan, formerly of this city, at a hospital in New York city following an operation for appendicitis. Mr. Meehan was foreman of the composing room of the Windham County Observer from 1913 to 1917. He resigned to accept a position under Thomas J. Corcoran, agent at the French River Textile mills in Mechanicsville. From 1923 to 1925 he was in Boston, having returned to the printing business, and had been in New York for about a year. He was 43 years old and is survived by a wife and two children, a daughter, Nancy, and a son, Edward.

Members of the Masonic club and their families are to be entertained at the Masonic clubhouse on Friday evening of this week by Prof. H. V. Barril an expert magician. Refreshments will be served in the banquet hall.

In the third contest in the billiard and card tournament between the Elks club and the Masonic club, the members of the Elks still retain their supremacy, although the Masons made a better showing than in the two previous matches. The score for the evening was 14 to 8. On the three nights playing the score stands: Elks club 41, Masonic club 17. Because of the interest that is being taken in the tournament the committee has decided to play on Monday evening, December 20, at the Masonic club rooms.

The score of this week's play was as follows, the names of the Elks club players being given first:

Bid whist—Gagne and Dupre won from Thurston and Arnold. Brodeur and Robbilliard won from Duffy and Shann. Wheatley and Frazier lost to Merriam and Baldwin. Migneault and Bulger won from Shaw and King. Verdaulme and Murray won from Talbot and Sharpe. Chadwick and Gallant lost to Miner and Brousseau. Champlin and Mansfield won from Peterson and Moss. Nelson and Cotter won from Minor and Sharmpn.

Auction bridge—Lewis and Milot won from Geissler and Morse. Wheelock and Girard won from Diamond and Holden. Vaughn and W. Averill lost to Wheaton and Perry.

Cribbage—Rafferty and Rawley lost to Wheaton and Watson. Tetreault and Lizotte lost to Marcy and deCoudres. Kemp and Richard lost to Alpert and Twigg.

Pinochle—Cavanaugh and Barth won from Diamond and Sherman.

Billiards—Rich won from Sherman. Rich won from Padgett. Gagne won from Holden.

Pool—Hannifan won from Nichols. Andrews won from Mellor. Nelson lost to Miron. Charron won from Sharpe.

At checkers Stanton of the Masons has a lead of one game over Warren of the Elks with two games more to be played. Perry and Geissler will also play their contest game of checkers this week.

At the meeting of the Jessamine chapter No. 53, Order of the Eastern Star, the following officers were installed: Worthy matron, Susan W. Burt; worthy patron, James H. McCulloch; assistant worthy matron, Grace D. Bruce; secretary, Emma M. Roberts; treasurer, Anna C. Levitt; Adah, Ruth W. Burton; Ruth, Louise D. Loomis; Esther, Pearl B. Wheaton; Martha, Janet K. Smith; Electra, Helen P. Holden; chaplain, Isabelle R. Tefft; marshall, Margaret McCulloch; organist, Emma L. Phillips; warder, Gladys W. Benoit; sentinel, Walter N. Phillips. The installing officer was Lena J. Whipple, past worthy matron and Hattie E. Watson as marshall. Refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

At the Parent-Teachers meeting, held at the high school hall, Dr. Willard Knowlton, of the contagious disease department of the state board of health delivered a talk illustrated by stereopticon views on the relation of public health and schools. He pointed out the advantages of prophylaxis in the guarding against the spread of diphtheria. The pupils of the sixth grade of the Israel Putnam school gave a playlet entitled "The Road to Health" under the direction of their teacher, Miss Etta Whiting.

There were visitors from surrounding towns, members of the Parent-Teachers associations.

Dr. Knowlton spoke before the pupils of the high school in the afternoon regarding the Schick test and toxin-antoxin inoculation against diphtheria and urged the children to take advantage of the free service which is soon to be started in the school of Putnam.

Congressman Freeman has made his recommendations for appointments to the naval academy at Annapolis and Asa Robert Scranton of South Woodstock has been named as the first candidate. Young Scranton is 20 years old and is a graduate of the Woodstock academy. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Scranton, Jr. He is to take his examinations in February.

Rehearsals for the Christmas pageant which is to be given by the young people of the Second Congregational church on December 26, are to be held this (Friday) afternoon. The following parts have been assigned: Mary, Edna Kent; Joseph, Roswell Wheaton; the Three Wise Men are Harry Thayer, Kenneth Rawley, James R. Tatem, Jr.; the shepherds, Junior Jones, Harry Wheaton, Henry Moesher, Myron Perry, Frederick Franklin and Page Jenkins.

The big Christmas tree is being put up in Union square under the auspices of the Putnam Rotary club. This was one of the best features that Putnam enjoyed last year and erection now is welcome news to every one. The preliminary arrangements for the community tree celebration are going forward and the committee in charge hope to make it a big event. The committee in charge of the celebration speaks for itself and is composed of Ray C. Borworth, chairman and William E. Wheaton, Alexander Gilman, Karl T. Phillips, Ralph C. Booth and L. Edwin Hill.

The first rehearsal for the carol singing will be held tonight (Friday) at the Second Congregational church and will be under the leadership of C. Dwight Sharpe.

Announcement has been made of the approaching marriage of Dr. Anthony Lapalme of North Grosvenordale to Miss Margaret Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Price of Southbridge. Dr. Lapalme has been practising medicine at North Grosvenordale since the death of Dr. Emil Roche more than a year ago. He is a graduate of Bartlett high school, and after graduating from medical school was connected with St. Vincent hospital at Worcester as a member of its staff. Miss Price is a graduate of the Mary Wells high school at Southbridge and received her diploma as a graduate nurse of St. Vincent hospital in Worcester in 1925.

STONINGTON

At the W. R. C. meeting the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. I. F. Gavitt, senior vice president, Mrs. Henry Hall; junior vice president, Miss Mary McGrath; treasurer, Mrs. E. W. Northup; chaplain, Mrs. Luella Gager; conductress, Miss Rose D'Anice; guard, Mrs. John Powers. At the next meeting the officers will be installed.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Ryan have returned from a brief visit in Providence.

Mrs. Thomas Wilkinson was in Westerly Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Edward Johnson was among visitors in Westerly Wednesday.

The Mistuxet club is planning a house warming, in their newly rented quarters, also at the same time a turkey dinner will be served, it being the 35th anniversary of the club. It will be held Jan. 24 and several guests have been invited, making with the members about 65 to be present.

At the annual meeting of Asylum lodge, No. 57, F. and A. M., of Stonington, Tuesday evening, the officers elected and installed were: Worthy master, Edwin R. Johnson; senior warden, Burrows B. Perry; junior warden, Alvah H. Lewis; treasurer, Frank R. Tracy; secretary, Allen C. Slade; senior deacon, William C. Brown; junior deacon, John B. Bindloss; senior steward, J. JEWETT CITY

DANIELSON AND MOOSUP VISITORS AT SERVICES

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 16.—Fifty-three persons from Danielson and Moosup attended the evangelistic services at the Congregational church Thursday evening. They took an active part in the testimony meeting which followed Dr. Rees' searching talk. Mrs. Rees and Mrs. Stone of Brooklyn sang a duet. After the service, the visitors were served refreshments in the vestry, during a real neighborly visit. Friday night is Sunday school night, each Sunday school having a part in the service. In the afternoon, the children will attend an illustrated talk in the vestry. Sunday afternoon's topic for the men's meeting is Starting Revelations in Jewett City.

It is understood that a petition is being circulated in favor of a bus line between Jewett City and Voluntown. Between 80 and 100 people go over that line night and morning and such a line would accommodate Pachaug as well.

CHRISTMAS GREENS

The New England Wild Flower Preservation society is engaged in the work indicated by its name. There is unquestionably much opportunity for directing the attention of people to the actual conditions which exist regarding the wild flowers and through such information get much thoughtful consideration when the opportunity presents. Ordinarily little thought is given to the preservation of wild flowers beyond the possibility of transferring them from the locality where they are found to a flower garden. The idea that the picking of them in any quantity really tends to their elimination is about the last thing imagined. There are some which could stand much greater raids on the part of the public but others are getting so scarce that their protection is needed.

Just at this time the society is devoting its efforts to the use and abuse of Christmas greens. Recognition is given to the pretty custom of decorations at this season but it is believed that it should be kept within the bounds of moderation, that there should be no outside decorations and that no holly, laurel or ground pine should be used but artificial decorations be employed if possible.

The society points out, and it is of course obvious, that it takes quantities of laurel and ground pine for outdoor decorations and the winding of electric light poles with garlands of these two plants, and that "the laurel which has already been cut in June for its flowers suffers further depredations for Christmas which it can ill support."

When the demand gets to the point that it exceeds the supply it is time to practice conservation. The society's effort is to prevent, before it is too late, the day when there will be little or none of the Christmas greenery available and to check the vast amounts of waste which always accompanies its use. Until the time comes that these greens are cultivated even at Christmas trees are it will be well to give heed to the society's suggestions and give a little thought to what it means when unrestricted raids are made upon the Christmas greeners, even when the right to do so has been obtained. Use without abuse is what the society is aiming at.

PINCHOT AND VARE

Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania is much opposed to Congressman Vare. He is not only anxious to see him kept out of his seat in the house but he believes a nationwide campaign should be inaugurated against his methods. Speaking to the state grange he asked: "Do you want the intensity of this great commonwealth with its 9,000,000 people to be at the mercy of a man who stands for what Vare does?"

Governor Pinchot doesn't say that he is sore because he lost his campaign for the senatorship. He didn't tell the members of the grange that he had been warned that Vare would be elected if he (Pinchot) continued in the hopeless campaign efforts and he didn't direct attention to the fact that but for the way in which he made a three cornered fight Vare would have been defeated in the primary.

He didn't tell those things because it would have revealed the real cause for Vare's election, a fact which is perhaps as well known to the people of Pennsylvania that it doesn't need repeating to them. Whatever the people of the Keystone state may think of Vare and his methods it is certain that they must also have their opinions concerning Governor Pinchot and the manner in which he forced Vare upon them as a congressman. It was through his blind, persistent effort to further his own ego that Governor Pinchot accomplished the defeat of Senator Pepper, but in doing that he pushed Vare upon the state, was told that his action would cause that very thing and now that the prophecy has proved true he is raising a great howl against Vare.

If Pinchot hadn't been so greedy and had accepted sound advice when given him he could have prevented the very thing which he is ranting against now. Having played the part he did in aiding Vare indirectly, he is likely to get little sympathy in his latest action. He is starting too late to do something which might easily have been accomplished during the primary campaign. Personal ambition blinded his judgment at the critical time and now he is spending his time fuming and fussing over spilt milk after kicking over the milk bottle.

THE SMITH CASE

Senator-elect Smith of Illinois would under most circumstances be the logical man to name to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator McKinley of that state. Under present conditions he is not and it was because of that that it has been proposed that the governor of Illinois name someone else for the remainder of this session.

When Senator-elect Smith comes to take his seat, whether it is for the term for which he was elected, or for the rest of this term, there will be a fight against him because of conditions in Illinois during the campaign. He is ready to face them and would like to do so now. He is not anxious to delay the fight, since this short session of congress has more business than it can tend to already and it is desired to avoid the contest over his seat and devote attention to the enactment of necessary business. For the interruption of the business of such a fight could easily upset the schedule to such an extent that even the appropriation bills would fail of enactment and that would mean the calling of a special session of the 70th congress which it is desired and intended to prevent.

Otherwise the fight against Smith might as well come now as at any other time. The purpose of the delay is to give the present congress a chance to clean up its affairs and the reasoning must be regarded as good, but the Illinois governor refused to see the importance of giving consideration to the congressional situation as pointed out by the leaders. He was told plainly enough what the situation was and how undesirable conditions could be avoided by turning aside trouble which has no place before this congress, but which could and probably would be as welcome now as at any other time if congress had the time to devote to it.

What may seem to some as dictation to the Illinois governor, and probably will be pointed out as such by the opponents, had its justification in the limited time under which this congress must do its work. It is not surprising that it should not want to have thrown upon it what time will not permit and what really belongs to the next congress. The defiance of the Illinois governor leaves the decision entirely with Senator-elect Smith as to whether to accept or reject the appointment.

THE ZONING ORDINANCE

In keeping with action which has been taken in many other cities and in accord with the authority extended under a law passed by the last general assembly the common council committee on zoning has presented an ordinance to govern zoning in Norwich, and a map setting forth the respective districts into which the city has been divided.

Action of the ordinance will depend upon the result of the hearing which is to be held next month, but previous to that time it should be the careful consideration of the entire citizen body for the purpose of learning just what is meant by it and with the idea of directing attention to defects or injustices.

Such regulations as are set forth are intended for the future and in this direction Norwich stands in need of just such a step quite as much as other cities. The height of buildings have not as yet been the cause of objections but the invasion of residential districts by business and the maintenance of undesirable conditions have emphasized the need of giving to the city the benefit of zoning.

The matter is one, even now, that the proposed ordinance has been presented, which calls for careful study. There will be an opportunity for those who desire to not only express their views but to obtain information on points about which they are uncertain, especially as to the various applications of the ordinance when it comes up for a hearing in January. It is for the purpose of giving the citizens a chance to express themselves that the hearing is set and it is an opportunity that should be improved by all that any is any way concerned. The desire should be for the best possible ordinance to meet our requirements.

THE FALL-DOHENY VERDICT

The verdict in the case against Albert B. Fall and Edward L. Doheny acquitting them on the conspiracy charge will undoubtedly be received with surprise. Whether it was figured from the evidence, or otherwise, that there would be a conviction or a disagreement, the jury has declared that whatever may have been indicated a conspiracy was not proved.

The verdict does not dispose of the other charges against these men or all the oil cases. It is not to be presumed that they will be treated as if all cases hinged on this verdict.

In the case which has been tried the whole affair has revolved about one questionable conduct of a member of a president's cabinet, the twists and turns in which he figured preliminary to the oil lease and especially the loan of $100,000 which he obtained from the man to whom the lease was eventually given. It was entirely possible that all was above board but there was a combination of circumstances that could not be reconciled. Suspicion was inevitable, and it is probable that even though the government was unable to present such testimony as to convince the jury that there was a conspiracy it will continue to exist.

The trial has brought to light acts which are not likely to be repeated by others in similar positions even though conviction has not been obtained. The bar of public opinion does not always synchronize with the bar of justice. The verdict is however in accord with the persistent claims which have been maintained by the defendants.

LIGHT HOUSEKEEPING

Mary Le Due was a little hurried out of Little Champlain street in the city of Quebec. She carried a worn, imitation alligator skin case in her right hand, a black, greased bundle in her left, and lost no lingering glances on the musty street as she made her way hastily to the pier row.

For 20 years now she had looked for Joe Frenchy to make a home for her, and for 20 years Joe had sailed until tomorrow. Finally word had come to Mary through Cadet Gautier of the Yonge, a coast schooner, that Joe was planning their home in Nova Scotia and would she come with the captain on his return trip.

The loose cobble-stones in the dingy street turned to berry tides lapping on rocky shores as Mary pressed hurriedly over them; the musty old stoops leading down into the street seemed aglow with romance; the gay shale rock of the house walls seemed now a mountainside and the sea, whose face was beaming with joy it had not known since Joe first asked her to wait for his home. Since then Mary had served plain garments in a certain room decorated by a simple coral and waited. Each evening saw the sun rise with new hope and each evening saw the sun set, with faith in the tomorrow looming in the distance wheel.

How glorious life suddenly seemed to Mary as the August breezes carried in the sailing craft northward. Cadet Gautier found it necessary to chat another hour or so with the "cook" of another work of tomorrows; for Tomorrows eventually turn into today.

The coast rocks [illegible] the [illegible] bulwarks as the [illegible] Tuesday on a Sunday morning in the Cape Race Passage. Mary was [illegible] early to greet the sun, which had greeted her for 30 years. How glorious and laughter filled [illegible] as he returned the greeting! Now she could look at waves and smile, even her morning handmade [illegible] with the coming of the sun for the wheels in it finally swung round.

[illegible] rooms of Little Champlain never again see her [illegible] most corner to keep down the [illegible] keeper at the end [illegible] never again refuse [illegible] of a penny. She could laugh as she pressed her [illegible] of fingers to her lips, never again to saw for the maidenly [illegible] bedrooms. It seemed so good to even think about. She would be here with Joe; here where the wind blew fresh here on the rocky waterworn coast, and the sun smiling coyly at her fresh out of the water.

She turned to the sound of a clog-like boot.

"Mornin', Mary!" greeted the captain.

"Morning, Capt. Gautier!" returned Mary, precocupied. She was studying the lighthouse on the rocks above.

She seemed fascinated by the picture before her.

"Is this where Joe will be?" she asked finally.

"Yes, this is where Joe is supposed to meet you," said Captain Gautier, in his matter-of-fact way. "Joe's somewhere up in the bush for lumber for there he shaved by way of entering her wedding heart. For Capt. Gautier knew Mary as a child and he knew Joe, too.

The lighthouse was on a jutted rock about 200 yards from where the Yonge lay at anchor. Mary stood spellbound, eyes searching for Joe, and gradually lowering the keeper of the lighthouse at his tasks about the place. The waves rolled triumphantly against the purple-hued rocks only to be dashed back time after time.

It was noontime, but no captain and Joe. What could keep Joe so long. She had expected him within the hour when the captain left; now it had grown to three hours. She waited and watched. The gulls flew low; some even venturing to perch on the masthead.

A skiff came around the promontory of the lighthouse, headed for the Yonge. Mary shuddered, the boy in the served as her chair. She caught her breath quickly. Those were fishermen. Could he be among them? They exchanged greetings with the keeper of the lighthouse and were headed for the starboard side of the vessel. But the captain was not among them and surely Joe would not come without the captain.

However, they did not stop. It was only a curiosity to view the schooner closely which sent them out of their way from across the bay.

At four o'clock the captain came back from the mainland.

Mary was too disappointed to venture the question.

"Mary," he began, "they haven't been Joe in months over in the village. When is your letter dated?"

Mary drew the precious scrap of paper from her bosom; she glanced at it hungrily.

"Your honor!" exclaimed Mary horrified. "It says June, 1926, and this is 1927!" She sank to the box beside her.

Tears came unchecked as she shook with the emotions. In her mind she reflected, broken now in the spell of one erroneous year. Where had that letter been and where was Joe now?

Capt. Gautier comforted her as best he could but he knew Joe.

After her grief had subsided she said quietly and decidedly, "But captain, I can't go back to Little Champlain street again. I've left there for ever!"

"I'll go ashore again for the mornin', Mary," he exclaimed consolingly. "Perhaps I can get some information on." Although in his heart he knew he could not.

Morning again—a strong nor'easter blowing, but captain, true to his word, went again to the mainland. His schooner should have been going up the coast early for the catch which he expected to make that day.

Mary stood at her regular post watching developments. The bitterness had gone from her heart with the tears. She smiled faintly as she peered through the fog landward. The light still shone from the pinnacle over the jagged rocks. Through the fog came rays of light from an easterly direction under which the fog receded to camp.

Then, unexpectedly as the howling of a dog on a rainy night, came a voice from the shore, "Mary, be you there?"

"Yes," she shouted, "be-ant you Joe?"

"No, I be Bess," came back the voice. "Joe's top here. Bess, the lighthouse keeper. Be you marry me?"

Mary, wondered as she stared shoreward if she had heard correctly or if there were another deception; the waves perhaps playing her out of the sighing of the winds through the trees and around the promontory. She scarcely knew or cared what she would do next except that she would not go back to Little Champlain street.

She was pondering over the probabilities and possibilities when the voice persisted, "Mary, be-ant you marry me?"

"Yes," shrieked Mary, afraid she would not be heard.

"Be you marry me?" again came the fog voice.

"Yes," she called, "if you come and get me."

"All right, Cap'n Gi' me'll be right out!"—Detroit News.

YOUR HEALTH

Increase the "Work-Span" of Life

By F. W. Perkins, M. D., New Orleans, La., Medical Corps, Reserve

Dr. Alexis Carrel and Lindbergh are [illegible] the philosophy of life and the means were looked for his opinion.

"Well, Bishop, it's this way," he said. "A man goes up to see a white, then goes along on the level, and then he goes down."

"But what," asked the Bishop, "do you think he means to go down?"

"I don't pretend," Uncle Mose replied, "to guess what kind which he went up."

And it is for Carrel to explain and Lindbergh, afterwards will prolong the period of comfortable existence and defer the period of declining health and active life.

Is it true that a dozen or more years have been added to the average life? It is true that has been accomplished by preventing the lives of people over sixty, but rather by lowering the death rate under the age of five.

There has been little extension of life beyond the age of fifty, and the present objective is toward a reduction of the death rate in later life.

The [illegible] objective, that is, period during which each are regarded as so called good risk, does not extend much beyond forty-five. Not to add a few more years to an already feeble existence, but to extend this work-span beyond sixty is a worth while object.

Doctor Oliver Wendell Holmes once remarked that we should begin a hundred years before birth to care for the [illegible] mouth. The influence of environment, social influences and [illegible] of bad habits of living have [illegible] to with shortening the span of life.

Public health examinations aim [illegible] weaknesses at all period [illegible] and by removing or correcting [illegible] increase and prolong usefulness and happiness. The life of such a man [illegible] Lewis W. Keen of Philadelphia [illegible] members of the Gorgas Foundation [illegible] Emeritus Professor of Surgery at [illegible] Medical college, who is still active at the age of 84, sheds conclusively for example that the age of [illegible] natural existence ought to be extended living. But one can hardly expect to add many years to life by beginning to do in old age the things that should have been done many years before.

Especially to be commended is the periodic health [illegible] which aims to [illegible] weaker spots and opportunities and to give timely advice for their correction. This is wise in any period of life. This may the way be pointed out to a happy old age without tribulations and with thankfulness for having lived so long.

TRAFFIC

By the Albert Russel Erskine Bureau for Street Traffic Research, University of California, Los Angeles

Establishing a minimum as well as maximum speed limit was the next step in the battle to relieve the growing congestion of street traffic in American cities is forecast by the Albert Russell Erskine bureau for street traffic research. While condemning excessive speed even under favorable conditions the bureau cautions disregard for safety on the part of the automobile driver. The bureau cites the case in four [illegible] of a twenty-mile an hour traffic artery as the cause of traffic delays and in some cases serious accidents.

"Uniformity of speed is a highly important factor in regularity of traffic, for only regularity and smoothness of flow insure the volume of movement which must be attained in view of the increasing flood of motor vehicles on the restricted street area of most American cities," says Miller McClintock, director of the Erskine bureau, which was endowed this fall in Harvard university for scientific study of street traffic congestion.

"Drivers who insist on holding up traffic to a snail like pace of five or ten miles an hour on important streets should be subject to a certain amount of legal prodding. When streets are filled with vehicles the slow driver regulates the speed of all following traffic, and by his selfishness or carelessness often delays hundreds. Slow drivers are also the unwitting cause of many accidents by making it necessary for overtaking motorists to cut into the opposing traffic stream to pass."

Mr. McClintock points out that somewhere between the excessively slow driver, and the dangerous speeder is the middle ground of regular traffic flow, and to determine this middle ground is one of the tasks of the traffic engineer.

Surveys of the principal American cities indicate that in placing limits on speed, legislators have almost always fallen short of current demand for rapidity of movement. While based on a sound principle of safety most of the speed regulations now on the statute books have been antiquated for ten years.

In discussing the question of maximum and minimum speed laws, Mr. McClintock points to the results of the metropolitan street traffic survey recently completed in Chicago, which disclosed a typical case of obsolete speed laws. A maximum speed specified by the state are eight miles an hour in the congested corners ten miles an hour in closely built up sections fifteen miles in residential districts and twenty miles an hour outside the closely built up portion and residential districts of towns and cities.

"These restrictions," says Mr. McClintock, "were enacted ten years ago. Chinese [illegible] have governed them. The [illegible] [illegible] technique [illegible] some of the [illegible] cities in the Chicago region have unwarranted toll on the motoring public."

One of the recommendations in the survey's report on Chicago's traffic congestion urged that the state legislature take steps to permit the city to raise minimum speed limits on all or part of its streets. It was suggested that these limits be fifty per cent of the maximum permitted in any district.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Church Attendance

Mr. Editor: Just a word in regard to church attendance under discussion by [illegible] men.

[illegible] long as the social inequality [illegible] in our churches and the com[illegible] engaged only for the [illegible] they render, and as [illegible] comes to the gla[illegible] so long they will stay ou[illegible] with more who are poor [illegible] as many excuses made to ke[illegible] of our churches but that time [illegible] to be gone.

The writer's experience in regard to church [illegible] with sickness and death in [illegible] ally we never a church [illegible] pastor, priest, or [illegible] rabbi in the church under similar circumstances, never received the undivided attention of pastor and assistant pastor and social call he was recognized by.

Is it any wonder that the poor but respectable man stays at home and reads his Sunday paper and figures he will save just as good a chance of going to heaven as the other fellow?

And when the time comes when pure red blood and blue blood are in opposition to assimilate, then conditions as to church attendance will be benefitted.

Reading the Work of Masters

Keener observers than we are, who [illegible] into the inner workings of human nature have described in novels the operations and consequences of love, hate, avarice, revenge and other passions which are always likely to move the heart. It is therefore of the utmost importance that when we read fiction we should read none except that written by masters who really understand the soul of man, for [illegible] we read books by inferior observers we get warped and false ideas, giving us impressions of life the never possess a great advantage over blindly, brauses out of respect for the memory of the dead and the feelings of those living the tendency of biography is to omit or to subdue harsh experiences, so that books like the Confessions of Rousseau which describe the deepest workings and weaknesses of the heart of a real man are exceedingly rare.

IN THE DAYS NEWS

THE G. P. U.

To the casual reader Russia seems a government by initials. There is the Tc I. E., the M. C. P. R. and, most potent of all to the average Russian citizen, the mysterious, long arm of the G. P. U.

Junius B. Wood, in a commentation to the National Geographic society describing Russia of the Hour, writes:

"The G. P. U., a name formed from the first letters of its long Russian title, is not a new institution, merely a new name, in Russia. It is the successor of the Okhrana under the Tsar, with its 40,000 to 50,000 informers and a smaller number of paid agents performing every class of society. The Cheka of the Revolution was a transition between the two.

"The scope has been enlarged by uniformed ranks of police and soldiers. Such a surveillance, with its absolute power, is a system with which the Russian has long been familiar.

"Where is Ivan Ivanovitch? I saw him last night" may be a question at the afternoon tea.

"Tashkent" is the awed whisper.

"The answer is perfectly clear. Ivan 'eats' the vernacular for being in jail, in Lubianka, the imposing Moscow building which formerly was an insurance company's offices, the red clock of which now glows through the night over Lubianka square, the dreaded preliminary jail and headquarters of the G. P. U.

"Just what Ivan has done to get himself within the clutches of the law is usually a surprise, even among his closest friends. However, it is quite certain that the G. P. U. has some information. The arrest is not a haphazard happening.

"He may have been peculating with government or cooperative funds in his charge, smuggling in violation of the foreign trade monopoly, lead'ng a private life which was not exemplary, or industrial activities which did not contribute to the stability of the government.

"However, the scene enacted during the hours he was supposed to be peacefully sleeping in his home is a familiar picture. Around 1 o'clock in the morning a chugging motor truck has stopped in front of the building where he, and possibly his family, have a room. Other tenants may have been awakened, but they do not open doors or stick their heads out of windows when a motor chugs in front at that hour of the morning. Their curiosity is bridled until the truck is gone and the building has a tenant less.

"The detail, usually two agents and two policemen, enters Ivan's apartment. There is no rough work unless the host starts it. The visitors are polite, but firm and thorough. In fact, they are so meticulous that usually they express regret to other members of the family for the necessity of disturbing them, and present a paper for their signature to prove that the proceedings have been conducted courteously.

"Few questions are asked, but the search is painstaking. Pages of books are ruffled, clothes examined, as are carpets, furniture, pictures on the wall even the heating ducts. Such documents as are pertinent or which they do not have time to read are taken along. Ivan goes with them.

"The news of the arrest is not in the newspapers the following day and no explanation is asked from the G. P. U., nor would one be given if it were.

"In a few days Ivan may be back among his friends, possibly having been merely suspected of something serious because he was too garrulous. More likely he will 'sit' in silence in Lubianka, and the first word to the outside will be that he has been transferred to Butyrki, a prison where relatives can call and exchange a few words with him through an iron grille."

SEASONAL SNIPS

The Christmas eve feast in Poland consists of 12 dishes, symbolic of the 12 disciples of Christ.

It was a New Year custom of the Romans to send their friends holly branches to wish them luck during the coming year.

When Dickens' Christmas Carol was published it met with enormous success, the first edition being sold out on the day of publication.

A feature of the Christmas eve supper in Sweden is a rich pudding, filled with raising and containing a solitary plum, said to bring good fortune to whoever draws it in his portion.

In the center of the Christmas table the Russian peasant places a bundle of straw symbolic of the manger and, before the meal, each guest draws from the bundle a blade of straw, the one who draws the longest being destined to live the longest.

Bakers in olden times made little paste images with currants stuck in for eyes and these were given to their customers at Christmas. It was believed that he who ate one to preserved the image unbroken all through the year would not be injured by fire or water or slain by the sword.

Stories That Recall Others

The Ambulance Chorus

Small Jane lived in an upper apartment. One day she was entertaining her mother's guest while her mother was called to the telephone. Music came from below. Some one was playing the "Anvil Chorus." The guest remarked about the music and Jane replied:

"Oh, yes, that's Helen. She's playing the ambulance chorus."

Her Version

A child, who is in the first grade at school, returned home one evening, and, at the dinner table repeated a riddle she had heard at school that day.

"If a man were locked up in a house for two weeks, and there was no food in the house, what would he eat?" After a few minutes of unsuccessful attempts to guess the answer, the members of the family "gave up" and requested the solution.

"Why, he would eat the raising on the calendar and drink the milk from the bed," replied the child. The answer had been: "The dates on the calendar and water from the springs in the bed."

Florence Sullivan of Manchester, N. H., retired policeman, who was considered one of the tallest police officers in New England during his long service with the Manchester police department died at the county hospital in Gras Mere, aged 76 years.

FUNERALS
Lazar Markoff

The funeral of Lazar Markoff, one of the oldest Jewish residents of Norwich, was held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his home, No. 164 Talman street, many relatives and friends attending the service. Rabbi Max Stamm of the United Brothers Synagogue conducted the service and also read the committal service at the grave in the Hebrew Benevolent association cemetery at Brewster's Neck. The bearers were Morris Sussman, Elias Alofsin, Jacob Kessler and J. Safenowits. Arrangements for the funeral were in charge of Hourigan Brothers.

William J. Murray

Funeral services for William J. Murray, who was killed in New Brunswick, N. J., in an automobile accident, were held Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock at the parlors of Shea & Burke. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at St. Patrick's church at 9 o'clock by Rev. John J. Reilly. Henry LaFontaine was at the organ and at the offertory Pie Jesu was sung by Roderick F. Sullivan, who sang, Lead Kindly Light, as the waiting hymn.

There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the service, and the floral pieces were most beautiful, among them being a handsome piece from the employes of the Wauregan hotel, where Mr. Murray was formerly employed. Burial was in the family lot in St. Joseph's cemetery where a firing suad and bugler from the submarine base were present to give final military honors for Mr. Murray. The bearers were William Herzod, Jerry Norton, Albert Murray, Gilbert Murray, Roy Wilcox and Louis Almind.

Mrs. James Jack

Funeral services for Mrs. James Jack were held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William H. Grant of No. 426 Boswell avenue. There was a large attendance at the funeral, relatives and friends coming from Torrington, Willimantic, Providence, Webster, Mass., Westerly and Southbridge, Mass. The many floral tributes gave evidence of the love and esteem in which Mrs. Jack was held by all who knew her.

The service was conducted by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church, who also conducted the committal service at the grave in Yantic cemetery. The bearers were James and John Jack, John Scott and Ernest W. Jervis. Arrangements were by C. A. Gager.

Capt. Benjamin W. Latham.

The funeral services for Capt. Benjamin Walter Latham, who died at his home on Pearl street, Noank, Tuesday, were held from his late home Thursday afternoon. Charity and Relief lodge, No. 72, F. and A. M., of which he was a member, had charge of the services. Burial was in the family plot in the Noank Valley cemetery.

In the passing of Mr. Latham Noank has lost a lifelong and highly respected resident, a man whose skill as master of a fishing craft was once known along the Atlantic coast as well as in that vicinity. Capt. Latham followed the sea in company with older members of the family since he was nine years old, it being his desire more than for his school studies. He not only built up and commanded with his brother a fleet of fishing ships, but they were the first to send a number of vessels into the southern waters in the intergst of the fishing industry. In the latter part of his life as a fisherman he devoted much of his time to sword fishing, having the honor a great many times of bringing the first swordfish of the season into the wholesale market.

This life he followed until about six years ago, when ill health caused him to retire. Yet in spite of illness, as often as health would permit he was a familiar figure at the Noank docks.

Well Child Conference.

During Christmas week December 20 to 24 the usual well child conferences have been discontinued as this is too busy a season for most mothers to attend.

Tyler Browne, "How They Brought the Good News from Ghent to Aix," by Mrs. Gardiner Greene, Cavalier Tunes and two shorter poems, by Mrs. Alfred M. H. Vaughn, "Love Among the Ruins," by Mrs. Charles Tyler Bard and "Pippa Passes," by Mrs. William H. Dawley.

Seeks Damages of $1,000.

John C. Hinrichs of Norwich has brought suit for $1,000 damages against Richard M. Harding and Emma Harding of this city. The suit is returnable the first Tuesday in January before the common pleas court.

The talkative seamstress occasionally loses the thread of her discourse.

BODY TEMPERATURE RISES IN HOT TEMPERATURE

Have you a thermometer in your home and what does it register these cold winter days? asks the weekly health bulletin issued by the Connecticut state department of health. Continuing, the bulletin says:

This is a question which for health's sake every one should ask. Now that winter has appeared and with it chilly blasts from the north, too many people are inclined to shun this bracing air and rush to the shelter of a warm house whose temperature if a thermometer were at hand, would often register 70 degrees or 75 degrees or even 80 degrees F.

Now we hear from scientists who have made recent studies of ventilation that it is not lack of air which is harmful, but rather too high a temperature. The modern house receives plenty of air from frequently opened doors and windows, as well as through the porous walls, but the temperature is not so well regulated.

Adjusting oneself to a high temperature, above 66 degrees F, means a loss to the heat regulating mechanism of the body. In an excessively warm room the body temperature is increased and it is impossible to lose heat to the surrounding air. The nasal membranes become swollen and more moist with secretions and fail to guard the body against disease germs when one is suddenly exposed to cold air.

So living continuously in a hot atmosphere breaks down the body's defense in its attempt to adjust itself to sudden extremes, and colds and respiratory diseases often result. Ventilation studies in schools showed a much greater absence due to respiratory diseases in rooms where the temperature was kept at 68 degrees to 69 degrees F., than in the rooms at 66.5 degrees F. It was also shown that 15 per cent. less work was accomplished in rooms at 75 degrees F. and 21 per cent. less in rooms at 86 degrees F., than in rooms at a temperature of 68 degrees or less.

So a high temperature not only causes personal discomfort but it has an economic effect worth considering since loss of time due to illness and lowered efficiency mean economic loss to the community.

BELIEVED GOLD BURIED IN WINDHAM COUNTY

A chest of gold, buried since Revolutionary war times, is hidden on the farm of Otto Reich of Wilsonville, Windham county, Mr. Reich believes, and his nephew, Edward Paul Reich, has asked in advertisements in a state paper for information concerning the whereabouts of a map purporting to show the location of the buried treasure.

The story told by natives of Wilsonville and of the neighboring towns of Thompson and Webster, is that during the Revolution a band of soldiers carrying gold to Washington's army at Valley Forge was attacked by a band of Indians and British.

To prevent the enemy from obtaining the gold the Continentals buried it by a big tree on top of a hill believed to be located on the Reich farm off the Webster-Thompson road. The men were later all killed by the enemy.

Dwyer Elliot, town clerk of Wilsonville, says that he has heard the legend of the buried treasure many times and that a year ago a stranger entered his office seeking full information about it. Elliot informed him that he knew nothing more than the old story. The stranger departed and has not been seen since in Wilsonville.

Edward Keegan, another resident of the town, he says that he has heard the tale, but he is inclined to doubt its truth. "There is nothing definite to indicate that the money was buried on the Reich farm," he says, "and, in fact, many claim that it was buried the Reich property."

Reich said that neither his uncle nor his father ever dug for the treasure, but he implied that they are convinced that it is hidden on the farm. It was at the suggestion of his uncle that he placed the advertisement in the paper.

ORDER TO PAY EXPENSES OF DEFENDANT'S WITNESSES

At the superior court session in this city Thursday, Judge Allyn L. Brown instructed the court clerk to enter an order that the plaintiff in the case of M. J. Levinson vs. the Colchester Novelty company, pay to Hull, McGuire and Hull, attorneys for the defendant, a bill of costs of $14 within two weeks or a non-suit will be entered. The clerk was instructed to notify the attorneys for the plaintiff to this effect.

The case had been assigned for jury trial last Tuesday and was the second on the list. The first case on the list was withdrawn and therefore the Levinson case became first on the list. Hull, McGuire and Hull stated they were ready to try the case but neither the plaintiff nor his attorneys appeared. Judge Brown informed Attorney C. Hadlai Hull that he would enter a non-suit if he (Mr. Hull) wished it. Mr. Hull didn't feel that he wanted to ask anything drastic but felt the expenses of the defendant's witnesses ought to be paid for. Judge Brown informed him to inquire as to what the expenses were and submit the bill of costs. The plaintiff's attorneys, an out of town law firm, will be notified of the judge's order.

ERECT WHITE WAY LAMPS ON FRANKLIN STREET

The gas and electric department of the city have erected the white way lamps on the westerly side of Franklin street. The lamps on the easterly side of the street have already been erected and are now illuminated nightly.

THE PLACE AND THE PURPOSE OF THE CHURCH

The Place and Purpose of the Church was the topic of the sermon preached Thursday night by Rev. Walter E. Bentley, missioner, former Shakespearean actor and founder of the Actor's Church Alliance, who is conducting the preaching mission and preparation for the coming Crusade.

Rev. Mr. Bentley drew his subject from the parable of the Good Samaritan, stating that the church started with Abraham worshiping at the altar, tracing the fact that but one church exists, the Holy Catholic church, which means universal. In preparation for his sermon he stated that of 30 stories related by the Lord, 19 had to do with His kingdom, the means of man's salvation. He further stated that the work of Christ in the flesh was limited, but that His power in the spirit was unlimited.

Reading the parable of the Good Samaritan, Rev. Mr. Bentley said that the man referred to meant the whole human race going from Jerusalem to Jericho, the former being the city of peace, the latter the city of sin. Going down from Jerusalem to Jericho is downhill literally. In the city of peace means childhood, innocense, before man is stripped of his clothes and wounded by sin. This is the same teaching as related in the story of the Garden of Eden, when Adam and Eve left the city of peace, became wounded by sin and learned to feel ashamed of their nakedness. Unseen forces must be fought and God allows this unseen power to fight Him, evidently believing that if all temptation was removed He could not prove Himself. We must also resist temptation to become real men; to prove ourselves.

The parable then says the man met with robbers. As we leave the city of peace to go to Jericho we meet robbers. Virtue is stolen, manhood is wounded, our system is poisoned by sin.

God called forth a man to be a leader; thus the Hebrew was chosen and from them came the three great religions: Judaism, Christianity, Mohammedanism. The Hebrews' religious ceremonials and ritualistic ceremonies became great and were kept up continually in the temples and priesthood grew strong.

Thus in His parable Christ first mentions the priest: By chance there came a priest that way—he passed on the other side. This simply meant that the priestly system of Judaism was a failure, being proved when the priests failed to recognize Christ when He came. Spiritually they taught the law, but the priests failed humanly. They had the spiritual but lacked the human.

Next Christ mentions the Levite—this meaning the prophet. Naturally the prophet followed the priest. He was a little more interested in man. The prophets had helped the people and they came nearer to God than did the priests. Christ says the Levite "looked" upon the man. He was more helpful than the priest. The prophet had no remedy for man's injuries, he could only prophecy.

Then Christ brings the Good Samaritan. This man, a Samaritan, was really a half cast Jew, hated and despised by the Jews. Jesus knowing He was to be rejected by the Jews classed himself with the hated Samaritan.

Christ then says the Samaritan stooped down. God comes down to be our servant for our salvation. Christ was born in a stable and of a peasant woman. The Samaritan rendered first aid, wine and oil, to cleanse and clean just as Christ gave His blood, the wine and the oil, the Holy Spirit, to cleanse and clean. He was telling the story of His own life.

The parable then says the man was picked up in the arms of the Samaritan. That is what we do in baptism. God is the father, the church, the mother. The placing of the wounded man on the ass simply is the same as our salvation. We are lifted and helped by those who have believed before us; we are carried into the inn, into the kingdom of God by the help of the relative or friend.

The parable then says the Samaritan remained over night. Christ remained over night, remained there for 33 years. The Samaritan then paid the inn keeper two pennies and ordered him to take care of the injured man. These two pennies are the two sacraments Christ left us, baptism and holy communion. He said, take care of him. Christ meant not only to preach but to take care of the wounded man brought into God's kingdom. Not only to preach but to aid him.

The Samaritan then said "when I come again," Christ always said He was to return, "so much more you spend on him I will more than repay you." This, in God's kingdom, means simply that those in the church who do more than the easy right way, those who sacrifice all to save man, spill their life's blood, shall be repaid more than they spend.

The church is not a parade ground for saints and holy people. The church is a hospital; it is here to take care of the sick, minister unto their spiritual illness and thus aid them, as they grow older and weaker physically, to become stronger spiritually, preparing them for the spiritual world and the final coming in perfection into the Eternal City of many mansions.

R. I. REDS SCORED HIGH AT STORRS LAST MONTH

November of the present egg laying contest at Storrs will go down in history as the most auspicious first month since the laying trials were inaugurated at Storrs sixteen years ago, and a month that has been marked by the keenest of competition among the ranking pens. The 1,400 excellent pullet hall from twenty-two states and Canada, wasted no time in preliminaries after arriving at Storrs, but settled right down to business and broke all previous Storrs records for the first week with a lay of approximately twenty-five percent. They continued with their record breaking activities in shelling out the eggs for almost thirty-nine per cent in the second week, and still further increased have been obtained as the competition continues. The net result of all this is a lay of 15,899 eggs for November, or approximately thirty-eight per cent. The standard of production calls for five eggs per bird during November, but the Storrs contest pullets laid better than eleven eggs each. Total production for the first month of the sixteenth contest shows a gain of 2,419 eggs when compared with the lay for November last year.

With only 37 eggs separating the first eleven pens competition among the top-notchers is keener than ever, especially for so soon in the year. The two high Wyandotte pens are separated by a scant 5 eggs, there is only 12 eggs between the four leading Rhode Island Red entries, and but 16 eggs separate the first five White Leghorn contests. Each week has seen a succession of changes among the leading pens in the principal varieties, a situation likely to continue in view of the fast pace that has been set.

Hall Brothers Reds from Wallingford, Conn., made the high pen score for the month with a production of 328 eggs, which also wins for them the blue ribbon in the Red class. Two more pens of the same breed tied for both second high score of the month and for second place in the Red class, each with a lay of 320 eggs. They are the entries of Globus Poultry Farm, Attleboro, Mass., and Harold G. Colt from Hartford, Conn.

The placings in the White Leghorn class were Ruehle's Sunnyside farm, Pleasant Valley, N. Y., with 314 eggs, first; Hall Brothers, Wallingford, Conn., with 313 eggs, second; and Alfred J. O'Donovan Jr., Katonah, N. Y., with 312 eggs, third.

In the White and Buff Rock class, the Whites entered by E. A. Hirt of So. Weymouth, Mass., won the blue ribbon with a score of 318 eggs. R. W. Davis & Sons entry from Rockland, Me., placed first in the Barred Rock division with a lay of 148 eggs, and the Winlay White Wyandottes from Colebrook, Conn., took the bigs in their class with a score of 196 eggs. The accompanying table shows the total number of pens in each breed and the average feed consumption and egg production.

MAY GIVE CENTENNIAL BLDG. TO PHILADELPHIA

The board of control Thursday received a report from Quartermaster General Morris B. Payne, who had been appointed by the governor to manage the Connecticut building at the sesquicentennial exposition at Philadelphia. The report said it would cost more to take it down than the building was worth. The board of control decided to recommend to the general assembly at the coming session that the building be presented to the city of Philadelphia.

State Librarian George S. Godard read to the board of control a letter which he has received from Joseph R. Wilson, director of education and social economy at the sesquicentennial international exposition at Philadelphia, on the cooperation of Connecticut in the exposition.

"May I take this opportunity to say a word about Connecticut's representation at the exposition," the letter said. "It was so clean-cut and typical of the patriotic and historic state of Connecticut that I felt a personal pride in it from the day your building was opened until it closed. Everything connected with Connecticut has been worthy of its best traditions. The building stood out with characteristic dignity, and the splendid exhibit within made a visit most profitable. Connecticut made a fine contribution to the success of the exposition, and I want to thank the governor, State Treasurer Rogers, former Governor Weeks and your good self for the unbounded good-will and American spirit with which you entered into the celebration of the 150th anniversary of American independence."

CHICAGO, Dec. 16—(AP)—Jack Hendricks, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, announces the only deal of the day, outright purchase of Ray Kolp, a right handed pitcher, from the St. Paul American association club.

BREADON SAYS HORNSBY WILL BE MANAGER OF CARDINALS NEXT YEAR

CHICAGO, Dec. 16—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby will manage the St. Louis Cardinals next year, President Sam Breadon said tonight in settling rumors on various trades involved the leader who piloted the Cards to St. Louis first world's championship.

"All this talk of trading Rogers to New York, or elsewhere is the bunk," Breadon said. "He will be managing the Cardinals next year, although we have not come to terms yet."

Hornsby's three year contract as a player still has one year to run, and he had insirted on replacement of this contract wit ha three-year agreement as manager for a sum said to be around $125,000. Breadon is said to have been holding out for a one-year contract, at about $30,000. The fact that Hornsby owns the second largest block of stock in the St. Louis club complicated the negotiations, but "Hornsby will be back next year," Breadon declared.

TILDEN TO TRY TO REGAIN LOST LAURELS

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—William T. Tilden, ruler of American tennis for six years until thrust aside by a mighty French invasion this year, will sail for Europe, January 20, to fight his way back to tennis heights in the land of his conquerors.

The former national singles champion plans to take with him John Doeg, Junior National champion, of Santa Monica, Cal., and Warren F. Coen, Jr., National Boys champion, of Kansas City, to prepare them for the assaults of Davis Cup invaders when the "Big Bill" of tennis and other senior players shall have been forced to step aside.

Tilden, now visiting the youthful Coen in Kansas City, has disclosed his plans to Samuel Hardy, former American Davis Cup captain, who is making the necessary arrangements for the trip abroad. The Philadelphia master, with Coen, will visit Doeg in California before heading with the youths for the Riviera, tennis playground of southern France.

The date of sailing was announced in Philadelphia last night by Paul W. Gibbons, president of the Philadelphia and middle states Lawn Tennis associations, who said that Tilden probably would compete in title events in Germany and Italy and the Wimbledon championships as well as the Riviera tournaments. Gibbons said Tilden was in excellent condition and ready to assume the burden of regaining the tennis crown, and in his belief "no player in the world can beat him."

In France, Tilden plans meetings with Rene Lacoste, who broke his string of National singles championships by defeating Jean Borotra in an all-French final at Forest Hills last fall, and Borotra, who eliminated "Big Bill" in the National Indoor championships last February. Henri Cochet, another thorn in Tilden's tennis side, and Jacques Brugnon, fourth member of the French Davis Cup team, are other probable opponents. At the same time, Tilden plans to pit Doeg and Coen against these same internationalists to gain them experience.

Their program, as outlined by Hardy, calls for entrance in tournaments at Monte Carlo, Feb. 21-27; the Riviera, Feb. 28 to March 7; Nice, March 7-13; Cannes, March 14-22; Beau Site, March 22-27; San Rafael, April 4-11; Monte Carlo, April 11-17; and possibly Nice, April 24-30. The French stars are expected to enter the same competition.

Tilden, determined to regain his leadership of world tennis forces, will devote himself exclusively to that task in 1927, tennis authorities declare. He does not intend to be hampered by the trival ventures that robbed him of sufficient time to prepare properly for major tournaments last season.

With Vincent Richards no longer eligible to represent the United States through professional activities and other stars past the peak of effectiveness, they point out that Tilden's racquet in finest form, as well as experienced youth, is needed if America is to regain her tennis laurels.

The absence of Tilden, Richards and the French stars from the National Indoor championships in February is expected to detract interest from the tournament.

MRS. CHAPMAN WINS HER SECOND GOLF CROWN

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Mrs. John D. Chapman, Greenwich, Conn., won her second consecutive Woman's Golf tournament here today when she defeated Mrs. Donald Parson, Youngstown, Ohio, four up and three to play in the finals of the Woman's Season tournament. She was three up at the turn and was never headed.

Mrs. Horace Rockham of Detroit, defeated Mrs. George Magoon of Pittsburgh, two and one in the second division finals.

May Get Toga If Vare Is Unseated

William C. Sproul, former governor of Pennsylvania, who is being urged upon Governor-elect John Fisher, of that State for appointment to the Senate when and if Senator-elect William S. Vare is unseated. Sproul, a millionaire brick manufacturer, is noted for his party regularity and is untainted with the charges which will be brought to prevent Vare's taking his seat.

LAWRENCE MAY PROTEST TO N. Y. COMMISSION

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 16.—(AP)—A protest to the State Athletic commission by George Lawrence, manager of Homer Smith, Michigan heavyweight, was threatened this morning as a result of the action of Referee Jack Michaels in stopping last night's bout between Smith and Jack Sharkey, of Boston, conqueror of Harry Wills, and declaring Sharkey the victor by a technical knockout in the seventh round.

In a statement after the bout Lawrence declared that Sharkey had fouled Smith in the first round by landing a blow to the temple while Homer was still on his knees. His claim was corroborated by sports writers at the ringside. Lawrence also complained that stopping the bout was unwarranted as, for the first time in the fight, Smith was battling on even terms with the Bostonian in the seventh and had landed several lusty rights to the stomach and jaw just before the referee called a halt.

Lawrence conceded that Sharkey had piled up a big advantage in the preceding rounds, but asserted that the Michigan veteran was groggy from the effects of the punishment in the first frame and was defending himself only by instinct until the sixth when he began to fight back.

KILLIFER TO COACH BROWNS NEXT YEAR

CHICAGO, Dec. 16—(AP)—Bill Killifer, who assisted Rogers Hornsby in piloting the St. Louis Cardinals to a world's championship, has signed to coach the St. Louis Browns next year, it was made known tonight.

President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals, announced that he had given Killifer his unconditional release, and then Killifer announced he had signed with the Browns. He will be first assistant to Dan Howley, the Browns' new manager.

Killifer leaves the National league after many years of service with the Philadelphia, Chicago and St. Louis clubs.

He came to Chicago from the Phillies ten years ago with Grover Cleveland Alexander, his battery mate, and eventually Killifer rose to managership o the Cubs. Last winter, he joined the Cardinals as assistant to Hornsby, and beore long, he had engineered the acquisition of Alexander by the Cards. With a percentage of only about .500 during the season, on the mound, Alexander became the tower of strength responsible in large measure for the Cardinals' victory over the Yankees in the fall baseball classic.

CONFERENCE OF HOCKEY HEADS AVAILS LITTLE

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—(AP)—A conference of Frank Calder, of Montreal, National Hockey league president, with A. H. Warren, head of the American association, has failed to settle the dispute between the two groups over the two Canadian amateur players signed by the Chicago American club.

Warren said he expected to meet E. J. Livingstone, head of the Chicago club today, and confer again with Calder, but meanwhile the whole American association stands under the "outlaw" order of Calder. The Windsor and Ontario clubs of the Canadian amateur loop, have not been paid for funds advanced the two players, Calder said, and Livingstone has refused to pay for their contracts, contending they were amateurs.

HELEN WILLS TO PLAY INDOOR TENNIS IN EAST

BERKELEY, Cal., Dec. 16—(AP)—Helen Wills, former woman's national tennis champion, left today for New York to spend the Christmas holidays and at the same time probably open a campaign which she hopes will lead to the honors she was forced to give up a few months ago because of illness. She defaulted her singles title in the national events this year.

Discussing the possibility of playing tennis in the east, Miss Wills said "I have received so many invitations that I will probably enter many of the indoor events scheduled."

Miss Wills announced she had written a book of poems and another on how to play tennis. She hopes to have both published in the spring. The court star was accompanied by her mother.

LITTLE CHANCE FOR MISS WILLS TO PLAY MUCH

NEW YORK, Dec. 16—(AP)—The women's indoor tennis sport schedule in the east offers Helen Wills little opportunity to sharpen her game during her visit to New York over the Christmas holidays. Miss Wills said on leaving Berkeley, Cal., today that she would probably enter in door events during her visit.

The single tournament of prominence staged here is the Brooklyn Heights casino competition in which the former national singles champion would have the opportunity of meeting Mrs. Molla Mallory, who won Miss Wills' title this year after the California girl defaulted in the nationals because of illness.

The womens' indoor championships are held at Brookline, Mass., in March.

CHARLOTTE SPEEDWAY IN FINANCIAL DIFFICULTIES

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 17.—(AP)—The Charlotte speedway organized and built two years ago, is in such a financial condition due to losses on recent automobile races that some form of reorganization of its affairs is necessary, Coleman W. Roberts, its general manager, said here today.

He added that no definite action had been taken looking to voluntary bankruptcy and so far as he knew, no involuntary petition had been filed. Such a proceeding, however, he said, appeared to be the most likely solution of the difficulties.

The speedway was built at a cost of $300,000.

PRINCETON ATHLETIC FUND SHOWS $137,196 DEFICIT

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 16—(AP)—A deficit of $137,196 in the athletic fund, caused by the resurfacing of the concrete stadium was made known today in the financial report of the Princeton board of athletic control for the fiscal year ending June 30.

The end of the year found a surplus of $4,782 and the cost of re-surfacing Palmer stadium was $141,908. Football proved the most profitable sport earning $152,718 net, while maintenance of the crews was most expensive, with a total cost of $22,315. Keeping the track team in funds cost about $20,000 and the baseball team $373.

ACADEMY WITHOUT GAME FOR SATURDAY NIGHT

The Academy basketball squad has no game as yet for Saturday evening but preparations are being made to secure a fast quintet for the date. Negotiations are still out for a contest with either East Greenwich, R. I. Academy or Lyman High of Lebanon and a definite decision is expected to be made today (Friday). Should these games fall through then the All-Collegians of this city, composed of college stars home for the holidays will offer the opposition for the N. F. A. five.

Practice on Thursday consisted for the most part of passing, shooting and also stopping and starting. Coach McCann put his charges through a long session and each of the some 20 candidates showed up quite well. The team, as a whole is in good physical shape after Saturday's game. Lee Pingree, rangy center, is the only real casualty reported to date. He will be laid up for about two weeks with a score ankle but should come around in good shape.

Morris Goldblatt who was recently named manager of the team, announced Thursday that Bulkeley high of Hartford has been scared for Feb. 26. There are still three remaining open dates on the schedule.

However, for two of these, namely New Years, Jan. 1, and Saturday, Jan. 8, a home and home arrangement is being sought with Courtelotte High.

Another change that will probably be made in the season's schedule is the transferring of the Alumni game scheduled for Christmas day to the night of Thursday, December 30. Original plans were to play this game at the state armory, Christmas night and to be followed by a dance but present indications point to a change in dates.

The management is having trouble in booking games for the start of the season, probably because of the newness of the sport at the school. However, after the first of the year, some hard games have been booked with the best in the state and Norwich fans will see one fast basketball. The Academy squad is not downhearted even a little over the defeat handed them by Suffield Prep last Saturday and is going through the practice sessions with real vim and should this spirit continue, N. F. A.'s opponents in future contests are in for tough battles.

CHAMPIONSHIP GOLF SHOWS PROFIT OF $30,000 FOR U. S. G. A.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—National championship golf was conducted at a profit of $30,000 to the United States Golf association this year, reports to the annual meeting of the organization next month in Pittsburgh will show.

The bulk of this sum was derived by the U. S. G. A. from its two major competitions, the amateur and open championships. A statement received from the Scioto club at Columbus, Ohio, scene of the open tournament, shows that $22,967.50 was paid by spectators to see Bobby Jones win the championship. One-half of this amount goes to the governing body.

The U. S. G. A. also cleared more than $11,000 on admissions alone at the amateur championship, contested in September over the Baltusrol course. Additional profit was realized by the association from entry fees of $5 for each player in the two tournaments, there having been almost 700 aspirants for the open championship and 150 for the amateur.

To this income will be added the revenue from the Women's amateur championship at Haverford, Pa., figures of which have not yet been made available. The attendance was considerably reduced, however, by rain on almost every day of the event.

In its report on the open championship, the Scioto club announces that its treasury was swelled by $9,029.91 profit. There was a total revenue of $43,415.66 from admissions, the restaurant, advertising, parking, concessions, programs and entertainment, while the expenses of the tournament ran to $34,385.65.

The flourishing financial condition of the U. S. G. A. is balanced by the growth of the game in all sections of the country.

LANDIS IS RE-ELECTED WITH INCREASE IN YEARLY SALARY OF $15,000

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—(AP) — With peace and good will reigning, the major league club owners in joint session today, re-elected Kenesaw Mountain Landis to a second term of seven years as commissioner and gave him a Christmas present of a $15,000 increase in salary making it $65,000 a year.

Ban Johnson, president of the American league, who was put off the advisory council two years ago and rebuked by his club owners for criticising Landis, today was the first to extend his congratulations to the fiery, white haired ruler of the diamond. They shook hands and the formal felicitations of the American league were presented to the commissioner.

The magnates were in session, with Landis presiding about three hours and in contrast with the stormy sessions of the past, when sounds of loud talk and bangs of the gavel emanated from the conference room, today there was only the hum of friendly conversation.

To celebrate the burial of the hatchet, aLndis invited all the club owners to a dinner tonight at the Chicago Athletic association.

The advisory board, over which the former jurist presides, although he has ignored it for the past two years, because of the Johnson controversy, was then elected, with John Heydler, president of the National league, and Johnson as the major league representatives, and M. H. Sexton, president and John H. Farrell, secretary of the minor leagues, representing those organizations.

With these two ticklish problems, Landis reelection and the advisory board, settled harmoniously, the magnates then met the draft dispute in the same manner. The clause in the 1921 minor agreement, effected when Landis was first selected, to require all draft leagues to declare themselves before April 1, 1921 was amended to read April 1, 1927 leaving the present draft situation unchanged.

Each major league selected three minor natives to confer with the draft committee of the minors, and they will report back to the major league meeting in February, when schedules are to be adopted.

The club owners refused to fix the date of the closing of the 1927 season, by striking out the provision in the major league rules which ended the past season on the last Sunday in September. The closing date was left to the decision of the February schedule meeting. But October 2, generally was agreed upon.

In another burst of liberality the club owners voted a raise in pay for umpire's services. Leslie O'Connor from $10,000 to $12,500 a year.

The qualifications was increased [illegible] made in rules [illegible] more, from $4,000 to $5,000 [illegible] unchanged between [illegible] major league, however, with [illegible] at the nominal [illegible]

In memory of Francis Richter, for [illegible] of the American [illegible] who died a year ago, [illegible] appropriated $500 for [illegible] his grave.

A. J. Ruppert and Judge Emil Fuchs of the Boston Braves were appointed to draw up a plan for providing help for needy ball players.

The National Baseball Federation, the sand lot organization, also received some encouragement from the big leaguers. They asked for small participation in the world's series receipts, for the promotion of amateur baseball, and Clarke Griffith of Washington, E. S. Barnard of Cleveland, and Garry Herrmann of Cincinnati were delegated to arrange it.

SANFORD TO ENTER BLANCONA IN NATIONAL

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—Stephen Sanford, prominent American horseman, who won the Liverpool Grand National Steeplechase in 1922 with Vincent Murphy, will bid for the classic again this year. Sanentry will be Blancona, an Irish bred by Great Sport which he purchased recently in England from Miss Edith L. Barbour, a school girl.

Blancona, considered one of the finest jumping prospects in England, has been beaten only twice in his racing career. The terms of the sale were not made known.

Nine Dates on H. C. Grid Slate

WORCESTER, Mass, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The Holy Cross college football schedule for next season shows nine games, one an intersectional contest. There is but one change in the teams, Marquette replacing Western, Maryland which played here this year. The game with Marquette will be played in Milwaukee.

Brown Mermen Win

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 16—(AP)—Brown's swimming team defeated McGill-Toronto by a score of 34 to 27 in the first tank meet of the season here tonight.

Pro Football

At Birmingham, Ala.: Grange's Yanks 14; Wilson's Wildcats 3.

Bob Quinn of the Boston Red Sox and Dan Howley, new manager of the St. Louis Browns, reached a preliminary agreement on a trade which would send one player to St. Louis, in exchange for three, but neither would mention any names.

SPORTING NOTES

(By the Associated Press)

Recent defeat by Pat McCarthy, Boston heavyweight, will not keep Harry Persson, the Swedish champion from going through with his match against Jim Maloney, another Boston boxer, at Madison Square Garden, December 22. The Persson-Maloney bout is the main go of a charity card sponsored by Swedish societies of New York.

Pistic champions of Spain, Sweden and Germany, who have been in the heavyweight spotlight of late, must move over to make room for two more invading titleholders. Phil Scott, British heavyweight champion and Van Der Veer, champion of Holland, are coming over in January under the management of Tom O'Rourke, veteran New York promoter.

The death of William A. Larned marks the passing of the second eminent American tennis figure within little over a year's time. Robert D. Wrenn, National champion four times, had like Larned, an all-around athlete as well as a rough rider in the Spanish-American war, died in November, 1925.

Danny Murphy, famous outfielder with the old Philadelphia Athletics, is slated to return to the big leagues next season as an assistant to his former team-mate, Stuffy McInnis, new manager of the Phillies. Seventeen years ago the veteran Murphy taught McInnis, then an Athletic rookie, the tricks of the trade.

Eddie Collins is too good a man to drop out of the American league, Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics said today, added that he had an appointment with the ex-manager of the White Sox within the next few days to talks terms.

Bud Taylor of Terre Haute, who was given the title of bantamweight champion by the Illinois boxing commission when his match with Phil Rosenburg was forbidden, is another middle west mitt slinger to open his own auditorium in his home town to display his skill. Sammy Mandell, the Rockford holder of the lightweight title, also operates one.

The football used in the Army-Navy game at Chicago will go to some football fan Sunday, during a contest be played to swell Christmas charity funds. The football was received today on the Naval academy, autographed by twenty-one Middies.

The New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals will stage the world series all over again in the south next spring but this time there will be no title at stake. When the American league magnates in Chicago changed the rule banning world title contenders from meeting the following year, the teams arranged a tour of the south together. They will play in Atlanta March 1, Birmingham, Nashville, Chattanooga, Montgomery, and other cities before March 7 to let Dixie see how Babe Ruth and Grover Alexander attained their heroes' robes.

Lloyd Hahn, crack Nebraska miler of the Boston A. A. is ready for the indoor track season after a long rest. With Jimmy Connolly, former Georgetown star, he seems the hope of American forces in coming distance duels with Edwin Wide, hte Swedish schoolmaster, who recently took the measure of Paavo Nurmi. Wide is due here January 2 to compete in the Brooklyn Knights of Columbus games January 6, and other meets.

Jake Schaefer, world's 18.1 balkline billiard champion, sailed for France yesterday to meet the leading caroms experts of Europe in a series of exhibitions. His two-month tour will take him through France, Belgium, England, Germany and Switzerland, and he hopes to meet Roger Conti, former champion, and Felix Grange, present European champion, as well as Edouard Horemans, of Belgium at match play.

The featherweight division with various title claimants since Kid Kaplan, of Meriden, [illegible], vacated his championship, probably will find its new leader in the trio of outstanding boxers matched for a tournament at Madison Square Garden. Red Chapman, of Boston, will meet Benny Basa of Philadelphia, January 17. The winner then will have a date with Honeyboy Finnegan, of Boston, some time in February.

CIVIL CASE IN FEDERAL COURT IN SPRINGFIELD

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 16—(AP)—What is believed to be the first civil case heard by a federal court here is that of Mrs. Mary Dunphy Hopper, a teacher in Hartford, Conn., against Jack Morrill of Boston, for $25,000 for personal injuries suffered in an automobile accident in Brookfield in July, 1925, in which the plaintiff's husband was instantly killed and Morrill was seriously injured. All three were in Morrill's car when it crashed into a pole at what is declared to be excessive speed.

RAILROADLESS COUNTRIES OF THE WORLD

"The steam engine is about to invade the only 'railroadless country of Europe,'" says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "For Albania is planning the construction of a 24 mile road from Durazzo, on the Adriatic coast, to Tirana.

"Thus Albania parts company with Afghanistan, Asir, Bhutan, Nepal, Oman and Yeman, in Asia, and Liberia on the west coast of Africa.

"Liberia is probably the only one of the seven countries that would have a railroad if it could," continues the bulletin. "The other six are voluntary adherents to a policy of 'splendid isolation,' and efforts to establish twentieth century commercial facilities have met with disaster.

"Largely due to the lack of funds, the little Negro republic, which is about the size of Indiana, has hardly scratched the surface of its resources. For some 50 or 60 miles back of the coast, the land has been cleared and partly developed, but from that imaginary line inland there are dense forests and extremely primitive peoples. The president of Liberia visited the United States in 1921 to secure credit for his country, which has always been considered potentially one of the richest corners of Africa.

"With the investment of American capital, notably the establishment of a great rubber plantation; and the development of the country by a progressive local administration, the thousands of Negro porters who now carry huge loads of 'freight' on their heads, will, perhaps, soon give way to more modern transportations.

"Afghanistan is the largest of these railroadless countries—about 14 miles larger than Albania, yet no railroads or telegraph lines cross its border. The Amir has consistently objected to these facilities for fear of opening his domain to aliens who are no more welcome now than they were a century ago. Only a few foreigners, mostly British have been allowed to enter the country for short sojourns. Foreign engineers and doctors whose services are badly needed, if allowed to cross the border by the grace of the Amir, are subject to surveillance. Ambassadors, ministers, and even missionaries, are unwelcome.

"Camels and pack horses are depended upon almost entirely for transportation in Afghanistan, but it is not uncommon to see elephants and even wheelbarrows on the trails. Some of the caravans number more than 120,000 animals, loaded with skins, dried fruits, assorted gums, and spices.

"To insure complete isolation, the few roads into the country are well guarded. The chief route lies through Khyber pass, the largest gateway from India. It is open two days a week except in hot weather when it is available one day only. The Amir's agents scrutinize all who pass the gateway and even Moslem caravan guides are displaced by Afghans who proceed inland. From sun-down to sun-up, the pass is closed to all traffic.

Nepal and Bhutan, lying among the peaks of the Himalayas; the former with Mount Everest, the highest peak in the world, along its border, have only slight hopes of extensive railroad transportation. To traverse or tunnel the Himalayas would be a herculean task.

"While Bhutan displays some friendliness toward foreigners, Nepal is another country that is none to anxious for visitors. The roads piercing the border of Nepal are purposely kept in bad shape and built over unnecessarily difficult country. With the exception of the British resident and a few other European officials, no one is allowed to visit the country without special permission from the Durbar. When permits are issued, visitors must travel by one particular route and they are not allowed to go begond the Valley of Katmandu, a tract of country about 300 square miles. In consequence of this seclusion, the internal administration has remained almost entirely unaffected by modern influence.

"The 'no treespassing' sign also isolates Yemen, Asir and Oman from progressive development. These states are little more than oases on the rim of the Arabian peninsula, with their back doors opening into the great desert. Yemen and Asir border the Red Sea which, we are told, the children of Israel crossed dry-shod, and have existed there with little change since that time.

Love makes a man think almost as much of a girl as he does of himself.

DANIELSON TOWN TEAM GETS REVENGE ON TAFTVILLE CELTICS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 16—Before a large and enthused crowd of fans the Danielson Town team, led by Captain Teddy Reeves, defeated the fast Taftville Celtics in town hall here tonight by the score of 33 to 21, in what might be considered a rather rough game of basketball but which gave the fans a real thrill from start to finish. The first half ended with the town team leading 14 to 11 and with every man working hard for the victory. In the last half the teams evened the score with about five minutes to play and from then on it was uncertain as to winner.

The teams played nip and tuck until the last five minutes when Danielson began to take the lead by some the cleverest and fastest basketball seen on the local floor in weeks. With only a few minutes left of the game, Bill Armington, Danielson's fast center, caged three handsome baskets and just before the final whistle L. Poirier made one of the prettiest shots ever seen in the town hall, a wonderful, one-hand, over-hand shot which brought the crowd to its feet. Reeves, Godrean and Keech played a hard game from start to finish and the fans cheered them time after time. Armington, without question was the star for the local being responsible for 17 points and holding his man down to two baskets. The honors were equally divided for the opponents. Kip Brundage refereed a fine game and showed the fans that he was able to keep the teams under control at all times.

In the preliminary game and the fast Plainfield Buddies played a team led by Gordon Gale and were defeated 40 to 14. Jawroski and Gale starred for the Danielson boys. The summary:

WESTERLY

COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS OBSERVANCE PLANNED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 16—Westerly will not be without its Community Christmas tree this year for on the front lawn of Christ Episcopal church, corner of Broad and Elm street, such an illuminated tree will be erected. About it on Christmas eve, carols will be sung. Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector of Christ church, is sponsoring the project and a general invitation has been extended the people of Westerly and vicinity to be present and participate in the observance.

Nine o'clock Friday evening is the time set, at which time it is thought that time may be taken by last minute shoppers and many store clerks will have opportunity in being down town to attend also. The carol singing will be led by the choir of Christ Episcopal church, of which Mrs. Charles S. Larkin is the organist and chorister.

NEW SEAGRAVE PUMPER TO BE GIVEN A TRY-OUT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 16—The 1,000-gallon Seagraves pumper, recently contracted for by the Westerly Fire district, and which arrived from the factory, South Columbus, O., the first of the week, will be given an all-day tryout Friday.

W. A. Easterling, engineer from Boston, who is here with the pump, received word that the underwriters would arrive on the 10:33 train, and the pump will be in position when they arrive.

The location selected for the test is on Commerce street at the Sherman wharf. The Seagrave corporation, as well as the engineers of the Westerly Fire district are anxious that the people of Westerly see the pump when it is in action.

Under the test the pump will be obliged to deliver 1,000 gallons a minute for a two-hour period and will undergo a three-hour pumping period altogether. When it is delivering 1,000 gallons a minute it will be obliged to keep a pressure of 120 pounds. The third hour of the period will be taken up with different tests under a higher pressure.

According to Engineer Easterling, a similar Seagraves pumper has been acquired by the fire department of Woonsocket, and the Boston branch is about to deliver another pumper to the city of Methuen, Mass.

Mrs. Michael H. Scanlon left Thursday morning for a visit in Providence.

Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck left Wednesday evening for a business visit in New York.

D. W. Clarke of New Haven left Westerly Thursday afternoon for Providence.

C. H. Arnold of Providence was a motor caller in Westerly Wednesday afternoon.

Walter L. Clarke was in Norwich Thursday.

William Brennan of Pawcatuck motored Thursday evening to East Greenwich, and Providence.

Christmas day at noon, the Sir Knights of Narragansett commandery, No. 27, Knights Templars, Arthur J. Card, eminent commander, will assemble at their asylum, where in the armory, in accordance with the annual custom, Christmas greetings will be exchanged, and the Knights Templar grand master toasted.

The assemblage will convene at 11:30 o'clock in compliance with the general order of Right Eminent Grand Commander James A. Gunn, of Turners Falls, Mass. A Christmas toast will be given to Grand Master George W. Valley of Denver, Col., of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of America. The committee for the Westerly observance consists of Past Commanders, J. Albert Pawson, chairman; Arthur R. Thompson, Esq., Sir Arthur J. Card, ex officio, and Sir Knights Francis M. Johnson and George Elmer Leonard.

Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock the funeral of Mrs. Sabatino Lombardo was held from her home, 26 Noyes avenue, Pawcatuck. High mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Michael Keating at St. Michael's church at 9 o'clock. Burial was in St. Michael's new cemetary, where the committal service was by Fr. Keating. The bearers were Joseph Giallluca, Nicola Lorello, Dominic Mattasa, Paul Libanti, John Libanti and Joseph Machioni.

Funeral services for William R. Dove, of Millville, N. J., a former Westerly resident, whose death occurred in Hahnneman hospital, Philadelphia, following an operation Sunday were conducted at 2 o'clock at Christ Episcopal church Westerly. Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, the rector read the service. Two hymns were sung by Mrs. Jessie Davidson and Harry Coleman. The bearers were Robert Mason, Charles Peckham, Frank Greenman and John Davis. Burial was in Oak Grove cemetery, Ashaway.

The Westerly Players' club Wednesday evening at the United theater was greeted with an audience which nearly filled the house to witness the presentation of "Captain Applejack," Walter Hackett's former Broadway success. The size of the crowd and the general success of the undertaking proved that the Little Theatre movement started by the local dramatic club has taken a firm hold in this community and that the proposition to have a house of their own in or near Wilcox park, may not be as visionary as at first supposed.

Prominent men and women of the town were patrons and patronesses for "Captain Applejack." The production was staged under the general direction of Miss Mary M. Whipple, a graduate of Emerson College of Oratory, who has had much experience in coaching dramatic and rhetorical work. Players and their parts were: Lush, Elvin Andrews; Poppy Fairs, Helen Greene; Mrs. Agatha Whatcombe, Mrs. Emma Critcherron; Ambrose Applejack, George Chapman; Anna Valeska, Ruth Coy; Mrs. Pengard, Rose Bannon; Horace Pengard, William Critcherson; Ivan Borolsky, Alfred Havens; Palmer, Virginia Davis; Dennet, Richard Richmond; Johnny Jason, Charles F. Hammond; pirates, Lewis R. Greene, Thomas Perry, William B. Utter, Ralph H. Koelb, Joel P. Sherman, Isaac G. Smith, Myles Brennen, Richard J. Richmond.

The executive staff comprised Miss Katherine Forter, Angelo Gencarello, Elvin Andrews, Charles F. Hammond, Mrs. S. H. Davis, Isaac G. Smith, Mrs. Helen J. D. Smith, Miss Ruth V. Davis and Miss Mary C. Wilcox.

The ushers, in picturesque pirate costumes, were Misses Virginia Collins, Jean McDonald, Libera Ruga, Mary Turco, Martina Giannoni, Stanzeri Edwards, Julia Stable, Mary Conway and Honor Randall.

Harold W. Merrill post, No. 16, American Legion, Wednesday evening installed officers elected two weeks ago and had a salad supper. These officers were inducted by Department Commander Walter F. Thorp of Westerly, who also is retiring commander of Merrill post: Commander, Abial B. Brown; first vice commander, John L. Sullivan; second vice commander, Edward W. Smith; chaplain, the Rev. A. L. Schoning; adjutant, D. Gerard Shea; treasurer, Robert M. Freestone; sergeant-at-arms, James L. Rose; historian, H. Russell Burdick; executive committee, Walter F. Thorp, Harold Barber, George Kemp, R. E. Trainer and John Smith; finance committee, Franklin C. Smith, J. Harold Kenyon and John H. Farnsworth; social committee, James Agras, Edwin Barber, Jr., Charles B. Price, William S. Critcherson and James I. Rose; house committee Tony Turo and Frank Colosi; publicity committee, Frank M. Mills and Frank W. Stolpe.

NOANK

The Young fishing fleet returned from Block Island after two days fishing and found the fish running well. Five boats brought in over 120 barrels, each boat getting over 20 barrels. The fish fell off for the last week, but now the cold and snow have brought them into shore. The fish was shipped by trucks from the packing house dock to Fulton market, where the market is fair. The boats that made the trip were Idella, Baby, Sarah, Ada, Ethel H., and Julia B.

John Jenesson of New York is home on a short visit with his family.

Norbert Hill of White Plains, N. Y., spent Wednesday in the village.

George Adams has returned from a visit at Scotland lane.

New Nuggets basketball team is to play the Blue Devils Five from New London for the benefit of Noank Fire company. These Blue Devils are a fast bunch and have not lost a game this season, playing the best teams around. The Nuggets will have Deveau at forward in the place of Ebbetts; he has showed up well and has a keen eye for the hoop so will make any team go the limit for a victory. Dancing will follow the game. Walter Welles, known as Light Foot Jake, will give an exhibition of the latest Charleston.

John Cammery has left for a few days visit in Springfield with friends.

Mike Langman while ceiling Wednesday morning near Mystic Island with his pal hit something that shook the spear. In some way he lost his balance and fell into the water but he held on to his spear and his pal pulled him into the row boat. He had a 3 1-2 lb. eel, which he saved by not letting the spear go to the bottom. The men rowed to shore and landed at Rogers' dock. Longman went home to get dry and he is no worse for his wetting, although he said the water was sure cold and he thinks that Indian summer has ended. They got a good catch of eels, but the big one was the largest eel brought in this season to any local fish market.

Edward Ashly has returned from a visit at Hallville with friends.

Coast Guard boat No. 2204 was in the harbor Wednesday and touched at the north dock. The crew went ashore and supplies were put aboard.

When the snow came on Wednesday afternoon that covered the ice and made the walking bad and hard on the automobiles, one auto was coming from the way of New London and got on Fort Hill when the car hit some ice. The driver lost control of the wheel and the auto hit a pole. The bump damaged the car but no one was hurt and after a while the car was taken away. Fort Hill is bad if it is not known and automobile drivers have to drive along slowly, in winter weather as when the ice is on the hill and covered with snow, that is the time accidents happen.

Jack Lane of New London was a recent caller in the village.

Evergreens are plenty and many of the local people motored several miles out of the village and filled their cars. One man made over 200 wreaths for Christmas use.

William Banks has returned from Block Island.

Dale Alrigh has gone to Preston City for a few days visit with relatives.

Edward Ellis has returned to his duties at the Sea Sled plant in West Mystic after being ill at his home for a week.

Sidney Butson has left for a visit in Cambridge, Mass., for a week with friends.

ROAD SOCIETY

Nelson Wheeler is on a business trip to New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Wheeler were callers on Mrs. Wheeler's mother, Mrs. Marriott of Fort Hill, early in the week.

Fred Stedman met with a painful accident on Monday by catching his hand in a sawing machine which severed several fingers. He was attended by a physician and later taken to the hospital.

Mrs. Edmund Burdick entertained about 15 friends one evening recently.

Miss Ethel J. R. C. Noyes of Milford, Penn., has announced her engagement to Dr. Robert Markley, the wedding to take place within a few months. Miss Noyes is a descendant of Rev. James Noyes and gave an account of his life at the 250th anniversary exercises at the Road church two years ago.

Miss Grace D. Wheeler was in Old Mystic on Friday and sold the house of the late Mrs. Jane Dean, of whose estate she has been trustee for 11 years.

Henry Mell of Mystic has been a guest of his brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mell.

Mrs. Eugene Palmer leaves Saturday for a visit with her children in Providence.

Mrs. William Billings spent Monday with her aunt, Mrs. Austen of Westerly.

Miss Murial Miner is caring for Mrs. J. Warren Wheeler who has been very ill for a number of weeks.

Mrs. L. MacLennan and Miss Delia Williams of Old Mystic were at Maple Lawn on Tuesday.

With $1,463 in bills tied to her legs with strings, Mrs. Bessie Greenberg, 70, was found dead in her room in Springfield, a victim of accidental gas poisoning. The woman's only ostensible support had been $3 weekly supplied to her by two of her children on court order.

Warming, keen and night an Insulated Glenwood will remind her of your thoughtfulness in selecting a Christmas Gift that saves her hours of work and worry.

Glenwood RANGES Oven Heat Control

At the age of your daughter—the secret of perfect baking. Just set the indicator.

Insulated, heat-holding oven walls. Bakes as evenly as an old Dutch oven. It is "Fireless" cooking improved because the heat is accurately controlled—no guesswork about it. Ventilated so it broils without smoke or odors and carries away steam and moisture, allowing boiling and stewing in the oven at a substantial saving.

GREECE AND JUGOSLAVIA STILL DIFFER ON SCHOOLS

Jugoslav officials have declared that Jugoslavia has not the slightest intention of obtaining from Greece that part of Greek territory inhabited by Slavs. Those territories, they assert, is Greek by treaty and there is no reason why Slavs in that region should not become good Greek citizens.

However in order for Greece obtaining Jugoslavia to be permitted to have Greek schools, it is necessary for the Greek government to accord the same privileges to the Slavs of Greece. It is pointed out that Greeks forced their way into a state [illegible] in the new locality of Florina, burned all the Slav books. Gen. Pangalos, speaking for the Greeks, said he considered the rights of the minorities as sacred and to be protected by the state.

These two statements show the official points of view of the two governments on one ticklish question that is preventing the two countries from getting together. Until this problem and others, as, for instance, the Jugoslav outlet through Saloniki, are settled, there is no chance for a Balkan Locarno.

Enriched by Dead Sea

Riches in the Dead sea soon may make of Palestine a land of plenty. Rights of exploitation of the vast qualities of chemicals in it recently were offered for sale.

The supply of potash in the waters is considered inexhaustible. Common salt would be obtained in such tremendous quantities that the problem would be how to get rid of it, says Popular Science. It might have to be dumped back into the sea after more valuable salts had been extracted by a system of evaporation and crystallization that is very rapid, on account of the stifling heat in the Jordan valley.

Transportation from the Dead sea to the Mediterranean is the greatest difficulty foreseen.

Your wife, as well as your sins, will find you out.

INTENTIONAL SECOND EXPOSURE

WILLIAM A. LARNED, SEVEN TIMES NAT'L TENNIS CHAMPION, COMMITTED SUICIDE

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (AP)—Despondent as a result of ill health and the prospect of being a chronic invalid after years of outdoor sports life, William Augustus Larned, seven times national tennis champion, committed suicide today.

His body, clad in pajamas, was found in his room at the Knickerbocker club with a bullet hole through the head. He was 54 years old.

Clubman, all-round sportsman, rider and aviator, Larned ended a life that until recent years was rich in colorful activity, internationally famous as a tennis player he was the first of the modern hard-hitters and volleyers to gain the peak of the court. He also was a crack rifle shot, a star hockey player and an ardent follower of the fox hounds.

Rheumatism, developing into partial paralysis of his legs, cut short Larned's tennis career in 1911, after he had won the national singles title five years in succession. He never fully recovered from the effects of this ailment, which kept him confined at one time in recent years for about six months, and friends today ascribed the suicide to the influence of his physical disability.

Although obliged to use a cane in walking, he was apparently on the road to recovery until a few months ago. A relapse resulted in his doctor forbidding him to engage in any outdoor activity, even to drive his automobile. According to his physician, Dr. Boiling Lee, a nervous breakdown, suffered two years ago, was a "direct cause of his act."

Although a business venture of recent years—manufacture of a steel-framed tennis racquet which he invented—was said not to have come up to expectations, friends of Larned denied that any financial worries figured in his action. He was said to be well to do. He was a member of the New York stock exchange for several years, selling his seat in 1922 for $98,000.

Larned ranked among the greatest tennis stars America has ever produced. His achievement in holding the national singles title seven times 1901-02 and 1907-11—matched the record of the first recognized champion, R. D. Sears, who held the crown seven straight years, 1881 to 1887.

Larned played on six American Davis cup teams, 1902, 1903, 1905, 1908, 1909 and 1911, but participated in the challenge round of the international team championship only four times. He won 10 out of 16 Davis cup matches but figured in an American team triumph only once. In 1902 when he combined with Holcombe Ward, Malcolm Whitman and Dwight Davis, now secretary of war, to beat Great Britain, three matches to two.

Larned first gained tennis fame while a student at Cornell university, winning the intercollegiate championship in 1892. Although regarded by some of the "old school," he was also the first of so-called modern type of hard-hitters and "net stormers." Like the recent six-time champion, "Big Bill" Tilden, Larned painstakingly developed an all-round game, which veterans declare had no weakness. He was a consummate strategist and a keen student of the game.

Larned was No. 1 on the American ranking list eight times, a record which no other player has ever touched. Altogether he was ranked in the "first ten" every year from 1892 to 1911 with the exception of 1898 when he was out of competition.

Commenting on Larned's game, Geo. T. Adee, a close friend of the former champion's and one-time president of the United States Lawn Tennis association, declared:

"Billy was a pioneer in developing the all-court game. He suffered many early reverses but stuck to his guns until he reached the top. He had a fine backhand and service as well as a smashing fore-hand. He was one of the first to employ effective use of the volley and was particularly deadly overhead."

Larned was fast bringing his game to its peak at the time the Doherty brothers of England became famous. He repelled the challenge of Reginald Doherty for the national championship in 1902 but the following year lost the title to Hugh Doherty.

Larned had a notable war record. He went to Cuba in 1898 with Colonel Roosevelt's rough riders and fought in the battle of San Juan hill.

One of the first civilians to take up aviation, he was commissioned a major upon America's entrance into the World war in 1917 and put in charge of developing aviation personnel.

BIG CHRISTMAS GIFT FOR U. S. STEEL COMMON STOCKHOLDERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—A $200,000,000 Christmas gift in the form of a 40 per cent stock dividend today came as a reward to common stockholders of the United States Steel corporation after years of waiting to share in the company's huge surplus of more than $500,000,000.

At the same time, directors of the Crucible Steel corporation increased the annual common dividend from $5 to $6, marking the second jump of $1 this year. Directors of the U. S. Industrial Alcohol company resumed dividends on the common at the rate of $5 a year and several smaller companies joined the pre-Christmas chorus of well-being by continuing or increasing returns to stockholders.

The finance committee and the board of directors of the world's largest steel company unanimously approved a proposal to increase the common stock by 2,032,210 shares, subject to the ratification of stockholders at their annual meeting next April. This action represents the capitalization of some $200,000,000 of the corporation's surplus and will mean the distribution to share holders of one of the largest dividends ever paid by an industrial company. The market value of the new shares, if it could be computed at today's closing price of around $155, would be approximately $315,000,000, but the price will be automatically reduced when the additional stock is issued next spring. The new stock probably will be traded in on a "when issued" basis within the next few days.

Albert H. Gary, veteran chairman of the steel corporation, in the presence of J. P. Morgan, George F. Baker and other directors, made the announcement of the proposed dividend late this afternoon after a day of hectic trading in the stock. "It is believed," he said, "that the property conditions and earning capacity of the corporation justify the proposed action at this time."

"On the unanimous recommendation of the finance committee," an official statement said, "the board of directors of the United States Steel corporation has unanimously voted to recommend to the stockholders, at the regular annual meeting of the corporation to be held on the third Monday of April, 1927, that the common capital shares of the corporation be increased by 2,033,210 shares, which is equivalent to 40 per cent of the present outstanding shares, for the purpose of distributing the same as an extra special dividend to the common stockholders."

Testing Concrete

The bureau of standards has developed an electrical device called a "telemeter" to measure accurately the stresses and changes of pressure in a solid concrete structure, says Popular Science Monthly. The telemeter consists of a stack of carbon disks, both ends of which are connected by electric wires with recording instruments. The electrical resistance of the carbon disks varies with the pressure put upon them.

A concrete dam in course of construction in California will be tested to the breaking point by the new device. While the liquid concrete is being poured the carbon disks, placed in cartridges will be inserted into it and the necessary connecting wires will furnish a complete record of the increasing pressure and the resulting stresses.

Mr. and Mrs. Axel T. Pihl of Hartford announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Pihl and Charles Boothroyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Boothroyd of Rockville, on Tuesday. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride.

White Ants

Determination of the species of destructive termite or "white ant" that may be proving itself a menace in any given locality is expected to be made possible by a study of the peculiar protozoa that live in their digestive tracts and help the insects to assimilate their diet of wood, according to preliminary studies made by Dr. Alfred Emerson, of the University of Pittsburgh; Dr. Harold Kirby, Jr., of Yale university, and Dr. T. E. Snyder, of the United States bureau of entomology. Sometimes the insects captured are too young to tell apart, Dr. Snyder explains, and sometimes only mangled or fragmentary specimens are obtainable. But the minute animals that live inside them are just as different from each other as their hosts, and thus may afford a clew to the identity of the latter.

Italy Guards Antiques

In Italy one of the most serious crimes is the stealing or unauthorised excavation, of antiquities. The government claims as its property all objects of artistic or archeological interest over 100 years old, and permits for their exportation are obtained only rarely and with difficulty.

Rights to excavate or even to study while excavations are proceeding are rarely granted to foreign students.

The other day some archeological pickpockets who removed some ancient vases and marbles from tombs that were being excavated near Cemecchio were convicted in court. The leader was sentenced to seven years in prison—a punishment rare in Italy for any crime less than murder.

Cooking by Exhaust

A mechanic of Columbus, Ohio, has invented a device by which motorists may now utilize the exhaust from their motors to cook their camp suppers, says Scientific American. The contrivance uses a small petcock to close the exhaust pipe. A pipe connection is fitted to the exhaust manifold and joints with a round circular burner. This burner is provided with circular ribs, to prevent exhaust flames from jumping. Similar ribs are built to the bottom of pots and frying pans to obtain a maximum of heat. When the motor is idle the exhaust heat is forced through the burner. Sufficient heat is generated for any outdoor cooking.

Sheer silks are in strong favor for the coming season, a good share of the present demand being for these kinds. Chiffons are considered particularly good, and interest is also shown in georgettes and the finer crepes. Flat crepe is another outstanding fabric.

Why the Experienced Buyer Always Gets the Best Values!

IT is often difficult for inexperienced buyers to distinguish between false and true values. But in the end the real worth and value of merchandise, whether it be food, clothing, motor cars, coal or lumber, will prevail.

Buying experience teaches us to place our faith with merchants who have the best reputation. We believe that we have such a reputation. Our name on a vehicle which carries a ton of coal, or a load of lumber is a pledge of honest value from a concern that has not violated its trust in ninety years.

Every time a load of coal or lumber leaves our yards, it is but another link in the golden chain that ties the patronage to this concern. Ask anyone who knows our history and background and they will tell you that you cannot buy Edward Chappell quality at less than Edward Chappell prices.

Experienced buyers will tell you that we serve you honestly and truly. They will tell you that we stock only the highest quality of merchandise obtainable. Whatever your needs are in coal and lumber you will find our products best suited to your purpose.

"COURTEOUS SERVICE" — OUR MOTTO

Foolish Curiosity.
The curious are sometimes foolish
And will persist in being foolish.
—Brother North Wind.

Jerry Muskrat, having had a narrow escape, began to wonder whom he had escaped from. The more he wondered, the more he wanted to know. He tried not to think about it, but the more he tried not to think about it the more he did think about it. That is the way in this world. So the last thing before he went to sleep and the first thing when he woke up he was wondering who it was that had so nearly caught him in his snow tunnel on the Green Meadows.

"I don't know how he knew I was there, and I wish I did know," Jerry would say to himself. "He couldn't have seen me and he couldn't have smelled me. Yet he knew exactly where I was, for he broke right down through that crust and almost got me by the tail." Then it came to Jerry that eyes and nose were not the only instruments for finding out things. "It must have been his ears," exclaimed Jerry, and he exclaimed right out loud.

"I don't know," replied Jerry. "That is what I want to find out."

"It must have been whose ears?" demanded Mrs. Jerry, who had waked up from a nap just in time to hear what Jerry was saying.

"I don't know," replied Jerry. "That is what I want to find out."

"Why don't you know?" demanded Mrs. Jerry. "You don't talk sense, Jerry Muskrat. No, sir, you don't talk sense."

Now Jerry hadn't told Mrs. Jerry about that narrow escape he had had. In fact, he hadn't told her that he had made a tunnel under the snow on the Green Meadows. Now he told her all about it. "I've just got to find out who it was," said he.

"For goodness sake, Jerry Muskrat, don't be any more foolish than you've been already," retorted Mrs. Jerry, and yawning, resumed her nap.

Jerry fooled around a while. Then he swam under the ice over to the castle in the bank and up to the back door of that same castle. He poked his head out into the tunnel under the snow. "I wish," said he, "I dared go out there again. If I move very quietly I should be able to get out there without any one up above hearing me. Whoever it was who tried to catch me must have heard me, and I certainly would like to know who it was."

But before he started out along that tunnel another idea came to him. "That tunnel may be watched," said he to himself. "Whoever it was who tried to catch me may have come back to look for me. I believe I'll dig a little tunnel off to one side and then dig up until I can put my head outside and look around. I know what I'll do. I remember that there is a big bunch of grass off to one side. I'll tunnel over until I find that. Then I'll dig up right in the middle of that bunch of grass."

So Jerry went to work at once. He dug and dug, and finally he came to the bunch of grass. Then very cautiously he began to dig up until he touched the crust that covered the Green Meadows. He had to use his teeth on this. All the time he was doing it he was in fear that some one would hear him. So it was that it was some time after he had gnawed through that crust before he dared to poke his head up outside. When he did, he poked it up quickly and drew it back just as quickly. But it was up long enough for him to take a hasty glance in all directions, and he saw that the way was clear. So right away he poked his head up again, and this time he kept it up.

Now Jerry's eyes are not the best of eyes, but they were good enough this time for him to see at no very great distance an old acquaintance. It was Reddy Fox. Reddy was walking slowly and carefully on the crust. Suddenly he gathered his back feet together, jumped high in the air and came down on the crust with all his might. The crust broke, and he began to dig.

Jerry grinned delightedly. "So that was the fellow!" he exclaimed. "He must be hunting Meadow Mice now. But I was the one he was after the other day. Now I know how he did it, and I'm satisfied. No more snow tunnels for me!"

ONLY 10 OF COUNTY'S DELEGATION ARE SINGLE

In the New London county delegation in the next session of the general assembly which comes in on Jan. 5, the married men outnumber the single men three to one. Of the three senators and 30 representatives, only 10 are single.

Of the total number of county members in the legislature, all but eight are native born sons of Connecticut. The "aliens" are Representatives John M. Mallon, Jr., of New London, who was born in Brooklyn; Hiram W. Shriver, of Groton, born in Kingston, N. Y.; Benjamin L. Mull of Mystic, born in East Marion, N. Y.; Andrew G. Littlefield, Lebanon, born at Manchester, N. H.; Ledyard S. Anthony, North Stonington, born at Jamestown, R. I.; Thomas R. Ball, Old Lyme, born in New York city; Frederick W. Jacques, Waterford, born in Monroe, N. Y., and William B. Mitchell, Preston, born in Westerly, R. I.

The youngest member of the county's delegation is Representative Charles N. Brush of Bozrah, 31-year-old electrician, and the oldest is Representative Billings T. Avery of Ledyard, 70-year-old farmer.

Of the four newspapermen who will sit with the legislature, two are from New London county. They are Senator J. James Floyd of Waterford, representing the 20th senatorial district, and Representative John M. Mallon, Jr., representing New London, both of The New London Day. The other two newspapermen are Representative Joseph T. St. Louis of Waterbury, feature writer for the Waterbury American and Republican, and Representative Arthur S. Barnes of Bristol, editor of the Bristol Press.

The extensive use of containers made of chocolate in which smugglers ship intoxicants in the guise of candy is threatening to "reduce to ashes" British Columbia's liquor control act.

MUSSOLINI SEES NEED OF FRANCO-ITALIAN AGREEMENT

ROME, Italy, Dec. 16.—(AP)—A Franco-Italian agreement is one of the fundamental necessities of European evolution, Premier Mussolini told a correspondent of the Associated Press in a cordial interview in which he explained to the American public for the first time the cardinal principles inspiring his foreign policies.

The duce's guiding idea, he declared, is the necessity for providing for Italy's crying need for moral, spiritual and physical expansion by means of a pacific, but not pacifist policy. The fulfillment of these needs, far from being incompatible with friendship and cooperation with other nations, really requires cooperation and mutual understanding with them, notably with France and England.

Mussolini declared himself to be a firm believer in the restoration of the European balance of power in a formula best adapted for the maintenance of peace.

Referring to the so-called Asiatic peril, he urged the necessity of abandoning the tendency to regard Asiatics as barbarians, giving as his opinion that all peril from the Orient will have ceased to exist when the mental barriers between the eastern and western popies are broken down.

The leader of fascism received the Associated Press correspondent in his spacious office in Chigi palace. His face beamed with health and vigor despite the fact that the reception came after a six hour long constant stream of interviews with cabinet ministers and officials. The anti-chambers outside were crowded with waiting visitors. Inside, except for the sound of an automobile horn from the crowded Corso Umberto, which is Rome's busiest thoroughfare, everything was quiet and peaceful, as Mussolini set forth succinctly his ideas of Italy's role in the world.

"I am entirely in favor of the restoration of balance and equilibrium of forces in a formula most adapted for maintaining peace," the premier declared. "I believe that if we place two identical weights on the two sides of an ideal weighing balance equilibrium, in theory, they should be maintained indefinitely. But if we place in them a living organism in perpetual growth the index of the scales will be changed with a velocity equal to that of the difference between the development of the two organisms. The organism which is developing itself with the greater rapidity will soon surpass the weight of the other and will cause the scales to tip in its favor.

"Equilibrium between peoples, which are the most living of all organisms, must therefore be continually re-established.

"In what I have said you will find the answer to the question so often asked of our colonial aspirations and desires. One must not describe Italy as though she were laying in hiding behind a hedge ready to jump at the throat of the first passing nation, to tear a colony from her hands. This Italian attitude, created in bad faith by the fantasy of certain of our adversaries is absolutely non-existent.

"We do not believe that it is as yet possible in the present phase of world evolution to abolish war absolutely, and we are therefore trying to be ready to defend ourselves at any moment and against anybody. But I know that the Italian people needs first of all above all to work.

"Therefore, although our policy is not 'pacifist' in the Utopian sense of the word, it is however, essentially 'pacific'. Moreover, I have demonstrated this by the numberous pacts I have concluded at every time and in every place possible, and I shall continue firmly along this road.

"I have firm faith that urgent problems of Italian expansion can be resolved by these methods. This faith is based upon recognition of the fact that our greatest problem has been understood throughout the world. The newspapers of all countries, from Scandinavia to America, publish articles explaining and discussing Italian needs and proposing a means of satisfying them.

"I can almost say it has become an international problem. It is international in fact because it is to the interest of everybody that Italians do not suffocate every hour more surely in their narrow borders.

Turning to relations with France, the premier maintained that the incidents between the two nations were due to the machinations of a few individuals.

"These incidents," he said, "were due, above all, to little groups of troublemakers, who, beyond the Alps, are composed of conspirators hostile to the fascist regime, who have settled on French territory, and of groups on this side of the Alps formed often of persons expelled from the fascist party and of agents provocateurs.

"Against the disturbers in our own house we have taken the steps required by the occasion. Moreover these incidents can not and must not disturb in any way relations between the two governments, still less the relations between two peoples which have the same blood. In fact, I consider a Franco-Italian agreement as one of the fundamental necessities of European evolution.

"The problem of a change of statute is on the way to a satisfactory solution. The other problem of the situation of the Italian colonies in the regency of Tunis is of vital interest to us. When the moment is propitious, the friendly discussion of it can also be taken up."

Handy Flashlamp

A new flashlamp, designed to aid the man who needs both hands on the job, has just been developed by a New York manufacturer, says Scientific American.

It differs from the conventional style of flashlight in that the lens is on the side instead of at the end. It is equipped with a steel clip, which makes it possible to attach the flashlight to a belt or pocket and throw a beam of light upon the task to be done, leaving both hands free for the work. It is particularly adapted for linemen in the employ of public service corporations; for night repairmen in industrial plants; for maintenance gangs; for repair gangs on bridges, culverts, tunnels, etc., and for the lone motorist with engine trouble or a puncture.

Insect Destroys Pines

In the last few years tens of thousands of American trees—enough to build thousands of homes—have been destroyed through the invasion of the great Pacific forests by the pine beetle, an insect that in less than one year can ruin the mightiest pine tree, says Popular Science Monthly.

Evidence recently submitted to the United States senate committee on public lands showed that in a single section of 1,000,000 acres in Klamath county, Ore., lumber destroyed by the pests would have been enough to build not less than 8,000 American residences of an average cost of $12,500 each.

Boston Has Leaning Tower

The Old South Church in Boston, Mass., is that city's leaning tower of Pisa. The only difference is that to the untrained eye the tower of the old church does not appear to lean, yet engineers and architects maintain there is a considerable leaning which is increased from year to year. The inclination has increased three-quarters of an inch in the last 13 years. The total lean at the top is said to be between 2 and 3 feet.

Radio Sea-Shell

One South Salem radio enthusiast has a loud speaker which he made from a large sea-shell. The shell, which is in itself a valuable possession and has been in the man's family for years, has been connected simply with a bit of rubber tape and some wires. It is a most satisfactory, as well as attractive loud speaker.

A woman may not have faith in her physician, but she believes everything the beauty doctors tell her.

TENDENCY TO SLOP OVER.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

It's a long time since I read the old logeerel, and I can't be sure that I quote it correctly, but to the best of my remembrance it ran something like this:

"Go it by all means," the old man said,
As he laid his hand on the young man's head;
"Go it by all means; go it fast;
Go it while money or marbles last;
Paint the town with the reddest red.—
But don't slop over!" the old man said.

My chief criticism of present day youth is not its bad morals. They may be worse than in our time, and they may not be. I don't at this writing recall any former generation which had the right to plume itself on its immaculate morality. "If they do these things in a green tree, what shall they do in a dry?" Probably about the same.

Of course there are differences of method and detail. They don't mix sand with the sugar as they were once reported to do. But they dress "cull" yearlings in fancy ways and sell them for "lamb." A certain sort of women use rouge and lip sticks openly, now, where formerly those of a similar sort painted themselves in private. "Petting parties," so called, are now public displays where they used to be reserved for invited guests only. But this doesn't justify the pot in abusing the kettle for its blackness.

No-o, I don't think any of us old sins have any commission, earned or endowed, authorizing us to sneer at the inferior ethics of the youngsters. We'll do well to leave that to a better qualified tribunal,—one a little less pock-marked.

But we do have some right to criticise the younger generation for its wilful and witless tendency to "slop over" on the slightest provocation.

I remember once seeing a trick gymnast walk a tight rope with a full pail of water in each hand and third balanced on his head. He would have been a handy man round a fire, in the old days of the bucket brigade, eh?—I do not recall that he ever let any of the water slop over. If such a thing had happened it might have interfered with his balance, spoiled the trick, and cost him his job. Which last consideration led him to use perniciously sure.

Yet I know several young farmers who, without much experience and with small skill in balancing things, are trying to carry three or four pails at once, each one containing something more important than water, viz., his chances of success in his work.

There are two definitions of genius which cling to my memory. One is Edison's famous axiom that genius is 2 per cent inspiration and 98 per cent perspiration: the other Huxley's saying that genius usually shows itself in an infinite capacity for taking pains. Both agree in one central idea, as you will see for yourselves if you'll just think it out, that success in accomplishment depends on doing one thing at a time, regardless of side issues, and in doing that one thing well, regardless of the labor and pains involved.

The truth is that genius isn't either as usual or as useful in farm life—or any other everyday phase of life,—as plain common-sense. We're most of us one-bucket chaps, able to carry one pail at a time if we give our whole attention to it, but a trifle over-weighted and wobbly with two. If, by some exceptional chance, some one of us really is a genius, he will do better to wait till circumstance and occasion have demonstrated it, rather than assume himself to be one, off-hand. It's much more consolatory to be invited up to a seat at the first table when you've proved your fitness for the honor, than to be relegated to the scullery after having been found out.

In the meantime it is well to remember that he who is designed and constructed for a one-bucket man can often amount to something and get somewhere with his single bucket-full. If he insists upon trying to carry one in each hand and a third on his head he is extremely likely to let so much slop over that he will reach his destination with less actual fluid for delivery than if he had confined his attention and care to the one bucket, he is capable of handling.

My neighbor Sherman is an outstanding example. He is a good boy and really a bright lad, too. He is strong in arms and legs and mentally quick. Nor is he afraid of work, provided his enthusiasm is aroused. He has, moreover, a shrewd eye for the main chance. Indeed, he sees so many main chances at the same time that he is often somewhat confused in his pursuit of them.

When he began his farming operations he was much excited over the wonderful hay crops produced by Clark of Higganum. He determined to do on 50 acres the same sort of thing Clark had accomplished on his famous 16. So he started out by plowing the 50 acres and working them into the deep, mellow tilth demanded by the Clark system.

But, before he had sowed his grass-seed, he suddenly discovered that alfalfa had crop virtues which mustn't be ignored. So he decided to put half the 50 acres into timothy and red-top, a la Clark, and the other half into alfalfa. This struck him as a veritable stroke of genius. It was guaranteed insurance. If one crop failed, the other would make good.

However, this involved some changes in procedure and, before they were completely done with, he had gone off in a third direction. Chance led him to the possession of some highly pedigreed Airedales, just then in great demand by dog-fanciers, and nature increased their number by several broods of puppies. He saw much profit in them and promptly added to his other activities that of dog-breeder and kennelman.

And these he was, with 25 acres of timothy-red top on one hand, 25 of alfalfa on the other, and an Airdale hanging on his head.

Attempting to carry all three at the same time, all three slopped over on him. He got neither good timothy nor paying alfalfa nor profit from his dogs. The simple reason was that he had to neglect each one for the sake of the others, at the very time when neglect meant disaster.

Then another neighbor, with a flock of perhaps 100 Rhode Island reds, told him that the said fowls had paid an annual profit averaging $1.03 a head for a dozen years. At once Sherman figured it out that if 100 hens earned $103 a year, 1,000 hens would earn $1,030 a year. So he bought incubators and brooders and high-priced setting eggs and set out to keep 3,000 fowls and make better than $3,000 a year from them. Of course, he still had to pay some attention to his timothy-alfalfa-Airedale jobs which prevented him from concentrating whole-heartedly on the Rhode Island reds. The not wholly unprecedented result was that, instead of paying him $3,000 a year, his hens declined to return him the cost of their keep and a decent interest on his investment.

He won't own up beat, however. He's a plucky chap and plans to keep right on trying to equal Higganum on timothy, and Ohio on alfalfa, and Long Island on Airedales, and New Jersey on Rhode Island reds, all at the same time. In addition to which he has now "gone in" for saddle horses. It's as clear as the nose on a pig's face to him that there is big money in horses. You see, automobiles have now become so common that ditch-diggers and window-washers ride to work in their own. Naturally, the real swells are going to lose interest in so plebian a method of transportation. Some of the very niftiest have already gone back to the horse and their imitators are sure to follow. "I tell you," says Sherman, "the man who's got a stable full of wood saddle-horses is going to make big money off them, the next few years, selling to blokes so rich they don't notice the difference between a two-cent postage stamp and a thousand dollar bill."

"That's where Neighbor Sherman is at, today. He's trying to carry not just three but at least five pails of water at the same time. The fact that four of them have already slopped over till they're practically empty doesn't seem to impress him as worthy of a moment's consideration.

You'll be inclined to think that Sherman must be a sort of nut-head. But he isn't. He's really more than usually bright. He can see through a fog farther than most of us, and can often help us to untie knots which are too tangled for our blunt fingers to unsnarl.

He is simply a somewhat exaggerated illustration of the modern spirit which seems to accept blindly the old man's ironic permission to

"Go it by all means, go it fast,
Go it while money or marbles last."

While utterly ignoring his more sincere advice not to "slop over."

One of the various reasons why the old farmers used to make money off farms whereon their descendants can't pay taxes, a living was, that these old fellows were willing to make haste slowly. They had read ancient history to know that Rome wasn't built in a day. And their own experiences had proven to them that it was better to do one thing well than both a half-dozen. They also remembered the parable of the two men who founded their respective houses, the one on a rock and the other on sand. They did not set out to drive their ox-carts through any swamp till they had first tested the route and found it it were feasible.

But the present day tendency of too many is to start out on any sort of road at high speed and trust to luck and their own wits to get through. We don't know where we're going, but we're on our way," seems to be their slogan.

"Never mind how much slops over; there's always more in the well," is what they say, in effect.

They fail to note that almost every well goes dry, sometime or other.

THE FARMER.

EDISON CHAMPIONS MORALS OF YOUNGER GENERATION

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The younger generation was championed for its morals, intelligence and health today by Thomas A. Edison, inventor, in an interview on "The Youth of Today and Tomorrow" in the current issue of the Forum.

Not only are young people not going to the dogs, the inventor told his interviewer, but in the main their morals are better than those of their fathers and grandfathers and much better than those of their remote ancestors.

They are generally healthier, too, he said, because they turn to sport instead of dissipation, and they have better intelligences than persons of similar ages in the '80's. He was, he said, very hopeful of the next generation in America and of the generations to follow.

He urged that reformers leave the "flappers" alone. They are all right, he said. The dress of girls and women is becoming simpler and more beautiful, he observed, and simplicity and beauty of dress he characterized as probably signs of advancing civilization.

Mr. Edison criticized as nonsense the remarks of "an aging English author" that men over 36 should step aside and make room for the younger men. Maturity, he said, did not begin until past 50. The best service which maturity can render youth, he said, was to encourage and forward every worthy form of education. Colleges, he held, are in many details inefficient, but should be supported anyway.

Radio and the scientific discoveries are opening fields for young people intellectually in a few short months that were hardly touched in years of academic teaching. Which generally, he said, had the fault of complexity and dullness.

Youth he believed should be given credit for its "prevailing unrest" and its tendency to doubt has helped clear away many useless mythical tales and legends once called "history."

The world's greatest need today he thought was common sense.

Science by showing the waste of war, would probably do more to abolish the "stupid war idea" he considered than would sentiment.

When asked what career he would have chosen at 20 if he had then his present outlook, Mr. Edison replied:

"I would do exactly as I did originally."

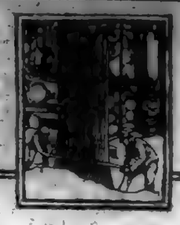
SOW ONLY LOCALLY ADAPTED CLOVER AND ALFALFA SEED

Since clover and alfalfa are two legume crops of great value in maintaining soil fertility and in supplying a high protein roughage, every effort should be made to grow these crops successfully, says the United States department of agriculture.

One of the most important factors in clover growing is the use of locally adapted seed. The clover problem in the northern section of the country centers around seed that is "winter hardy," whereas in the southern clover region the problem is one of disease. A strain of red clover resistant to the anthracnose disease has been developed by the Tennessee agricultural experiment station. The use of such disease-resistant seed instead of the imported seed so often sown would go a long way toward insuring a clover crop from the middle of Ohio southward. Similarly, such varieties of alfalfa as Grimm and Dakota Common are superior to the African seen in the northern states. Turkestan alfalfa is especially undesirable in the humid regions, being much inferior to domestic varieties and strains.

All imported clover and alfalfa seed not adapted to general agricultural uses must, according to a recent act of congress, be denatured when it enters the United States. Seed from Canada that is well adapted for use in our northern states will be stained mauve and sent through all other foreign countries, if admitted to agricultural uses, will be colored green to indicate its foreign origin.

Brigadier General Edwin Winans, commanding the first cavalry division with headquarters at Fort Bliss, Texas, has arrived at Torreon, Mexico, having accepted the invitation of the general commanding the Mexican federal troops in that area to visit him.



Lumber camp cooks praise

BEAN HOLE BEANS

North woods' logging camp cooks themselves were the first to recognize this latest triumph in bean baking.

"You have not only exactly reproduced the 'woods' flavor of genuine 'bean hole' beans," one writes, "but you have also matched the fine eating quality, their color and melting tenderness."

One way to put money into circulation is to lend it to the racetrack.

It's now up to the baffled young man to mistletoe the mark.

CHRISTMAS.

—:O:—

Did you ever go a-shopping when the snow is on the trees,
And the tinkle of a sleighbell comes a-dancing down the breeze?
When the air is cold and tingling,
With the crowds you go a-mingling,
Oh, that's the time of all the year—it's Christmas!

Did you ever notice all the faces round about you?
How they're cheery-like and smiling, through p'raps their elbows bout you?
You never glare, you never scowl,
Perhaps you do let out a howl
But just for joy, because, you see—it's Christmas!

Did you ever wish you had all the money that's a-going?
Wouldn't you just toss it out to the four winds a-blowing?
Bringing someone more success,
To yourself—much happiness,
We would give and give and give—at Christmas!

Did you ever come to wonder, when the day is come and gone,
Where that wondrous spirit is—then so fine and true and strong?
Perhaps we see no more red holly,
Perhaps the crowds seem not so jolly,
But wait—deep down within our hearts—it's Christmas!

—Madeline A. Chaffee.

MARZIE'S FORMAL

Jeffryes looked at his watch. By Jove, it was after 12, and Maizie not at home yet. He placed a bookmark in the volume he was reading and went to the window. There was a cab now. Probably she would be in that.

No, it whizzed by, but there were other cars coming down the street. Surely she would be in one of them. There seemed to be a great many cars on the rather quiet street. Ah, one was stopping.

Oh, well, it wasn't really very late. He wouldn't scold Maizie, dear child; it was her first "formal," and of course she wanted to stay till the thing was over.

A man alighted from the taxi and entered the apartment house next door. He might have known that that young whipper-snapper wouldn't use anything less than a limousine. Youngsters nowadays aren't content with what would have been unheard-of luxury to their parents. Maizie's mother and he had been proud and happy to go to parties in a buggy behind a high-stepping horse.

Those were the days—and the nights! How well he remembered the old dirt road along the river, with the moon shining down between the elms and maples on warm summer evenings, or in winter when the cutter slipped swiftly over the closely packed snow, and Victor, the high-stepper, seemed to be keeping time to the music of the sleigh bells! Perhaps it would have been better after all if he and Mary had never come to the city; but in the country too, the times were changed. The dirt road and even on the prettiest nights processions of motors dashed along it, dimming the moon with their glaring lights.

Great Caesar, nearly 1 o'clock! What could be keeping Maizie? Of course plenty of girls stay out that late, but they hadn't been brought up in the way he had raised his motherless daughter. She had never been out as far as midnight before except when he himself had taken her to the opera and supper afterward. Nobody could say that Maizie had every reasonable pleasure and advantage. Dear child, she had never cared to have many pleasures separate from him. What a companionship! He had been a fool to allow her to go to this absurd "formal" high-school dance. He hadn't supposed it was anything more than a children's party really. What were children coming to these days?

Well, Maizie might feel that he wasn't trusting her, if she found him waiting up at half past 1. Bed was as good a place to wait in as in the window, and there was that corking biography. He liked to read in bed, but hang it all, how hard it was to keep his mind on the book.

Two o'clock and no Maizie. If she weren't home by 2:30 he would telephone. It was all nonsense for a child to stay out until morning. Tire trouble, maybe. If so why in thunder didn't she phone? Holdup? A million things can happen at this hour. A certain young person wouldn't go out very soon again with a "boy friend" if her old father retained his reason.

There, thank goodness, a key in the lock. It was about time, but no use being cross, maybe she couldn't help being so late. If there had been an accident—suppressed giggles and whispers. She's all right, thank heaven, and such a youngster! Some day, worse luck, she'll have to grow up, but not for ages yet.

"Oh, daddy darling, I'm so glad your lights on. I want to tell you what a perfectly gorgeous time I had. It was the loveliest party, and Herbert said my frock was the prettiest one there, and—"

"What made you come home so early?" inquired Jeffryes sarcastically.

"I didn't want to, dad, but I was afraid you might worry, and I just made Herbert bring me. The party will go on for hours yet."

"Umph, hours! It's nearly dawn now. Well, Maizie, I'm glad you had a good time for there won't be another like—"

"No there won't ever be another quite like this," the wide young eyes became misty. "There's never but one time like this. Oh, daddy darling, Herbert is perfectly wonderful. He's coming to dinner tomorrow, and he—he—he'll tell you all about it."

A swift kiss and his little girl was gone. The young scoundrel! He had thought Herbert a nice boy, but of all the colossal nerve! Maizie, a mere baby, not out of her teens. All stuff and nonsense.

He snapped off the light. His gray head sank into the pillow, there was a sigh, the sigh of inevitable, irresistible defeat.—Chicago News.

NEW LONDON CARPENTER INJURED- HAS FALL WHILE REPAIRING ROOF

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 16—Walter Allen, 59, a carpenter, residing at 32 Mercer street, is a patient at Lawrence hospital, suffering from serious injuries consisting of a fractured right thema, fractured right elbow, concussion of the brain and multiple contusions. This morning he fell from one of the buildings of the New London Marine Iron works. Allen, with other carpenters, was making repairs to the roof, when Allen either slipped or lost his balance and fell through the air landing partially on his side on the hard ground. Other workmen went to Allen's assistance and realizing he was seriously injured, a physician was summoned and after a hasty examination he was rushed to the hospital.

CORONER TO INVESTIGATE DEATH OF C. E. BISBAIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 16—Coroner J. J. Desmond of Norwich, will come to New London tomorrow and at 10.30 o'clock at police headquarters will conduct an inquest to determine whether James Wilcox, motorman in the employ of the Connecticut company, is criminally responsible for the death on the night of Dec. 4, of Chas. E. Bisbain, formerly employed at the Rotisserie, Waterford road house. Witnesses who have been summoned are Miss Furrissa Jenkins, Homer L. Marvin, Manuel silva, D. Miller, Manuel Saunders, Miss Julia Moriarty, Patrolman Thomas Cavanaugh and Sergeants John J. Cavanaugh and Nelson H. Smith. Bisbain was in New London on the afternoon of the fatal accident and about 9 o'clock he was on Bank street had lunch in a lunch wagon and started to cross the street from the west to the east side, about 300 feet south of Division street. As he made the attempt he walked in front of the trolley car, which was en route from Ocean Beach to the State street terminal and after clearing the tracks he turned and started back toward the west side of the street. He failed to escape the oncoming car and was struck by its northwest corner, being hurled to the pavements and in front of the car. Before Motorman. Wilcox could bring the car to a stop, Bisbain was caught beneath the brake-rigging and was crushed, sustaining a fractured skull, fracture of both arms and legs and the fracture of several ribs, which punctured his lungs. Bisbain was married and his funeral was held last week, with burial in Jordan cemetery.

NEAT BIT OF THIEVING FROM WATERFORD CAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 16—Joseph Mitchell, employed at the Corticelli Silk Company dye house and residing on the Hoy Plain road, Waterford, drove to New London last evening and parked his automobile on Huntington street, opposite the Y. W. C. A. He left his car about two hours and when he returned he discovered that a thief had jacked up the auto and had stolen one of the rear tires and tubes.

Joe Washington, employed as a cook on the coast guard steamer Cassin, at section base 4, in this city, pleaded guilty of having caused the death of Germon Wilson, a cook's department employe on the same ship, when arraigned in the police court this morning, charged with manslaughter. He was advised of his rights in making the plea, but insisted that he struck Wilson with a milk bottle at the home of Alice Marks, on Main street, on the evening of November 6. The testimony of Frank Sims, colored, was to the effect that he saw the blow struck after a few words of argument between Wilson and Washington. Wilson was knocked down, but he got up in a few seconds and then declared, according to Sims, that he was not much hurt. Washington was almost within arm's length of Wilson when the bottle was hurled at the latter and landed on the head of Wilson. The injured man bled somewhat. Later he went to the office of Dr. F. M. Dunn, where he was treated for his injuries. He also went in a taxicab to the Lyceum theatre with Mrs. Marks and a male companion, but did not stay there to attend the performance. No one was introduced at the hearing to testify as to what the argument between Washington and Wilson was about, nor was it divulged what the spoken words were. Mrs. Marks said she was dressing for the theatre when the argument occurred and when the bottle was hurled.

Albert Williams, a sailor, was also present at the Marks home, but he, too, was ignorant of what the trouble was about. By no word or alleged deed other than the hurling of the bottle was it shown that the man had any feeling toward each other.

Wilson went away to Brooklyn and an examination of his injuries by the naval doctors there disclosed the fracture of the skull. The coast guard officials then communicated with the local police and an investigation disclosed the facts related in court today. Dr. Dunn told of the treatment of Wilson in his office and said he advised the injured man to go to the hospital, but Wilson declined the advice. That the court considers the alleged offense to be a serious one was apparent from the fact that Washington was held for trial in the superior court at the January term and that bail was fixed at $15,000. Of course Washington could not furnish the bail, so went to jail.

Wilson lingered at the hospital at Brooklyn till early in December when he died of septic meningitis.

William Hayna, coast guard petty officer, was fined $100 when in the police court this morning for operating an automobile while he was under the influence of intoxicating liquor. Hayna was obliging a friend when he drove the car, for the latter did not have a license nor registration, having but just bought the machine. Hayna's operation was so reckless that it attracted the attention of Traffic Officer John Courtney and he signalled to Hayna to stop. This he did not do, so the officer commandeered an auto and pursued him. In the meantime Officer Farley had stopped Hayna and his auto experience was at an end. Hayna was a surprised man when he realized just what had occurred. He had difficulty in raising the money to settle, but finally succeeded.

The funeral of Charles A. Johnson was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 48 Shapley street, the services being conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Members of Loyal Order of Moose, of which organization Mr. Johnson had been a member, acted as bearers. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Miss Margaret Keane, of Westerly; Master Richard Champlin, Old Mystic; Miss Julia Malloy, 46 Granite street; Master Leonard Godfrey, Mystic; Richard Bauroth, New Haven; Thomas Tisdale, 40 Mountain avenue, Leo Maynard, East Lyme; Mrs. John Mullen and infant son, Amiston, this state, and Mrs. James Carver and infant daughter, 481 Williams street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Margaret E. McCarthy has sold a building lot on Farnsworth street to Arthur McCarthy.

Nellie C. Kiley has sold to George J. Kiley a building lot on Vauxhall street.

Henry J. Welson, of Hartford, has sold to Martin Hurwits, also of Hartford, a building lot on Park street, Ocean beach.

William H. Cadman and wife have sold a house and lot on Riverside avenue to Harold S. Hamilton and wife.

A certificate of incorporation of the New England Carpet Lining Co., Inc., was filed for record with City Clerk Julian D. Moran today. The incorporators are Frederick W. Mercer, William H. Reeves, Earl W. Stamm and Frank L. McGuire. The corporation starts business with $2,000 and 1,000 shares of capital stock.

Dr. Herman A. Tyler, U. S. N., stationed at the submarine base and residing at 55 Channing street, parked his automobile on State street opposite the Hotel Mohican last night and while he absented himself for a short time a thief visited the automobile and stole the physician's medicine case.

FORMER TAYLOR STORE IN DEMAND AT $8,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 16—With the vacating of the store corner of State and Main streets, for many years occupied by Charles M. Taylor, druggist, there has been a big demand for a long term lease of the premises by various merchants. This, in spite of the fact that it is understood the rental of the store will be close to $8,000, one of the largest rentals of any store in New London and the largest rental for a store of its size. The applicants for lease of the building include almost every conceivable line of business, including a grocery store and a meat market. It is expected that a lease of the store will be given within a few days, after which alterations and improvements to the interior of the building will be made, but at the expense of the lessee.

Daniel S. Marsh, Jr., of Bellevue place, who is spending the winter at Miami, Fla., has arrived in New London and will spend the holidays with his family, after which he will return to the southern city.

Mrs. L. F. Pace has moved from Thames street, Groton, to 40 Walden avenue, this city.

Mr. and Mrs. John George, residing some time on Bridge street, Groton, have moved to Stonington.

Leverett Dimmock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dimmock of Waterford, who was operated on for appendicitis recently at Home Memorial hospital, has returned to his home.

Patrolman John Clifford and Traffic Officer William Corcoran are having their vacations of two weeks. When these officers return to duty it will mark the conclusion of the vacation periods for the entire department. Traffic Officer Dennis Cavanaugh and Patrolman George Perkins, who have been on their vacations, resumed duty today.

Mr. Kenyon reported to the police the slippery condition of the sidewalk, together with his daughter's injury. Most of the sidewalks are in a dangerous condition for only a few of them were cleared of yesterday's snowfall. There was enough snow to become packed and slippery, but even the the walks were not sanded and made safe for pedestrians.

Patrolman Walter O'Neill is confined to his home, Asheraft road, with a severe cold.

Mrs. Clifford H. Belden of 6 Nathan Hale street, is confined to her home suffering from slight injuries sustained Tuesday morning when the automobile in which she was riding overturned on the Hartford turnpike, near Colchester. Mrs. Belden was accompanied by her mother and daughter, Julie. When the car overturned as a result of skidding and plunged down a low embankment, Mrs. Belden's mother and daughter escaped injury.

M. I. T. STUDENTS HAVE BEEN DISCIPLINED FOR DISORDERS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Two students at Massachusetts Institute of Technology have been expelled, two suspended for a year, and 12 others disciplined as a result of disorders in connection with the celebration at a field day at the institute on November 6th. The men expelled were John L. Dodson of New York and William B. King of Boston.

In making public tonight the report of a faculty committee which investigated the disorders and prescribed the penalties, President Samuel W. Stratton expressed "deep personal regret for any acts which caused damage or inconvenience to the public and brought discredit upon the name of Technology." In a letter to The Associated Press, President Stratton said:

"While I am confident that the whole affair grew out of youthful enthusiasm, and not from any wilful desire to cause damage or inconvenience, nevertheless we who have the good name of the institute at heart wish to make it clear that destruction of property or interference with the rights of others will not be tolerated in any degree.

"Such an affair as the recent disturbance does not represent the true character of the student body at Technology. The students themselves in manly and straightforward manner have made it clear that they do not condone such behaviour and that they share with me sincere regret for all that occurred."

Two students are suspended until the beginning of the next academic year when they will return on probation.

Eight are placed on probation, and letters of censure will be sent to them and to their parents.

Four [illegible] placed on probation. A letter of [illegible] has been sent to one student, a [illegible] to his parents.

Bread Theatre

Surrounded by an excellent cast and supplied with one of the most thrilling stories of the west ever brought to the silversheet, Tom Mix, as Jeff Boyne, plays a romantically fine performance in "Hard Boiled" Fox Films version of Stephen Payne's romantic tale of a dude ranch, which comes to the Breed theatre today and Saturday.

In this, his latest release, the great western ace finds, upon leaving his comfortable home in Chicago, that crooks are crooks — no matter where they are encountered.

In this particular case, the bad men are New York gun artists, headed by the Diamond Eadie, and they are bent on mischief in the far west.

In the course of the action, Tom encounters them planning a little job which, if successful, would bring their strong boxes some of the most valuable jewels in the safe of the famous Boiling Springs, where Abigail Prudes with an iron hand.

Just how Tom and Tony, working with "Spec" O'Donnell and a homely little dog, enlist the interest of the beautiful Marjorie Gregg, engineer a thrilling rescue, and land the culprits behind bars, develop into a western tale of rare beauty and dramatic action.

Helene Chadwick, seen as Marjorie Gregg, is said to do the finest work of her screen career. In the cast are Jay Fitzroy, Phyllis Haver, Billy Terry, Dan Mason, Charles Conklin, "Spec" O'Donnell, William Lawrence and others.

British Trans Safe

It is something of a tribute to British mechanical efficiency that only one person was killed in a British railway accident in 1925. Statistics just published thus indicate the safety of travel in Britain. There was no major and only seven minor train accidents, only a few injured persons, and only one dead. Yet this record is not as good as in some former years. In the last eight years in England there have been only three fatal railway accidents.

Plaut-Cadden Store Visited by Crowds

The opening of the newly remodeled and transformed Plaut-Cadden Co. street store was auspicious and Friday. All day and during the evening the store was the scene of a continuous procession of visitors who roamed around at will, visiting floor and department of the extensive home-furnishing, music and [illegible] establishment and expressing admiration for the beautifications and transformations that have been effected since the destructive fire several years ago. The new store arrangement, noticeably on the main floor, has been carefully planned to make for greater efficiency and attractiveness and it gives opportunity for extension to a fuller capacity of the [illegible] service. The Plaut-Cadden company renders. The members of the firm and their staff of clerks extended every courtesy to their visitors, many of whom were from distant places and from towns and communities throughout eastern Connecticut.

A popular feature of the opening was the opportunity given every visitor to share in the distribution of valuable merchandise which the company is to give away. In the evening a fine concert programme of two hours in length was rendered by Pop's Melody Boys to the enjoyment of a large audience. Among the visitors were many from New London, where the firm also has a large store.

Palace Theater

One of the biggest show hits of the season was seen at the Palace theater yesterday, same show to be shown today and tomorrow. Al Levine and his band, one of the cleverest assemblages of talented musicians scored a sensational hit. His men are versatile, good entertainers and a real jolly lot. Revue Boheme, a beautifully set song and dance offering, was very well received and appreciated. Alexander and Elmore, those two funsters, rocked the audience from the moment they stepped on the stage. Their material is very clever and sure fire. Billie Dale, the one man vaudeville show sure lived up to his reputation and scored big. Wheeler Duo, two remarkable skaters showed very neat work on a special rink.

The feature picture, My Official Wife now showing at the Palace theater is a startlingly vivid picture of old Russia. The glittering ladies, the gold-laced domineering officials; cloistering Cossacks, plotting Nihilists; the wan and ragged hosts of the peasantry all pass before us in stirring panorama.

Through ominous days, they are brought into the mad fury of revolution. There is the story too of Helene, a beautiful Russian Countess and of the reckless young noble Sascha, who wrongs her, and for whom she harbors hatred which will be satisfied only with his death.

How the two with the rest of the mighty, are brought low, and love, without knowing each others identity—how the bitter waters are turned into sweet—is told superbly and with the sort of direction only one who has known the old Russia and the new, and Vienna, city of mirth and melancholy, can command.

Paul Stein directed the film which is an adaptation by Graham Baker of Charles Blaney's play, which in turn was taken from Archibald. Clavering Gunter's tremendous story of the same name.

Irene Rich and Conway Tearle are featured, and the supporting cast includes many notable names. The photoplay is real and thrilling melodrama is a setting of romantic terror and beauty. You should not fail to see My Official Wife.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Public Demand For New Cigarette

The long sought treasure of a perfect smoke . . . that's what thousands of smokers are saying of Old Gold, the new and better cigarette.

Even the hard-boiled, one brand smoker is finding a new and unexpected thrill in this cigarette.

It is the smoothest cigarette . . . that's the secret of Old Golds ever-light popularity. Not the smoothness that goes with insipid mildness, but a velvety smoothness that perfectly contains all the kick that any man wants from his smoke . . . plenty of punch without any punishment to tongue or throat.

Every dealer has many, many customers who would welcome an introduction to Old Gold. Our tip is that you keep them well displayed. The attractive, appealing campaign that is running is catching the eye and telling Old Gold's story to more of the smokers who drop into your store. You will get an instant sales response if you keep Old Golds out where your smoker customers can see them.

Broadway Theater

Suppose it were against the law to laugh. Suppose that a good hearty laugh would land you in jail. Absurd, you say, to have a law against laughing? Of course. You can't stop people from laughing—and no one wants to.

Which leads us to inquire, how much do you laugh? Do you laugh as you used to when you were a child? Do you get at least one good laugh every day? If not, your missing the greatest tonic in the world. The one thing which, more than anything else, would keep you young.

This in turn leads us to mention especially an act that is now being offered at the Broadway theater and one which every man, woman and child should see, even though it may mean breaking all other appointments. It is our firm belief that you will get enough laughs from Glenn and Jenkins to last you for two full years, at least. What roars and howls were heard yesterday, and will be heard for two days more if you will stand in front of the theater when they are "doing their stuff." It is without doubt the funniest and cleverest offering that we have ever seen or ever expect to see again on any stage.

The other four acts should not be overlooked either, being standard Keith-Albee attractions.

The Brightons are classed as Artistic Rappickers with a very novel turn.

Jay Bernard and Joan Marcelle The little French Girl in On the Boulevard are two able comedians and have a very bright offering.

Keller and Dare, two dainty misses, have a clever assortment of songs which is offered in solo and harmony.

Watson's comedy dogs have truly an act that is different. Here is a remarkable collection of canines that is a treat for adults as well as children.

For the first time in the memory of this reviewer there comes to the screen a swift-moving drama of romance, action and realism which completely lacks violence.

The picture is Obey the Law, with Bert Lytell as the supercrook. Columbia produced it and Al Rayboch, the artist-director, probably was responsible for its powerful lack of bullets and bull-doing. An excellent cast consists of Eugenie Gilbert, Edna Murphy, Larry Kent, William Welsh, Hedda Hopper, Sarah Padden and Paul Panzer.

Those who viewed the opening last night at the Broadway theater apparently considered it an extraordinary picture.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

He: "Do you play golf?"
She: "Oh, dear no; I don't even know how to hold the caddy!"—Ic-Hardwars.

Harry—Aren't you the girl I met—er—last summer?
Alice—Shh! My aunt will overhear you. I don't want her to know I went swimming.—Exchange.

Brains—The first cotton gin was made on his father's plantation.
Brawn—Ye Gawds; are you making it outa cotton now?—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Mrs. Smith: "What kind of work does your husband do now, Mrs. Brown?"
Mrs. Brown: "He's a fret-worker. He works the first two days of the week and frets the rest."—The Progressive Grocer.

Patient—That doctor always gives me a dirty look when I kiss you. Does he think that making love will delay my recovery?
Nurse—I suppose he does. He's my husband.—Detroit News.

Mr. Greene—Thought you said you had ploughed that 10-acre field?
Farmer—No, I said I was thinking of ploughing it.
Mr. Greene—Oh, I see; you've merely turned it over in your mind.—Kansas City Star.

Soph.—What's the piece of cord tied around your finger for?
Frosh—Prof. Armstrong put it there to remind me to study my English for tomorrow.
"And did you study it?"
"No; he forgot to assign a lesson."—Washington Star.

The largest organ in the world is in a cathedral in Liverpool, England. The instrument has five rows of keys, 232 draw knobs, 145 stops and 10,934 pipes. It is played by eletro-pneumatic action, the mechanism being driven by motors with a total of thirty-five horse power.

An altercation arising over the body of a 300-pound black bear, shot by rival hunters, was settled by a justice of the peace. Albert E. Buck of Arlington, received the hide and head of the meat and Grant Stacy, of South Shaftsbury, had to content himself with the remaining half of the meat.

Baroness Felicitas von Bock, eleven-year-old daughter of the late Lieutenant-Colonel Hans von Bock and descendant of a distinguished line of Prussian army officers, has received the federal hero medal for bravery. The little baroness risked her life to rescue a drowning woman in the Havel river at Potsdam. She was feted as the pluckiest girl in the aristocratic city.

A campaign to wipe out illiteracy in five years is in progress in the Philippines. Provincial and municipal literacy boards have been organized in all parts of the island; 250,000 persons, it is said, have pledged their services as teachers; and a small text book has been prepared which will be translated into Tagalog, Visayan, Ilocano, Bicol and Pampango dialects to facilitate teaching. It is part of the plan to offer a prize of 1,000 pesos each, years to the province showing the largest reduction in illiteracy.

ARMY AIRPLANE DAMAGED IN PRACTICE FLIGHT

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Dec. 16.—(AP)—The "New York," flagship of the army's Pan-American flight, was damaged in practice flight today but officers said tonight the Amphibian cruiser would be repaired in time for the hop-off for South America here next Monday.
The accident happened when Major Herbert A. Dargue, commander of the flight, was taking off with his wife as a passenger. Neither was injured.
A wheel struck a hole in the field as the ship was getting under way and the plane did a carl wheel, nosing over and then settling back on an even keel. The wheel was crushed and one wing was badly torn.
Mechanics rushed the repairs tonight and hoped to have the ship ready for the air by tomorrow noon.
Major Dargue and Mrs. Dargue shifted to the "San Antonio" after the mishap and continued their flight. Wives of pilots were given their first opportunity to make a flight in the planes today.
All of the ships took to the air for squadron practice and signal drill, but the "San Francisco" was forced to drop out with motor trouble.
The original motor had a tendency to miss on several cylinders and a new motor was installed this week, but it gave trouble today. Mechanics are endeavoring to adjust the carburetor so that another change of motors will not be necessary.

PASSENGERS INJURED ON BOSTON AND ALBANY TRAIN

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 16.—(AP)—Several passengers were injured tonight when a Boston and Albany train was bumped by a Troy local local train on the Maidenlane bridge over the Hudson river. Early reports indicated that none of the passengers was injured seriously.

Wire Glass

A glass which does not crack or splinter, which is flexible and can be cut with scissors or shears, and is none inflammable, is a recent invention which should have far-reaching applications. Such glass is made by treating galvanized wire netting with a material which is transparent and flexible. Rolls 100 feet long and 3 feet wide are at present being made. It can be bent and straightened many times without fracture, is entirely transparent and does not fade.

U. S. STEEL FEATURED MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 16 (AP)—Resumption of the upward movement of stock prices today under the leadership of United States Steel common was suddenly checked this afternoon by a heavy selling of the high priced industrials, leaving closing quotations irregularly lower. In the absence of any adverse news developments, the selling was generally regarded as a natural correction of an over-bought position resulting from the sustained advance of the past week. Trading again ran above 2,000,000 shares.

United States Steel common was the outstanding individual feature, total sales in this issue running close to 500,000 shares, nearly one-fourth of the day's entire volume of business and nearly one-tenth of the outstanding capitalization of the corporation. After the close of the market, it was announced that stockholders at their next annual meeting would be asked to approve an increase in capitalization to provide for a stock dividend of 40 per cent.

Operators working for higher prices were favored by an unusually large number of constructive developments. Call money dropped from 5 to 4 1-2 per cent. and was in free supply at the lower figure. The New York federal reserve bank announced no change in the 4 per cent. rediscount rate. Directors of the Louisville & Nashville railroad raised the annual dividend from $6 to $7, and there was another series of so-called "Christmas" dividends in the form of extra or increased payments.

The afternoon selling movement was directed chiefly against such issues as Baldwin, Commercial Solvents B, Continental Baking A, International Harvester, Pullman, South Porto Rican Sugar and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, all off 3 to 5 points. U. S. Steel, after touching 157 1-4, dropped back to 153 3-4 and then rallied to 154 7-8, up 1-4 net. By-Products Coke showed a net loss of 8 5-8 points.

Texas & Pacific Land Trust continued its sensational advance by soaring 290 points to a new record high price at 1900 on small odd lot transactions. It sold as low as 510 earlier in the year. Independent strength was shown by a number of other issues including Ajax Rubber, American Type Founders, New York Dock and Savage Arms, all up 2 to 5 points. Fox Film also was run up during the early trading on reports of a private showing of a new talking picture, but it lost its gain in the late wave of realising.

Rails yielded with the industrials although the declines generally were not as large. Atchison, Lackawanna and Texas & Pacific yielded 2 points or so, and New Haven, Illinois Central and a few others lost a point or so. Southern Railway closed a point higher. Louisville & Nashville only showed a small fractional net gain.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

The principal commodity markets were heavy. Active wheat futures lost a cent or so a bushel, after an early period of strength, cotton reacted 30 to 34 points net; Raw sugar declined 1-16 of a cent a pound, but coffee prices held steady.

Establishment of a new high level for the year by French francs, above 4 cents featured the firm foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held steady around $4.84 15-16 and Italian lire were quoted just under 4 1-2 cents.

AUSTIN NICHOLS-FELDMAN SUIT SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Following announcement by counsel in the Austin Nichols-J. Feldman suit Thursday afternoon that the suit had been satisfactorily settled out of court, trial of the $2,000 damage case of Francis DeGange, New London architect, against Meyer and Anna Rubin of New London, was started before Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court in this city. Efforts to reach an agreement in the Austin Nichols-Feldman suit were started Tuesday afternoon. The case was slated for trial at Thursday's session of the court but when court came in at 10 o'clock in the morning efforts at settlement were still underway. A court recess was ordered and about 2 o'clock the announcement that a settlement had been reached was made.

The plaintiff company was seeking damages of $1,000. Feldman owns property which adjoins that of the plaintiff in this city and according to the complaint, a right of way was obstructed by the defendant by placing the platform in it. In April Judge Brown issued an injunction restraining the defendants from obstructing this right of way.

The DeGange-Rubin case immediately got underway. The plaintiff is seeking to recover $2,000 damages for his services as an architect in preparing plans for and supervising the construction of the Crocker House garage, on Golden street, New London from October 15, 1925 until July 9, 1926. The defendants have entered a counter claim for $2,500 for faulty construction. The Chelsea Savings bank of this city claims to hold a mortgage on the property for $25,000 and the General Finance corporation of New London claims a mortgage of $7,000. Both banking institutions are named as defendants with the Rubins.

Mr. DeGange testified as to the construction of the garage. He exhibited a set of plans and described how the concrete steps are shown on the plan, which, in brief, he said are shown by a series of horizontal and tapering lines. Pictures of other work he has done were laid in as exhibits.

After Mr. DeGange had completed his testimony, the defense called George B. Waters of New London to the stand. Mr. Waters was put on the stand before the plaintiff had ended his testimony as he was anxious to get back to New London. Mr. Waters who is city engineer in New London, testified that he is familiar with Golden street. He said the grade on that street had not been changed.

In answer to questions put by Attorney Perkins, Mr. Waters said there is a concrete sidewalk on that street and that it was laid by the city of New London, in accordance with their general plan for sidewalks. The present sidewalk was placed there early in the summer, Mr. Waters said. He believed there was a concrete walk there before that. The building was about completed when the present walk was laid.

Then Attorney Perkins called Meyer Rubin, defendant to the stand. Mr. Rubin told of mortgages taken out for the purpose of paying for the work done. After Mr. Rubin's testimony the plaintiff rested.

For the defense Lauren H. Daboll, architect, testified as to discrepancies between the deeds and plans. In his opinion the grades were not properly constructed. He was in the midst of his testimony when Judge Brown adjourned court until 10 o'clock this (Friday) morning when a short calendar session will be held.

Following the short calendar session tried of the divorce case of A. Chester Brown against Isabelle Yeomans Brown will be started. Trial of the DeGange-Rubin case will probably be continued either Monday or Tuesday.

LIONS PLAN CHRISTMAS PARTY FOR CHILDREN

At a meeting of the Norwich Lions club Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel President William A. Anderson was in charge and William R. Frisbie officiated as song leader, assisted by Miss Beulah Whiteley at the piano.

President Anderson read a communication inviting the club to participate in the Christmas tree exercises at the Norwich Town green on Christmas eve. Lion Max Hanover reported on plans for the annual New Year's party which the club holds for the children of Norwich, saying that through the courtesy of the management of the Falsoa theatre, the theatre had been secured for the entertainment to be held on the morning of Dec. 31st. It is expected that the picture Peter Pan will be shown and boxes of candy will be provided for the children.

President Anderson introduced as the speaker of the day, Mrs. William A. Norton, a member of the executive committee of the United Workers who told of the work being accomplished by this organization. Mrs. Norton informed the club that on January 26th the United Workers will observe their 50th anniversary. Her talk covered the history of the organization, showing the growth of membership and the activities of the six departments. In closing she invited the members to attend the annual meeting of the organization in January.

Following a vote of appreciation for Mrs. Norton's splendid talk the meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

COPY OF FIRST PAPER PUBLISHED IN NORWICH

Fred Johnson of 129 Broadway brought to The Bulletin office this week a copy of the Norwich Packet which was found among some of his books. This copy which was in a fair state of preservation was published February 27, 1798 by John Trumbull and had been in the possession of Mr. Johnson's grandfather Ozniiel Gager for many years town clerk of Norwich.

In contrast with the promptness of news presentation today, were the several items from Europe bearing date of November and December previous.

The Packet was the first newspaper published in Norwich the first issue appearing in 1773 and was then published by Alexander and James Robertson and John Trumbull under the firm name of Robertson & Trumbull.

FOR STATE SECRETARY ON BOARD OF CONTROL

Increase of the membership of the state board of control by the addition of the secretary of the state, the only elected state officer except the lieutenant governor not now a member of the board, may be brought before the 1927 session of the legislature, it is said.

Secretary of the State Pallotti, while admitting he had heard of the proposal, refused to comment on the plan except to say that he was not sponsoring the movement. The governor, treasurer, comptroller and attorney general now sit as the board of control, with the lieutenant governor acting for the governor when the board meets in the absence of the chief executive.

Complimented Therapy Society.

The Connecticut Occupational Therapy society, at its anual meeting at Hartford last week was highly complimented by the dean of the Boston School of Occupational Therapy on the progress which has been made in this state in arousing an intelligent interest in the science. One speaker after another reiterated the growing importance of occupational therapy, the thought being as one authority has expressed it, that the day is coming when it will rank with anesthetics in taking the suffering out of sickness and with antitoxins in shortening its duration.

An important announcement made at the meeting was by Miss Emily L. Plumley of Glenbrook, president of the State Federation of Woman's clubs who said that the state federation has decided to establish a department on occupational therapy and has designated Miss Kathryn Roof, president of the Connecticut Occupational Therapy society, as its director.

State Federal Aid Highways

The federal aid highway system in Connecticut now totals 835 miles, of which 147 have been improved with federal aid, according to the annual report of the bureau of public roads of the agriculture department. Of the improved mileage, eight and seven tenths miles were added during the fiscal year, 1926. At the close of the year, 30 miles were under construction and nine and nine-tenths miles approved.

Van Den Berg-King Engagement

The engagement of Miss Elizabeth Egerton King, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. E. J. King of Annapolis to Lieut. Oliver Wolcott van den Berg, U. S. A., was announced at a bridge tea at the home of Miss King Tuesday. Lieutenant van den Berg is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henri van den Berg of Urbana, Ill. He is stationed at Ft. Bragg, N. C. The wedding will take place in the spring. Miss King lived formerly at the submarine base, Navy Yard, where her father was commandant and was graduated from Williams Memorial institute last June.

ORGAN PUMPERS' GUILD HAS PROMINENT MEMBERS

The Diapason, a publication for church organists, has the following concerning prominent men who in youth "pumped" the organ. It might have added to the list Alanson P. Lathrop, New York light and power magnate, who as a boy, "blew the organ" in the First Congregational church, Norwich Town. The story is by Chet Shafer.

After a profound consideration as to its value to present-day society and to posterity, the guild of the Former pipe organ pumpers has been officially organized. Its membership is composed exclusively of those who, at some time or other in their youth, supplied the air for the music in countless church services, whether this work was done for pelf or not. While the organization is only three months old, the roster already holds the names of more than 800 men who labored in this capacity—and many of these names are prominently identified with the nation's texture today.

The guild has four aims, which are as follows:

(1) To perpetuate the memories of this decadent but honorable profession.

(2) To correct the general but erroneous impression gained by the public from reading autobiographical sketches in popular periodicals that every successful man earned his first dollar selling newspapers.

(3) To encourage a revival of interest at Sunday night gatherings in the old inspirational hymns such as: Alas and Did Blessed Assurance, When He Cometh, Shall We Gather at the River? All Hail the Power, etc.

(4) To secure a just recognition for this once-important calling that has been swept into obsolescence by modern electrical methods and leave to future generations some permanent evidence of the important part the pumper played in the musical and ecclesiastical progress of the ages.

The guild was founded as a non-sectarian, non-partisan, non-profit and non-essential organization. It has been pointed out that for several hundred years at least there has been a guild of bell ringers in England, while the American Guild of Organists is a prominent institution. Yet, during all the years that the pumper fed his air for the whims of the organist, who dissipated it with sybotious abandon there never has been an effort, until now, to organize blowers so they might secure the recognition to which they are justly entitled. The pumpers, it must be remembered, were independent. They were material cogs in the scheme. Without them the bellringer would have had no cause for styles and the organist would never have been able to pull out all the stops to show off his or her prowess. But it is his late date, after their profession has been ruined by the relentless march of the ampere, they are getting together and are determined that their role shall be perpetuated, that another day their mark on the records will have been made.

Among the former blowers who have already enrolled are names which are daily on the tongues of thousands. James Couzens, United States senator from Michigan and former general manager of the Ford Motor company, opened in the Presbyterian church at Chatham, Ont. He received $5 for a full week of pumping, with 32 services and a full week's practice. And some of his revenue was a part of his original investment in Henry Ford, which later became $30 000,000. Benjamin F. Affleck president of the United Fuel and Cement company of Chicago, pumped in Belleville, Ill., for 5 cents a week.

Henry Ford did not blow, although he failed to get a job at one time in a small church. Neither did E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States steel corporation. E. H. H. Simmons, president of the New York Stock exchange, pumped for one service and was an official bell ringer. Edgar A. Guest, the poet, pumped in the Woodworth church in Detroit. He quit when he was removed from his box following the wind to go outside and toss rocks, just to see what would happen. His brother succeeded him. Then he placed an advertisement in the paper for a job as a pumper—proving he only "want ad" of its kind in history.

Ring W. Lardner, famous humorist, pumped at Niles, Mich., and was fired because he left the handle too often to look out the window.

Ernest M. Skinner performed on the treadle of an organ at Taunton, Mass., was in this berth, at the tender age of 12 years, that he first conceived his idea of becoming a builder—an idea that he began developing at the age of 21. Mr. Skinner is said to be one of the few blowers who demanded a copy of the music the organist intended to play, so he might turn out his best technique in the loft.

H. I. Phillips, humorist, of New York city, pumped for 25 cents a week and also swept out the church. E. S. Evans, who recently went around the world in record time, worked in the Church of the Epiphany at Lexington, Ky., for 25 cents a Sunday. Ray W. Schalk, recently appointed manager of the Chicago White Sox, pumped at Litchfield, Ill., and his battery mate, Urban Faber, pumped at Cascade, Iowa. George Matthew Adam, Tony Sarg, Bide Dudley, John T. Winterich, Marquis James, Arthur Pound, Clarence Budington Kelland, Arthur VanVlissingen, Jr., and other editors and authors of national prominence were blowers at one time, and have all signed the rolls.

The guild has no dues and there is no lordly money taint to the organization. It has a slogan, Pumps for the Wind is Fleeting and a logical divinity, Aeolus, the Greek god and keeper of the winds. The uniform of the members will be "Sunday clothes," for, it will be remembered, these former blowers slaved away while they were "dressed up," one of the features that made their job more difficult. The salute of the pumper members will be a firm grip of the hands and three up and down movements of the arms. It may be that at a later date an insignia will be worked out which will include a replica of the gauge, that bit of lead on a string which was the bane of every blower's existence. Notches carved at the sides of the slit in which this plumb operated guided his efforts and the gauge was of such importance that it cannot be overlooked.

Applications for membership are being received by Chet Shafer, the Grand Diapason of the Guild of Former Pipe Organ Pumpers, 112 East Nineteenth street, New York city. National headquarters have been established there and all applications must be accompanied by references and proof of service, with any outstanding points in the applicant's career. These applications may be made strictly with the consideration that there are no financial obligations and never will be.

Plans for a general meeting of members of loft No. 1 of the guild in New York city are under way. This work is being cared for by the "Tibia Plena," Paul M. Hollister, who is associated with Bruce Barton, the author, and by the various quints of the guild, including William P. Bonsell, managing editor of the New York World. The program for the meeting has not been determined, but it will later be carried out in Boston, Chicago and other large cities.

In the City Court

A local colored man was presented in the city court Thursday morning charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. He was fined $5 and costs a total bill of $13.80 and ordered to pay this bill as well as $14.98, a hang over from a court bill for another spree in November 1925.

He was arrested Wednesday night after he had become drunk and chased his wife from the house with a poker. It is alleged that his wife did not object to his week end drunks but that when he became drunk, in the middle of the week it was time something was done to stop him. She was of the opinion that a trip to Cedar street would benefit her husband, and so informed the court Thursday.

Two auto drivers paid $5 each for violating city ordinances.

VALUE THAMES BRIDGE AT HALF MILLION

Connecticut's state highway system has an inventory value estimated at $88,656,700, according to the annual report of the state comptroller to the governor and the general assembly. Of this amount, the value of trunk line bridges has been placed at $4,036,500 and ferries at $14,000, leaving a value of $34,616,200 placed on the 1051 miles of roads in the trunk line and state aid system.

The report shows that the capital investment in grading roads of all types, without surfacing, is represented at $19,520,900. This is considered the permanent value, which does not depreciate. The valuation per mile has been put at $10,000 at the graded road stage.

In bituminous macadam surfacing, the valuation is given at $3,806,160 for 333 miles. This surfacing has a value of $20,000 per mile, the report shows, with depreciation at the rate of 20 per cent a year. In bituminous concrete surfacing, the state has about 164 miles, also valued at $20,000 a mile, or a total of $3,477,150 after deducting a depreciation of 15 percent.

Concrete and brick surfacing covers about 233 miles having a value of $30,000 a mile, and depreciation at the rate of five per cent a year. This leaves a net inventory value of $6,217 890 for the concrete and brick roads.

The bridges have inventoried as follows: Milford-Stratford, $1,500,000; Thames River, $560,000; depreciation 10 per cent; Westport, $127,500, depreciation 5 percent; Derby, $250,000; Saybrook-Lyme, $425,000, depreciation 5 percent; East Haddam, $306,000, depreciation 5 percent; Portland, $350,000, depreciation 10 percent; Mystic, $250,000, new construction, 1925-1926, $256,000.

Floyd Scarborough, formerly of Westford, now of Hartford and Miss Una Brousseau of Columbia, who were married Dec. 4 at Hartford are now at home at 41 Francis street, Burnside, Conn.

HOOVER WARNS AGAINST FEDERAL ENCROACHMENT

At Meeting of the New England Council in Providence the Secretary of Commerce Declared That New England Should Lead a Campaign to Check the Movement That Would Ultimately Break Down Our Government—Asserted That the Control of Electric Power Commission Should Be Controlled by the Individual States Rather Than by the Federal Government.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 17—(AP)—"The type of research which your council has undertaken is the creative force in community consciousness which New England has not heretofore possessed to a great degree," Secretary of Commerce Herbert C. Hoover told the quarterly meeting of the New England council at the Squantum club here today.

"This council is producing that consciousness," he continued. "The whole structure of New England is cooperative, the whole upbuilding of this region depends on collective action, and in stimulating that your council is contributing its great share."

Declaring that "the growing encroachment of federal power threatens disaster," the secretary of commerce said that electric power transmission should be controlled by the individual states rather than the federal government, making interstate compacts where necessary. Unless the growing encroachment of federal authority is checked, he declared, "it will ultimately break down our government. New England should take the lead in a movement that will check the system. States must rule themselves."

Plans for the work of the council during the coming year were outlined by the president, John S. Lawrence of Boston. Mr. Lawrence was re-elected head of the council. Arthur L. Alfred of Providence was elected secretary, replacing Henry Trumbull of Plainville, Conn. Guy P. Gannet of Portland, Me., and Dudley Harmon of Boston were re-elected treasurer and executive vice-president respectively.

Discussing the report of Harry R. Lewis of Lewisville, R. I., chairman of the committee on agriculture, Mr. Hoover declared "in the west we have built up the reputation of our products, and states governments have been rigorous in their control of gradings. If you wish to repeat their success, you are in the exact trail by which they have arrived in Boston and have made a profit after paying 3,000 miles of freight."

The council plans for the coming year call for the following activity on the part of various committees. The agricultural committee will work to secure better marketing conditions for New England farm products. The power committee will work with state regulatory authorities to devise an economical power system and will endeavor to get power into rural areas. The research committee will investigate industrials conditions. And the committee on public relations and community organization will endeavor to raise the level of community effort in New England, to give New Englanders a better appreciation of their advantages, and to create outside of New England a wider knowledge of the great industrial advantages of the section.

The report of G. O. Goss, of Waterbury, Conn., chairman of the power committee occasioned the longest and most important discussion of the meeting.

Commenting upon the recommendations of the research committee before the Hartford conference that a conference be called for the co-ordination of research activities in New England, A. Lincoln Filene, of Boston, chairman of the committee, said the committee believed the following matters should be placed before such a conference:

Interchange of information on successful methods of research; development of standards for research work; studies to determine how research can avoid duplication of activities; what research agencies can do most to sell research to New England; development of comprehensive data for a 10-year program as to what research ought to be carried on in New England and how.

WILL BE NEAR ECLIPSE OF THE MOON TONIGHT

BOSTON, Dec. 17.—(AP)—There's going to be a shadow on the face of the man in the moon tomorrow night, for Luna will be flirting with the umbra of the earth.

In other words, an unusual celestial phenomenon, known as a "Lunar appulse," wherein the moon enters the earth's penumbra, is to take place, it is said what is four centuries since the last occurrence of the kind. It will be almost an eclipse, but not quite. Appulses are much rarer.

The umbra is the earth's true shadow and around this true shadow, separating it from the full light, is a partial shadow separating it from the full light, is a partial shadow; the penumbra.

This partial shadow will darken the moon while that planet swings close to the black true shadow. It will not touch the umbra, however, for if it did, there would be an eclipse. The moon will enter the penumbra at about 11 p. m. eastern standard time, always remaining visible although its light will be dimmed.

This darkening of the moon will progress until about 1:20 Sunday morning when, according to the authorities the moon will have assumed a dark hue at the edge, shading to ruddy brown. From then on the spectacle will fade and shortly after 3:30 a. m. Luna's usual shining countenance will be fully visible.

At the Harvard college observatory it was explained that the phenomenon was not scientifically important. At Providence college, Father Dawkins, professor of astronomy, plans to train a telescope on the moon and explain the phenomenon to a group of students.

WINTRY WEATHER IN NORTHERN NEW YORK

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 17—(AP)—Winter evidently had arrived in earnest in upstate New York today.

At Buffalo, where a blizzard raged all day yesterday, the mercury continued to drop sharply all day and a minimum of five above was forecast for tonight. As a result of the heaviest 24 hour snowfall in Buffalo since 1893, there were 25 inches on the ground.

While Buffalo was recovering from the effects of her storm, other upstate cities, which experienced normal weather at the time began to receive their quotas of snow. At Niagara Falls and all along the Niagara river north of Tonawanda snow fell and was swirled about the streets by a strong wind.

Territory within a fifty mile radius of Watertown was digging itself out of record December snow. Automobile traffic was paralyzed and in some sections the snow was waist deep. Snow was falling steadily over most of the Adirondacks but in other sections of the state normal winter conditions prevailed.

TO PROTECT CANDIDATES FROM "MUD-SLINGERS"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17—(AP)—Fine and imprisonment for seventh hour "mud-slinging" politicians is sought in a bill presented to congress today by Representative Thompson, republican, Ohio.

His bill would make it unlawful to attack the personal character of a candidate for federal office within eighteen days of election. A fine of $1,000, one year imprisonment, or both, are named as the penalty.

Increasing bitterness of personal attacks on candidates, particularly in congressional campaigns, Thompson said, prompted him to introduce the bill. The wet and dry issue has instigated many of these eleventh hour attacks, he added, expressing the view that "the majority of these sallies are timed to leave the accused no opportunity for redress before the voters go to the polls."

ORMISTON HAS RETURNED QUIETLY TO LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Kenneth G. Ormiston, fugitive key man of the Aimee Semple McPherson mystery, returned here late today in the same manner in which he departed—without notifying the police.

While officials here and in Chicago blissfully awaited Ormiston's arrival at Chicago police headquarters to surrender on a warrant from Los Angeles, the radio man with the limp, who has kept ahead of pursuers for six months, stepped quietly from a transcontinental train at Cajon, east of here, and departed by automobile for this city.

Ormiston left the train in company with two men, presumably his newspaper "captors," who joined hands with him recently at Harrisburg, Pa. They were met by a party in two automobiles, one of which drove off with the travelers and the other with their baggage.

Throughout the train trip, said Conductor J. J. Williams, of the Union Pacific's Gold Coast limited, the much-sought radio operator friend of Mrs. McPherson, Angelus temple evangelist, kept closely to the stateroom occupied by himself and his two friends.

Even the car porter failed to get a glimpse of the fugitive. When the porter entered the room, Ormiston disappeared into the ante-room and remained there until the porter had departed.

$40,000 CATALINA CHANNEL SWIM SCHEDULED FOR JAN. 15

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 17.—(AP)—The scur for the start of the $40,000 Catalina channel swim next Jan. 15 sponsored by William Wigley was advanced today from dawn until 2 p. m. so that spectators may witness the finish of the aquatic marathon.

The swimmers will take the water from the isthmus on the northeastern edge of Santa Catalina island and will be permitted to land at any point on the mainland. The distance at the narrowest point of the channel—between the island isthmus and Point Firmin—is 20 miles.

The daylight finish—if there is a finish—will render more easy the work of 12 judges, in motor cars, who will patrol the beach over a distance of 12 miles.

By starting at 2 p. m. Jan. 15, sponsors of the swim expect successful entrants will reach the mainland some time after daylight the following day.

POSTCARDS CIRCLED GLOBE IN DIFFERENT DIRECTIONS

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—(AP)—Two postcards, mailed from New York simultaneously on the evening of October 31 have returned after making the complete circuit of the globe in different directions.

Only fourteen hours separated the two at the finish of the postal race and Theodore Steinway, piano man and stamp collector, won a wager from Hugh Clark, philatelist, on the winning card.

The race was the outcome of an argument over the speediest route to circumnavigate the globe. The Steinway card went west to San Francisco by air mail and the Clark card departed the same evening for London on an east bound steamship.

BUSINESS EXPECTATIONS OF ATLANTIC COAST LINE

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—(AP)—The Atlantic Coast Line company of Connecticut announced it now owns 185,906 shares of the common stock of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Co. and expects to subscribe for all of the railroad's common stock allotted to it and does not contemplate the issue and sale of any of its own stock to provide cash for this subscription.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

TOKYO, Dec. 17—(AP)—All princes and princesses of the royal house and other relatives of the imperial family left here on a special train for Hayama where Emperor Yoshihito [illegible] death as the result of an attack of bronchial pneumonia.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 17—(AP)—Semi-bolshevization of the schools, missionary and otherwise, of central China, coincident with the gradual occupation of that area by the Cantonese, is being evidenced by the presentation of demands by student bodies upon their faculties.

DOWNE, Kent, Dec. 17—(AP)—Although only fourteen miles from London, this little town is unique in that it has no electricity, no gas, no sewerage system, no motion pictures and no doctor. It has a 700 year-old church, however, of which it is extremely proud.

SHERIFF FOUND NOT GUILTY OF OBSTRUCTING JUSTICE

CHICAGO, Dec. 17—(AP)—Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman and seven others were found not guilty of obstructing justice here this afternoon in federal court in a case which grew out of charges that the sheriff, Warden W. E. Westbrook, and his secretary, Henry Forest had granted too many privileges to two beer runners, Terry Duggan and Frank Lake while they were serving jail sentences. Westbrook, indicted with the others was not a defendant as he testified for the government, having been granted immunity.

Duggan and Lake, while serving sentences for operating a padlocked brewery were granted permission to make visits to dentists and go about without jail guards, the government charges. They also were alleged to have paid various jail officials for the privileges.

In his instructions to the jury, Federal Judge Louis FitzHenry pointed out that jailers had no discretion in planning liberties to prisoners except in cases of fire, disease or illness, and that part of Duggan's absences were covered in applications for permission to leave the jail which were submitted to the federal district court.

SENATOR-ELECT SMITH REMAINS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Dec. 17—(AP)—Colonel Frank L. Smith joined his wife in doing some Christmas shopping today between conferences on acceptance of the senate seat of the late Senator William B. McKinley, tendered to him yesterday by Governor Len Small, and tonight continued to withhold announcement of his course.

He adhered to his earlier statement that he had "nothing to say," and apparently his conversations with Allen Moore, republican national committeeman, and others on the senatorship, were unproductive.

His friends, themselves perplexed by his indecision, deemed it likely that he would announce by tomorrow night whether he would accept the senate seat, and go to Washington armed to meet [illegible] senators who object to the large public utilities contributions to his primary campaign, or whether he will decline the appointment to the unexpired three months of the McKinley term and wait until the session to which he was regularly elected to meet the effort to prevent his seating.

REACH BIRMINGHAM, ALA., IN FLIGHT FROM HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Successfully covering one of the longest laps in their 6,000 mile flight in the interests of bringing about closer cooperation among national guard aviation units, Lieutenant Earl W. Fleet and Corporal Charles Arnold of the 118th observation squadron of this city arrived in Birmingham, Ala., tonight, according to a telegram received by Major William F. Ladd, squadron commander.

The flight today started at Little Rock, Ark., about 315 miles in an air line from Birmingham and was made by way of Memphis and Nashville, Tenn., increasing the distance, Major Ladd estimated, to about 500 miles. Lieutenant Fleet will probably spend tomorrow in Birmingham with the national guard aviation squadron there and will fly to Nashville Sunday to visit the Tennessee unit. Before his return to Hartford he is scheduled to visit Louisville, Key., Pittsburgh, Pa., Baltimore and Miller field, Staten Island, N. Y.

NURSE OF DYING EMPEROR MADE SUICIDE ATTEMPT

TOKYO, Dec. 17—(AP)—Grieving over the impending death of Emperor Yoshihito, one of the imperial nurses in attendance on the sovereign at his Hayama villa, attempted suicide today as an act of contrition. The nurse cut her throat with a razor, reports received in Tokyo said.

A minor official in the construction bureau here also attempted harakiri which is resorted to by Japanese to show their sorrow or disappointment over anticipated national disturbances. Owing to the emperor's critical condition, the nations anxiety is expected to be manifested by other attempts at harakiri.

With the Japanese cabinet and other high government officials at Hayama at its bedside, the emperor's life hung in the balance. At 9 o'clock this morning, his temperature was 100.7, his pulse 125 and respiration 28.

ERIE RAILROAD A UNIT IN NICKEL PLATE MERGER

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Active direction of the Erie railroad, one of the units in the projected Nickel Plate merger, today passed to the Van Sweringen interests when their chief operating official, John J. Bernet, was elected president to succeed Frederick D. Underwood. After 26 years of service as head of the Erie, Mr. Underwood will retire on Jan. 1.

CONDITION OF H. WALES LINES REMAINS AS CRITICAL

MERIDEN, Dec. 17.—(AP)—The condition of H. Wales Lines, Meriden's veteran builder, remains critical. He is very weak, and while he has spells of consciousness, when he recognizes those about him, the greater part of the time he is in a state of coma. He has taken no nourishment in nearly two weeks, and he steadily grows weaker.

BRIDGEPORT STORE ROBBED BY LONE ARMED BANDIT

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 17.—(AP)—A lone bandit armed with a revolver today held up the manager of the Logan brothers store at 1383 Park avenue, and escaped with receipts which totalled nearly $40 after he relieved the manager of his watch and one dollar. The bandit escaped after locking the manager in the wash room.

[illegible] Married Life Was Not to His Liking

Declaration Made in Alimony Case by Clayton Bennett Roath of Hartford.

HARTFORD, Dec. [illegible]—(AP)—A state policy not to pay alimony to a woman who brings a divorce action after living with her husband but six months and leaves him angered under with bills, was advocated by Judge Leonard J. Nickerson in the superior court today.

"In such a case," said the judge, "I don't think the policy of the state ought to carry out any rule by which a premium should be placed upon that conduct by decreeing any amount of alimony."

His remarks were made when Anita M. Roath, of 33 Charter Oak place petitioned for alimony pending her divorce action against Clayton Bennett Roath, of 96 Russell street on the ground of intolerable cruelty. They were married June 20, 1925 and after six months of married life in a Vernon street apartment they separated.

"I am not impressed by the conduct of Mrs. Roath," continued Judge Nickerson. "She gets married, spends six months with her husband and then seeks a decree of divorce and now asks for support. When she left him, she took all there was and he has had to pay all the bills. I don't think a strong economical spirit has been shown by Mrs. Roath.

"However," concluded the judge, "under our law a husband is bound to support his wife. An order that he pay her $5 a week may be entered."

She testified her expenses were $12 a week.

She confessed that during their married life they contracted bills at every department store in town. He said he had paid all the bills, but owed his employer $606 as a result.

To pay off that debt, he has agreed to pay his employer $30 a week out of his salary of $40 a week.

After six months of married life, she suggested that he leave and come back later.

"I was so much happier, I felt so much relieved," he continued, "that I never went back."

The examination of the man and woman was very spirited, Sidney E. Clarke representing Mrs. Roath and Edward J. Myers, defending Roath.

SOCIALIST GOVERNMENT IN LITHUANIA OVERTHOWN

BERLIN, Dec. 17—(AP)—Lithuania's socialist government has been overthrown by a military coup, but so far as is known there was no bloodshed. Dr. Kazimir Grigilus, who was only elected to the presidency last June, has been ousted, and reports received here say that General Smetona, a former president with dictatorial powers and the establishment of what is described as a fascist regime.

Dispatches from Riga and other Baltic sources show that the coup which came to a head early this morning was actually under way secretly for a long time. The diet held a night session last night and about 3 o'clock this morning troops entered the building.

A commanding officer, mounting the speaker's platform announced that the army had decided to overthrow the government. The direct charge was made that the government had betroyed Lithuania to the bolsheviists and to foreign nations. Thereupon the officer declared parliament dissolved and the president of the diet was arrested and the members were ejected.

Kovno, the capital, is said to be entirely occupied by military forces, with only one regiment loyal to the former government still occupying a neighboring hill known as the Gruenerberg.

BROADCASTING INSTALLED IN THE DIET IN FINLAND

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Radio has put Finish legislators in touch with the voters that the latter can tell orators when to stop speaking.

Broadcasting has just been installed in the diet to enable the nation to listen to the wisdom of the legislators. An important debate was scheduled the first night the radio was operated and the members, naturally, were anxious to make a good showing.

One rural legislator entered into a long discourse on the subject of Ham and Bacon. As the speech ran on and on, one of the speaker's constituents about 100 miles away, became very tired. He reached the house by long distance telephone and requested an official to tell the long-winded speaker if he did not stop he would be defeated at the forthcoming election. The surprised orator stopped.

MISSING MAN FOUND IN HOSPITAL IN NEWARK, N. J.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Sumner H. Britton, retired publisher of New York and Chicago, who last Monday disappeared from his home in Kew Gardens, Long Island, was found to be a patient suffering from amnesia in City hospital here tonight.

Britton, resting at his hotel, did not go to court, but was represented by counsel, who filed his petition.

It followed closely the grounds presented in the Sinclair petition filed several days ago. Both challenged the legality of the appointment by President Coolidge, at the direction of the senate, of special prosecutors. The senate's action, Fall's petition contended, constituted encroachment by the legislation authority upon the executive function.

HEARING ON RAILROAD FREIGHT RATES ON MILK

BOSTON, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Hearings begun last April by the interstate commerce commission on the petition of New England railroads for a 50 per cent. increase in freight rates on milk, were concluded here today. Milk producers of New England and New York state opposed the proposed increase. Counsel will be allowed 30 days in which to present briefs and after that decision will be rendered.

Official records of the hearings indicate that counsel for milk producers and railroads, and witnesses examined spoke to the extent of 750,000 words. Hearings were held in Boston, New York, and Plymouth. They were conducted by E. I. Lewis, interstate commerce commissioner; Frank E. Mullen, examiner for the interstate commerce commission; Leonard F. Hardy and Lewis Goldberg of the Massachusetts public utilities commission, and W. E. Griggs of the New York public service commission.

DEATHS OF OLDEST OF WALL STREET'S FINANCIERS

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP)—The oldest of Wall street's financiers, John Aikman Stewart, friend of presidents, a former assistant secretary of the treasury, died at his New York home today at the age of 104.

Mr. Aikman, who until the time of his death was chairman of the board of the United States Trust company, succumbed to a sudden attack of pneumonia which followed several weeks of failing health.

Five years ago the aged financier ceased his hitherto regular attendance at his office but at that time insisted that he was not retiring and would remain actively in touch with his business connections.

Since that time he has spent his summers at his home in Morristown, N. J., and his winters in town.

Funeral services will be held Monday at the Brick Presbyterian church on Fifth avenue.

Born during the administration of President Munroe, Mr. Stewart had seen nearly all of the presidents to follow and had been intimately acquainted with several of them.

DECISION RESERVED IN "GIRL IN A TUB" APPEAL

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Decision was reserved today on an appeal made by counsel for Earl Carroll, theatrical producer, to have set aside the latter's conviction on two counts of perjury growing out of his trial for violation of the prohibition laws in connection with a "girl in a tub" party held on the stage of the Earl Carroll theatre last February.

Herbert C. Smyth, counsel for Carroll, argued before three federal judges that when Carroll told members of the grand jury there was no woman in the bathtub he was not committing perjury because the fact that there was or was not a woman in the tub had nothing to do with the prohibition law violations the grand jury was investigating. The presence of the woman, he said, was not a material fact.

YOU'LL WANT TO SEE THEM.

—:o:—

You're missing something if you haven't been downtown to see all the holiday things. It will take you back to the days when you were a child who lived, ate, thought and dreamed of nothing but Christmas for weeks and weeks before the great day. It will all come back to you as it does year after year, and it is time now to gratify the children.

There are only six more shopping days. You cannot afford to delay your Christmas shopping any longer. Let your enthusiasm go unbridled, look carefully through the advertising columns of The Bulletin for helps and suggestions and then get busy filling the want list.

Late shopping means a hustle and bustle. It is much more tiring when you wait until the last minute.

This Is the Last Saturday Before Christmas.

Arguments on Fall Doheny Postponed

Crowded Out by Docket of Petty Larceny and Prohibition Cases.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Argument on a motion to quash the conspiracy indictment against Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, and Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve, was postponed today by Justice Jennings Bailey, of the supreme court of the District of Columbia, until next Tuesday.

A crowded docket of petty larceny and prohibition cases forced abandonment of the court's announced plan to hear the argument.

The indictment, growing out of the leasing of the Wyoming reserve to Sinclair's Mammoth Oil company on April 7, 1922, when Fall was secretary of the interior, has been vigorously fought on demurrers which only last week were dismissed by the supreme court.

Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, special government oil prosecutors, anticipate that a rejection of Sinclair's motion to quash, which was reinforced today by a separate petition in behalf of Fall, will open the way for the beginning of the trial early in January.

Sinclair appeared at the courthouse today, but did not enter the court room in which his case was docketed.

GERMANY TEMPORARILY IS LEFT WITHOUT A CABINET

The Marx Coalition Ministry Resigned Yesterday After the Passage of a Vote, 249 to 171, of Non-Confidence by the Reichstag—Formation of a New Government Will Be Delayed as the Reichstag Has Adjourned Until January 19, and Many Members Have Left Berlin.

BERLIN, Dec. 17—(AP)—Chancellor Marx and his bourgeois coalition cabinet resigned today following the passage of a motion of non-confidence by the reichstag. The vote was 249 to 171.

An unnatural alliance between the left socialist and right nationalist factions, either of which group outnumbers any government party, caused the cabinet's downfall. Socialists, nationalists, communists and fascisti voted together in support of the non-confidence motion introduced yesterday by Philipp Scheidemann, leader of the social democrats.

Even President Hindenburg's insistent appeals failed to move the nationalists to prevent the defeat of the government. According to their party leader, Count von Westarp, the nationalists would have been ready to aid the government had they received assurance they would be invited to representation in the cabinet, but while the people's party was ready to give such assurance, the centrists, holding the balance of power, were non-committal.

Announcement of the defeat of the cabinet brought no show of emotion except some cries from the communists demanding dissolution of the reichstag. The cabinet met immediately after its defeat and reached the formal decision to resign.

Formation of a new government before New Year's is thought unlikely, because soon after the passage of the non-confidence motion the reichstag adjourned until Jan. 19, and many of the members left Berlin tonight.

Under customary procedure the first request to form a cabinet would be addressed to the socialists, which party was responsible for the government's defeat. Nationalist leaders, however, predict that President von Hindenburg may follow the precedent established by President Ebert in ignoring this custom, and take steps for the formation of a government of the right.

The future of Dr. Wilhelm Marx as chancellor has been placed in doubt by the emphatic declaration of Count von Westarp that under no conditions will the nationalists accept Dr. Marx as chancellor. Exchancellor Luther is the man mentioned most frequently by the right group as a possible successor to Marx. Should a coalition including the left prove the only possibility, ex-Chancellor Wirth, who is a centrist, might be called to head it.

It was pointed out as significant Foreign Minister Stresemann was not seriously attacked at any time during the two days of bitter debate. This is believed to indicate that the fall of the government will not affect Germany's foreign policy.

M'NARY AND HAUGEN SPLIT ON FARM RELIEF PROPOSAL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—(AP)—McNary and Haugen parted company today and a new farm relief proposal under the name of McNary-Fulmer came into the house as a companion for the senate bill.

Immediately the farm forces began to lay plans for bringing the new bill to a vote this session, but a decision by the house agricultural committee to discontinue further meetings until after the holidays indicated inaction until January. The senate committee also plans no meetings until after the recess.

Senator McNary's bill was introduced in the house by Representative Fulmer, democrat, South Carolina, and was identical except for agrovision to postpone application of the equalization fee on cotton until two years after passage.

While plans of the farm leaders were being pushed quietly, new interest was attached to the remarks of Representative Dickinson, republican, Iowa, with publication in revised form of his Wednesday's speech in the record.

Members who discussed it informally were plainly surprised by the directness of Dickinson's threat to the administration that unless it supports the farm relief programme, "it ought not to be continued in political power."

Even more surprised, however, were the members over Mr. Dickinson's statement as to presidential prerequisites which followed in the record directly after a re-print of remarks of Frank O. Lowden, former Illinois governor, before a Chicago farm meeting.

The Iowan had been questioned as to whether he believed Mr. Lowden to be too old "to understand the problem of agriculture, much less to be a candidate for president of the United States."

"That," Dickinson replied, "in my judgment, with good health, is not nearly so serious a handicap in a candidacy for president as trying to exceed the standard eight year's limit, that has so been unanimously fixed by precedent in previous years on presidential candidacies."

POOR PEOPLE PREY TO SELLERS OF FAKE BONDS

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP)—The East Side ended a brief flier into high finance today, from $500,000 to $1,000,000 poorer, and with its dreams of comfort and riches turned into a manhunt.

Push-cart peddlers, tenement dwellers and factory workers, spurred by the loss of their Christmas and even life-time savings, were on the look-out for men and women who sold them worthless "bonds" in a proposed project for new homes.

To help the search, a reward of $500 for each swindler caught was offered tonight by August Heckscher, financier, whose project for model housing in the tenement district apparently inspired the confidence workers with their scheme.

Discovery of the activities of the gang, believed to number nearly 50 men and women, was made through banks which reported sudden, unusual withdrawals from savings accounts.

An investigation by Harry H. Schiact, president of the down-town chamber of commerce, was ordered.

Today Mr. Schiacht publicly called attention to the operation of the gang, and announced that since no bonds had been issued by those contemplating the remodeling of the district, the persons offering "bonds" for sale were swindlers, who should be held for arrest.

Private detectives hired by the chamber were working on the case, with arrests expected soon.

AWARDED $7,440 FOR LOSS OF 27 BARRELS OF WHISKEY

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—(AP)—Judgment of $7,440 obtained by Leo J. Gonch, Norwalk, Conn., hotel keeper, for the loss of 27 barrels of whiskey stolen from the Republic warehouse here in 1923 was affirmed today by the appellate division of the supreme court.

The court rules that the provision of the Volstead law depriving the owner of property rights in liquor possessed illegally, should not be cited as a defense to a suit for damages.

Gonch purchased the liquor from the Finance and Trading Co., the shipment, consisting of 30 barrels, being at that time in Havre, France. The day before its arrival in New York, Gonch contracted to sell the whiskey to the Chautemor Trading company of Mexico.

MRS. HARRIS TESTIFIES IN MELLETT MURDER CASE

CANTON, O., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Incidents linking the alleged slayers of Don R. Mellett with deposed members of Canton's police force were related today to the jury trying Patrick Eugene McDermott for the murder of the Crusader publisher.

Mrs. Thelma Harris testified that Louis Maser, one of the indicted trio, on the night of the murder conferred in the home of Doll Carey, alleged underworld character, with Floyd Streitenberger, then a police detective and that Maser later departed carrying a revolver.

John A. McDonald, a police detective, testified that Dum Rudner, third of those indicted, conferred with E. A. Lengel, then police chief in his office a few hours before the editor was slain.

Previously a city official had testified that Rudner and McDermott visited headquarters together on the night of the murder. But, confronted today by Rudner's younger brother, Eddie, the recalled witness said "it might have been" young Rudner and not McDermott that she saw.

Prosecutor C. E. McClintock announced at the close of the court session that the state's one remaining witness tomorrow will tell of another connection between Rudner and the police department.

SIX YOUNG BANDITS GOT $79,600 CASH IN KANSAS CITY

KANSAS City, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Appearing suddenly out of a Christmas crowd in the downtown financial district, six young bandits robbed a Fidelity National Bank and Trust company messenger of $79,600 in cash here today and escaped in a motor car, leaving no trail.

Late today the messenger, W. A. Green, a Negro, walked over the same route from the Kansas City Federal Reserve bank, carrying the same amount in cash, but encountered no bandits. He was accompanied on his second trip by three patrolmen. W. M. MacAvage, guard, who was walking a few yards behind Green, was slugged by two of the bandits, but arose and fired two shots after the car.

The bandit sextet, all young, coolly drew up to the curb as Green neared the entrance to the Fidelity bank, stuck revolvers in Green's side, slugged MacAvage and left with the sack containing the currency—all ten, twenty, five and two dollar bills. Witnesses said no word was spoken.

Several thousand Christmas shoppers were within eyesight of the corner at Ninth and Walnut streets where the holdup took place.

WAITING FOR DECISION OF SENATOR-ELECT SMITH

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Lack of word from Chicago up until a late hour today as to whether Senator-elect Frank L. Smith, of Illinois would accept the appointment to finish the term of the late Senator McKinley caused the senate today to temporarily cast aside the issue.

All was in readiness when the senate session opened to continue the discussion but Senator Tahurst, democrat, Arizona, announced that "he would defer action on his resolution to prevent Mr. Smith from taking the oath "if and until Smith presents his credentials."

This served to stop republican leaders, who were prepared to argue against consideration of the resolution until the decision of Mr. Smith became known, on the ground that it was unfair to continue the attack if the appointment was to be declined.

So far as is known Mr. Smith has not communicated with any senators regarding his position.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Arraignment of Sinclair and Fall was postponed until Tuesday.

The senate approved the Illinois river channel improvement project.

Consideration of the alien property bill was continued by the house.

Representative Reed of New York introduced a $100,000,000 public buildings bill.

The upper Missouri river navigation project was disapproved by the army engineer chief.

Representative Fulmer of South Carolina introduced a slightly modified McNary farm bill.

The senate to delay action on the resolution to bar Senator designate Smith of Illinois.

HOW ARE YOU KEEPING CHRISTMAS?

There is a better thing than the observance of Christmas day, and that is keeping Christmas. Are you willing to forget what you have done for other people, and to remember what other people have done for you; to ignore what the world owes you, and to think what you owe the world; to put your rights in the background, and your duties in the middle distance, and your chances to do a little more than your duty in the foreground; to see that your fellowmen are just as real as you are, and try to look behind their faces to their hearts, hungry for joy; to own that probably the only good reason for your existence is not what you are going to get out of life, but what you are going to give to life; to close your book of complaints against the management of the universe, and to look around you for a place where you can sew a few seeds of happiness — are you willing to do these things even for a day? Then you can keep Christmas.

POETRY

"Snowflakes"

Winter, that brisk dame, today
Came to clean our smoky town,
Dusted off the sober gray,
Swept our steps and highways down,
And bustled on her way.

With a rag of snowcloth, she
Remedied our small world here
In three blustery minutes. See
How the air is polished clear!
How our streets shine magically!

I should like to visit her
In her northern home. 'Tis told
The house is set in leagues of fir,
The grounds are lustrous to behold,
The sky is jeweled, and her good air,

Old Man Winter (so they say)
Sits at the window of the north
Plucking geese down night and day
For summer pillows. Some floats forth
Glistening or softly gray.

To clothe the hillside, ledge and lea
In sapphire light, and smooth the streams
To exquisite serenity
That whosoever looks on, dreams
Their white unworded poetry.
—Tweaite in The Christian Science Monitor.

The Steading

Day slowly passes from the hushed gray world
That sinks, with gloaming, to a deeper dream.
On the brown fields the mist, unstirring, broods;
The highway puddles lose their silver gleam
In all the woods, in all the wayside trees,
Sounds not one whisper of a restless leaf,
Or tap of falling raindrop; all is hushed.
Yet gloaming has two voices; there the stream
Murmurs its tale of silence; there the owl
Greets his old melancholy friend the night.
But here the steading has its quiet stir,
Where two great horses, weary from the plow,
Pass, steaming, to the trough to quench their thirst;
A dog springs out; a heavy booted hind
Moves with a swinging lantern in the byre,
Where lows some hidden beast in warm content;
Within the house there laughs a happy child.
The kitchen window, crimson-curtained, glows,
Calling to warmth and comfort and repose.
—W. Kersley Holmes, in "In the Open."

Asserting the belief of science in the "perfect rotundity of the globe" to be comparable to the blindness of medieval peoples who believed the world was flat, Captain George W. Littlehales, hydrographic engineer for the United States navy, expressed the opinion that the earth is lopsided, flat on both ends and otherwise at variance with accepted theory. He says the earth is wobbling on an undetermined axis, her poles away off side and her "middling bulging most ungracefully like an eccentric tomato."

In remote districts of Turkey quaint customs still linger despite Angora's vigilant modernizing arm. One of the strangest is in the distant village of Cesarea. Whenever a death occurs, a public crier shouts the news through the streets. Even though the death occurs in the depths of the night, the crier immediately shouts out the doleful tidings and wakes all the living villagers with his cries. The post of public death crier was established many years ago by the Evkaf, an official organization controlling religious affairs, which still continues to pay the crier a regular salary for the performance of his duty.

NEW PARKING REGULATIONS WENT INTO EFFECT FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 17—Diagonal parking as a new city ordinance was put into effect here Friday and the principle that many more cars can be parked within a given space as compared to parking parallel to the curb again proved true. The parking is head-in. The big majority of automobile drivers were unaware of the fact that the new ruling was going into effect and while some stopped and looked around in some bewilderment others took no chances and parked according to the old ordinance only to be notified in due time by an officer that parking was now on an angle. Traffic Officer Arthur Hurley was kept busy during the day tending to this matter. In the ordinance provision is made that the right front wheel shall touch the curb. "Every vehicle parking on the section of Main street designated shall be parked with a space so designated by the street committee," is the reading of another paragraph. Due to the snow covered condition of the street at this time the spaces have not been marked, however as yet.

The drill shed was attractively decorated in keeping with the Christmas season and a multi-colored spotlight effect was carried out. Boxes of an arrangement similar to the type used for formal social functions, were placed about the hall each box being fronted with a beautiful ornamental electric light standard. The canteen department was transferred from the basement to the gallery of the hall. The affair was in charge of Company C, 169th infantry, Connecticut National Guard, headed by Captain Joseph H. Morrison. A New Years frolic is being planned by the company.

DEER KILLING CASES COME UP FOR TRIAL TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 17—The deer killing cases involving former Representative Oscar D. Baker of Andover and Albert E. Beck of this city as defendants, which are to be tried in the town of Ashford Saturday afternoon have proven the center of considerable interest. On charges of illegally killing and possessing a deer the defendants will be tried before Justice of the Peace Clarence Dudley with Grand Juror Otto Hattin prosecuting. The defendants deny that they killed the deer mentioned in the case and will be represented by Attorney King in court.

Another deer killing case which is interesting because of its complications is that of Elson Spooking of Hampton who will be tried on a charge of illegally killing a deer in the Chaplin tow court Saturday afternoon. Spooking, using a gun borrowed from one of the two men upon who had previously wounded the animal, put the finishing blow to the deer by striking it over the head. In doing this he incidentally smashed the stock of the gun and according to allegations, illegally killed the deer. Spooking has retained a Hartford attorney and gives promise of a hard battle for acquittal. Justice of the Peace Samuel B. Harvey of this city will be on the bench and Grand Juror Frank W. Landon will prosecute.

The town school evening classes have been discontinued until Tuesday evening, January 4, according to announcement made Friday by Principal Laurence King. Registrations for any of the classes will be received for the coming year upon the resumption of classes. To date the average attendance has been 95 per cent.

WORTHY CHRISTMAS APPEALS

This is the time of year when many Christmas stories are being told and when efforts are being made to have some of them repeated or come true this year. It is the season for spreading the Christmas spirit. It is a time for making provision for those who are not likely otherwise to experience a merry Christmas.

There are many households which have toys in good enough condition to pass along to children who have none and who are likely to get none. There are many others who would like to give the money for the purchase of toys that will be placed in homes where they will be appreciated.

The family welfare committee of the United Workers not only knows where there are such needy homes but is ready to act as Santa Claus for those who are willing to provide the presents. It is an opportunity to which there should be a generous response, for known in advance there can be no excuse for not making adequate provisions. Norwich should be anxious to see that there is some Christmas cheer in every home this Christmas.

Another agency that is appealing for assistance in carrying out its plans for the Yuletide is the Salvation Army and through the kettles while it is maintaining about the city the generous minded are giving in large and small sums that Christmas dinners may be furnished to the poor. This is an annual service in which there is no chance that there will be more received than will be needed.

These worthy causes are deserving of the thoughtful attention of the people of this city. They should not be forgotten or left entirely for over-burdened George to tend to.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA SUFFRAGE

There can be no surprise that the people in the city of Washington are especially interested in the effort to obtain the franchise inasmuch as they are now without such right. Naturally they are going to take advantage of the opportunity which has been opened to them to appear before the sub-committee of the house which has been named to consider this proposition and make themselves heard. Such a plan means, of course, not only the city of Washington but the entire District of Columbia.

To obtain what is sought an amendment to the Constitution will be necessary, but in a spirit of fairness there are good reasons for believing that the people of the district are fully justified in their undertaking. The fact is that there is no reason why the citizens of this country, no matter where they are located should be deprived of the right to vote, other things being equal.

It is to be realized that many of the residents of the district are there before voters at home and have the right to go there and vote at any election. But this means a long trip for many of them, while those who reside in the district permanently are without the government and retain their residence in their respective states. They right to have a voice in any election.

Asking for an amendment and getting it are two different things. Yet congress cannot fail to listen to the pleas as they are made and be disposed to see that justice is done.

There are two distinct propositions which the Washingtonians are putting up to congress and they must not be confused. They want the right to participate in national elections and they want a voice in their own government. Both matters rest with congress. The former can be given only through a constitutional amendment, but it rests entirely with congress whether they are permitted to choose their commissioners and board of education. The respective questions would be decided on their merits but there will be a lot of sympathy for the Washington people in their effort.

IMMIGRATION LAW CHANGES

Immigration is a never ending problem. Legislation which is enacted to meet present day requirements cannot be expected to serve forever. Thus when there is a demand for changes in the existing laws it is only what must be expected, although the mere fact that changes are sought does not necessarily mean that they are worthy.

To meet changing conditions, to correct disclosed injustices and to fill up the loopholes remodeling must be expected from time to time and it is for that purpose that certain amendments are being sought at the present. There are those who would break down the quota arrangement now in effect and others would modify it. While the commissioner general of immigration, H. E. Hull, would have the limitation of immigrants apply to the western hemisphere which is not included in the quota system at the same time.

His last idea has developed from the fact that through our neighbors we are getting a great many undesirable persons, because there is no limit to the number of immigrants, desirable and undesirable, concerning whom we have no information. They can come in without limit and through these countries it is possible to circumvent the restrictions which we have established. Statistics are available to show that while we are extremely careful in some directions we are equally lax in others. We are filling up with many immigrants who cannot become citizens because they cannot, if they desire, establish the fact that they have a right to be here.

This points also to the need of the much talked of registration of aliens in this country. By such a method we could keep tabs on the immigrants who have come in illegally and uncover many of those who are here without legal right and whose presences is not desired.

The choice between those who want a letting down of the bars and those who want a tightening of the immigration machinery is nothing new. It will continue indefinitely but the demand for changes in the immigration law will go far in an effort to bring such legislation as near perfection as possible and even after that point has been attained there will be the changes which will be dictated by new conditions within as well as without.

NAVAL CONSTRUCTION

The demand for ships is already being made in behalf of the navy. This does not apply to capital ships but cruisers, the number of which is not restricted, and three of which have been authorized but no money voted to build them and none asked.

Comparisons between the cruiser strength of this country and that of other countries are conflicting. There are those who show us having a small but efficient equipment as far as it goes, while the British have more ships in the cruiser class but not as modern and Japan nearly as many.

Even should, this country vote the money to build the three authorized cruisers it would not be topping the British or exceeding its relative position in naval strength. Under the old order of things there's no question but what the money would have been appropriated and the ships underway, but it is believed that there will be further steps taken in behalf of disarmament. The impression is that this will include some restrictions on cruisers, and if the question is raised we stand in a better position to urge and support it than we would if we were engaged in a big building campaign. Likewise if it is a case of scrapping ships it would be far better to negotiate a brief bit in the building than to get a group of new ones half done and then send them to the scrap heap.

Whether there will be a disarmament conference and whether there will be anything done at it is of course a question. Delay in naval construction has already been favored in anticipation of results but the uncertainty as to what will develop in that direction still prevails. There can be no desire to jeopardize the country nor can there be one for waste.

WHITE CROSSED HIGHWAYS

Different methods have been adopted in different localities for the purpose of bringing home to the drivers of automobiles the necessity of being careful. Sometimes it seems like a hopeless task because of the manner in which they increase, for even though warnings are given and various ways adopted for the purpose of impressing upon drivers the danger that exists each year records a greater number.

To the legislature of the state of Indiana the suggestion has been made by the secretary of that state that white crosses be erected in the highway at points where persons have been killed in auto accidents. It is figured that it would mean little expense to the state for some one of the various state agencies could erect them and the actual cost would not be over 50 cents each. Then as the processions of machines went along it would be possible to point out where others had been needless and the markers would serve as warnings to all, whether they need them or not.

This idea has been carried out in a similar way in some localities by having wrecked machines left by the side of the road that those who pass may take note. Elsewhere signs have been erected on which the number of deaths is noted and they never fail to make an impression upon those who read.

Such markers, or crosses, would naturally have to be confined to the highways outside of cities, but it cannot be imagined that they would fail to serve an excellent purpose. Such constant reminders of the desirability of using care to avoid the fate of others aren't going to be ignored by all. It would be claiming too much to insist that no more accidents or fatalities would occur at such places but it would have a tendency to keep the minds of the autoing public upon measures for their own safety. That there is need for such good results as it is hoped by the promoters to obtain no one will gainsay, and certainly the expense would be insignificant, although the vicinity of some railroad crossings might resemble a cemetery.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

One week hence will be Christmas, and the event of Christmas was the real starting point of the New Testament. Let us not forget that the blank page separating the two parts of the Bible represents a fruitful history of nearly 400 years not vitally related to the progress of divine revelation that helps us to a better understanding of the Messiahship of Jesus. For instance, it presents the rise and growth of Hellenism which was Greek philosophy applied to the interpretation of the Jewish Scriptures. The religious writings during this period are known to us as the Apocrypha because they are not authentic which were formerly printed in the Bible between the Old and New Testaments. They are chiefly valuable for giving the context of this pre-Christmas period. The great event however in this period was the rise of the Maccabees, staunch defenders of Judaism.

The Maccabees occupy a very unique place in human history in that they bridge over the chasm between Malachi and Matthew. One star of the first magnitude appeared during this period, and that was Judas Maccabaeus, one of the truly great men of the ancient world, but strangely less known than many less prominent lights. His father, a priest, by the name of Mattathias was the founder of the dynasty, and had five sons all conspicuous for patriotism and courage. This party seems to have come into power for the purpose of making the Jewish people independent of surrounding nations. No family in history fought more valiantly for their nation, and than this. When Mattathias died he named Judas, his second son, as his successor. Judas was first pitted against Antiochus Epiphanes and routed him; he then put the great Lysias out of commission, and eventually Nicanor himself. He was the greatest man of this period.

Another name that looms up big in this pre-Christmas age was that of Philo, the Alexandrian scholar whose infinity rests on his wisdom, rather than warlike prowess. Philo, though born in Alexandria and educated there, was of Jewish parentage, as his surname Judaeus would indicate. Belonging to one of the most wealthy and aristocratic families, he received the most liberal education. He did more than any other man of his day in making Judaism palatable to the more refined of the Greeks by proving it to be identical with the grandest conceptions of their poets and philosophers. The extraordinary brilliance of his style—which his contemporaries likened to Plato-combined with his rare power of thought and imagination made him easily the first writer and scholar in that dim interval between Malachi and Matthew. Judas and Philo are the two great pillars that span this bridge.

Getting away from obscure records of the Maccabees, we have right about us more tangible evidence of pre-Christmas days. It goes without saying that our gifts to one another at this season of the year ought to have some relation to the Christmas idea. If the spirit is all right it makes little difference whether these gifts are cheap or expensive. The tenderhearted wife means well when she buys an impossible necktie for her young husband, or a still more impossible box of cigars, but by no stretch of the imagination can one see any connection with Christmas. Presents given at this time may be useful even if they clash with the idealism of the day. The limit was reached by a certain farmer who gave to his newly-married son, who also was a farmer, a 300 pound hog at Christmas. Hogs have their place on a farm, but what had the gift to do with Jesus whose parents were Jews?

Why not make the Christmas gift something that is, at least, suggestive of that beautiful pastoral scene of Bethlehem so long ago? The preceding paragraph was not written as a criticism of the splendid custom of giving at Christmas, but instead of making them so much of the earth earthy, why not make them savor more of gold, frankincense and myrrh? It is this incense of grateful hearts that ought to be laid at the feet of the little Christ child. The other types of gifts ought not to be withheld, but why not reserve them for birthdays, and keep the frankincense and myrrh for Christmas? We ought to make a clear-cut distinction between birthday gifts and Christmas presents, and this is the very thing that we do not do. When you tie up that Christmas package to be sent to the loved ones far from home, remember that it will fall far short of its real purpose unless they detect the incense.

What a tremendous uplift it would be to this poor old jaded world of ours if there could be, as never before, a generous administration of peace: peace with one's self—peace with one's neighbor—peace with all mankind! There is nothing else under heaven that will bring in the coveted millennium but obedience to the divine command, "and on earth peace, good will to men." We have tried almost everything else imaginable but the desired has not yet materialized. We have put learning on the throne, and that in itself is a good thing, but we have not reached a satisfactory goal. We have worshipped gold and pushed its power to the ends of the earth but we are not satisfied with the results. For 4,000 years we have been killing one another oftentimes for an apparent friend, and sometimes in the great and holy name of Christ, and the only result is a black trail through the life of humanity. Let us now try the graces of the spirit.

Why not make good will more of an objective reality? As an enlightened people we are way up on the theory of this virtue, but how about its actual practice? The smallest ate was lifted up pretty high in 1914 and aimed at the face of humanity. If its blow had not been parried it would have assassinated humanity and ended our present civilization. That nailed first that struck out without any just provocation represented everything that peace and good will do not. If there had not been an undercurrent of the gentler virtues in the hearts of men, we cannot keep from shuddering when we think what the probable result would have been. And when we look back at those frightful days we ask: What was the result? The subsequent condition of Europe is the conclusive answer. The brightest sign in the world's horizon today is not material prosperity, but the first determination that wars shall be no more.

In the spirit of this season is there not a fundamental reason why the spirit of giving should be responsive? When we reflect on what the coming of the light of the world has meant to us, ought it not to awaken a responsive chord in every heart? Before this new warm radiance fell on the heart of humanity, we know that for the most part the blind, deaf, lame, sick, naked and hungry were left to battle with their misery as best they could. But not so in the year of grace 1926 because we have such agencies as the Red Cross, the Near East Relief, and means of fighting the awfulness of tuberculosis and other terrible diseases. We also have hoards of relief institutions whose object is to help the unfortunate. All this would have been different if the Light of the World had not attacked the darkness and coldness of pagan Rome, and blessed humanity ever since.

SHALL CONGRESS ABANDON TIME-HONORED CUSTOM?

One suggestion made by President Coolidge in his annual message has escaped the attention of the general public if not the notice of the gentlemen on Capitol hill, writes T. J. Joslin to the Boston Transcript from Washington. Reference is made to that section of the message setting forth that a large amount of time is consumed in the passage of appropriation bills and that if such consumption in the opening session would make appropriations to continue for two years many much time would be saved, which could either be devoted to a consideration of the general needs of the country or would result in decreasing the work of the house and senate.

Members of the two bodies have discussed the matter at some length in the past week. Certain senators and congressmen believe that the recommendation is sound and that it would be advisable to make biennial appropriations. Others, however, contend that it would be a mistake to make any change in the present arrangement, whereby funds are provided the government for each fiscal year. The views of a number of senators and congressmen have been obtained. They indicate a divergence of opinion and considerable debate, if the matter comes up for formal discussion in either house or the senate.

Wasting Time on Small Matters

Members favoring the change emphasize the fact that congress is elected for a two-year period. While continuous sessions are not held, ordinarily, the national legislative body provides funds for the government for the period for which it is elected. The argument is made that it would be as satisfactory to make the appropriations for two years as for one, especially in time of peace, and that the weeks devoted during the concluding session to the passage of appropriations for the coming fiscal year could be given to general legislation waiting action.

President Coolidge undoubtedly had such legislation in mind when he incorporated the suggestion in the opening paragraphs of his message. He appreciated that a large part of the present session would have to be devoted to appropriation bills that must be passed before March 4 if an extraordinary session of the 70th congress is to be avoided. He appreciated as well that a considerable amount of general legislation really needed by the country was pending in the house and senate and that the chances were against some, if not all, of it being passed in the next few months. If the last session had made appropriations for two years instead of one, there would have been little need of financial matters commanding the almost undivided attention of the members at this session. It would have been necessary to pass only a few deficiency bills, providing appropriations the need of which could not be foreseen last spring. The balance of time could be devoted to matters of greater importance, at least from the point of view of the country at large.

Would Increase Expense, Antis Say

As a matter of fact, the foregoing summarizes the opinions of most of the members of congress who believe as the president does. They can see no real good reason why the change could not be made advantageously. They would like to bring about the reform at once, believing that altogether too much time is devoted to appropriation matters, important though they are. To use the words of one of these members, there is anything but an equal division of time by either branch of congress, days being devoted to appropriation bills that really should be given to consideration of legislation of an entirely different character. They emphasize, too, that this other legislation is much more interesting to the average citizen than is the appropriation legislation, now outstanding that the totals determine the expenditures of the government and whether there shall be an occasional reduction in federal taxes.

Opponents of biennial appropriations take an entirely different view. They contend that it is impossible to make appropriations wisely for a two-year period, arguing that the greatest difficulty would be experienced in attempting to determine during the winter of 1926 what appropriations should be made for the fiscal year of 1929. They emphasize that while the totals of the individual appropriation bills do not vary a great deal from year to year, the items that go to make up the totals do change considerably. A given bureau, they say, may need only $150,000 for the coming year, but that unforeseen developments may make it necessary to give the same bureau $170,000 for the subsequent year. In answering the argument that the additional appropriation of $20,000 can be made in a supplementary deficiency bill, they say that the passing of such a measure, containing a great variety of items, would require as much time as the passing of an appropriation bill in the first instance.

Those strongest public argument is that biennial appropriations would increase government expenditures, causing them to exceed surplus. That President Coolidge, exponent of economy that he is, would recommend it. Continuing their argument, they say that the bureau needing $150,000 during the following fiscal year, might expend only $130,000 during the following fiscal year, due to changed that could not be foreseen at the time of making the appropriation. From their point of view, at least it is anything but an easy task to get back from any governmental agency money actually appropriated for it. They contend that biennial appropriations would be unbusinesslike, that no business would make appropriations for so long a period and that the government should not.

The real reasons for the opposition has not been stated publicly and probably will not be stated, if the matter comes up for debate. Briefly, it is that the members opposed to the recommendation, and they include a considerable number of the recognized leaders of the house and senate in financial matters, have no intention of relinquishing, even in part, the control that the legislative branch of the government has over the executive branch in this particular. Under present conditions, executive officials must come before congress once a year for the funds with which to operate their respective offices. Under the proposed plan, they would make an appearance only once in two years, except as regards supplementary appropriations. From the political point of view, if so either, this is a step toward divorcing two of the branches of the government, a step that will not be taken if the politically-minded on Capitol hill can prevent it.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

To become head of the largest banking institution in the world before reaching his 50th year is a feat in finance to which few would dare to aspire. Such is the record of accomplishment, however, in the amazing career of Charles Edwin Mitchell, the president of the National City bank of New York, which has taken rank above all other commercial banks by virtue of its recent action in increasing its capital from $50,000,000 to $75,000,000. Mr. Mitchell was only 41 years old when he was chosen president of the bank six years ago upon the retirement of James Stillman, Jr., being at the time one of the youngest men ever to become head of such an important institution. He was born in Chelsea, Mass., in 1877, of an old colonial family, and was graduated from Amherst college when 20 years of age. His early banking experience was gained in Boston.

Sunday Morning Talk

THE SNOW

We talk about the beauty of a summer sky, but I question whether another season shows such fine color effects as winter. Not April or June can rival the wonderful hues of a December morning. Whittier has well described the glory of a clear winter day in the country:

"Around the glistening wonder bent
The blue walls of the firmament,
No cloud above, no earth below,
A universe of sky and snow."

Lowell has hailed winter, "the triumphant season of the moon." "Whoever," he asks, "saw any thing it to match the gleaming rather divinee than seen, which runs before her over the snow, a breath of light as she rises on the infinite silence of a winter night."

This is also "the triumphant season" of the stars, which seem

"To hang, like twinkling winter lamps,
Among the branches of the leafless trees."

Do you want a new sensation, a new revelation of beauty? Take a walk through the woods just after or better still during a fall of snow of the kind that clings to everything it touches. Last year's aster stalks bore blossoms whiter than any they had known before, and each stem of golden rod was bowed down with a weight of cold, shining curiosity and the weeds! Never were they more beautiful, not the fresh tender green of spring, nor the full rich foliage of midsummer, nor the golden glory of autumn could surpass their soft, silent entrancing loveliness.

The trees had a layer of snow like the finest wool. White as no fuller on earth could whiten it. Every withered brown oak leaf held half a cupful, the boughs of the white pines dropped beneath their lovely burden. While the sturdier pines picked their needles stiffy through the soft halls. The alder bushes were decked as for a bridal, each twig being covered deep with snow.

And still the feathery whiteness falls, covering alike leafless bough, unsightly stump and cold gray stone.

God in the most wonderful artist. "Great things doeth He which we cannot comprehend for He saith to the snow, Be thou upon the earth."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

No Use for Smith

Mr. Editor: When the invitations were sent out to attend that Al Smith secret meeting in New Haven, some got into the wrong hands. Oneco democrats are not of the hand organ playing, Bowery dancing, party wrecking kind wanted at the New Haven meeting. When the democratic party picks for a leader a man who encourages openly, violation of the constitution and who openly lends his aid to the party wreckers that kicked about the last prop from under the old Jefferson platform in 1924, its time to stay away from New Haven.

Al Smith may be the king of New York but he was nearer to the presidency two years ago when he was only defeated by a small majority of the delegates than he ever will be again. When such a great man as Wm. G. McAdoo, the man who more than any other one man won the great World war is abused, insulted and in a rowdish way defeated in a democratic convention pot house politicians need not expect to get very far.

Former Norwich Leaders

From Norwich Bulletin, Sept. 19, 1860.

REV. DORSON E. SYKES

The intelligence of the death of Mr. Sykes will awaken in the minds of many of the older residents of this city the remembrance of him and of the period when, for 17 years as owner and editor of the Norwich Courier, he held a prominent place in the community.

In connection with the noble band of men then upon the stage, he used the influence this position gave him for the welfare of the town. In religion, in charity, in education and temperance his pen was ever ready to assist and his hand to aid. With more than ordinary intellectual ability, a thorough education and strong moral convictions, his opinions were never hastily formed; but once arrived at, he was fearless and outspoken in their expression.

In politics he was no party man only. A Whig while, and afterwards a republican, he worked zealously and disinterestedly for what he felt to be right but was ever ready to acknowledge mistakes and errors in party or party measures.

As a friend Mr. Sykes was true and sympathetic, and in social life was a cheerful and agreeable companion.

Mr. Sykes was born in Lisbon, near Ogdensburg, N. Y., in 1806. He fitted for college at Potsdam academy, in the same state, and was graduated at Yale college in 1832. He afterwards taught school for nearly three years, at Middleway, Ga., then, returning to New Haven, was there as a theological student for the full course of three years.

Finding himself unable to preach because of bronchial troubles, he purchased the Norwich Courier in 1843, of which he continued editor until 1856. His failing health rendering him unequal to the care of the paper, it was sold in 1859, and in 1861 he removed to California. Eight years since he was stricken with partial paralysis, and disabled from all active business.

These years have been passed in the home of his brother, John I. Sykes, Esq., at Grass Valley, Nevada county, in gradually declining health, until noon of Monday, Sept. 19th, when he passed away in faith and hope of a glorious resurrection.

In 1841 he was married to Miss Georgianna May, of this place, whose loss by death, in the spring of 1857, he deeply mourned, and whose memory he always tenderly cherished.

YOUR HEALTH

ARE YOU SURE IT IS A CATARACT?

George A. Moore, M. D., Palmer, Mass., Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

"Cataract" was known to the ancient Greek and Roman physicians. They imagined it to be an opaque fluid falling from above in front of the lens of the eye, hence the name cataract. It is an important change from normal, but most hopeful from the standpoint of vision.

Everyone nowadays has heard of cataract but few know much about it and, if correcting glasses for failing sight cannot be found, the conclusion may erroneously be "jumped at," that the trouble is cataract. Then, too, there often is the slightly informed friend, who, seeing a grayish reflex in the pupil, a scar on the cornea, or a more or less harmless pterygium on the eye, announces the presence of cataract.

To the layman cataract means blindness and the statement that he has a cataract brings a chill, numbing sense of fear; the fear that all have of blindness.

Often the question is asked, "What can I do for cataract?" The answer well might be, first be sure that it is cataract. Many people literally have worried themselves ill over supposed cataracts, only to find later, when examined by a competent person, that no cataract was present.

Inside the eyeball, back of the pupil, is a small body, the size of the tip of a child's little finger, called the crystalline lens. Sometimes this lens changes from its normal state of wonderful transparency to a milky or cloudy condition, and this condition constitutes cataract.

Cataract, therefore, is not something which grows on or in the eye. It is not a growth at all; it is merely a change in the lens. There is and has been a deal of quakery in relation to cataract. Unprincipled men have preyed upon the fears and hopes of many afflicted ones, causing them loss and disappointment and depriving them, the while, of proper advice.

The treatment of cataract is surgical and proper skill renders the outlook for recovered sight extremely favorable. Medicines and applications are absolutely without value but happily the lens can be removed safely, successfully, and without pain. What to do then for cataract, is to seek the best advice and follow it faithfully.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hanner Penniman, Litt. D.

Fiction and Our Natures

Treating of imaginary characters the novelist may describe what he actually sees without fear of hurting the feelings of anyone. The tendency of many novels to conventionalities, and to express in set phrases the tenderest emotions is another reason why we should read no fiction but that which is true to life. We may occasionally be obliged to read for information a book written by an inferior author but there is no excuse for reading shy novels but those of the highest class. We should question fiction sharply as to its effect upon our natures; if it does not have a wholesome and uplifting influence, no amount of interest that it possesses should entitle it to consideration.

When you read fiction read that written by the masters, like Scott, Dickens, Thackery and George Eliot. Read the great novels that the judgment of the world has pronounced of permanent value but do not form one of the large class whose chief inspiration is derived from the last new novel. The new book that every one is talking about will probably be forgotten in six months but Ivanhoe, Henry Esmond, David Copperfield, and Romola will last as long as the English language. There are some classic stories like Robinson Crusoe, Gulliver's Travels and The Arabian Nights to which constant reference is made and with which every educated person is expected to be familiar.

BROWN DIVORCE CASE CONTINUED UNTIL MONDAY

When the superior court adjourned shortly after 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, the trial of the divorce case brought by Arthur Chester Brown of Salem, formerly of Norwich against Isabel Yeomans Brown, of this city, was continued until Monday afternoon. Trial of the divorce action was started before Judge Allyn L. Brown after the short calendar matters had been disposed of. Both plaintiff and defendant are well known in this section. Mr. Brown was for several years agent of the Falls mill, is an extensive property holder at Gardner Lake and is representative-elect from the town of Salem to the general assembly.

Mr. Brown is represented by Attorneys Lee Roy Robbins of this city and G. Curtis Morgan of New London. The law firm of Shields and Shields and Attorney Edmund W. Perkins are counsel for Mrs. Brown who has a counter action for divorce.

Jerome Sullivan, of Colchester, bus driver and a former rural carrier, was the first witness called to the stand. Asked if he had had any relations with Mrs. Brown, by Attorney Morgan, Sullivan declined to answer after Judge Brown had stated that he, Sullivan, had that right under his constitutional rights.

Mr. Brown, taking the stand after Sullivan's testimony had been taken, stated that he had lived with his wife for 21 years, but is not living with her now. Witness testified to receiving anonymous letters in regard to his wife and Sullivan. A number of letters had been found by him in his wife's cedar chest, he testified and his wife denied receiving letters from Sullivan. Plaintiff, testified that he showed the letters to Sullivan and that the latter admitted writing them.

Witness told of his wife taking a trip to the south and said he bought her ticket and gave her $250. Witness told of his wife wanting money from him, and of her wanting to marry Sullivan. He refused to give her money. He testified that he would never live with her again. He had suspicions of his wife's actions. He met Sullivan at Gardner Lake while the latter was a rural free delivery carrier. The plaintiff side was still introducing evidence when the court adjourned.

OBITUARY
Mrs. Helen L. Barber Phillips

Mrs. Helen L. Barber Phillips, well known former Norwich resident, and daughter of George R. Barber, long a resident of this city, died in a Brookline, Mass., hospital Dec. 2, after a three days' illness. Mrs. Phillips was born in New London in 1891 but for some years had lived in this city. She was a member of the Episcopal church and an attendant at Trinity Episcopal church, during her residence here.

Mrs. Phillips was a highly esteemed employe of the Dictaphone company in Boston, being assistant to the office manager, and in her capacity as instructor of the use of the dictaphone had traveled extensively throughout the eastern section of the country. She had been connected with the Dictaphone company for 11 years.

Surviving her are her father of No. 10 Court street, this city, two sisters, Mrs. Robert C. Moreau of Lawrence, Mass., and Mrs. Albert McLaughlin, a niece, Lois M. Moreau of Lawrence, and uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Enos of this city and an aunt, Mrs. Sadie B. Watrous of Waterford, besides her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. David Wilson of Clark's Corners.

With a very large attendance of relatives and friends the funeral was held Dec. 6 from No. 1569 Beacon street, Brookline, and the following day the body was brought to Norwich for burial in Maplewood cemetery. Rev. C. Montgomery Budlong, rector of Christ Episcopal church, conducted the committal service. There was a wealth of very beautiful floral tributes.

GRAHAM GETS SETBACK WHEN HE LOSES DECISION TO CANZONERI

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Rusty Graham's bantamweight championship hopes were unexpectedly dimmed tonight when he lost a 10-round judges' decision to Tony Canzoneri of New York before a throng of 10,000 at Madison Square Garden.

Graham who is matched to fight Charley (Phil) Rosenberg for the world's bantamweight title here on January 7 was credited with winning only three of the rounds by newspapermen at the ringside. Canzoneri was awarded five while the other two were scored as even. The judges and the referee were unanimous in their verdict for Canzoneri.

Speed, skill and ring experience made Graham a heavy pre-bout favorite, but Canzoneri more than balanced the Utica, N. Y., boy's cleverness by his aggressiveness and superior hitting. Graham was on the run throughout the match and frequently was guilty of holding. The weights were announced as Graham 118 1-2, Canzoneri 120.

In a hard-fought, ten-round semi-final between New York bantams, Johnny Green, 121, shaded Vic Burrone, 120 1-4.

Pete Sarmiento of the Philippines slugged his way to a ten-round draw with Dominick Petrone of New York in the first of four bantamweight fights at Madison Square Garden tonight. Outboxed and out speeded in the first five rounds, Sarmiento carried the battle to his foe in the last half of the match and evened the score with a battering body attack. Petrone weighed 120, half a pound more than his opponent.

Honors also were even, the judges decided, in a second ten-round skirmish between Carl Tremain, Cleveland veteran and Andy Martin of Boston. Martin scored a knockdown in the opening session and apparently held a lead on points until the eighth round, when the midwesterner boxer rallied strongly to overcome his rival's early advantage. Tremaine weighed 128 1-2, Martin 122.

ASSOCIATED PRESS PICKS AN ALL-CAPTAIN TEAM

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP)—The old idea that the football captain needed to be the quarterback, or at least in the backfield, seems to have been dispelled.

The list of captains-elect for 1927 among 62 representative eastern, southern and middle western colleges shows the choices almost evenly divided, with 23 elected from the ball-carriers and 23 from the forwards.

Quarterbacks and halfbacks, however, head the list of next season's gridiron leaders, 13 each being chosen. Ends come next, with ten, while nine tackles, seven centers, six guards and seven fullbacks complete the roster.

The fad of having two captains, started by Notre Dame, has spread to the college of the city of New York, university of Texas and Worcester tech for next season.

The lately disrupted "Big Three" all have selected linemen for 1927 leaders. Princeton an end, Charley Moeser; Yale a guard, Bill Webster; and Harvard a tackle, Charley Pratt. Alabama, Colgate, Columbia, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan and Pennsylvania also selected their next season's leaders from the line but the Army and Navy, Cornell, Brown, Dartmouth, Minnesota, New York university, Northwestern, Pittsburgh, Penn state, Purdue, Georgetown and Syracuse have picked their field generals from the backfield.

An all-star lineup of next season's captains-elect, based upon their mention in all-American opinions compiled by the Associated Press this season, follows:

Ends—Benny Oosterbaan, Michigan, and Bill Timms, Colgate.

Tackles—Freddy Pickhard, Alabama, and Emerson Nelson, Iowa.

Guards—Ted Meyer, Ohio state, and Bill Webster, Yale.

Center—Bob Reitsch, Illinois.

Quarterback—Roy Randall, Brown.

Halfbacks—Harry Wilson, Army, and Gilbert Welch, Pittsburgh.

Fullback—Herb Joesting, Minnesota.

TUNNEY THINKS DEMPSEY HITS TOO HARD FOR DELANEY

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 17.—(AP)—Gene Tunney thinks that Jack Dempsey is too powerful a puncher for Jack Delaney, world's light-heavyweight champion, who has been reported as seeking a match with the man dethroned by the ex-marine.

"Delaney, as a great fighter, has everything, but he is not big enough," Tunney is quoted in the Newark evening news today. "Dempsey would hit him once and—I wonder if Delaney's press agent ever read the list of knockouts compiled by that fellow Dempsey. Boy and man, that Dempsey can hit.

"Would I take Delaney? Certainly, if they make the match."

Tunney expressed the opinion that if he ever fought Dempsey again he ought to drop Jack.

"Dempsey never had the sturdy jaw he was credited with," said Tunney. "Jack can hit if he gets you. He did not get to Tommy Gibbons and he did not get to me. But a man with a punch who gets Jack right can knock him down. If I ever get in the ring with him again I believe I'll prove that theory."

NEW ENGLAND HORSEMEN'S DAY BANQUET AT SPRINGFIELD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 17.—The 14th annual New England Horsemen's day sponsored by the Bay State circuit, will be held in the Hotel Bridgway in this city, Wednesday, Jan. 19 instead of in Boston as in past years. Already the committee has made plans that assure the day being one of the greatest in history. More than 500 horsemen from all over the east are expected to attend.

Rev. James Gordon of this city, a brilliant speaker, already has accepted an invitation to address the gathering at the banquet in the evening which tops off the day's festivities. W. H. Gocher, of Hartford, Conn., secretary of the National Trotting association also will be among the prominent speakers.

Invitations have been extended to Gov. Alvin T. Fuller of this state, Gov. John T. Trumbull of Connecticut, Cong. Henry L. Bowles of this city, James P. Perry of Hartford, owner of one of the biggest stables racing on the Grand circuit, Rev. Sherrod Soule of Hartford, Frank Mosey of Pittsfield, N. H., and Trainer Harry Brussie of Windsor Locks, Conn.

Major H. M. Stanford, owner of the Hotel Bridgway, and a prominent horseman, is chairman of the committee in charge, the other members of which are: Charles A. Nash, Milton Danziger, W. F. Moriaty and Fred W. Thompson of this city, Thomas Ashworth, Charlton city; Albert J. Bailey, Norwich, Conn.; M. W. Delaney, Hartford, Conn.; W. H. Dickinson, Northampton; Allan J. Wilson, Boston; Roger Rourke, Greenfield; F. D. Whitcomb and Henry M. Clark of this city.

ACADEMY-ALUMNI GAME SLATED FOR CHRISTMAS NIGHT

The Academy-Alumni game will be played Christmas night, according to an announcement made Friday evening by Manager Morris Goldblatt the school quintet.

This game was originally scheduled for this date but then changed to Dec. 30, but now that it has been definitely settled for Christmas day everything should go along smoothly and a banner crowd is looked for. The Alumni will number some stellar performers among their roster, namely, Eli Segal, Jack Hinricks, Eddie Mack and others and they can be be depended upon to give the schol team a tough tussle.

Manager Goldblatt also announced that the Norwich All-Collegians have been secured for the New Year's day, heretofore an open date. This quintet is reportd as being composed of both past and present college basket ball luminaries and this game also should prove a banner attraction.

After a rather stormy early season in which quite a little trouble was experience in booking games the managers of now has practically all dates filled and Norwich fandom can look forward to some nifty exhibitions of this popular winter sport.

NNO CHANCE FOR FLOWERS UNTIL SUMMER

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—(AP)— Mickey Walker, the newly-crowned middleweight champion, will not give Tiger Flowers a chance to win back the title until next summer, Jack Kearns, manager of the titleholder, said tonight. Furthermore, eKarns added he would insist on $200,000 as Walker's share of the purse.

"We promised Flowers a return match, but it will be up to him and his manger to di gup the promoter willing to pay us $200,000," Kearns said.

"It cost us $18,000 to win the title because of the agreement we were forced to sign, guaranteeing Flowers $65,000 if he lost. Now that we have the championship, we will go some of the digging ourselves."

Meanwhile aWlker expects to engage some less dangerous opponents and will invade the Pacific coast after the first of the year for two or three contests, returning to Chicago to box in February.

eKarns favors Chicago as the battle ground for the return match with Flowers, with Promoter Jim Mullen staging it in the Cubs ball park. The Cubs park will be enlarged to seat 60,000.

BENEFIT SHOW TO BE STAGED FOR SAM LANGFORD

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Present-day Negro boxing stars will participate in a show for the benefit of Sam Langford, famous years ago as the Boston "Tar Baby," now almost blind and in straightened circumstances.

The State Athletic commission today sanctioned the benefit, appointing a committee of boxing officials and matchmakers to arrange it. Bruce Flowers, Chick Suggs and Black Bill, all well known boxers, are expected to take part.

The action in Langford's behalf followed an appeal by the Negro heavyweight to the National sports alliance, which has a fund for the aid of needy boxers and their families. Langford said he wanted $500 with which to open a bootblack stand in Boston.

ACADEMY-WARRIORS GAME AT "Y" THIS EVENING

Another stellar evening's program of basketball will be served up to Norwich fandom this Saturday evening at the Y gym with two fast games scheduled. The Y. M. C. A. quintet will face the Hi Y of Danielson, while the Academy will be opposing the Warriors of this city. The first game that of the N. F. A. is scheduled for 7:15, with the other tilt immediately after.

The Academy quintet, still smarting under the decisive defeat handed them last week by Suffield Prep, will be out right from the start this evening after their opponent's scalp and some stiff action should be the outcome. Coach McKean put the finishing touches on the squad Friday afternoon with a stiff drill and reports all candidates, with the possible exception of Lew Pingree, center, in Al shape. Pingree is laid up with a sore ankle, but is now on the mend and will be ready for the next scheduled, namely that with the Alumni.

The probable Academy starting lineup for this evening follows: Capt. Yerrington and Ducky Jackson, forwards; either Fenton, LaCroix or Jarvis at center and Cimlroski and Armstrong at guards.

The Warriors will send their strongest lineup onto the floor in an attempt to make a good showing. This club has not met with much success during the basketball season to date but promise to play a hard game this evening. They ill havew Pete Bergeron, Tombari, Burns, Carden and Henschel.

The Y five will have a capable opponent in the Danielson team. The up-staters will come here with a club composed for the most part of former Killingly High stars who have been playing together for some litle time.

The local Y ers wil piresent a lineup of amateur stars and Coach McKean expects them to put up a good game in their first real start of the current season. The following will see service during the course of the game: Capt. Brown, Ludlow, Tombari, Barber, Adnopoz, Segal, Genig, Dahl, Mouseesian, Grebe, and Finlayson.

SEVENTEEN AWARDED NUMERALS AT STORRS

STORRS, Dec. 11.—(Special)—Announcement of the award of football numerals to seventeen members of the Connecticut Aggies freshman football squad was made here today by Roy J. Guyer, professor of physical education at the State college. Those receiving numerals include: Bernard Abrahams, New Haven; Crombie Buckner, Kirkwood, Mo.; Harold E. Carlson, Greenwich; Rhear M. Flynt, Hartford; John J. Goebel, New Haven; Robert W. Grant, Niles, Mich.; Ignatius Cornelius W. Hawkins, Hartford; Laurence E. Lamoureaux, Hartford; Robert E. McCafferty, Stonington; Arthur T. Nichols, West Cheshire; Marvin P. Osterling, West Hartford; Richard J. Reiffkess, Hartford; Joseph R. Ryan, New Haven; Samuel Schleiffer, Norwich; David E. Slossberg, Hartford; John B. Stangel, East Hartford; and Thomas K. Walker, New Haven.

C. F. C. FIVE CLASHES WITH BALTIC MONDAY

The C. F. C. quintet will match itself against the Baltic M. C. five on Monday night. This will probably be a hotly contested game because several of the Baltic Indepent players, who whipped the Willimantic Rovers by the score of 51-4, are on the M. C. team and they will try to keep themselves on a winning team. On the other hand, the local five will be out for revenge in order that they may have a little consolation after the defeat that they received last Wednesday at the hands of the Plainfield Buddies.

The game will be played on the "Y" court and will start at 8:15 sharp.

LANDIS AND JOHNSON SHOWERED WITH CONGRATULATIONS ON VICTORIES

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Telegrams of congratulation were piled a foot deep today on the desk of Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball's highest priced star, when he returned to his office after the annual baseball meetings.

His seven-year contract at $65,000 a year tops the highest previous figure by a substantial margin, Babe Ruth, being the next highest salaried performer at $52,000 a year.

The white haired commissioner, just past his 60th birthday, hand an opportunity to pass out some Christmas cheer today, by signing checks for $327.81 each for the 23 members of the Washington Americans. This was their share of the world's series receipts as fourth place winners in their league, but they have been slow to decide how they wished it divided.

Nick Altrock and Al Schact, the club's comedians, were given full shares and Frank Baxter and Decatur Jones half shares.

Ban Johnson, American league head, whose hearty congratulations to Landis yesterday ended a two-year dispute with the commissioner, had an equal heap of telegrams offering him felicitations upon the burial of the baseball hatchet.

"Landis is all right," said Johnson vigorously, "there are lots worse people than the judge. I'm glad everybody wishes him well. I do, too."

These two were almost the sole survivors of the baseball crowds of yesterday, but the echo of one of the notable deals of last summer came from the office of the Chicago Cubs, with the announcement that two right hand pitchers had been released to Toledo to close the deal for Shortstop English, who also cost considerable cash. The two roundsmen were Walter Huntzinger and George Milstead. Huntzinger was the player traded by the Cardinals for Grover Cleveland Alexander, when the Cubs asked for mer and charged him with breaking waivers of the great Alex last summ training t les.

The Cardinals grabbed Alex at the nominal waiver price, but sent the Cubs Huntzinger instead as payment for the pitcher who won them two games in the world's series.

CONN. AGGIES OPEN SEASON THIS EVENING

STORRS, Dec. 17.—(AP)—The Connecticut Aggies will open their basketball season tomorrow evening at Brooklyn against the Crescent Athletic club. The starting line-up will include only Connecticut men. Captain William K. Schofield, of Waterbury, will start at right guard, Henry Schildgren, of Naugatuck at left guard, Willard C. Eddy, of Simsbury, right forward, Harold F. Watson, of Hartford, left forward, and Arthur C. Williams, of aDnielson, center.

Tunney Packs Toys

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Gene Tunney, world's heavyweight champion, who "packed a wallop"- sufficient to batter Jack Dempsey into defeat, today packed toys for children whose Santa Claus this Christmas will be the Salvation army.

Visiting the Salvation army headquarters, he assisted in placing dolls, sets of toy dishes, fire engines and electric trains in packages for poor children.

COMMISSION SANCTIONS BERLENBACH-MCTIGUE BOUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—(AP)—A return match between Paul Berlenbach and Mike McTigue, light heavyweight rivals and each a former titleholder in the 175-pound ranks, was sanctioned today by the State Athletic commission for January 14 at Madison Square Garden.

In their last match, fought May 30, 1925, at the Yankee stadium, Berlenbach gained a 15-round decision and with it the light heavyweight crown. Subsequently Berlenbach lost the title to Jack Delaney, present champion.

Humbert Fugazy, promoting rival of Tex Rickard, holds Berlenbach's agreement for a fight with Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia. The commission decided, however, this should not bar "paralyzing Paul" from boxing at the garden, inasmuch as Fugazy submitted no plans for an indoor match himself.

Joe Dundee of Baltimore, Eddie Roberts of Tacoma, Wash., and Willie Harmon of New York have been stipulated as outstanding contenders by the commission. Mushy Callahan of San Francisco and Tommy Freeman of Cleveland also were named, in succession, for a fourth place in the tournament but both withdrew.

The commission declined to add the names of Meyer Cohen of Holyoke, Mass., and George Fifield, Canadian champion, to the list of participants suggested for a welterweight tournament to select a challenger for Pete Latzo the champion.

Joe Dundee of Baltimore, Eddie Roberts of Tacoma, Wash., and Willie Harmon of New York have been stipulated as outstanding contenders by the commission. Mushy Callahan of San Francisco and Tommy Freeman of Cleveland also were named, in succession, for a fourth place in the tournament but both withdrew.

The commission took under advisement a request from Tod Morgan of Seattle, junior lightweight champion, to step out of his class to meet Phil McGraw, Detroit lightweight, in a match at the garden in January.

CULVER GETS VERDICT OVER JOHNNY MASON

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Steve Culver, of this city was given the decision over Johnny Mason, also of this city, in the star eight-round bout of the Acorn club tonight. Culver scored three knockdowns. They are lightweights.

Reuben (Slug) Macklin, former catcher on the Bridgeport baseball club, knocked out George Thompson, of New York in the first minute of a special four-round bout. Macklin knocked Thompson to the canvas with a short right and after Thompson stood up at the count of eight he knocked the New Yorker to the floor again to be counted out. Thompson weighed 202 pounds and Macklin 175.

In the semi-finals, Frankie Cavanaugh of Fairfield, received the decision over Henry Di Julio, of Bridgeport after eight rounds of fast fighting. In another eight rounder, Ernie Perry of Bridgeport scored a knockout over Buddy Wallace of Kansas City and in the opening four round bout, Irish Johnny Hayes, of Danbury, knocked out Kid Blue, of Bridgeport, in the second round after scoring two knockdowns.

HAGEN GIVEN WORST DEFEAT IN THE WEST

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 17.—(AP)—Walter Hagen, three times national open golf champion, paired with Willie Hunter, Los Angeles professional, was given the worst defeat of the western exhibition tour here today, losing to George Von Elm, national amateur champion and Dr. Paul Hunter, former state titleholder, 5 and 3, in a 36-hole match.

The two amateurs led at the end of the morning round, 2 up, largely due to the effective work of Dr. Hunter, who holed three shots from off the greens. Von Elm with a 71 was leading Hagen five strokes at the halfway mark.

All four golfers finished under par for the first nine holes on the afternoon round, Von Elm getting a 35, and Dr. Hunter a 34 and the two professionals each a 35. Von Elm shot par golf throughout the day's play.

A gallery of 2,500 persons saw the match. The foursome will play again Sunday instead of the Hagen-Willie Hunter match which had been planned.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

(By the Associated Press)

Reggie McNamara won three of the four Chicago and New York Six-Day Bicycle races this year, each time with a different partner. He triumphed in Chicago in February with Bobby Walthour, won at Madison Square Garden in March with Franco Georgetti and capped the climax with a record-breaking victory recently at the garden, paired with Pietro Linari. The Newark "Iron Man" sails for Berlin December 29 to compete in a six-day grind with still another partner, Otto Petri.

The year 1926 was as rocky for bike champions as it was for titleholders in other lines of sport. The only riders to keep 1925 title were Cecil Walker, the national all-around professional champion, and Edward Meriner of Chicago, the National amateur road champion.

Isadore Zarakov, Harvard backfield substitute, has the distinction of being the only Crimson player ever to receive his letter by participating only in a Princeton game. The Tiger-Crimson game last November, preceding the break in relations, was the first designated at Cambridge as a "Letter Game" and Zarakov, by another oddity, was the only Harvard performer in that game who did not also play against Yale.

Bill Carrigan, famous old Red Sox manager, will shatter precedent if he succeeds in an attempted come-back at the helm of the Boston club next season after being ten years out of the game. Fielder Jones, who won a world's championship with the White Sox in 1906, tried a come-back with the St. Louis Browns ten years later without much success. The late Frank Chance, old peerless leader of the Chicago Cubs, failed later to rejuvenate either the Yankees or the Red Sox.

All of the clubs in the western half of the American league circuit will take to the field next spring with new managers in charge.

Detroit will be host next March to a national indoor model airplane flying meet, in which men and boys from all parts of the United States and Canada will compete.

From the competitive point of view, the recent six-day bicycle race in Madison Square Garden will go on record as one of the greatest contests of its kind staged in recent years.

Time was when ice hockey and Texas would have seemed a far apart as the two poles, but this winter the sport is booming there, with regularly organized teams in Dallas, San Antonio, Houston and El Paso.

A new invention for swimmers is a special shoe fitted with two tiny boards. These fold against the water when coming forward, but open out with the kick and allow a greater "grip" than can be had with the naked foot.

Canada is planning to send a strong delegation to compete in the women's events in the next Olympic games. The Dominion believes that in Miss Rose Grosse of Toronto it has one of the best girl sprinters in the world. Another member of the Canadian team will be Miss Catherwood of Saskatchewan, who is a marvel in the high jump.

To the Friends of the Duwell Athletic Club:—

The members of the Duwell A. A. wish to extend their heartfelt thanks and appreciation to their friends on the East Side and in the City of Norwich who have so ably and well supported and aided them in every undertaking. They realize that without the hearty cooperation of those warm friends they could never have been able to reach the goal which they set a long time ago—to some day have a little Club House or Home of their own. They have reached their goal and very soon hope to extend to every person who has aided them in any way a cordial invitation to attend the opening of their new home on Hedge avenue and inspect the building.

To those who aided them last year to make their Christmas Tree for the school children of the East Side such a grand success, and who have helped them in their preparations for this year's Christmas Tree for the East Side scholars, the members wish to extend their thanks.

If you, who have helped us, feel that by our efforts we have made the Christmas time a little happier for the little ones, we want you to know that you have made us much happier in the thought that you were always with us in everything we undertook, and so to all our friends we say—"A Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year."

DANIELSON

MRS. PERE GOES TO JAIL IN DEFAULT OF BONDS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 17—In default of $3,000 bonds to insure her appearance at the next term of the Windham county superior court having criminal jurisdiction, Mrs. Rose Greene Pere is at Brooklyn jail. She will answer to a charge of enticing a minor female and her arrest this week followed revelations of a girl of 15, a resident of this town, who has been committed to Long Lane farm at Middletown.

Peter Palermo, a Cranston, R. I., man was fined $5 and costs, a total of $15.74, in the town court by Judge W. Fenner Woodward for operating a motor vehicle not having proper lighting equipment. The machine was rigged for gas lights, but had only one headlight. Palermo was operating it here after dark when he was apprehended by Chief John McFarland.

The December meeting of members of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., and their guests was held Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Henry D. Crosby of Academy street. The regent, Mrs. E. H. Keech, presided. Following the usual reports by officers there was presented and endorsed as candidates for office in 1927 the following list: Vice-president general, Mrs. Charles H. Bissell of Southington; state regent, Miss Katherine A. Nettleton of Derby; state vice-regent, Miss Emeline A. Street of New Haven; State Vice Regent Mrs. Albert S. Comstock of Norwich and Mrs. Fred A. Doolittle Bridgeport for councilors. After the business session some delightful Christmas readings and songs were given by Mrs. S. Irving Frink and Mrs. Mortimer Marlor of Brooklyn. Cake and ice cream was served. The patronesses were Mrs. H. D. Crosby, Mrs. Harry E. Back, Mrs. C. E. Tayntor, Mrs N. K. Leinbach, Mrs. Nathaniel Hibbard, Miss Amelia Hutchins, Miss Nellie Keech.

Members of the headquarters troop stationed at the state armory held a social among themselves Thursday evening. A feature of the gathering was an address by Rev. Leonard Richards of St. Alban's church. Volley ball featured the last part of the session, the men forming two teams for an interesting time on the drill shed floor.

Robert Coutu, year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Aldier Coutu, died Friday morning at their home on Dyer street.

Despite the roughness of December weather up to this time, there is no prospect as yet of harvesting an ice crop. Snow has covered the ice cutting fields for the past fortnight and has retarded freezing.

DANIELSON WILL HAVE CHOIR FOR CAROL SINGING

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 17—All who are interested in being with the carol singers on Christmas eve are invited to gather at the American legion hall at 3:30 Sunday afternoon for a rehearsal. Mrs. Ida Armington is to direct this carol choir, which it is hoped may number as many as 100. The carol singers will give old Christmas hymns as they go about the streets of the borough next Friday evening.

Plans for the community Christmas tree are well matured. Arthur Barnard, a legionnaire, has offered to supply the tree, and the Danielson Gas and Electric company will furnish the decorative lights and their installation. All organizations who aided in making the community tree effect such a success last year are invited to assist this year, and so, too, are all others who might like to lend a hand. Contributions for the purchase of candy and gifts for the children will be welcomed.

Sufficient has been found to exist to warrant the holding of a bench show in Danielson during the winter. Members of the Windham County Kennel club discussed this at a meeting at the home of Joseph Birch and decided that many good dogs are available for such an exhibit. It is likely that invitations to exhibit will go to all parts of eastern Connecticut.

An old weakness has reappeared among the hosts of Christmas shoppers. They are leaving packages about just exactly as they did in days of yore. Under the stress and strain of getting something suitable for Jimmy and Jane, father and Uncle Bill, mother is apt to walk off and leave packages containing gifts intended for Jennie and Josephine and Sister Mae. It was ever thus. A reminder at this time may serve a bit to lessen the difficulties of those who forget packages.

Having disposed of the Celtics of Norwich in a fast game Thursday night, the Danielson Town team has taken on another top notch contender for eastern Connecticut basketball laurels in the Jewett City team, which will make its appearance here next week in a holiday game.

Friday evening members of St. Alban's Men's club attended a monthly meeting at the Parish house. A business session was followed by a Christmas tree party—a general social hour with singing, games and other festivities.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell will come here from Norwich Tuesday to hold his regular monthly clinic at the Civic federation rooms in the town hall building.

The Christmas party at the Congregational church is scheduled for Christmas day. There is to be a tree, with gifts for the children and various features to make them happy and to inspire them with the spirit of the great holiday.

Captain F. O. Armington of the Service battery has announced that on the evening of December 30, following the regular drill, motion pictures showing various phases of field artillery work will be run off at the armory. The public has been invited to be at the armory.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Moran on Riverview Friday evening a meeting of the Missionary society of the Baptist church was held.

From now until Christmas stores in Danielson are to keep open evenings for the convenience of holiday shoppers.

William Harrell, severely burned with liquid caustic at the Main street plant of the Paco Mfg. company a week ago, is recovering and will be well again in four or five weeks.

Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, pastor of the Westfield Congregational church of Danielson, recently was named vice-president of the Putnam Clergy Fellowship, having membership in various towns hereabouts.

Mention is made that Vine R. Frank-lin of Academy street, a member of Brooklyn grange, is entering upon his 40th year as treasurer of Quinebaug Pomona grange. He has just been re-elected for another term. Mr. Franklin has filled the office since Quinebaug Pomona was organized in 1887.

"Deer are being slaughtered right and left" reads an item from one of the distant communities in Windham county. The animals are particularly plentiful in this part of the state this season.

Between now and Christmas very close watch will be kept for those raiding forest properties in this town for Christmas. A daily patrol is a feature that makes stealing trees a risky venture.

Basketball fans who have not seen the new gymnasium at the high school will be pleasantly surprised on their visit there. It has a good area and high clearance. Bleachers are built in along the north side.

William A. Greiston of Fall River is here to spend the week end with friends.

Christmas shoppers are admonished not to leave their holiday purchases unprotected in parked cars about town, this practice inviting petty thieving such as has sometimes occurred in other years.

Miss Margaret McBride is to leave within a few days to spend the winter in Florida.

The state highway department is accumulating a large quantity of gravel at the top of Dark Lantern hill for use on that dangerous grade when icy conditions occur during the winter season. The gravel is being hauled by state trucks.

Sales of Christmas seals have increased this week as the result of extra activity in teresting the public in purchasing them.

PUTNAM

CARGILL TRUST CO. OF PUTNAM DECLARES DIVIDEND

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 17—There was evidence of a successful six months of business in the announcement of the Cargill Trust company, following the semi-annual meeting of its directors on Friday, that it had declared a semi-annual dividend to its stockholders of 2 1-2 per cent. and an extra dividend of 1-2 of one per cent.

In addition to this the directors voted to add $10,000 to the profit and loss account from the earnings of the past six months and also set up a fund of $7,000 additional for interest and taxes. Meanwhile during the past six months the bank has paid interest on its savings accounts at the rate of 4 1-2 per cent.

On Sunday morning at the regular morning service an address will be given by State Secretary Horace B. Goat on the subject of "The World Tour." The members of the Baptist churches at Woodstock and Thompson have been invited to attend this service. A Christmas pageant "The Eternal Quest" will be given Sunday evening, December 26th and on Monday evening, December 27th, the Christmas and an entertainment will be given.

At the Second Congregational church, Sunday, December 19 is to be observed as Christmas Sunday. The Christmas service of worship will be held at the usual hour, 10:30. In the evening the choir will sing the cantata "Star of Bethlehem" with the following members of the choir as soloists: Mrs. E. L. Robinson, Miss Alice Stevens, Mrs. Charles M. Letters, Mrs. Harriet Cropp, sopranos; Mrs. Peal Wheaton and Mrs. Raymond Medbury, contraltos; Ralph C. Jenkins and Edward Scott Duffey, tenors; William E. Wheaton, bass.

On Sunday, December 26, at 4:30 p. m., there will be a special Christmas gift service to be conducted by the children of the Sunday school. The Christmas parties for the children of the church school will be held Wednesday afternoon and evening, December 22.

The every member canvass of the Second Congregational church which was made by a committee of forty who divided itself into pairs and collected pledges from the church and parish members received in pledges for the coming year about $8,500 which is an excess of nearly $2,000 over the amount promised last year.

The Christmas concert at the Meth-odist church will be held on Sunday evening, December 26 and the Christmas tree exercises will be held on Saturday, Christmas evening.

On Tuesday evening, December 21, the last of the present series of church night services will be held at the Methodist church.

The payment of the five per cent dividend to the creditors of the First National bank was begun Thursday. There was a steady stream of those whose claims have been filed and proved but at no time was there any rush.

Payment was made at the Citizens' National bank where Receiver George M. Coffin has his headquarters. All holders of claims first presented them to Miss Helen Sharpe, Mr. Coffin's secretary, and they were then passed on Miss Ruth Pratt who gave them the checks already made out, the whole process taking hardly a minute to complete. It is estimated that about five hundred persons received their checks the first day. The amount that will be paid out at this time is slightly in excess of $90,000.

James W. Murray, who underwent a serious operation a number of weeks ago at the Day Kimball hospital is now able to be out and expects to be sufficiently well to return to work the first of next week.

The schools in the town of Putnam are to close at noon on Wednesday, December 22 and will reopen on Monday morning, January 3, 1927. The rural school closed Friday to reopen the first Monday in January.

The stockholders of the Citizens' National bank are to hold their annual meeting at their banking rooms on Tuesday, January 11, 1927 for the election of officers and any other business that may come before them.

The retail merchants of the city have agreed to keep open their stores every evening of next week beginning

WESTERLY

FIRE CHIEFS ATTEND TRY-OUT OF NEW PUMPER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 17—The thousand-gallon new Seagrave pumper was given a try-out today at the sherman lumber wharf, near the Commerce street dock. Beside the Westerly fire chief and all the board engineers, representative from Boston of the New England board of fire underwriters there were also present fire chiefs from Norwich, New London, Pawcatuck, Wakefield, and Watch Hill. Beginning at 11 o'clock a four hour run was started in which the pumper was tested under full, one-half and one-third capacity work. Its performance under the various conditions was apparently all that could be desired, judging from the complimentary remarks of the fire engineers who observed it.

Chief George R. Egger and his board of fire engineers watched the pumper shooting a powerful stream of water over the Pawcatuck river.

Chief Howard L. Stanton of the Norwich fire department, coming to Westerly in his department red roadster attracted more than passing attention about town. He was accompanied by Capt. Archibald Cochrane, Capt. Dennis Brennan and Driver Charles Tatro of the Norwich force. From New London came Chief Rose with his master mechanic, and from Wakefield came Chief George W. Smith, Chief Francis McMahon of Pawcatuck and Chief George W. Hoxie of Watch Hill were both present with several of their assistant engineers. Stonington was represented by Chief Charles Main, Driver Anson B. Kenyon of the Steamers and Driver August Muller of the Pioneer Hook and Ladder company.

Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock the Westerly fire chief had invited the public in general to witness a demonstration of the new pumper at work. The work of this test will be to give taxpayers and all other interested persons an opportunity to see what sort of an investment the Westerly fire department has procured for its money appropriated for new apparatus at the last annual meeting. It is expected that nearly $13,000 will be spent on the pumper and equipment.

Judge Oliver H. Williams at the regular session of the Third district court in Westerly Friday afternoon, heard two cases.

The greater part of the session was taken up with the trial of the civil case, Bradford Garage and Supply House, Frank H. Bliven, vs. E. Franklin Peckham, of Bridgeton, R. I. The action involved the conduct and employment of the respondent in the garage business at Bradford in which were involved items of commission, wages and contra charges of supplies purchased and a note. A plea in setoff was the basis of the defense in which there arose some question. Judge Williams took the papers for further consideration.

William Gardiner of Pawcatuck, against whom action was brought by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, of Westerly, for not having his automobile under proper control when a DeFanti boy was struck and injured on the Boston Post road, near the Quarry Hill school house, changed his plea of not guilty to one of nolo. A plea for suspended sentence was requested. Town Solicitor Ferguson declared that there was negligence in the operation of the automobile. Judge Williams fined the defendant $100 and costs. Notice of appeal was given and George R. Brown became surety in the sum of $500.

The Anguilla Gun club held its annual meeting at the Elm Tree inn Wednesday evening, when a campaign of activities was mapped out for the year. C. E. Vincent was elected president to succeed Alfred H. Chapman, who served for the past year. Other officers chosen were George Clark, vice president; James McGarvie, secretary; H. E. Peckham, treasurer. The following three members were elected as delegates to the State Association of Fish and Game clubs: H. H. Robinson, James McGarvie and A. H. Chapman.

It was voted to have the new officers of the club act as a committee to make arrangements for the annual game supper for members and their guests. It is expected that this event will take place soon after Christmas.

The club recommended that its delegation to the state association support a change in the rabbit law, to increase the bag limit to five rabbits instead of three, and to abolish the use of ferrets.

The club also went on record as favoring a week's open season on deer hunting and the lifting of the ban on quail hunting.

The members were informed by the secretary of the release of 700 seven-inch brown trout in the Anguilla and Shunoc brooks.

Deborah chapter, No. 8, Order of Eastern Star, Mrs. M. Agnes York, worthy matron, held a costume dance Thursday evening in the armory banquet hall of the Masonic rooms on High street, which was well attended and proved most enjoyable. Several were in attendance from Hope Valley. The proceeds of the dance and whist will go to local charity. The music was by Mr. and Mrs. George O. Murphey and Simon E. Kinney. During the evening there was a grand march and judges were appointed to select the winning costumes. The prizes went to Mrs. James F. Campbell and Charles Maine. The judges were Mr. and Mrs. C. Stephens, Mrs. Caroline Kopckey and Fred Gregory of Hope Valley.

Deputy Sheriff Thomas W. Pierce, 66, of Washington county, died Friday morning about 8 o'clock at his home in Wickford, R. I., having been ill with pneumonia since last Saturday.

For several years Mr. Pierce was chief of police and town sergeant of North Kingstown and for some time, while the late John R. Wilcox was sheriff of Washington county, he acted as court officer at the sessions of the superior court for Washington county. When Fred T. Mitchell of Westerly was made high sheriff of Washington county about two years ago, he appointed Mr. Pierce one of his deputies. He was an efficient officer and the news of his sudden death caused sorrow to a large circle of friends.

George Miller, 61, died on Thursday at his home in Holyoke, Mass. He was father of Mrs. A. W. Bell of Williams street, Westerly. He was a frequent visitor to the home of his daughter here and had a number of local friends. He was an employe of the Holyoke factory of the American Thread Co.

Mrs. James H. Collins and Mrs. Alexander Marr of Westerly have been in Uncasville, guests of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Collins, who have a two weeks' old son, Richard Lathrop Collins.

Abel P. Randall of Hadlyme was the guest the past week of Westerly relatives and friends, on a return trip from Boston, also making a visit with his relatives in Stonington before returning home.

Dr. and Mrs. John P. Helfrich left Friday for a visit in Boston.

Daniel F. Larkin was in Providence Friday.

Frank A. Sullivan left Friday morning for Providence where as a delegate he attended the session of the New England council, being the first after the Hartford conference and which was held at the Squanto club with Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover as the principal speaker.

Monday night at the Hotel Garde, New Haven, occurred the sudden death of Irving N. Look, well known in Westerly as a commercial traveler from a drug supply house, his former home being in Boston.

Robert Thomas, a pupil at Mystic Oral school, is passing the Christmas vacation with his mother, Mrs. William A. Senior, in Pawcatuck.

Miss Bessie Crom of Charlestown, R. I., was a visitor on Friday with Westerly friends.

Richard J. Greenway of Philadelphia, is a Christmas vacation guest of relatives and friends in Westerly.

Mrs. L. Ward Alger was in Stonington Thursday evening in attendance at a banquet of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Thorp of Potter Hill have returned from a short visit in New York.

Department commander of the American Legion, Walter F. Thorp of Pawcatuck, made an official visitation to the American Legion post at Scituate, R. I., Thursday evening, where he installed the post officers for 1927.

ADD WESTERLY—

Mrs. Joseph Henry of Stonington borough was admitted to the private hospital on Friday for a major operation and Mrs. Margaret Holton of Westerly was discharged after treatment.

At a meeting of the committee to consider the erection of a new town hall [illegible]gton named at the annu[illegible]tonington financial town meeting, Sept. 27 held Wednesday evening at the Stonington town clerk's office in pursuance of the town meeting vote, to have prepared plans with approximate cost, it voted to engage the services of Norton and Townsend, architects of New Haven. This firm will submit further plans and specifications on which the committee will report back to a specially called Stonington town meeting.

The site for the proposed structure is on the west side of Elm street with a 265 foot frontage and depth of 600 feet, being south of the residence of Edward E. Bradley.

The committee consists of Henry A. Stahle of Pawcatuck, chairman; town clerk, Elias B. Hinckley, of Stonington, secretary; the three Stonington selectmen, John Fribance of Mystic, Arthur F. Babcock of Pawcatuck, and Joseph Vargas of Stonington borough; Frank F. Dodge of Stonington borough; John Rossi of Mystic; Seth N. Williams of the Road district and Sydney Siswick of Old Mystic. At the Wednesday evening meeting all members were present with the exception of Selectman Babcock of Pawcatuck.

NOANK

Kenneth Steele while going fishing on Thursday morning at 5 o'clock to the north dock, on the boat Gladys F., went to go across a yard and ran into a clothesline which knocked him down and put a cut on his right eye and his knee cap was injured. He was mad at not seeing the clothesline but it was some dark. The captain of the boat waited for ten minutes but his mate was nowhere in sight so he gave the last look up the street before he threw the line off for the fishing ground. Steele was coming along limping and with his eye cut and swelling. The captain, when told what had happened, advised him not to go cross lots again. In a few days Steele will be alright to go back on his job.

Miss Mable Ellis has resigned at Donatie's in Mystic.

Boat Maybe with two Noank boys on board has reached Norfolk, Va., on their 1800 mile trip. Capt. Walter Palmer is at the wheel and the cook, Hadley Fitch. They are only halfway down or about 900 miles. The weather was getting bad and off in the sea a snow storm hit them and some rope on deck was washed overboard, as the waves were going right over the cabin. The men are to stay in Virginia for a while. Capt. Palmer sent several post cards to his friends in the village. One card was sent to Chief H. E. Park and it was read at the meeting of the fire company. Palmer was foreman of the company for two years. He said the trip was fine so far, but his cook, Fitch, got seasick and they lost two meals. The southern city had one inch of ice and there was snow for a while. The boys from the north thought the people who live there would freeze. But the cold spell did not bother them. The place where the boat is to tie up for the winter is about ten miles outside of Florida. The members of the company have sent them clippings from The Bulletin about the fires Noank has had.

The pinochle game held by the auxiliary and the fire company was attended by a good crowd, five tables being in play. First prize went to Sam Carson and low score was made by Edward Morgan. High score was also made by Mrs. Peter Thander and low score by Miss Elsie Porter. Dancing followed and several square dances were a feature. Neil Morrison prompted for the square sets. The piano was played by Edgar Schoolmaker. Refreshments were served by the committee.

Fred Phillips has left for a visit with relatives in Washington, D. C.

Millard DeBlasi is spending a few days in Colchester.

Several local people attended a dance at Chesterfield Thursday evening.

Robert Lamay has resigned as carpenter's helper in Midway.

With flags in the village half-masted for Capt. Ben Latham, the funeral was held at his home on Pearl street. Friends and relatives, also old sea captains from out of town and some in the village attended. Charity and Relief lodge No. 72, F. and A. M., had charge of the services. Burial was in the family lot in Noank Valley cemetery. Each day before he became ill the captain would go down to the north dock and watch the boats come in.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Fitch have gone to Ridgefield, N. J., to spend the winter.

The cold weather has brought the wild ducks close to the shores to feed and the hunters are getting some good shots and bringing home as many as the law allows for a day. This season is the best one for ducks in a long time. The birds are wise and some can keep away from the buck shot and are swift on the wing. A hunter has to pull the trigger quickly to drop a duck.

William Palmer has returned from New Jersey after spending a week with his sister, Mrs. Abbie Anderson.

Mrs. Percy Palmer and son, Bruce, has returned to their home in the village after a visit with relatives in Passaic, N. J.

Capt. Thomas Tinkson who has been confined to his home by illness, is able to be out.

Mrs. Etta Crowell was a caller in Norwich Friday.

George Mack of Lowell, Mass., is spending a few days with his uncle, Frank Pray, at West View.

Miss Bertice Tourjee has left for Brooklyn, N. Y., to spend the winter with friends.

Boat Northern Light of Camp Mystic has been hauled out at Roger's boat yard and will be put away for the winter months. This boat is one which took the "Poor Little Rich Girls" from New York, who stayed at Camp Mystic in the summer, to Mystic Island and Block Island and other places. Her owner, Freeman Rogers, now has all his boats hauled out and his men will build row boats for the summer use at Lord's Point and Groton Long Point.

Mrs. Catherine DeCarlo is ill at her home on Pearl street.

MYSTIC

Mrs. Maria Campo Bagatin, 78, widow of Antone Bagatin died Thursday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fortunato Panciera. Mrs. Bagatin was born and married in Italy and lived there until about twenty-five years ago, when she came to this country with her daughter and has since resided in Mystic. She is survived by her daughter and a brother, Pietre Antone Fuorl, of Italy. She was a devout member of St. Patrick's parish.

At the meeting of Latham camp, No. 19, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil war, held in G. A. R. hall Tuesday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Commander Arthur S. Rathbun; senior vice commander, Walter C. Morgan; junior vice commander, Leroy L. Bishop; secretary and treasurer, W. Grant Mooney; camp council, Fred M. Williams, Alfred W. Butler, Albert Neff. Six appointive officers are to be announced later by the new commander. Installation will take place Tuesday evening, Jan. 1, and to this ceremony Williams post, G. A. R., The Woman's Relief corps and Daughters of Veterans will be invited. Past Commander Charles W. Davies of Jared R. Avery camp, New London will install the officers. Latham camp members are active in the advancement of W. G. Mooney, now senior vice commander of Connecticut.

Funeral services for John Bruder, who died at the Stonington home Monday, were held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, at the funeral home on East Main street. The services were conducted by Rev. Walter R. Davenport, D. D. pastor of the Methodist church. Burial was in Elm Grove cemetery.

Mystic grange, No. 171 Patrons of Husbandry met in the Grange hall, in the Main block, Thursday evening. Tables loaned by W. L. Main for the evening were set in the hall and an adjoining room and were handsomely decorated with red crepe paper and red basket of flowers. The harvest supper was prepared by Mrs. Rebecca Eldredge, chairman, Mrs. Kate Haley and Mrs. Florence Denike, assisted by several other members. The menu consisted of ham, escalloped potato, macaroni and cheese, baked beans, rolls, pickles cake and coffee. Following the supper Worthy Master L. O. Allen called the grange to order and the third and fourth degrees were conferred on a class of thirty-one candidates by the degree team of the sisters of the grange, with Mrs. Margaret Morgan, master, in place of Miss Florence Morgan Master, in place of Miss Florence M. Johnson, who was unable to be present. Mrs. Eva E. Stott acted as overseer, in place of Mrs. Morgan. Both filled their responsibilities very acceptably. The grange has had rapid growth since its reorganization two years ago in November and now numbers a little over 220. The next meeting will be neighbors' night on Jan. 6th. Visitors from several granges were present Thursday to witness the degree work.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Fowler, of Westfield, Mass., are visiting Mrs. H. Emeline Allen.

Thomas W. Pollard was a business caller in Norwich Thursday. Mrs. Pollard and Mrs. Nancy Dooley attended Pomona grange meeting held there.

John W. MacDonald is spending a few days with his daughter, Mrs. Philip Harris in Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Main and Mrs Gertrude Durnam, of Westerly, spent Thursday evening here.

Henry Riggins, 75, retired, of Brooklyn, died Wednesday afternoon at his home on Noank road, after a week's illness. Mr. Riggins was born in Brooklyn, May 5, 1851 the son of George B. and Hannah Crandall Riggins. He had lived in Brooklyn until seven years ago, when he retired from business and came here to live. He is survived by two sisters, Miss Rebecca and Miss Elizabeth Riggins and by a daughter, Mrs. Ralph Van Gilder, of Burlington, Vt.

Miss Maude D Congdon, came from Yonkers, N. Y., Friday evening, to spend the week end with her parents.

Warren Fish of Brooklyn, N. Y., is visiting his parents.

Mrs. Mabel Klein of New London was a caller here Thursday evening.

The Christmas Sunday services at the Union Baptist church will be as follows: 10:30 a. m.—Organ prelude, In the Morning, Grieg, (from Peer Gynt Suite); anthem, Sing and Rejoice, Barnby; duet, The Angelic Choir, Ashford, (soprano and contralto); violin solo; Christmas sermon by the pastor, Rev. L. J. Shepler; anthem, sing, Oh Sing this Blessed Morn, Rodgers; organ postlude, Grand Chorus, Lemaigre. 7:30 p. m.: Organ prelude, Adagio, Mendelssohn, (From the First Organ Sonata); anthem, Daughter of Zion, Maker; anthem, Calm on the Listening Ear of Night, Marston, (baritone solo and chorus); reading, The Story of the Other Wise Men, Van Dyke, Rev. L. J. Shepler; organ postlude, Processional March, Guiraud. The singers are soprano, Mrs. Joseph Johnson; contralto, Mrs. Thomas Stevens; tenor, A. Orville Lewis, baritone, Clifford J. Desley; violinist, Miss Isabel Grinnel; Mrs. Ralph H. Wheeler is organist and director.

Subject of morning sermon will be The Meaning of Christmas; evening topic, The Other Wise Men.

LEDYARD

Edwin W. Hill secretary of Norwich Y. M. C. A., occupied the pulpit at the Congregational church Sunday morning. His subject was From Trouble to Triumph. He gave a very eloquent address and was liked so well that he has been invited to speak next Sunday in the same church.

Employes of the S. N. E. Telephone company have been erecting new poles on the toll line that runs from Norwich to Mystic, through this town.

The Ladies' Aid society gave a chicken pie and roast pork supper in the vestry on Tuesday evening. A good sum was realized. Dancing followed in Grange hall, an orchestra from Jewett City playing.

Mrs. Barbara Holdridge was leader of the Christian Endeavor meeting held at the residence of Joseph A. Clark, Sunday evening.

CANTERBURY GREEN

A. C. E. social was held at the home of Mrs. Lucy Davis on Monday evening. Following a business meeting games and refreshments rounded out an enjoyable evening.

At the grange Wednesday evening the annual Christmas tree was the attraction for children and grown-ups as well. A programme was given by the children who were guests of the grange. Everybody was remembered with a present. Cake, cookies and cocoa were served. The next regular meeting, the first week in January, will be observed as installation night.

Several local people have been Providence visitors this week. Mr. and Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Clinton Frink, Mr. and Mrs. James Appley and Mr. and Mrs. Milo Appley.

Mrs. Walter Sager, Mrs. Hawes, Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Dorothy Bennett were among Christmas shoppers in Norwich, Monday.

Miss Lydia Lathrop has returned from a visit of several days in Meriden.

Mrs. Addie Waldo was called to Norwich Saturday to attend the funeral of her brother, Byron Peck. Mr. Peck was a native of Canterbury, his parents living in the southwestern part of the town. His first wife, Miss Hattie Waldo, who died a number of years ago, was a member of this parish and will be remembered by many of the older townspeople. Mr. Peck leaves his second wife, a son by his first marriage, and his sister, Mrs. Waldo.

Mrs. Harrison, who has been visiting in New York, has returned, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Frank Rickard.

A teachers' meeting was held last Friday at the school house on the Green. All teachers under the supervision of Mr. Floyd were supposed to be present, but owing to weather and traveling conditions some were not able to attend.

Herbert Williams is reported as having left the hospital at Willimantic and is now at the home of his son, Fred Williams.

The machine of James Muldoon of Plainfield, who was on his mail carrying trip one day this week, collided with a team driven by Miss Lucy Baldwin, the fender hitting the wheel of the buggy enough to throw the horse, and threw out the occupants of the wagon. No one was injured and nothing of any consequence was broken. Slippery traveling was the cause of the accident.

WEST KINGSTON

Fred Babcock and family have moved to the Beloit house.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Arnold, Mrs. C. A. Woodmansee and Mrs. Brown spent Wednesday in Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. John Degan entertained their cousin from Bellville over the week end.

Twenty nine relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Allen N. Money visited them Friday evening in their new home here, giving them a surprise party. The company was warmly welcomed and the evening was very pleasantly spent. Mr. and Mrs. Money moved into their new house here last spring from their farm in Exeter which they recently sold. Games were played and during the evening a fine poem was read by Mrs. Oliver Watson, sister of Mrs. Money. It was composed by the West Kingston poet. Refreshments were serv during the evening. People were present from Wakefield and Saunderstown besides the West Kingston neighbors.

Reddy Fox Is Overhasty

You'll often find that overhaste
Both time and energy will waste.

—Old Mother Nature.

Reddy Fox is quick, but as a rule he is too clever to be overhasty. He knows quite as well as Old Mother

Reddy was hunting along the Old Stone Wall on the edge of the Old Orchard

Nature the truth of that saying of hers. But the most careful of people are sometimes hasty. They do a thing and think afterward, instead of thinking first. Always keep this rule in mind: Think before doing; never do before thinking. It will save you a lot of trouble.

As you know, the Green Meadows were green no longer. They were covered with snow and the snow was crusted. That crust meant safety and comfort for Danny Meadow Mouse and Whitefoot the Wood Mouse, but that crust meant hard hunting for Reddy Fox and Old Man Coyote and Yowler the Bobcat. All of them went hungry most of the time. They seldom knew what it was to have full stomachs. They found food enough to keep them alive, but not enough to keep them from feeling hungry. So most of the time while they were awake they spent hunting.

Now as a rule Reddy makes sure of what he is hunting. He doesn't take any chances unless the way seems very clear. He will visit a henhouse, but you won't find him visiting the same henhouse two nights in succession as a rule. When he decides he must have chicken he very often and very wisely goes to a distant chicken yard instead of to one near where he lives. In the same way he is very careful when he is hunting on the Green Meadows or in the Green Forest. But an empty stomach sometimes upsets judgment, and it happened so with Reddy. It seemed to Reddy that never had his stomach been quite so empty. When he was awake all he could think of was food. When he was asleep all he could dream of was food. He was so hungry that he was ready to take almost any chance to get something to eat.

It was moonlight. Reddy was hunting along the Old Stone Wall on the edge of the Old Orchard. Here and there in the Old Wall there were holes between the stones where the snow had not drifted in and frozen. Reddy knew that Peter Rabbit often made use of these holes, and he hoped he might surprise Peter outside one of them. Of course, Reddy was taking the greatest care to make no noise as he trotted along, and was using those eyes of his as Old Mother Nature meant they should be used. So it was that he caught sight of something moving in one of those holes between the stones in the Old Wall. He paused an instant to make sure. Yes, there it was again. There was some one right at the entrance of that hole.

You should have seen Reddy then! He moved quickly. He almost crawled on his stomach off to one side and around so as to come up from behind to that hole between the stones in the Old Wall. When he reached the place where he was sure he couldn't be seen, he began to creep inch by inch, and inch by inch, with his feet ready for a swift jump. He had a feeling that it was Peter Rabbit, and he meant that if Peter so much as poked his head outside he never would draw it in again.

He was within jumping distance now. His eyes glared. His mouth watered. He almost held his breath. He didn't intend to waste any time. If there was the least chance he meant to make the most of it. Something came up out of that hole. Reddy didn't even stop to see what it was. He jumped. But before he landed he knew he had made a dreadful mistake. And when he did land he jumped again just as quick as he could make his legs take him. You see, the thing that had come up out of that hole was the tail of Jimmy Skunk. Reddy had been too hasty. Yes, sir, he had been too hasty and he knew. He actually fell heels over head when he landed after that second jump, and he kept right on rolling until he was sure he was far enough away. The last thing in all the Great World that Reddy Fox wanted was a quarrel with Jimmy Skunk.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
Why We Keep Thanksgiving.

I am a little Pilgrim maid
I lived long years ago;
When first I saw New England shores
The ground was white with snow.

The Mayflower was a little ship,
It sailed for many a day,
It landed on a great big rock,
Within a quiet bay.

How would you like to be so cold
That you froze your hands and feet?
How would you like to go to bed
Without one bite to eat?

We thought we'd almost starve to death,
But an Indian came one day,
And taught us how to hunt and fish,
For well he knew the way.

He taught us how to sow the seed,
We reaped a bounteous store,
Gracious harvest did proclaim
That starving time was o'er.

We said we'll set a day apart
To thank the Lord each year
That's why we keep Thanksgiving,
Remember that, my dear.

What Jimmy Thinks

At Christmas, all the boys who go
To school with me got sleds and skates
And books, and trains that puff and blow,
And oranges and nuts and dates.

And when I ask my mother why,
With such an endless stack of toys
Old Santa Claus should pass me by
And give to all the other boys.

She looks at me with smiling eyes
(But once I caught them full of tears,)
And tells me when I'm old and wise,
With all the wisdom of the years,

I'll understand. And then she bends
And kisses me, and hugs me tight,
And bundles me up warm, and sends
Me out to play. But every night

Before I go to sleep I lie
And wonder if it is because
We are so poor he passes by,
And if his reindeers never pause

At little houses long enough
For him to drop some present down
Or is it 'cause he's proud and gruff.
And doesn't like this end of town?

Perhaps he only cares for those
Who welcome him down chimneys wide,
To fires where he can warm his toes
And rest a little from his ride.

Sometimes, if ever I can see
Him close, I'm going to ask him bold,
Just why it is he misses me
And gives to others, young and old

I think it must be 'cause we're poor,
And not of much account; perhaps
He thinks they prize his presents more
Than would we ragged little chaps.

The Climb

It is easy to climb when the multitude
Is shouting and urging you on,
When the eyes of the crowd are upon you
And all thought of failure is gone;
When the shout is all only upward
And you meet no reverses no backward pull
When the very atmosphere calls forward
And the cup of the climb runs full,

But when the mountain grows jagged
And the rocks slip under your feet,
When disappointment comes all unexpected
And bills that are hopeless to meet?
What when the voices become all complaining
Not a "God bless you" to lift but the way,
Then, have you the courage my brother
To stand all alone in the fray?

Many a man grows discouraged, just halts
Or worse, gives up life in despair,
He's a hero 'midst the shouts of the multitude
But falters when the crowd is not there.
No easy thing to hold to your courage
When all the past seems failure and lost;
And yet, here is the test of real manhood
When the limb means unspeakable cost.

The Rainy Day

The day is cold, and dark, and dreary.
It rains, and the wind is never weary.
The vine still clings to the mouldering wall,
But at every gust the dead leaves fall.
And the day is dark and dreary.

My life is cold, and dark and dreary;
It rains and the wind is never weary;
My thoughts still cling to the mouldering past,
But the hopes of youth fall thick in the blast,
And the days are dark and dreary.

Be still sad heart! and cease repining;
Behind the clouds is the sun still shining
Thy fate is the common fate of all,
Into each life some rain must fall,
Some days must be dark and dreary.

The Christmas Gift

Little present from afar,
How I wonder what you are!
With your ribbons and your gilt
Very handsomely youre built.

My fair lady, so she says,
Worked upon you many days
All a-glitter like a star,
How I wonder what you are!

You are gorgeous, I confess,
But a puzzle more or less,
Mysteries I much abhor,
What were you intended for

PRACTICAL HOMEMADE GIFTS

Dear Comerites: To make a bridge pad over, pad two pieces of cardboard that are cut larger than bridge pad. Line with silk and cover back and front. A strip of braid holds pad and a loop of ribbon or braid holds pencil in place.

Doll Pin Cushions: Cut a circle of cardboard as a foundation. Glue a huge lump of cotton in this, place doll by up to her arms in cotton. Tie a string two thirds of the way up to give it kind of a tiered effect. Some pretty colored satin is gathered around dolly's body and sewed in tucks. Glue satin to bottom of card board and another circle of card board finishes the bottom.

Handy Dolly: Take two quilted holders for face with black eyes and mouth marked on them. Dish mop for back of head, dust cloth for dress and face cloth for shawl. Here is a good verse to go with this: I am a clever dolly, a cosy dolly, too, besides I'm very useful, please take me home with you. I'll never give you trouble. I'm lots of help and fun; I'm mop, wash cloth and duster and holder all in one. The little folks will love me and mother says, how jolly. She's cosy and domestic and such a useful dolly.

An address book makes a nice present. Here is a verse, There's plenty of room, on the page within, for the name and addresses of friends and your kin.

Blotters: Take a number of blotters, cut them about eight inches long and five inches wide, paste a handsome picture card on the front, tie with ribbon. I am a little blotter, it is my job to blot. When it comes to soaking surplus I am Johnny on the spot.

Handkerchiefs: A piece of sheer linen can be hemstitched, or if you wish to give a gentleman a handkerchief, here is a guess: A square bit of linen, a square little wish, tucked in the corner you'll see, a square little hope. You may find it of use, and the gayest of gayest of greetings of me.

For another doll make the face of a wooden spoon, a dish mop for the back of the head, make a cheese cloth duster for an apron and a dish cloth for a shawl. The skirt is made of a glass wiping towel. Take a mit and fasten it under side.

You or your porridge with my face and with my apron dust the place. Wash the dishes with my shawl. It's strongly made and not too small, my skirt you see is not a bobble. I will dry your glass without much trouble. To clean your kettle you can sit and calmly use my magic mit. But if you want a mop instead, you'll find it on my wooden head, although my hair is turned quite white. I'll work for you both day and night.

For the kiddies make a large bag out of some kind of fancy material (cretonne is good), put in a drawstring fill bag partly full of assorted toys, a small box of candy, crayons, puzzles made out of Christmas cards, all sorts of amusing articles. (Floating toys are nice.) The children have such a good time pulling out different presents.

A Mystery Bag: This bag is made of crim mosquito netting. Measure 24 double material 18 inches wide and 23 inches long with a five inch hem at the top. Through this run a red draw string (tape is all right.)

On the outside of the bag later you can put a wreath made of green paper or perhaps you can get evergreen and make one. If you cannot have either cut a picture of Santa Clause from a magazine and put on the outside. Into this bag for grandma put the following articles: Several handkerchiefs made of muslin or cambric, hemstitched, several left-over balls of yarn of different colors and a pair of knitting needles. Amber are good for they are colored. Put in percale or some other quiet material, a box of home made candy, a loaf of fruit cake, a jar of mince meat, 2 spools of white cotton thread, three spools of black, 12 postal cards, a pencil, a tiny notebook, a small bottle of perfume. You could put flower seeds and a blank book. Any of the above things would be acceptable.

Into grandpa's bag, you can put tobacco, wool stockings, a necktie, a good book or paper to read, a box of home made candy, a diary, three handkerchiefs with gay colored borders, a box of toilet water, some shaving soap. Do each article up in tissue paper and tie with tinsel cord or ribbon.

HARRY E'S SALMON CROQUETTES

Dear Social Corner: I have been a member for nearly two years now and have only written three or four letters so guess it's time I wrote again.

Peggy Alder: Baby is asleep so this is what I'm doing. She was six months old yesterday the 11th and her first two teeth are peeping through and she sure has been fussy the last few days. I want to come over that way some of these fine days.

Cenrik: Am sending the salmon croquette recipe. I just received a $5 prize for it. What do you think of that?

Gajabout: Baby Barbara and I are coming to see you some time but don't know when. Kind of cold to take here so far now. Guess by the time you do see her she won't be a baby.

I wonder if any of you ever make a jelly meringe for your cake instead of an icing. Just a half cup of grape or currant jell and the white of an egg put together and beaten stiff with an egg beater or wire whip. I tried it and it was good.

Salmon Croquettes: 1 can salmon, 2 eggs (beaten), 4 lunch crackers.

Pick bones and skin from salmon and eggs and cracker crumbs. Form into croquettes and fry in fat until brown.

Wishing you all a merry merry Christmas and happy New Year.

HARRY E.

REMEMBER THE UNFORTUNATE

Dear Social Corner Friends: December 5th 1926 was the coldest day on record for early December for 52 years. Perhaps it has only a little warning of what is to come before the flowers bloom again. Let us prepare for the worst and meet old grim winter with a smile. After you read these lines suppose you go to the garret and see what clothing you can donate to the poor and needy for the coming winter. Look well in the clothes room and behind the back kitchen door and see what you can spare to make the unfortunate ones comfortable which will make you and others happy. Another year is about at a close let us hope the coming year will bring more happiness and prosperity then the year of 1926 which will be remembered as a year of sadness and deaths of many friends by accidents, fires, wind and floods. May a turn for the better come to us all with a merry Christmas and a happy New Year to the editor and all the Social Corner family in the wish of one of the old writers.

VIOLET, CHERRY.

THOUGHTS FOR CHRISTMASTIDE AND THE NEW YEAR

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: As Christmas will be with us so soon hope it is not too early to send greetings. It would seem a good time to put on our thinking cap and send in a few lines before the real Christmas rush is on us here. Is hearty greetings of the season to one and all and I hope there may be no jar in your holiday's jubilation because of the absent who have gone home. I know we cannot but miss some loved faces for there are in most homes vacant chairs and we cannot help but think of those who were once here to share our joys and no doubt some are saying Christmas will never be the same again and they feel as if this joy of His had gone forever, yet if we all took that view Christmas itself might die. Let us if we can forget our troubles and even our sorrow and make it a time of rejoicing and good fellowship. If there are children about us it is not hard to be merry. If we have none of our own there are many who can be made glad and can be found with little trouble. So I say merry Christmas to you all.

I am reminded while writing this of a Christmas recipe I found some years ago in an old book. Have forgotten the author, but it ran something like this:

Make somebody happy today
Each morning that motto repeat
And should life seem gloomy and gray.
At once will be pleasant and sweet.

There's somebody sick over there
Where sunlight is shut from the room.
There's somebody deep in despair,
Beholding no light in the gloom.
There is somebody needing your aid
Your solace wherever you stay,
Then let not your help be delayed.
Make somebody happy today.

Make somebody happy today.
Home comfort and sympathy give,
And Christmas shall ne'er go away
But always and ever will live.

Time was when we older ones dreamed of Santa Claus and hung up our stockings. That was before grief and care had come to steal our mirth. Then Christmas eve was oh, so long, for we would wake before daylight to see what Santa had brought us and how we talked and dreamed and wondered how it all came about. And how we loved the Christmas mystery in those years before we found out—

Oh happy child on Christmas eve
Who goes to bed untouched by doubt
You little know how much we've lost
Who have lived and found life's secret out.

Yet we have had our glorious faith
And we have had our Christmas day
And Santa Claus still lives and shall
Live on when we have gone away.

And now who does not look forward to the New Year hopefully and happily. The departure of this old year one contemplates as a thing that is told. It may have been a gay little story, a melancholy affair or something quite everyday and prosaic, but no matter it is nearly gone now. And in the 365 days that are coming how many beautiful changes we shall see! The deep white drifts of winter, the first timid flowers of spring, the roses in summer time, the autumn, rich and bountiful harvesting, with the red and gold of the ripened leaves. We shall have many merry days, birthdays, days of thanksgiving, days of pleasure and sometimes days of pain, yet every day will be a fresh beginning and may we all do our utmost to use it rightly. Nineteen twenty six was a faithful old year. We will drop it a tear as into the past it departs, ere we hurry along with a laugh and a song. It's successor to claps to our hearts and no matter how good were the things that it takes, or the sadness to vanish from view, there are better to come so let us be off with the old year and on with the new.

Yes the old year has gone its misty way now we are wondering what the new year will bring us and to my mind the answer is that much depends on ourselves. If we determine to do right in every way that lies in our power the year will treat us fair enough. The days and years are pretty much the same. But we humans are apt to be different on different days. Sometimes everything seems to slip along on a greased track and then there are days when we strike the bogs and hummocks. Try as we may we are below the mark and wonder what's the matter. We have not sacrificed our ideals, we are willing to do our work, but no one is exempt from this sort of feeling. Some days the parson can't preach and his hearers doze and don't hear. Even our well intentioned prayers sometimes seem not to ascend. What's the matter? Mostly its because we are tired, nothing radically wrong with us. We are the same good old plodders, but our feet have become tangled in strings of weariness. The thing then to do is something else, read a good interesting book or listen in on the radio. Sometimes we have not the time for this rest and change. We must keep right on with our task, feelings or no feelings. Well this gives us a chance to be a hero.

But the years are much the same. When ushered in they wear a smile and stay with us a little while. They put some silver on our hair and then they are gone, we don't know where so let us live that when its gone we may behold the next years dawn with eyes serene, then we can say the good old year that's passed away.

Beats any year we've lived through yet,
If we've done nothing we regret.

So here is my heartiest wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year to one and all, I shall still wish you happiness clear through the year. I may not be able to tell you about it every day, but the thought and the wish will be here just the same. Whatever joy or success comes to you will make me glad without pretence and, in plain words, good will to you is what I mean.

ZULIEKA.

AT CHRISTMAS TIME

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: Those wonderful letters on friendship, something good to eat, and so many interesting subjects, make it hard to say which is best. I do enjoy them very much.

The Thanksgiving time has gone for this year and how much we each could find to be thankful for. Now comes the beautiful Christmas time.

There will be homes with full tables, plenty of goodies, cheer and sunshine, with fathers, mothers and often grandpa and grandma. How quickly the day will pass and each take up the duties of their homes later. The children each year grow a little larger until they too make Christmas in their own homes.

Then we can picture other homes. Where father and mother will sit perhaps alone in their declining years and perhaps a tear will fall from the old folks thinking of the scathed loved ones, and of the dear ones who will pass Christmas in Heaven singing the blessed carols. But whether it be full tables and cheerful homes, or vacant chairs each can be thankful that Christ was born. I have found that God never gives us trials without His grace to meet them.

Ellen Shirley: Am sorry to learn you have been ill. Trust you will soon be yourself again. Come and see me. I think you will find the way.

Milky Way: Am glad your granddaughter is improving.

Inez: How my heart goes out to you in your great sorrow in the loss of your dear husband. God bless and keep you, my dear.

E. Natural: Glad you had a nice clear day, Dec. 14. Know you can make good chowder. Wish I might have had a helping. Here's wishing Club No. 6 the best ever.

Lina: We certainly did have a most enjoyable evening listening to the radio. Say but you can make cake. Thanks for your kindness, both of you. Am hoping you are feeling better. Can never forget the many kind favors you have done for me.

Now friends and Social Corner editor accept heartiest Christmas greetings from

NANCY PECK.

SMART CATS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I promised that later I would write you more about smart cats—good cats not the naughty cats that Ann Terne's composition was about. This cat's name is Fluffy and one paper states that she "Boston Cats Absorb the Brainy Atmosphere of City"—so you see a cats intelligence is due to its surroundings.

If we never believed cats had as much sense as dogs, this one event which happened the other day in Cambridge, would be sufficient to change our minds.

Two brothers (will will not call their names) were sleeping soundly in the early hours of the morning when Fluffy raised her feline voice and let out some dozen howls, loud enough to raise the dead. She kept persistently at it till the two brothers were awakened by her cries, and behold flames creeping up their bedroom walls. They sprang from their bed, ran through the house to see if anyone else had been trapped, and then made their escape, overlooking the little cat which had saved their lives.

But not for long did they forget her for no sooner were they out of the house when Mrs. Ward remembering the cats' cries, rushed in and found Fluffy partially overcome in the kitchen. Edward was almost overcome himself but both revived at a neighbors home.

So you see dear sisters once and for all the cat is exonerated from the ephithet of "brainless."

There are many smart cats in Boston and New England. For instance there is the famous cat of Engine House No. 26, Fort Hill square, that goes to all fires with the firemen, perched upon the tank of chemicals. He knows the gong and when they sound he jumps right up prepared to go to the fire. His name is Boso.

Down in Brockton there is another cat which attends the fires, and she has been dubbed, Smoke, (and of course when she had kittens they were at once named, Sparks.)

There is a cat in Medford, which answers to a whistle like a dog—and when he wants to come in the house and sees no one around to let him in, he knocks on the door by means of a spool suspended from a string.

In Montpelier, Vt., there is a cat which reaches up and rings the door bell to come in.

A sister of the Corner wrote about teaching her cat not to catch birds, but when a bird flew in the window, the cat caught it and put it in the sister's lap. I think that is really very remarkable. As much so if not more than those others, for cats love to catch birds.

PUSSY'S FRIEND.

SNOW RECALLS THE OLD DAYS

Dear Social Corner Members: What a beautiful snow storm! Well Eochie I had a trip to the city. Hope you had a better day. I arrive home than I did Sunday was a peach. I arrived home about five in the evening, snowing like great guns. I guess it was way below zero. Yes, you take your umbrella and carpet bag, but say, wait until the walking is a little worse. Then I will take by band box and swithel. You let me know when you are ready and we will start at the same time and see who makes the greater distance. Now what do you say? I am game if you are. You think I am a relative, may be so.

Well Ann Terne, I think your essay on cats is all right. I have a serenade about four nights a week. It is like the song of the mocking-bird on a still night, especially at midnight.

Well, I think Peggy Alder must be snowed in. Hope Mr. Peggy can get time today to shovel her out.

Well dear Social Corner friends, this snow makes me think of the old school days when the boys took us on their sleds and got us in the deep snow and dumped us off. My I can see that now as I look out of the window, but it was fun for us all then.

This writing makes me think of an old rhyme,

My pen is poor
My ink is pale
My hand shakes like
A puppy dog's tail.

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Friends: I send my heart felt sympathy to all the sick ones and the shut-ins for I was shut in for six months last winter and sick too.

Hope Rural Aunty had a fine trip and a safe arrival among the flowers and mocking birds.

I guess Ma of Greene Gables is too busy making pies to write.

Hope we have good weather now. Wishing you all a merry Christmas and a happy New Year, I remain the same,

NONESOPRETTY.

GLAD TO GET OLD SONG

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I want to thank the sister for the words of the old song, Wake Nicodemus. One of my schoolmates used to sing it. She is still living in Jewett City, and if she reads the Bulletin she will know that I think of her.

Loretta: Your method of making mince meat is like mine and I go by taste. Don't like the meat with so much spice as some recipes call for.

I cannot write to tell the sisters of any trips I've taken. Am satisfied to stay right at home with my window chums.

Hope all the sisters will have a merry Christmas and a happy New Year, and all who are sick or in any trouble will have strength to bear it.

JOAN.

GREETINGS FROM ORA

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: I want to write a few lines and thank Beth C., Rebe, Ruthina, Black Eyed Susie and O. D., for birthday cards. It was so kind of you to think of me.

Mittie: Hope the sick one is better.

True Blue: Sorry I did not get your letter in time I would have been there. I know you all had a nice time.

E. L. M.: How are the beans?

I hope to be with you soon at the meetings. I do enjoy them very much when I go.

Balsam Fir: How is the weather in Maine? Lots of snow I guess.

Merry Christmas to all.

ORA.

DECORATING THE CHRISTMAS TREE

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Christmas is almost here, the gayest time of all the year. I have thought how pretty a Christmas tree would look all trimmed with colored lights and also covered with small toys. Pop corn strung on a string with red berries would be a pretty trimming too. White cotton placed in among the branches of the tree make the tree look as if it was covered with snow. Small colored birds and a squirrel placed on the tree here and there, holding a nut, is a cute trimming. When the tree is all trimmed put a large star at the top of the tree made to look like the Star of Bethlehem.

I am sending a few recipes also a poem.

A Spicy Relish: A cranberry relish is especially nice to serve with cold turkey or chicken. Put a pint of cranberries and the rind of two oranges through the food chopper, add the pulp of the oranges, cut up; two cups of raisins, two cups of brown sugar, half a teaspoon each of salt, cloves and cinnamon, and half a cup of vinegar. Cook slowly until thick and seal while hot.

Peach Dessert: Put layer of sliced peaches, sweetened in deep dish, and cover with thick layer of sponge cake crumbs over which mock sherry has been poured. Pour over this a rich custard while warm. Beat whites of two eggs to a froth. Add two tablespoons sugar, two tablespoons jelly, vanilla, and beat well. Put over top of custard.

Chicken Shortcake: 2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons shortening, 1 egg, 1-2 cup water, creamed chicken.

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt; add shortening and mix in thoroughly with steel fork; add liquid to egg and add to dry ingredients, mixing to a very soft dough. Half fill large greased muffin rings which have been placed on greased pan and bake in hot oven (475 degrees) 10 to 12 minutes. Split while hot and fill with hot creamed chicken. If muffin rings are not available the largest size biscuit cutter can be used. Makes 8 short cakes.

RESOLUTIONS ENOUGH

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Brothers: As I haven't written for some time thought this would be a good time to write as the new year will be here soon. So I imagine if I send the the old year well I'll start the new year right by writing more often to the Social Corner.

How many of you are planning to make New Year resolutions? For myself I believe if a person makes only three good resolutions its plenty. I think personally that patience, kindness and charity covers any amount of resolutions anyone could make. Charity can be applied in so many ways. Not only meaning money or alms giving but charity toward our neighbor. I know so many people who could practice charity to such a great extent, myself as well. Instead of repeating to our friends what Mrs. So and So thinks of Mrs. X's daughter and how awful are the things Mr. X does or how Mr. Jones is out very late at night, not any good things and look for some good points about these parties if we do enter in a conversation concerning them. In my estimation thats Charity. Patience also is a virtue I should and will cultivate myself. A little patience goes a long way. For instance if you're washing the baby on a certain morning and the phone rings, and while you answer that the milk boils over and in the meantime your older daughter has the basin of water upset on the floor and baby is crawling after the soap in all that sloppy mess, well! I'll admit it takes patience, charity and kindness right there. Well so much for the resolutions.

Now I wonder how Mr of Greene Gables is these days? I had the pleasure of having her company an afternoon a few weeks ago. If any of you haven't met Ms. you'd better do so as she's mighty nice and can certainly give good advice.

Eben Shirley: Well, I'll say you've got me guessing. So you live on the Shore road. Then you belong to the Shore Line Social Corner club. We have a car and if only you'll give me your address may drop in to see you. But only in the good old summer time as it's too cold to travel now with children.

Kochie: I see where your home town is having a community Christmas tree. What kind spirited people you are, and I see you're one of the head chiefs on the path to make it a success. God bless, you dear brother as, "one good deed deserves another."

By Jingo: How are all the babies? Waiting for Santa Claus I'll bet.

Kitty Lou: Have you all your gifts bought or made this year? I've never written you that letter I've promised but will soon.

Here is my recipe for Mince Meat which is cheap to make:

Mince Meat: Take one can of corned beef, 1 lb. of suet and put through food chopper; add 1 tablespoon of salt (scant), 1 lb. each of raisins, and currants, a tablespoon of different spices mixed, using them as your own taste dictates. (We like about half cinnamon and the rest mixed), 1-2 cup of cider or vinegar, one and a half cups sugar, a small glass of either grape or currant jelly. Put 2 lemon and about three times the amount of apples that you have meat through the chopper. Mix with the other ingredients, cook thoroughly and seal or keep in a stone crock until you are ready to use. I hope those of you who try this will report. We are very fond of it.

Wishing you all a very merry Christmas and a happy New Year, I am always,

FULLER PHUN.

ENJOYED MEETING AT MYSTIC

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: It has been some time since I have written to the Corner so I will send a few lines before some of the smart ones say "blacker." I attended the last meeting at Mystic, Tuesday, Dec. 14 and a splendid time. E. Natural is certainly a great hostess and her helpers fairly outdid themselves. The only regret I have is I had to leave at 5 p. m. so was obliged to miss part of the program. The next time I will tell the chauffeur to come after me at 4 o'clock. Then I will be sure to hear it all. Was sorry the date of the meeting was the same as Club 2, for I missed the Sisters from Norwich.

Crimson Rambler: Missed you very much. My cold is better but I have taken so much cough medicine I can't look at a bottle or a spoon, not even when chowder is served.

Aris: Meant to have answered your letter before this but have been very busy. Should have been pleased to have attended the meeting at Putnam but too long and too cold a ride. When sweet summer comes again am going to visit the out of town clubs.

Noank Brownie: Where were you? Some one said you were there, but I failed to find you.

Ruthina: Cheer up, the day is coming some time. Missed you very much.

Hoot Owl: Do brace up and come again. Looked for you Tuesday.

Sun Bonnet Sue: What has become of you? A long time ago some one asked you to give a little history about the surroundings of Beach pond. I have watched for your answer in vain. I have been told you have a cottage there.

E. L. M.: How about another long letter?

The madam didn't happen to want the line did she?

Wishing all a merry Christmas and a happy New Year, I remain,

INTERESTED READER.

GUESS WHO'S RECIPES

Dear Carnerites: To the sister who wished to know if my recipes were all original I will answer her candidly. No they are not all original, but some of them are, and some are prize recipes. I sent in a recipe for omelet that won a $2,000 prize, have sent in pie and cake recipes that won $600, $5 and $3 prizes.

I certainly have a large stock of recipes that are tested, true and tried. A great many of them are tried out by teachers of domestic science.

You wished to know the number of my recipes. I could not tell you the exact number. I have nearly 900 bread recipes, 3,900 different kinds of cake, 75 different ways of cooking oysters, 400 ways of using cocoanut and about 40 to 50 recipes for making fruit cake and about all kinds of cookies, macaroons and for icing. I have over 200 different recipes by the best cook. She is Betty Lysle Wilson and I have her sandwich recipes. They are marvelous. Yes I don't mind telling you I have received four checks from different magazines and papers I write for this past week. I thought as you seemed interested enough to ask me I would inform you.

I received over 200 letters from a paper asking how I made my coffee and I answered every one. One was a hotel proprietor's wife, one was from the wife of a radi cannouncer. I also received a letter from an editor who wrote that they received a great many letters from people complaining because I received so many prizes but my recipes had been tried and they found them always good and they said I had earned them. So you see there is jealousy every where. I had to write under different names, so you will not get in bad if you wish to build anything by Guess Who's recipes, unless I forget or fail to put in all the ingredients.

I am sending a few more:

Squash Pie: 2 1-2 cups strained squash, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 each of ginger and cinnamon, 2 egg, 2 cups milk, 1 tablespoon flour. Beat the egg, add the sugar, salt, spices and flour. Beat all this thoroughly, then add the other ingredients. Bake in a moderate oven in a deep pie plate. This recipe makes one large thick pie and is very good.

Waffles: 1 1-4 level cups of pastry flour, measured before sifting, 1-4 cup yellow meal, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 level teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 2 eggs, add 1 cup milk, then the dry ingredients and 4 tablespoons melted butter.

Chicken-a-la-Oyster: 2 cups of oysters, 1 cup each of milk and cream, 2 cups cooked chicken, 8 slices toast, 6 tablespoons of flour, 4 tablespoons of melted butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon pepper.

Melt the butter, add the flour, stir until lumps are all out. Then add milk and cream salt and pepper, chicken and oysters. Let boil until the edges of the oysters curl, then serve with hot biscuits or toast.

Oyster Short Cake: Take 2 cups of chopped veal after frying it good and brown in hot fat (it should brown it in, be sure) add a tiny little of mustard; dust lightly with pepper and salt, then add one pint of milk and thicken with two tablespoons of flour. Make a good biscuit crust. Cut out medium sized biscuits with a hole in the center.

GUESS WHO.

GREETINGS AND RECIPES

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I was/to send you all holiday greetings along with a few recipes:

My Own Pineapple Pie: One can pineapple; add beaten yolks of three eggs, half a cup of sugar and two tablespoons cornstarch, moistened with cold water. Cook in double boiler until thick. Put into baked shell and cover with meringue made as follows: Three whites, beaten stiff, two tablespoons sugar and one teaspoon baking powder. Brown in hot oven.

Apple Pan Dowdy: Line a baking dish with thin slices of buttered bread. Fill in the center with sliced apples, sprinkle over the top four tablespoons of dark brown sugar and 1-2 teaspoon of cinnamon. Add 1-2 cup of water and cover with another layer of buttered bread, with the buttered side up. Bake for 1 hour in a moderate oven. Serve with a liquid sauce.

Grape Juice Soup—Two tablespoons tapioca, 2 cups boiling water, 1 cup sugar, juice and grated rind of 1 lemon and 4 cups chilled grape juice. Cook tapioca in the water until clear. Add the sugar, lemon rind and juice and chill; then blend with the grape juice and serve immediately. Have eaten this warm, not chilling it at all. When fresh grapes are in season, substitute for the grape juice 1 quart ripe grapes (freed from stems,) which have been cooked with 1 pint water, then strained, pressing as much as possible of the pulp through the strainer.

Baked Alaska: Put thin slices of plain cake on platter. Have your ice cream refrozen in a melon mold. Cover very thickly with meringue, after placing on top of cake. Put under broiler, in a very hot oven, and brown immediately. Or if can be served on individual plates by putting one piece of cake on plate, covering with thick slice of ice cream, then with meringue and putting under broiler. Should brown in about 2 minutes. Put on cold plate for serving. This is a lovely way to serve ice cream and very little trouble.

Walnut Fudge: Three cups white sugar, 1 cup milk, 1 cup chopped walnuts, butter the size of an egg. Boil all together until it forms a soft ball in ice water. Before removing from the fire add 2 heaping tablespoon prepared marshmallow and allow to come to a boil again. Remove from fire and stir until creamy. Just before pouring into pan add 1 teaspoon vanilla. When cold, cut in squares.

Candy: One tablespoon molasses, 1 cup sugar, 1-2 cup sweet milk, butter size of walnut; boil until it forms a soft ball in water. Before removing from stove, add 2-3 cup shredded cocoanut, 1 tablespoon cocoa; allow to come to a boil and boil one minute; remove from fire, add 1 teaspoon vanilla, set in a dish of cold water and stir (do not beat as it makes is grainy) until very stiff with fingers, or drop from a teaspoon on waxed paper.

GREETINGS FROM BUTTERFLY

Dear Social Corner Editor and Friends: I thought I would add my mite to the Social Corner page. I had a very nice time in Putnam at Club No. 4's meeting, and was very glad we could spend the day with our former pastor, Mr. Hetherington.

Whirlwind, W. H. C., and Gingham Girl: I thank you for the Birthday cards you sent me.

Buffalo: Your baked beans were very nice and I thank you for the good time you gave us.

When the good old summer time comes again I hope to take a trip to visit the Shore Line club. I don't expect to get out much this winter for winter weather is rather rough on butterflies.

Would be glad to know who Mrs. W H. C. is.

Wishing you all a merry Christmas and happy New Year.

BUTTERFLY.

CLUB NO. 2'S MEETING A BIG SUCCESS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I wish to thank all those who helped serve at Club No. 2 Tuesday, also those who helped entertain, and those who brought food for the table. I think our first getting together in Buckingham Memorial was a success in every detail. It did upon good to have all the dishes we wanted to use. And I was pleased to have members of the other clubs meet with us. It seemed very sociable to have them with us.

I think our meeting was a rousing success. All in favor say I.

A merry Christmas to all.

SISTER READY.

GOOD INTENTIONS

To Sisters of Social Corner: Good intentions sometimes cause embarrassing results. In a large eastern city there is an institute where many young students assemble for training in different industries. Among them was a young boy from the middle west. He was a sturdy, robust, out door lad about 17, studying to be a civil engineer.

He never felt the cold and never wore an overcoat. As he walked from the institute to his boarding place he passed by a block of brown stone houses. In one of these houses lived a mother who had recently lost her son. She noticed this boy as he passed by and it pained her motherly heart that he wore no overcoat in the bitter cold winter.

Her son's coat hung in the closet and surely this boy needed it. She brought it out and when the boy passed by after school she ran out and called to him. "Dear boy, here is an overcoat for you."

"But, madam, I never—"

"That's all right. You dont need to thank me. It is a pleasure to me to give it to you."

"Yes, but I never—"

"Never mind about thanks. My boy died and I want you to have this coat. It is a pleasure to me so don't try to thank me. Good by."

She went into her house leaving the boy standing on the sidewalk and wondering what he could do with that overcoat on his arm. He carried it to his room and an idea came to him.

There was Clarence Gray, a thin, delicate boy, who was wearing an old overcoat of his father's. He was just the boy to have this good new coat. So he carried it over to Mrs. Gray, explained how he came to have it and said it would be a pleasure to him if Clarence would accept the coat and Clarence was delighted. "All's well that ends well."

Mrs. A. and Mrs. B. were friends from childhood. Occasionally they exchanged books as each was fond of reading. During her shopping one Christmas Mrs. A. saw a copy of The Hunchback of Notre Dame. She had not read that book but had read several by the same author so she bought it to give to Mrs. B.

While looking at the books Mrs. B. saw Hypatia. She had not read it but thought it would be a nice present for Mrs. A. So she bought it and gave it to her friend. After Christmas there was a coolness between them. Anyone who has read both of these books can appreciate the reason for it, for a more absurd exchange could not be imagined.

It is safer not to give a book you have not read unless some one has expressed a wish for it. And each one in the family wants an individual gift.

Don't give mother a clothes wringer or washing machine. She will want some thing nice as much now as when she was a child. Presents for the family use should be for the house. Best wishes to all.

NEMA.

CROCHETING RUGS

Dear Sisters of the Corner: Isn't it just lovely to call one another sister in this great world of ours—a wonderful privilege God has given us? If we would only all feel that way towards one another wouldn't this be one grand world to live in? I think the Social Corner is just grand, because we can write letters and suggestions so all can read them through its columns. I have derived much benefit and many happy thoughts through our department. I am many times encouraged by the different letters and helps. Let us keep up our courage, above all things. Let us fill our lives doing good toward our neighbors and friends; and if we don't get the praise we think we should, just try and remember it is sure to be placed to our account in the record of kindness we do, let us not forget that when we are making the life of another seem bright, the joy we give is sure to come back to us some time in some way or another.

I wonder if any of the Social Corner members ever tried crocheting a rug? They can be made very pretty and with less work than braided ones, although I have made many different kinds from rags. First cut all your rags, the thin cloth in wide strips, the heavy cloth in narrow strips, so when they are crocheted they will be of a uniform size. I cut all kinds of rags, from silk hose to heavy underwear. Then I sew the rags, hit or miss, on the sewing machine. Now wind in a ball, and they are ready for use, with no more sewing or work. Sometimes I sew rags of one color all together and keep them in a ball by themselves so as to form a stripe several times around the rug, such as red, blue or in fact anything bright. For an oval rug, make a chain of 12 stitches. (I use a large wooden hook). Then work around the chain with single crochet, increasing a stitch on both sides of the two ends, and always in the same place. This makes a very serviceable and useful rug. You can make them as large or as small as one likes. I like rather a large sized one.

Yours for the good of the Corner.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

GETS MUCH HELP FROM CORNER

Dear Social Corner Editor and Friends: What nice letters we are having of late. I enjoy them all.

I always look for those on economy in any way. When one has a family and only one to work I find that you have to economize in every way possible. I always look for inexpensive recipes and ways of using left overs, and the Social Corner is the place to find such things.

I enjoy reading about the meetings and what good times you all have. Often wish I could go. Club No. 6 is certainly growing.

Kitty Lou: Thanks ever so much for helping me with my wax problem. I was sure I'd get help through the Corner.

Calla Lily: Am sending in the poem you asked for. Have a book of Longfellow's poems and I happened to think that it was in there. Some time I'm going to send in some others. One he wrote when 13 years old.

Mittie: Some time I'm going to try your date sticks. Why don't you write more often? I hear you go to a lot of meetings.

Sister Ready: You have never answered those questions I asked you some time ago.

Wishing editor and all members a merry Christmas.

ANATASIA.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

Dear Editor, Social Corner Friends and Everybody: A Christmas letter and Christmas greetings to you all. "Christmas love is like magic, the more you give, the more you have."

I am sending greetings to you in and between and around this letter. I am presenting you with loads and loads of love. I am sending you so much that it will last you all the year, that you may pass it on to all around you and still have plenty for yourself. I send you my share of the old shine my appreciation or animate my thoughts of the beautiful. I send you the same carols that the angels heard as they watched their flocks by night when the angels sang glory above around. I am right with you in overcoming space, right by your side as you read this. I bent into your eyes from between the lines. If you will look where there are no words, you will find there what money cannot buy—my loving thoughts.

How may pleasure and happiness shine upon you this merry time, and sink to rest without a shadow to mar its blessings. May success, peace and prosperity be yours the coming New Year.

Toll, Toll, Toll!
For the old year slowing dying.
Toll for Love's fond pledges broken
Toll for want of woe unspoken.
Toll, Toll, Toll!

Ring, Ring Ring!
A welcome to the bright New Year,
Ring for hands of generous giving
Ring for vows of nobler living.
Ring for truth of tongue and pen
Ring Peace on earth, good will to men.

ANNE TENNA.

GLAD TO BE BACK AT BUCKINGHAM

Dear Social Corner Friends: I enjoy the meetings of Club No

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

News of a half century ago, which appeared in the Norwich Bulletin of 1876, was of interest to people in those days, especially that concerning the new ferry at Groton. Items in part from the Bulletin of 50 years ago are as follows:

Monday, December 11, 1876—The storm of Saturday was one of the most violent of the season. Snow began falling before daylight, changed to rain later in the day, and at night rain stopped and the wind came up, the temperature falling considerably. Many people feared that their houses would be blown down during the night and practically everyone had trouble in keeping warm.

The Prisoner's Friend association met Saturday afternoon and it was voted to change the name of the organization to the Connecticut Prisoner's association. Hon. Francis Wayland was elected president of the association and Judge Foster of Norwich one of the vice presidents.

It is claimed that a simple remedy for neuralgia is horse-radish. Grate and mix it in vinegar, the same as for table purposes and apply it to the temples when the face or head is affected, or the wrist, when the pain is in the arm or shoulder.

Hartford and Erie railroad 7s were bought this week by local parties at prices ranging from 15 3-4 to 17 3-4.

The poor house will be ready for occupancy in about five weeks. It is being very completely finished.

The sidewalks were very slippery yesterday and people took to the middle of the streets for their walking.

Tuesday, December 12, 1876—A petition is to be presented to the general assembly at the next session, asking for the establishment of a new ferry between the towns of Groton and New London for the transportation of passengers, trains, etc., in connection with the New York, Providence and Boston Railroad company and the Shore Line railroad, or otherwise.

From Putnam we learn that A. N. Law's flour and grain store was burned Sunday afternoon. When discovered the fire was well under way, and the intense cold prevented the firemen from getting th engines to play quickly. The loss was estimated at $3,500, the store and contents being destroyed. The fire was believed to be the work of an incendiary.

In Willimantic Saturday night R. Goldenblum, who runs a shoe store in the basement of the block on Main and Railroad street, started up a fire to keep his 40 canaries warm. The fire became too hot and the building caught fire. The Willimantic firemen stopped the blaze in time to prevent a serious damage to the block.

Wednesday, December 13, 1876—Springfield has cut down the cost of putting up tramps at the station by adopting the plan of making them saw wood to pay for their lodging. This ruling has cut down the nightly visitors from an acreage of 30 to around 12 a night. Norwich is thinking of adopting the same plan. Forty tramps were put up in Norwich on a night recently.

The Thames is frozen over below the wharves, though the steamers thus far have had no difficulty in breaking through to the docks.

Buffalo Bill is to appear in the sensational play, Red Hand, at the Breed theater next Monday night.

The snow has made little sleighing but several cutters were out on the streets yesterday.

Capt. Smith of the steamer Gipsey brings the information that a three masted schooner is ashore off Southampton, L. I., several on board having been washed overboard during the recent storm. Another schooner was seen ashore off Napeaug.

Thursday, December 14, 1876—At the 64th annual meeting of the New London Foreign Missionary society, Tuesday night, Ebenezer Learned was elected president. The society is one of the oldest members of the American board.

The New London County Agricultural society held its annual meeting yesterday. All old officers were re-elected and the report of the treasurer showed receipts for the last year to be $1,022 in access of expenditures.

It is to be hoped that the police will be vigilant in enforcing the ordinance prohibiting persons from bathing in the river in a state of nudity. The law must be enforced.

Ice seven inches thick is being cut on some of the local ponds, thus showing that the iceman's season is beginning early this year.

Mrs. Louise Woodworth Foss, one of the best female elocutionists in the country will appear in Breed hall on the evening of Dec. 27. She will be accompanied by Carlyle Petersilea, the pianist.

Friday, December 15, 1876—The scalp and weapons of Yellow Hand, who was killed by Buffalo Bill on July 1st, are to be exhibited in this city. Yellow Hand was fond of colors and in his shield is set a small looking glass, by the aid of which he made up his face for the war-path.

The New York and New England route has been changed and instead of running from Willimantic to Hartford and New Haven, runs from Willimantic to Hartford, Middletown and New Haven, thus cutting off 22 miles.

A newspaper folded and worn under the vest is said to be warmer than a fur coat. Now is the time to subscribe.

A Norwich man, C. C. Thompson, was one of the greatest sufferers by the recent fire at Chautauqua, his loss amounting to several thousand dollars.

Saturday, Dec. 16, 1876—Mrs. Michael Grodotsky of Bean Hill was fatally injured last evening when a kerosene lamp exploded near her. She was burned to a crisp from the neck downward. His husband and oldest son were also badly burned when they endeavored to extinguish the flames.

The Aurora says that Emmons is painting a life size portrait of Chief Engineer Carrier.

The news of the burning of the Norwich chapel at Macon, Ga., was learned with regret here. The chapel was built for the most part with money from the Second church during the pastorate of Rev. Mr. Dana, and while John Rockwell was in charge of the colored schools sustained by the American Missionary association in Macon.

Eleven two-pound pickerel are on display in a local store window, a part of the catch of 36 pickerel made Thursday by a local party.

The new ferry boat from Groton and New London is named the Groton and has been fitted out at a cost of $68,000. In the meantime the question of building a bridge across the river, near the ferry landing, is being agitated by the roads to the west and the bridge will probably be constructed before many years pass.

VOLUNTOWN

Friday evening last week a whist and Christmas sale was held in Union hall under the auspices of the school committee and teachers of the Center school, for the benefit of the school fund. The affair was a great success, as there was a good attendance and the tables where goods made by teachers and children were offered for sale were well patronized, a large number of articles being sold.

Whist was played for about two hours 13 tables being filled. The winners were Miss Anna St. John, score 44, embroidered bureau scarf; Mrs. Ivels Bussl, 39, box of handkerchiefs; consolation, Mrs. George Briggs, 16, calendar. Arthur Bussl 39, necktie. Floyd Marion, 13, ash tray. The scorers were Mrs. John Peckham and Miss Rebecca Pease. The affair was a pronounced success.

Santa Claus is due to arrive in town Thursday eve. Dec. 23d when he will have something for all the children and he wishes to meet them at the first community Christmas tree which will be set up in Union hall on that evening. He will distribute gifts to all the children from the tree. The public is being asked to add a mite to the box in the local post office as the contents will be used to make the children happy. Donations will be received by the teachers, Mrs. John Peckham, Miss Rebecca Pease and Miss Ella Gray, or the school committee, George R. Edwards, William H. Kaufman and Mrs. Charles A. Downing.

The buzz of the saw mill is now heard by the village people in the beautiful pine forests owned by the Briggs Mfg. company. The splendid pines on this big tract will soon be turned into lumber.

John Dolan, trustee and appraiser Daniel Finn, Jr., of Jewett City, Clarence Kahn and Lester A. Klinle, of Voluntown met Monday evening at Russ's store and appraised the stock, etc. The appraisers were sworn by Justice Warren Tanner.

Mrs. Gaudette, of Central Village is spending a few days at her home in Voluntown.

Ernest Dupont of New Rochelle, spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emery Dupont.

Miss Anna St. John, R. N., of Springfield, was a week end guest at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Edmond St. John.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward La Chapelle were Sunday guests at the home of Mrs. La Chapelle's mother, Mrs. Gaudette.

Nelson Devocier who moved to Rockville, R. I. a few months ago, has moved his goods back to his former home in Beachdale. Mr. Dorosier is now employed by the Glasgo Finishing company.

A free lecture is to be given in Union hall on Saturday evening under the auspices of the Finnish corporation. The speaker will be Prof. Jones of Storrs and the subject Agriculture.

GALES FERRY

Sunday, Dec. 19 will be observed as Christmas Sunday, in the Methodist church. Rev. Wilfred D. Hamilton will preach a Christmas sermon and there will be special music. At the evening service a Christmas songalogue, The Universal King, will be given by an augumented choir.

A demonstration of wood lot thinning and timber estimating was given at the farm of Judge Billings F. S. Crandall, at Stoddard's wharf Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, directed by A. A. Poppell a representative of the state forestry department and held under the auspices of the farm bureau of New London county, Walter T. Clark, agent.

Mrs. Emma S. Bennett entertained at supper Thursday evening on the 16th birthday of her granddaughter, Em-Beth Bennett. The guests were Misses Helen L. and Margaret S. Colver with Matilda Harold all of the Submarine Base. The table decorations were in yellow, with sixteen candles on the birthday cake. Miss Bennett received cards and gifts. Music and games were enjoyed, following supper.

Mr. and Mrs. John Benn of Hartford, former residents here are leaving in January to make their home in Covina, California. Mrs. Benn who is a niece of Mrs. Joan Rogers of this place, will leave January 2nd. and will be joined by Mr. Benn at a later date.

Miss Vira Lee of Jewett City, has taken Twin Oaks cottage, for her residence, after resuming her duties at the railroad station here as third trick operator, taking the place of Miss Myrtle McDonald of Norwich, who has supplied here.

Percy Norman an engineer on the steamer Richard Peck, was a visitor Sunday at his home at Allyn's Point.

Dudley C. Perkins attended the funeral of Captain Benjamin Latham in Noank, Thursday afternoon.

HENRY ELLISON, NEW LONDON, GASHED IN ATLANTIC STREET GAMBLING DEN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 17—New London's black belt came into the limelight again early this morning when frequenters of the negro gambling resort at 13 Atlantic street, conducted by Walter K. Anderson and "Jimmy" Williams, engaged in a fight which resulted in George Wesley, 32, of 14 John street, a laborer, attacking Henry (Red) Ellison, fireman on a government transport, with a knife, wielding the weapon with such telling effect that Ellison suffered a series of wounds that required 14 stitches to close, at the Lena hospital Wesley made his escape and although the New London police and the state police at Groton barracks have made a concerted effort to locate and arrest Wesley, he has left no clue to his whereabouts. Wesley owns a Hudson sedan, painted gray, and it is believed he escaped in the automobile immediately following the slashing of Ellison.

The attack upon Ellison is the third murderous assault made by colored people in six weeks, one of them resulting in a murder.

The Atlantic street building has long been known as a gambling resort for the negroes, and although whites also frequented the resort for nightly gaming, the resort has never been raided.

Last night a stud poker game was in progress there and about 3 o'clock this morning Ellison's winnings had caused an exhaustion of Wesley's bank roll. It was then that the trouble started, for Wesley requested of Ellison a loan of $10. Ellison told Wesley that the former could not grant the loan, but offered Wesley $5, at the same time tossing the bill across the table. Wesley became enraged and threw the bill back to Ellison, at the same time shouting that he would cut his ——— head off. Ellison stopped playing cards and rose from the table. At the same time Wesley regained his feet and in an instant he pulled a jackknife, with a blade about four inches in length and rushed at Ellison. The first blow was well directed for the blade sank deep into Ellison's shoulder, crippling the arm and severing an artery. Although handicapped by the knife wound, Ellison attempted to fight Wesley off, but only received additional wounds. When Wesley finally decided to make his escape Ellison had given pushes in his shoulder and body. Wesley ran down a flight of stairs to the street. It is believed that he entered his automobile and speeded away.

Bleeding from his wounds, Ellison sank into a chair. Someone in the place telephoned the police that a cutting had taken place in the gambling house, but the informant refused to give his name. About the same time Patrolman Clarence Wells had learned of the assault upon Ellison and entering the gaming house found Ellison bleeding freely. A call was sent for the Lawrence hospital ambulance, but before it arrived Ellison was becoming weaker and fearing that he might bleed to death Patrolman Wells commandeered a taxicab and rushed the injured man to the Lena hospital, at Ellison's desire. Ellison was taken to the operating room where the flow of blood was partially stopped and 14 stitches were taken in order to sew up the laceration. Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolmen William Riordan and George Cockell were assigned to attempt Wesley's arrest, but they could not find the slightest trace of the fugitive. The police of Norwich, Westerly, New Haven and Hartford were also requested to be on the lookout for Wesley.

This morning Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh caused the witnesses of the murderous assault as well as known frequenters of the gambling house to be brought to police headquarters where they were questioned. Thomas Stephenson, 73 Hempstead street; John Frish, 67 Hempstead street and Charles King, 16 John street, the first named the dealer and the others players, were included among those questioned. Stephenson declared that the club was a bonafide one and was incorporated. He did not tell of any election of officers that was ever held, but said he was the secretary and empowered to collect dues of $1 monthly from each member. With the collection a part of his alleged duties, Stephenson could supply the police with but four names of alleged members. He stated that the money received from dues was expended by him in the upkeep of the club, also that gambling was not allowed there, but he failed to explain how he came to be the dealer of the stud game, if gaming was not sanctioned and allowed. The police give little credence to Stephen's statements, for craps has been an almost nightly game at the club for years.

The funeral of Willis A. Jones, former bank watchman, was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the residence of Silas Maxson, Jr., 713 Montauk avenue and was attended by many mourners. The service was read by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James' Episcopal church. The bearers were James T. Sexton, William Elwood, Joseph Scroggie, George Perkins, Louis Satti of this city, and William Keegan, of Waterbury. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

An automobile owned by W. A. Sours, commercial salesman, got afire while parked on Union street, near the Methodist church, this afternoon. A still alarm was sent to fire headquarters and Chief Thomas Shipman, the Nameaug Engine company and Allen Hook and Ladder companies responded. There was little need of the services of the firemen, however, for the fire was subdued with a small quantity of chemicals and without damage of consequence.

Henry J. Latham, of High street, Groton and Herman Katz, 35 Harrison street, were arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer Clyde Murphy, each charged by the other with violation of the automobile laws. They will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning. Katz's automobile was parked on Main street and as the auto was started in motion the automobile driven by Latham came along and side-swiped it. The damage was not great Katz charged Latham with reckless driving and evasion of responsibility, while Latham made a counter charge that Katz did not signal by extending his arm as the auto was leaving its place of parking.

Four military prisoners from Fort Adams, Newport, R. I., charged with burglary under military law 94, were brought to New London this afternoon by two army sergeants and later were taken to Fort Wright, Fishers Island, where they will be given a trial in court martial. The prisoners, it is alleged, broke into a warehouse at the Newport reservation and stole blankets of the estimated value of $84.

A well known citizen declared today that he was surprised at the number of buildings along the principal business streets that emptied their roof water directly upon the sidewalks, thereby creating a condition of the walk that was dangerous in freezing weather, or after the roof water has flowed over ice upon the walks.

There is no indication that this city is to have a municipal Christmas tree as it did during war times. The tree was appreciated by young and old and it established a better feeling among residents than would otherwise have existed. The outlook for what was called "block" parties where there was dancing in the streets covering a block of buildings will probably be abandoned this year as the snow and ice on the ground makes it impossible to have the parties. In the year long gone by sleighing parties were common during Christmas week, but the sleigh has now disappeared and it would be difficult to get a dozen sleighs in the city. Perhaps the automobile will take the place left unoccupied by the sleighs and road houses will have the parties that formerly occupied the sleighs.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Goddard, of Ridgewood park, Waterford, are spending the holiday vacation with Mr. Goddard's brother, Frederick Goddard, at Baltimore.

There was but a single case before the police court this morning, the accused being a gardener possessed of an idea that his employers can not get along without him. He was disabused of this notion by Judge Crandall who gave him some good advice and then the gardener was allowed to go across the river and was advised to stay there.

LAWSKI DOZING IN THEATRE HAD REVOLVER IN POCKET

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 17.—Charles Lawski, 21, of 115 North Bank street, was arrest at the Crow theatre this afternoon charged with intoxication and carrying concealed weapons. He will be in the police court tomorrow morning. Lawski occupied one of the seats about mid-way of the theatre and was observed by other patrons to have been drinking, but no particular attention was paid to him until a youth observed Lawski display a revolver. The call called Lawski's act to the attention of his mother and the mother and child left their seats and went to another section of the theatre. The boy, however, was later sent to inform a police officer of his observation. The boy found Officer Lawrence Fardy on State street and the policeman was on his way to the theatre he came upon Sergeant [illegible] who returned to the theatre with Fardy. Lawski, [illegible] asleep and with his head on the floor. When the officers aroused Lawski display a .38 fully loaded revolver was found in one of the pockets [illegible] of the revolver being [illegible] Lawski intended to [illegible] is not known, but [illegible] of his carrying the revolver [illegible] intoxicated tomorrow.

[illegible] a police court record [illegible] than a year ago he [illegible] in Montville after he and [illegible] had beaten Prohibition [illegible] Henry W. Avery who interfered [illegible] disturbing their having [illegible] a war cry by the Norwich police on a charge of reckless driving.

Connecticut College for Women suspended sessions for the holiday recess this morning and by late afternoon all of the students had left for their homes. Most of the 600 students boarded late morning and afternoon trains.

Patrolman William Graham discovered a sewer pipe broken and emitting a volume of stench bearing material on the street at 425 Main street in front of the Lee block. The break was reported to the water and sewer department and repairs were made without delay.

The police this afternoon arrested two boys, minors, charged with breaking and entering the candy store of Diamond Brothers, 81 Main street. The boys have admitted their guilt and will be given a hearing in the juvenile court within a few days. The store was entered [illegible] twice last week and [illegible] amount of cash and candy [illegible] each time, entrance being gained by means of a duplicate key to a rear door. The boys admitted making [illegible] and earlier entrances to the store, out of which Ballassi did not [illegible] merchandise, that break, the [illegible] resulted in their obtaining $2.50 from a bag containing specie, the hiding place of which was known to the boys. The arrest of the boys was made by Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh. A resident of the southern part of the city visited the police station this afternoon and disclosed knowledge he possessed which pointed to the boys as being those guilty of the burglarized the store. When they were interrogated by Sergeant Cavanaugh they readily admitted their guilt and were turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield.

Two unfortunates were arrested to-night, being charged with intoxication and vagrancy. Both went to police headquarters seeking a night's lodging. One of the men, John Heffernan, years ago a well known boilermaker, has a long record for vagrancy. He is without friends or relatives and his arrest tonight is the 72nd on the vagrancy charge. He was arrested on that charge Aug. 7 last and the following day was sentenced to three months in jail. He has been at liberty about two weeks. The other is John Billings, Waterford farm laborer. It is Billings' second offense charged on the double count. He was arrested, Nov. 27, last, and was fined $10 and costs for intoxication.

"WE SHOULD WORRY!" ATTITUDE ON GROTON FERRY THREAT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 17—Groton people declare that they are not in the least alarmed by the disposition of New London to cease the operation of the ferry boat that plies between the two towns. They declare that New London's city council is putting up a great big picture that looks bad, but that it will be withdrawn again and that the Ferry will continue to do business as in the past. The fact that a raise has been made in the cost of ferriage will be a factor in continuing the ferry. The cost of operation of the boat is considerable, but the money is regarded as well spent for the convenience it provides for the people of New London and those from Groton who come to this city to leave their money and take away goods in exchange for it. It is represented that the cost of every necessity for the operation of the ferry is greater now than it was when the existing lease was drawn and that in the year to come the prospect is that coal will cost so much more than it cost in the past year that an increase will be necessary in the funds from which the boat is run.

Palace Theatre.

The great vaudeville bill at the Palace still reigns supreme. Al Lavine and band, those classy syncopators, are sure registering big. Alexander and Elmore, those laugh getters, keep the audience in hysterics. Revue Boheme, that gorgeous song and dance revue is a good fast moving offering which was very much appreciated. Wheeler Duo in their "Skating De Luxe" is a very clever act. Billie Dale, in "Bits of Scotland" was well received.

The picture, "My Official Wife," starring Irene Rich and Conway Tearle, a monster drama of far off Russia proves a very sensational story of a brilliant noblewoman's revenge on her betrayer.

The double feature bill scheduled to start tomorrow, promises to fulfill the desires of those who prefer outdoor pictures and those who prefer light comedy plays. Zane Grey's story, "Forlorn River," will make its local debut.

To the lively plot, teeming with the romance and adventure of the northwest cattle country, has been added a spirited cast, featuring such sterling favorites as Jack Holt, Raymond Hatton, Arlette Marchal and Edmund Burns.

The picture develops considerable excitement that has been well balanced with some fine comedy contributed by Raymond Hatton in the role of a tramp cow-puncher. John Waters, who jumped into the limelight with his first directorial effort, "Born to the West," is also the guiding spirit of "Forlorn River." The scenario is the work of George C. Hull.

H. C. Witwer, Ring Lardner, George Ade and Stephen Leacock are tapping humor into their typewriters, song writers are exhorting the public to smile, and the great screen comedians and their directors are making laughs of everything for the protoplays.

"Poker Faces" is from the pen of Edgar Franklin and is one of the most enjoyable of the works in his lighter veign. Why worry when "Poker Faces" is coming to town?

The story is of the amusing mix-up of a newly married couple, the husband's employer and his prospective customer whom he is trying to entertain.

The cast of this picture includes Lamel La Plante, George Seigmann, Tom Ricketts, Tom O'Brien, Dorothy Revier and Leon Holmes.

Broadway Theatre.

Circumstantial evidence is again becoming one of the most discussed topics of conversation among those people who follow the newspaper accounts of murder trials.

One of the big scenes in "The Unwritten Law," the Columbia feature coming to the Broadway theatre Sunday creates a situation in which any one of a number of innocent people might have committed a murder.

Director Edward J. Le Saint has cleverly presented a convincing picture of how evidence may be entirely mistaken, according to preview notices. His excellent cast is headed by the lovely Elaine Hammerstein, in the story are a number of popular favorites such as Forrest Stanley, William Mong, Charles Clay, Mary Alden, Johnny Fox, Jr., and William Carroll. Tom J. Hopkins' noted story supplied the material for this production.

For those who complain against the mutilation of their favorite novels by the producers of the screen, the film translation of Robert E. Pinkerton's popular book, "The Test of Donald Norton," in which the Chadwick

Strand Theatre.

The intelligence of a splendid horse who knows the hiding place of the loot stolen from the railroad forms the keystone of an unusual western story in which Tom Tyler and his Pals "Your Gang"—will be seen at the Strand theatre Sunday, the first feature on a double programme. "Flash," "Sitting Bull" and little Frankie Darro all play a big part in "The Masquerade Bandit." Mr. Tyler's latest FBO starring vehicle which William E. Wing adapted from the original story by Enid Hibbard and Ethel Hill. Spanking action, taut situations, speed and a goodly sprinkling of comedy make this production one of the best of the Tyler series; and it will rank high with any western picture ever produced. Robert De Lacy wielded the megaphone, as he has done in all Tyler films, and he has made the most out of subject matter rich in all the elements of entertainment. For a hard-hitting, hard-riding, hard-laughing show, it is the cat's trousers!

The second feature has George Walsh, the world's greatest athlete, as its star in "The Test of Donald Norton." The locale of the story is laid in the wastes of the Canadian northwest and has enough physical action and thrills to more than satisfy those who seek this manly sort of entertainment.

A very funny comedy bill complete the line-up for Sunday.

Bread Theatre.

"Sweet Daddies," the new M. C. Levee feature comedy for First National, which opens Sunday at the Breed theatre, is an extraordinarily well-cast picture. In fact, try as we will, we cannot imagine any players that would have fitted more snugly into the various parts in "Sweet Daddies" than those that now film them.

Charlie Murray, the first to appear on the screen, is a great comedian. Charlie does not spend his time as a mummer, exhibiting tricks and mannerisms which have no particular appeal to an intelligent audience. Murray's humor is invested with character and a great human naturalness.

George Sidney is another featured player in this highly amusing photoplay. Sidney, whose name alone can carry any picture, is Murray's partner in the six reels of fun, and Vera Gordon completes the humorous triangle.

Jack Mulhall, who is soon to be starred by First National, plays the leading man, while alluring Jobyna Ralston carries the ingenue role off with high honors. Gaston Glass, protege of the late Sarah Bernhardt, makes the very most of his role as the villian.

"Sweet Daddies" is replete with beautiful scenes of the tropic. The Jail Cafe sequence takes this season's prize for its originality. M. C. Levee, who conceived it, deserves much credit for giving us something new on the screen.

The story itself, unlike most comedies, has a fascinating plot. Alfred Santell, the young director who has within the last year become Hollywood's man of the hour, directed "Sweet Daddies," in every respect it is a credit to him.

Sunday Service At Y. M. C. A.

The impressive human interest story of "Lovey Mary" will be shown at the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The main characters in the story are Bessie Love, William Haines and Mary Alden. This is the picturization of the famous novel by Alice Hegan Rice. Lovey Mary is a poor little slavey in an orphanage, affectionate, but with no one to love, when she is suddenly given the care of a baby at the orphanage and seeks refuge in Mrs. Wiggs' cabbage patch. The story is made up of those parts which go to make the helpful impression on the audience as it is portrayed on the screen. The music for the picture will be furnished by Hugh Kinder, who will also render vocal solos. A brief talk will be given to emphasize the lesson of the picture. To this service both men and women are invited.

Central Baptist Church

Meetings next week at the Central Baptist church will be as follows:

Carols will be sung at Union square, the Sheltering Arms, hospital, Johnson home, Rock Nook home, following which the girls will be served refreshments by the Norwich Town girls. The carrollers will participate in the Norwich Town community tree at 7:30 p. m. (Week day school omitted).

Young Farmers to Meet

Members of the Lebanon Young Farmer's club are to meet on Monday evening, Dec. 20th at the Lebanon high school, for the first of a series of talks by Prof. J. S. Owens of the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs. Prof. Owen's talk will be on Soil and Soil Fertility.

United Congregational Church

At the United Congregational church Thursday evening, in the church school rooms, at 7:45, there will be a mid-week service for the church. All girls of the church school, Camp-fire, Junior guild and parish are urged to meet in Union square at 5:30 on Friday afternoon, to march up to the community Christmas tree, stopping on the way to sing carols at the hospital, Sheltering Arms and Johnson home, and to have refreshments at the Norwich Town chapel. This group of girl carollers, coming from all the Protestant churches of the city, is to have a special part in the program around the tree.

Evangelical Lutheran Church

Services of the week at the First Evangelical Lutheran church will include: Tuesday evening, Camp fire girls Christmas day, Festival service at 10:30; Christmas festival of the Sunday school, Saturday evening at 7 o'clock.

MARKET WAS "BULLISH"

NEW YORK, Dec. 17—(AP)—An enormous demand for the common stock of the United States Steel corporation, inspired by the unexpected declaration of a 40 per cent. stock dividend, carried that issue up over 8 point today to 160 1-2, the highest price ever recorded and set in motion a spectacular "bull" movement in scores of other high grade railroad and industrial stocks. Total transactions in steel common exceeded 600,000 shares or approximately one-fourth of the day's entire volume of business.

The proposed distribution of a $200,000,000 melon to steel stockholders was widely accepted as a reasoning development on the business outlook for 1927 and aroused widespread hopes of similar distributions on other "rich men's stocks." Spectacular rallies were staged in such issues as Allied Chemical, American Smelting, National Lead and Pullman, all of which sold 5 to 12 points above yesterday's final quotations.

As a group, the rails did even better than the industrials under the leadership of Atchison, which scored an extreme advance of 8 points at 165 1-8, also a new high record. Buying of this issue was accompanied by rumors of a stock dividend of 25 to 40 per cent in New York Central, which is reported to be the next stock in the so-called "Morgan group" to receive special attention, was bid up over 4 points to 143 1-4. Southern Pacific, which is expected to increase its regular cash dividend soon, moved up nearly 3 points to 110 7-8. Reading, also mentioned in connection with a cash extra, climbed nearly 4 points to 99 7-8, or just under the record top. All reacted slightly from their high levels at the close.

The first sale of Steel was a block of 40,000 shares at the "spread opening" price of 158 1-2 to 160, which was not recorded on the tape until nearly 10 minutes after the opening, thereafter, for two hours transactions appeared on the tape in long strings, ranging from 5,000 to 25,000 shares. Trading slowed down during the afternoon, but the quotations were never more than half a point away from the extremes of the original "spread" price.

"Bear" traders, who had sold stocks freely during the past few weeks in anticipation of a slackening in business next year, rushed to cover in the high priced industrials in which other "melons" are likely. Scores of the minor industrials, however, improved only fractionally, while a number actually closed lower on the day, with the exception of a drop of 1-2 points in Loose Wiles Biscuit and a point or two in National Canners, National Department Stores, Pathe and White Rock, the recessions were held to fractions.

Call money held steady at 5 per cent all day despite the unusual increase in trading, and plenty of funds were reported available at that figure. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Commodity prices held fairly steady. Wheat futures showed practically no change on the day. Cotton closed 3 points lower to 17 points higher. Raw sugar futures and coffee moved within extremely narrow limits.

Foreign exchange trading was quiet, with the principal rates holding firm. Demand sterling was quoted around 4.84 12-16 and French francs around 4 cents.

GREENEVILLE

All members of White Cross council, No. 13, K. of C., residents of St. Mary's memorial parish, as well as members of both men's divisions of the A. O. H., St. Jean de Baptiste society, also the men of the parish Holy Name society are to receive holy communion in a body, their Christmas holy communion, at St. Mary's Memorial church, Sunday at the first mass.

For the benefit of all who would like to attend the memorial services of White Cross council at St. Patrick's church in the evening, Rev. William A. Keefe has advanced his regular Sunday evening services to 4 o'clock in the afternoon. This will give all members attending both services for the afternoon and evening a chance to make two visits in the four required daily for five days to make the pilgrimage of the jubilee year so richly endowed with many gems by his holiness, Pope Pius XI. The jubilee year ends Christmas eve and Sunday's holy communion along with prayers for the pope's intention are each visit are the conditions attached for the making of the jubilee.

Rev. George J. Donahue of Pomfret is to preach at the K. of C. memorial service Sunday evening.

JOSEPH BELLEFLEUR IS ELECTED COMMANDER OF FLETCHER POST

At the annual meeting of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, held Friday night at the post rooms on Shetucket street, Joseph Bellefleur, who served the past year as adjutant, was elected to the office of commander, succeeding Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, who as retiring commander, presided over the meeting.

There was an attendance of over 50 members at the meeting and humorous items of post interest were brought up for discussion: Among the communications received was one asking the post to appoint a member to serve on a committee with representatives of other posts in this district, for the purpose of organizing a 4-H club. The selection of the member from Fletcher post was left with the commander. It was also voted that the welfare committee, as in past years, take care of providing baskets of fruit for any disabled veterans who may be patients at Uncas-on-Thames. Past Commander John A. Cunningham and Meredith Lee and Clifford C. Oat was named by the commander as a committee to bring in proposed changes in the by-laws of the post.

Past Commander William A. Anderson announced that all plans had been perfected for the first annual legion banquet, to be held at the Norwich Golf club on Thursday evening, January 6th. Comrade Anderson announced that members were already showing much interest in the first post banquet and that besides an appetizing menu, professional talent had been secured for entertainment following the banquet.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Commander, Joseph Bellefleur; vice commanders, William M. Skelly and Patrick J. McMahon; adjutant, Carleton S. Bowers; finance officer, John R. Bowman, Jr.; members of executive committee for three years, Past Commanders Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, John A. Cunningham and Harold T. Robinson; member of executive committee for two years, Warren E. Willey.

Plans were also announced for whists to be held during the winter months and proposals for the showing of motion pictures were referred to the ways and means committee. Commander Dunbar than named Comrades William M. Skelly, Patrick J. McMahon, John R. Bowman, Jr., Lindsey Smith and Earl Taggart as a committee on refreshments and following the meeting sandwiches and coffee were served.

CHIEF ISSUES WARNING ON CHRISTMAS TREES

The usual Christmas warning of Chief Howard L. Stanton, contains a list of don'ts that if followed, will work out the preventing of fires in Norwich over the holidays. The statement of Chief Stanton is as follows:

"Everybody who reads the newspapers remembers the accounts of death and injury and property destruction reported last year on Christmas and the days immediately following. Almost always such fires are due to somebody's carelessness and, according to figures from the national board of fire underwriters, about one in every ten Christmas fires results in loss of life.

"Certainly nobody wants anything like that to happen in Norwich, when it can be so easily prevented; and so I've drawn up this short list of 'do's' and 'don'ts' as precautions. I know they will do the trick if only everybody will do his best to follow them. Here they are:

"If you must have a candle in the window on Christmas Eve, make it an electric one—that is safe.

"If a Christmas tree is used, make sure that it is securely set, up so that it will not topple over, and keep it away from heating and lighting fixtures.

"Use metal tinsels, flake asbestos and powdered mica for snow effects instead of the highly dangerous paper clippings and cotton.

"Do not illuminate the tree with candles. Colored electric light assemblies are more ornamental and, if used with care, are safer. A spotlight focused upon the tree is, however, the safest method of all, and gives a pleasing effect.

"Smokers should exercise great care with their matches and smoking materials while near trees and decorations. Keep matches out of the reach of small children.

"Toys requiring alcohol, gasoline or kerosene should be avoided as should the fancy toy motion-picture machines using inflammable film.

"Cheap electrical playthings should be forbidden, as they are often defectively wired and have insecure dangerous connections. Such electrical apparatus has caused serious burns and fires.

"If it is felt that Santa Claus must be present at the celebration, he should be persuaded to avoid long cotton whiskers, and should keep away from open lights and fires. As an additional precaution, his costume should be made partially fireproof by spraying upon it a solution of water glass, obtainable at any drug store.

"If anyone's clothing does catch fire, the victim should be promptly rolled in a rug or woolen cloth in order to smother the flames, which should be kept away from face.

"In order to prevent the spread of any fires that may start, a bucket or two of water and a fire extinguisher should be kept at hand.

"Merchants should keep their places of business free from rubbish and paper accumulations, and should insist that employes keep clear all exits.

"A most important safeguard is to remove all evergreens immediately after Christmas. Aside from the tradition of bad luck attached to the keeping of evergreens in the house after New Year's day, they represent, as they dry out, an increasingly dangerous hazard."

TRINITY METHODIST BOYS ORGANIZE NEW CLASS

The boys' class of the Trinity Methodist church, met at the home of George Armstrong at 72 Prospect street Wednesday evening to organize a new class to be known as the "O. E. D. class." This class is made up of young men ranging from 15 to 25 years of age.

A consitiution was drawn up and accepted. Officers were also elected. They are as follows: George Armstrong, chancellor; Harold Frink, president; Gilbert Denison, vice president; Alfred Blake, Jr., secretary; George Haddad, treasurer; Paul Genter, keeper of the keys; R. Graham, keeper of the colors.

Other members present at the meeting were Henry Ladd, Fred Doolittle, Raymond Brown, George Greenlaw, Joseph Haddad.

Following the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Armstrong.

ANNUAL CHRISTMAS PARTY AT WEST SIDE MILL

On Thursday evening at 7.30 the employes of the Schwarzenbach Huber Co., gathered in the recreation room of the mill on Mechanic street for their second annual Christmas [illegible]

After brief remarks by Supt. M. L. Bergstresser, a radio was turned on and the following program was received from Station WGSM, slogan, "We Shall Serve Many." Mr. Warp impersonated by Robert Chapman was the announcer assisted by Charles Moore.

Simplicity, orchestra; Let Me Call You Sweetheart, Henry Ladd and Mary Mileski; reading Christmas Carol, Harold Muttart; Barcelona, orchestra; Hello, Aloha, Nightingale quartet, M. Peccini, C. Coughlin, I. Petroni, M. Caulfield; I Don't Mind Being Lonesome, orchestra; Visit of the Three Wise Men, A. Tatrault, P. George, S. Lahanistis; Silent Night, Nightingale Quartet; comedy drama, A. Tatrault, P. George.

At this part of the program the radio station signed off for a few minutes while James W. Jackson presented the following resolution: That we extend to the board of production managers our sincere thanks for the work that has been sent to the Norwich plant for the year 1926 and extend to them and to the company our heartiest greetings for a merry Christmas and a happy and prosperous New Year.

That we extend to M. L. Bergstresser, our very efficient manager; Miss Jennie Miller, our most capable office manager; John Rush, our alert foreman of the weaving department and Wilfred Tortolanelli, the genial foreman of the warping and winding department, our heartiest greetings for a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

That we extend to Lewis Aldrich, chairman and Pantelis George and Harold Muttart, the committee in charge of the arrangements for the Christmas party, our sincere thanks and to Mr. Bergstresser our manager, our great appreciation for making it possible for us to hold this event and provided for us.

That in 1927 we will endeavor to produce better work and a higher production than we ever turned out before.

The above resolutions were unanimously adopted after which Mr. Jackson gave an interesting talk on the Christmas message which was enthusiastically received by the audience. Lewis Aldrich rendered a solo O Little Town of Bethlehem.

About nine thirty Santa Claus arrived breaking up the dancing which was being enjoyed by the young people. He distributed gifts to all present from the tastefully decorated Christmas tree, and many laughs were heard as the gifts were untied and exhibited by each one as they were received. Santa Claus was impersonated by Robert Chapman.

Refreshments consisting of ice cream, fancy cookies and coffee were served by S. Hargreaves, E. Wright, L. DiCarlo, M. Hargreaves, M. Boyle, B. Stanley, L. Aldrich and H. Muttart.

FORMER NORWICH MAN FILES DIVORCE SUIT

(Special to The Bulletin)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 17—George F. Wood Smith, wealthy oil man of St. Louis, who formerly lived in Norwich, is suing for divorce. He charges in his petition filed here today, that Mrs. Gertrude E. Wood Smith left him in December, 1925. Wood Smith, formerly president and manager of the Standard Steel Car company, is now agent for the Quaker City Tank Line, Inc. His petition says that his wife's departure three years ago was "without cause or provocation."

They were married in Norwich in 1903 and have a daughter, June Maxwell Wood Smith, eighteen years old. The petition does not state the whereabouts of Mrs. Wood Smith or her daughter. Wood Smith is the owner of one of the most costly show places on the Meramec river, Hillcrest, the estate, is a four hundred acre tract, built in 1918 for his wife, at the cost of $1,000,000. The place has never been entirely completed. Situated on a bluff, more than 300 feet above the Mississippi river, between it and the Meramec, it can be seen for miles.

RETAIL STORES OPEN NIGHTS NEXT WEEK

The retail merchants of Norwich will open their stores for the Christmas holiday season every evening from Dec. 13 to Friday, Dec. 24. The retail merchants of Norwich believe that one full week before Christmas provides ample opportunity for those who wish to buy Christmas gifts and merchandise. The merchants believe that the clerks employed in their stores as well as the merchants themselves are entitled to fair consideration and that the public would be best served through keeping the stores opened every night during the week preceding Christmas. It has become the custom in all the cities to open the stores every night during the week preceding Christmas and the merchants of Norwich, realizing their obligations to the buying public, realizing too that the clerks employed in their establishments should have their consideration as well, have decided to open the stores each evening until 9 o'clock from Dec. 13 to Dec. 24 on business days.

BACKUS HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

The campaign for membership in the woman's auxiliary of the Backus hospital is progressing steadily. Many women have sent to Mrs. Allyn L. Brown, chairman of the committee, their annual dues of one dollar; and if this can become a general custom among Norwich women, canvassing the city will be greatly lightened. This work will be pushed after the holidays, both in the city and surrounding towns. Mrs. Walter F. Lester, who has charge of getting members in the outlying districts, reports good results wherever the appeal has been made.

The fall has been a busy one for all those interested in the hospital, because of the bazaar of nations; but the work and weariness have given way to the sense of high accomplishment, not only from the splendid sum of money raised, but from the cooperation and feeling of friendliness toward the hospital that came with it. Thanksgiving day was a pleasant one at the hospital; the flower committee decorated the main hall with an immense fern and brightened the wards and corridors with chrysanthemums; the holiday committee placed gay boxes and fancy napkins on the trays. Cranberry sauce was provided by the Ladies' Aid and King's Daughters of the Greeneville Congregational church; while cakes were sent by ladies of the Norwich Town Congregational church, Grace Episcopal church and St. Mary's church.

Now all the committees are thinking of Christmas, and how to make this the happiest one that the hospital has ever known. The new chairman of committees are as follows: Membership, Mrs. Allyn L. Brown; finance, Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins; holiday, Miss Ruby Vaughn; nurses' recreation, Mrs. J. J. Donahue; flowers, Miss Helen Browning; suburban, Mrs. Walter F. Lester; food donation, Mrs. Hope Wade Adams; linen, Mrs. J. E. Driscoll; production, Mrs. F. W. Sayles; literature, Miss Jane Bill; Sunday services, Mrs. John Rogers; visitation, Mrs. Rollin L. Jones.

The regular work goes on among the different departments. The production committee meets every Thursday afternoon at the nurses' residence to make surgical dressings. Anyone who cares to help is very welcome. The committee is also in charge of sewing, and Mrs. Sayles will give out materials and directions to any person or group desiring to sew for the hospital. The Sunday service of music provides much pleasure to the patients, and grateful appreciation goes to all who give so generously and graciously of their time and talent. The linen closet is in need of replenishment, an ever constant need. Mrs. Driscoll will be glad to call for any supplies that can be spared. Miss Bill, too, is glad to see that recent books and magazines are collected and taken to the hospital. It is suggested that subscriptions to good magazines would be useful and appreciated gift from some who like to play Santa Claus. That that gentleman has his eye on the hospital is evident from many things. Among the generous gifts that have come is a check for $25, given the auxiliary for "Hospital Christmas." Anyone caring to help furnish the new maternity wing, to be opened in the near future, can find out from Miss Abbott, the superintendent, many ways to make a Christmas present of great value.

At the training school the holidays are but the forerunner of graduation for on Wednesday evening, Jan. 5, the 12 nurses are to be graduated. In the past, it has been the custom of the hospital to send out individual invitations; but this year, the invitation is to be general, and the auxiliary takes this opportunity to extend a cordial invitation to the public to attend graduation. Another item that the superintendent of nurses wishes to stress is the need of rooms to house graduate nurses who are doing 12-hour duty and whose homes are out of town. With the incoming of a large class in February, or later, there are not adequate facilities at the residence. The office of the school of nursing will be glad to receive the names of those living in the vicinity of the hospital who can rent rooms to graduate nurses, and will give out information that may be desired.

Those who have given to the hospital during the past weeks are: Mrs. W. W. Goodnow, Mrs. Flint Brayton, Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Edmund Perkins, Mrs. Joseph Gorman, Mr. Philip Johnson, F. L. Woodard, Mr. W. Gallup, U. S. Finishing Co., the Misses Blackman, Miss Perkins, Mrs. Victor Tongren, Mrs. J. J. Donahue, Tyler Rogers, Mrs. Eastwood, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Mrs. R. S. Gernon, Mrs. Irene Holmes, Mrs. Robert Silley, Mrs. Robert Perkins, Mrs. Hastings, Mrs. Potter, J. M. Young, Jr., Mrs. Charles B. Lee, Mrs. Ina Uffert, Mrs. H. F. Dawley, Mrs. Ingalls, the Misses Williams, Mrs. P. F. Gadle, Mrs. R. F. Smith, Mrs. A. E. Gilmore, Puritan Pantry, Bazaar of Nations, Woman's auxiliary of Backus hospital, Mrs. Charles Saxton, Mrs. Harry Sherman, Mrs. Charles Colt, Mrs. Clark, Mrs. O. F. Ernst, Mrs. Herman Bruckner, Miss Alif Stevens, H. F. Dawley, Mrs. Abelman, Miss Carrie Farnham, Paul Church, Mrs. Crawford, Mrs. Payson, Mrs. Blackmar, Needlework guild, Park church, Greeneville section of woman's auxiliary, Mrs. George Upton, Mrs. James Shiver, Mrs. Herbert Peckham, Mrs. S. H. Howe, Mrs. John B. Oat, Mrs. B. F. Gardner of Jewett City and Mrs. Edward Jodoin of Jewett City.

Ice cream has also been given by Connecticut Council of Catholic Women and the hospital committee of St. Patrick's church.

HELD WHIST PARTY AT BUCKINGHAM MEMORIAL

The department aides of Sedgwick Woman's Relief corps, Mrs. Ines N. Hill and Mrs. Althea M. Brown, held a whist party at the Buckingham Memorial Friday afternoon. About $16 was realized for the treasury of the corps. The prizes were won as follows: First, Mrs. Henry Clements; second, Mrs. Ida F. Perkins; consolation, Mrs. Louise Manchester. The prizes were donated by Mrs. Ines N. Hill, Mrs. Althea M. Brown and Mrs. Frances Copeland.

NO TIME EXTENSION FOR 1926 MARKERS

Pennsylvania is the only state thus far to request through its registry of motor vehicle recognition of 1927 motor vehicle markers in Connecticut previous to Jan. 1. In that state the 1927 markers may be legally used on and after Dec. 15, 1926, and other states have been asked to recognize them on and after that date. Usually the Connecticut department receives similar requests from several states toward the end of December, each year.

Commissioner Stoeckel has notified police departments throughout the state and "anticipating that the several police forces will be agreeable to the request and govern themselves accordingly," has further promulgated the information.

Connecticut markers for 1927 will not be recognized until two weeks from today, the last week day of the year, although the new maroon and white plates are already in the hands of about 50,000 registrants. The 1926 markers, however, will remain in effect until midnight of that day, Dec. 31, and so Connecticut markers for both 1926 and 1927 will be recognized on the closing day of the year. It is under an amendment to the state motor vehicle law adopted in the 1925 session of the legislature that markers for a new year are permitted to be displayed a day before the expiration of the old year.

There will be no extension of the time during which 1926 markers will be recognized in Connecticut, so far as the motor vehicle department is concerned. Some years ago, when the registration facilities were more limited, old year markers were allowed during the early part of January, to accommodate registrants who might have been unable, because of congestion in the registration offices, to get their new markers on time. Now, that 1927 registrations have been available since Oct. 1, not only at the main office in the capitol but also at five branch offices in different parts of the state, it is felt that all registrants have had ample opportunity to re-register their cars, and the time limit for 1926 markers will stand at midnight, Dec. 31.

HOLIDAY TRADE PROMISES TO ESTABLISH HIGH RECORD

Cold Weather Has Created a Large Demand For Winter Clothing and Supplies—Automobiles Manufacturers Are Confident That Next Spring Will Set a Record Business—Railroad Traffic Has Been Maintained at a Higher Rate Than Expected Because of the Large Movement of Fuel and Merchandise.

NEW YORK, Dec.19.—(By The A. P.)—An impressive array of holiday dividends, celebrating the nation's unparalleled prosperity of the past few years, unquestionably has contributed to the more cheerful financial outlook marking the close of 1926. The United States Steel corporation's proposed 40 per cent. stock distribution, aggregating more than $280,000,000 alone was sufficient to create a widespread feeling of optimism since it implied that one of the most conservative of the great corporations was fairly confident of continued good business.

Under cover of these favorable developments, certain irregularities in the trend of trade and industry probably have been obscured, but most of these have been in the nature of seasonal recessions in the basic manufacturing activities.

At the close of the week a gigantic bull movement was under way in the stock market, prompted apparently by the belief that the steel dividend is an expression of confidence in the 1927 outlook on the part of the country's foremost financial and business leaders. Several other large corporations are expected to pass on to their stockholders early next year a portion of their undistributed surpluses.

Mounting steadily in volume, holiday trade promises to establish a new high record this year. The usual purchases of Christmas merchandise have been augmented by a large demand for winter clothing and supplies due to cold weather in most sections of the country.

Railroad traffic has been maintained at a higher rate than expected because of the large movement of fuel and merchandise. In the first week of December, 251,626 cars were loaded with coal, the largest number ever handled in a single week. Car loadings, up to that time, exceeded 50,000,000, a new high record.

Closing the greatest year in its history, the automobile industry has refused to take alarm over the recent decline in sales and output. On the basis of present inquiries several companies are confident that next spring will set a record business.

HENRY FORD INVITED TO APPEAR BEFORE COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—(AP)—The house rules committee has been asked to invite Henry Ford to appear before it to outline the facts he had in mind when he charged that the Federal Reserve system was controlled by international Jews.

The request came from Representative Bloom democrat, New York, in a letter, made public tonight, to Chairman Snell of the rules committee. Bloom already has introduced a resolution calling for investigation of Ford's charges.

"The congress has nothing to do with any charges that Mr. Ford may bring against the Jews in general," Bloom's letter said, "but the congress has everything to do with charges made in connection with the administration of the United States government.

"He makes the definite charge that the United States Federal Reserve system is internationally controlled or dominated. So grave a charge from such a source is not to be lightly tossed aside.

"Thus far his charge is only a charge, but Mr. Ford says he has proofs to substantiate it. If he can substantiate his charge, he is entitled to the opportunity. The people are equally entitled to demand it of him."

STEAMER WAS AFIRE 150 MILES OFF NANTUCKET

BOSTON, Dec. 19—(AP)—Fire which broke out last night aboard the shipping board steamer West Celina 150 miles south of Nantucket Shoals Light had been brought under control early today, according to a wireless message from Captain Stevens to Robert E. Peabody local agent of the line.

The message gave no details, merely stating that the flames were under control when the steamer was 80 miles south of Nantucket, but that she was proceeding to Boston with the expectation of docking about noon tomorrow. The flames it was indicated, were confined to the No. 2 cargo hold in which they originated and all danger seemed to have been averted.

Agent Peabody said that no plans for meeting the West Celina here would be made until the time of her arrival was more definitely fixed. He added that the West Celina was one of the shipping board's 6,800 tonnage plying a regular route between Norfolk and Hamburg and Bremen. She carries a crew of about 40 men.

Her cargo consists of grain and cotton, the agent said, and she carries no passengers.

HARTFORD FLYERS HAVE ARRIVED AT NASHVILLE

HARTFORD, Dec. 19—(AP)—Lieutenant Earl W. Fleet and Corporal Charles Arnold, of the 118th Observation squadron, who are making a cross-country flight visiting other National Guard aviation units arrived in Nashville, Tenn., from Birmingham, Ala., Saturday, according to word received today by Major William F. Ladd. They reached Birmingham Friday, flying from Little Rock. Stops on that flight at both Memphis and Nashville, Major Ladd learned today were made in an effort to get a spreader bar to replace one on Fleet's plane which had been broken. Lieutenant Fleet had planned to omit the visit to Birmingham, but found it necessary to go there in order to replace the broken bar. Major Ladd telegraphed him today suggesting that he reduce his stop at Pittsburgh to a short visit in order to return to Hartford by Christmas. The flyers are scheduled to visit the Maryland National Guard flyers at Baltimore and the New York unit at Miller field, Staten Island, in addition to the stop at Pittsburgh before their return.

COMMUNISTS IN PARIS INSULT CHINESE BISHOPS

PARIS, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Communists waited outside a Catholic church today to carry out demonstrations against visiting Chinese bishops who were officiating at the church services. French fascists appeared on the scene and challenged the communists, and a small riot ensued. Fists and canes were the principal weapons and caused many minor injuries, but both sides fled when police hurriedly arrived just as the services ended.

A BROKER'S WIFE FOUND DEAD IN APARTMENT

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Mrs. R. H. Ingersoll, wife of an investment broker, was found dead in her apartment at 55 Park avenue today. Wallace Prudence is in the Bellevue hospital suffering from three gunshot wounds. Police say Mrs. Ingersoll shot Prudence and then turned the gun on herself.

RUNAWAY TRUCK CRASHED INTO ONE-MAN TROLLEY CAR

DARIEN, Dec. 19.—(AP)—A runaway truck with a broken steering gear, which crashed into a one-man trolley car on the Boston Post road, in Noroton, this morning resulted in injuries to Edward Weinheimer, 5077 Bathgate avenue, Bronx, N. Y., the truck driver, and John Caroska, East street, Hadley, Mass., a young man whom he had picked up on the road. Three occupants of the trolley car escaped without injury.

Frank H. Raymond, motorman, was driving east on the Post road from Stamford to Norwalk, when he saw a truck, its driver tugging desperately at the wheel, coming toward him at a good rate of speed. He put on his brakes and ran to the rear of the car, thus avoiding injury. The truck crashed into the front of the car, telescoping the end before coming to a stop.

Weinheimer, the driver, was pinned in the wreckage and was extricated with difficulty after about an hour's work. He was taken to the Stamford hospital with his companion. An examination revealed a badly crushed right leg and minor injuries. Caroska suffered minor injuries.

TO CLAIM McDERMOTT WAS NOT NEAR SCENE OF MURDER

CANTON, Ohio, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Having laid before the jury its contention that Patrick Eugene McDermott and Ben Rudner were not in conspiracy against Don R. Mellett, slain Canton publisher, Attorneys defending McDermott in his trial for first degree murder tomorrow will seek to prove that the defendant was not at the murder scene July 16, the night Mellett was shot and killed at his garage door.

Mrs. Sarah Rudner, wife of Ben Rudner, one of the trio indicted for the slaying, yesterday maintained she could account for her husband's movements on July 3, 9 and 26, three dates incidental to the murder.

Her story was told in an effort to discount testimony of state witnesses that McDermott and Rudner conferred frequently on July 8 and 9, and that on July 26, McDermott visited Massillon, Ohio, and was "paid off" by Rudner.

NICARAGUA HAS REFUSED AN OFFER TO MEDIATE

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Official announcement was made today that Nicaragua had refused Guatemala's offer to mediate the difficulties between the opposing factions in Nicaragua. It was stated that the government of President Diaz had been recognized by all important contries.

The government also announced that its forces had defeated a band of rebels at Quilali after a fierce fight. The rebel losses are given as seven killed and 14 wounded and the government's as one killed and seven wounded.

Airplanes are said to have routed a large group of rebels near the Pacific, evidently awaiting a filibustering steamer with arms. The government has started 400 troops for the scene.

SEEKING AN AGREEMENT ON MEXICAN OIL LAWS

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 19—(AP)—Representatives of the various foreign oil companies will begin tomorrow in formal discussions with the secretary of industry, commerce and labor, Luis Morones, at his invitation, seeking an agreement over details regarding the enforcement of the petroleum and land laws, which are under his department.

The regulations governing future concessions will go into effect on Jan. 1 next, and while some of the companies have acted in conformity with the Mexican government's requirements, there are other companies which have not yet applied for concessions.

The hope is expressed by the department that a mutually satisfactory understanding will be reached.

THE RIGHT OF MARRIED WOMAN TO USE MAIDEN NAME

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—(AP)—The national woman's party is going to the bat again over the right of a married woman to use her maiden name in her travels and in business.

Having claimed victory in obtaining a state department ruling permitting married women to use their pre-nuptial names on passports, the party is now up in arms over a ruling by the office of the register of copyrights of the library of congress, which it holds denies them a similar usage in obtaining copyrights.

The matter will be brought to a head tomorrow when a hearing will be given by Thorvald Solbert, register of copyrights.

MOSCOW, Dec. 19—(AP)—The overthrow of the Lithuanian government has caused an unfavorable impression in political circles here. The reason for this is that the overthrown government has pursued a policy of rapprochment with the soviet union by concluding a non-aggression pact and was preparing to conclude a treaty of commerce.

JAPAN IN GLOOM AWAITING DEATH OF THE EMPEROR

TOKYO, Dec. 19.—(AP)—The critical illness of the Japanese emperor, who lies near death at the Imperial villa at Hayama, has cast a pall of gloom and business depression over Japan.

Numerous festivals and be-flagged streets, the usual holiday dress of the nation at this season, have been forgotten because of the gravest apprehensions regarding the emperor's condition. Scheduled celebrations and festivals have been indefinitely postponed. Theatres generally are dark or playing to vacant seats while the aisles of department stores are empty, the usual holiday shopping having been postponed.

A succession of extra editions of the newspapers, containing bulletins from the sick room, find anxious buyers, and the strident calls of newsboys break the somewhat ominous silence in the streets, which are practically deserted.

The public is awaiting an important announcement from the sick room momentarily.

FRENCH HAVE AGREED ON BUDGET FOR NEXT YEAR

PARIS, Dec. 19.—(AP)—For the first time since the great war the French government has succeeded in presenting before parliament a balanced budget and having it accepted. The lower house and chamber of deputies in the early hour this morning reached an agreement on the budget for 1927. This provides for receipts amounting to 39,723,310,782 francs, and expenditures of 39,541,443,921 francs.

The vote in the chamber was 405 to 140, and in the senate 268 to 8. Parliament adjourned until after the new year.

Premier Poincare gave his special attention to pushing the budget through. Discussion in the chamber last 27 days, and the budget was adopted by that body Dec. 9. The senate adopted the budget on Friday last after a week's discussion. Minor changes were made by the upper house, which necessitated a further vote by the chamber and finally joint approval.

Since the foundation of the republic this is the eighth time the budget has been voted before the end of the year.

KENNETH G. ORMISTON TO BE ARRAIGNED DEC. 27

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Kenneth G. Ormiston, co-defendant in the Aimee Semple McPherson case, and at liberty under $2,500 bail, pending his arraignment Dec. 27 on accessorial conspiracy indictment, intends to leave this week for San Francisco to spend the Christmas holidays, with his parents.

That Ormiston will demand a separate trial from that of Mrs. McPherson, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, and Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman Sielaff, jointly charged with conspiracy to defeat justice and suborn perjury, was indicted yesterday in statements he made at the district attorney's office. Mrs. Sielaff has announced she would plead guilty to the charges.

WEATHER MAY DELAY START OF PAN-AMERICAN FLIGHT

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Gofly weather conditions may force postponement of the start of the Pan-American flight of five planes scheduled for tomorrow.

A heavy fog settled down over Duncan field, scene of the hop-off today, and Captain Ira Eaker, publicity officer of the flight, said this would delay the start if it continued tomorrow. If the fog lifts only a little the ships can get away, Captain Eaker said, but he was certain that the start would not be attempted in mist as heavy as that prevailing today.

The weather forecast for tomorrow is "cloudy and rain."

LISBON EXPERIENGED SEVERAL EARTHQUAKES

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Lisbon has experienced a severe earthquake. The first shock on Saturday lasted ten seconds. It was accompanied by subterranean noises; the waters of the Tagus river rose considerably and soon the surface was covered with thousands of fish.

Cafes, theatres and business houses were hurriedly vacated; the facade of the Central Railway station was cracked from top to base. Trains were delayed several hours while a thorough examination was made of the tunnels.

Another shock occurred at 6 o'clock this morning, many buildings being badly shaken.

Gamble, Petersburg, Va., 313.3; WMBC, Mailbrook company, Woodside, N. Y., 292.9; WMHA, Young Men's Hebrew association, New York city, 230.

Two radio stations suspended operations last week, WABW, at Haverford, Pa., and WHBG, at Harrisburg.

Confessed Beating Boy to Death

The Fiend is Harold K. Croarkin, Son of Wealthy Flour Dealer in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19—(AP)—Harold J. Croarkin, 24 years old, son of a wealthy flour dealer, surrendered to the police tonight and immediately confessed that he had killed Walter Schmith, six years old, who was beaten to death after being luring into the barns of a North Side riding academy Friday night.

Croarkin, who had been sought since yesterday when the police determined that he had been with the Schmith lad, went to the police station with his uncle, Francis X. Croarkin, a former member of the board of education, announced his identity and readily confessed the slaying. Croarkin had been at his uncle's home since the slaying and it was through the uncle that plans were made for his surrender.

Croarkin, the police said, admitted without hesitation that he had lured the boy into the barn and had killed him, but pleaded that he was intoxicated at the time and did not know what he was doing.

Croarkin told of the slaying without any apparent emotion, interspersing his story of clubbing the child to death with comments on the weather. He denied vehemently, that he had lured the boy into the barn for the purpose of mistreating him, and added "I can't explain why I killed him."

He said in his confession that he had been at the barn Friday evening with the Schmith boy and another child and that he sent the Semith boy on an errand.

"When the Schmith boy returned I was alone," Croarkin said. "I was vexed with him and scolded him. Then I left him. I guess I hit him with a piece of iron."

He was asked whether he struck the blows with a blood stained hammer which was found in the barn today.

"Was it a hammer?" he asked dully. "It may have been. I don't know. I grabbed it up from the stable floor. I hit him twice on the back of the head. I don't know why. I had been drinking and was still drunk."

After clubbing the boy, Croarkin said he got on an elevated train and rode for a while, then decided to find a priest and confess what he had done. First, however, he went to the home of a girl friend, Miss Agnes Furlong, but was unable to persuade her to accompany him to a priest's home.

He said he then went to St. Vincent's Catholic church where he told two priests what he had done and they accompanied him to the barn where the Schmith boy lay dying.

FASCIST LEADER FOUND IN SEMI-CONSCIOUS STATE

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Salvatore Russo, 34, a leader of the fascisti movement here, was found early this morning in a semi-conscious condition in a taxicab outside the headquarters of the Fascisti League of North America, 145 West Forty Fifth street. He had disappeared mysteriously Friday night. He was brought to the fascisti headquarters by a taxicab driver who had been told where to take Russo by an unidentified man who had disappeared.

Russo told police that he was seized by four men as he left the home of a friend at 3 o'clock Friday morning. They overpowered him and forced him into an automobile, he said. After that he stated he did not know what happened to him.

ANOTHER VICTIM OF CHICAGO BOOTLEG WAR

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Shot three times through the heart and believed to have been a victim of Chicago's bootlegger war, the body of a man thought to be John Wolwark was found in an alley here today.

The police went to an address found in the man's pockets and found a quantity of liquor, arrested several people in the flat and were told by them that Wolwark was "boss" of the place.

Police believe he was murdered by competitors, jealous of Wolwark's trade, and that the killing occurred some distance from where the body was found.

BRIDE AND GROOM RUN DOWN BY SPEEDING AUTOIST

CLERMONT-FERRAND, France, Dec. 19.—(AP)—A bride and groom and 16 members of the bridal party were run down by a speeding automobilist last night as they were marching to the marriage supper after the ceremony.

The celebrants were walking two abreast, and the driver—blinded, he declared, by approaching headlights—crashed from behind into the column, scattering the men and women in all directions. The car was actually stopped by the mass of bodies, but only four were dangerously injured.

18 Persons Injured By Powder Explosion

Blast Came When Train Was Derailed While Passing Through Patterson, N. Y.

WEST PATTERSON, N. Y., Dec. 19—(AP)—Explosion of 300 kegs of black powder in a car of a derailed freight train on the Central New England here shortly after noon today, injured at least 18 persons, demolished two houses and damaged several and hurled parts of freight cars and contents as far away as a quarter of a mile.

Four of the injured were trainmen, three of whom were working desperately to prevent fire which broke out immediately after the derailment from reaching the car containing the powder when the explosion occurred. The other injured were residents of West Patterson.

The shock of the explosion which came an hour after at least half of the 40 cars in the train had piled up across the double tracks, was distinctly felt at Danbury, Conn., 15 miles away. There was some trace of it in Bridgeport, Conn., southeast of the wreck, and at Poughkeepsie, on the Hudson, according to reports which reached the Danbury offices of the Central New England.

The train was a New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad train bound from Maybrook to Boston, being routed over the Central New England. Twelve cars in the middle of the train were derailed at 12:10 p. m., in such a way that a total of 25 cars were placed so that it was impossible to push them out of danger after the first broke out. The derailment was believed to have been the result of a broken axle.

The fire started apparently in the 22nd head car which contained linseed oil. Two local fire departments were called, but were unable to do anything because of the absence of water. Eleven cars at the head of the train were pulled out of danger and an engine, hastily summoned from Hopewell, N. Y., saved 13 cars at the rear. Efforts were still being made by trainmen and volunteers from the vicinity to get out the remaining cars when the flames reached the powder. The workers who had been on the lookout for the explosion were either well away from the wreck or running to safety when it occurred.

Some of them were knocked down suffering lacerations and shock. Houses nearby were rocked. Two, the home of Ward Rogers, 500 feet away, and that of James T. Towner, farther away, were demolished. A stove in the Rogers' house was hurled through a window, the fire in it still burning some time after it landed upright in the yard. The house of Mrs. Emily Peck, 1,000 feet away suffered badly. Barns of the Rogers and Peck places were rent asunder.

The Towners Baptist church, about 1,500 feet away, was damaged, stained glass windows being broken and the interior wrecked. Many other farm houses in the vicinity had windows broken.

The fields and highways within a radius of a quarter of a mile were showered with debris. Trees in paths of woods on a hillside less than 200 feet away, had the bark peeled off and the trunks left blackened.

Part of an all-steel car, weighing about 500 pounds, was hurled 1,500 feet. Pieces of paper bars which had held the powder were thrown in every direction.

At the time of the explosion Shields, the conductor had gone into a farm house to report by telephone to Danbury the progress being made in fighting the fire. The top floor collapsed on top of him caused cuts about the head and shock.

SISTERS OF CHARITY FORMED FIRE BRIGADE

ARLINGTON, N. J., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Eleven Sisters of Charity formed a fire brigade today when a blaze was discovered in a three story frame building of St. Anthony's orphan asylum, fought back the flames and led to safety the 42 children housed in the building. Firemen from Kearney were unable to save the building but kept the fire from spreading to other parts of the institution. The damage is estimated at $50,000.

The Elks lodge at Kearney and residents in Arlington gave the children shelter for tonight.

BOY INJURED WHILE COASTING IN STAMFORD

STAMFORD, Dec. 19.—(AP)—While coasting down Hill street this afternoon, Michael Mishley, 15, collided with an automobile driven by Joseph J. Minyo, of South Norwalk, who was driving slowly up the hill. The boy was taken to the Stamford hospital by Minyo, where observation revealed a fractured pelvis, bruises and possible internal injuries. Hospital authorities pronounced his condition as "not good."

A COMPOSITE PROHIBITION MODIFICATION BILL READY

Will Be Presented in the House Today by Wet Leader Representative Hill, Republican—Measure Will Be Considered After Congress Convenes Following New Year's Recess—Wayne B. Wheeler Comments on Blocking of $500,000 Under-Cover Appropriation.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—(AP)—House wets made their first move tonight toward introduction of a composite prohibition modification measure, while from Wayne B. Wheeler, counsel for the anti-Saloon league, came a broadside against members of congress who successfully eliminated $500,000 from the treasury appropriation bill as expenses for under-cover prohibition agents.

Representative Hill, republican, Maryland, wet leader, completed drafting a bill for introduction tomorrow which would amend the prohibition act to permit the manufacture and sale of beverages which are "not in fact intoxicating as determined in accordance with the laws of the respective states."

In a statement accompanying his bill, Representative Hill said similar measures were being drafted by other members of the unofficial house committee on modification of the Volstead act.

"All such bills," he said, "will be considered after congress reconvenes after New Years, by the modification committee, and one bill will then be recommended to the house for passage."

Hill would place his amendment directly after the provision which exempts from penalties "individuals manufacturing non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices.

"Cider of 2.75 per cent," he said, "can be legally made in the home of the farmer, because it is legally non-intoxicating. If it is legally not intoxicating, there is no reason why in those states which desire it, such beverages including malt beverages, may not be commercially sold under such restrictions as such states may make."

Wheeler described the blocking of the $500,000 under-cover appropriation as an attempt to "starve the prohibition cat so it cannot catch the liquor mice." His statement included a denial that such appropriations would authorize funds for the Anti-Saloon league. He said the league seeks no government money.

The wets, he claimed, "seek to cripple the government agents by making them personally finance the capture of big prohibition offenders and rum runners—since it often takes hundreds of thousands of dollars to catch these master liquor criminals, few, if any, agents would advance these sums out of their own pockets."

A nationwide campaign for law observance and enforcement will be made, said a call issued tonight for the annual meeting here Jan. 6 of the citizens committee of one thousand for law observance.

Fred B. Smith, who issued the call, said "intolerable conditions exist," and "anarchy will result unless all Americans realize that the laws we like and laws we don't like must be observed."

FEAR MRS HOUCK HAS MET WITH FOUL PLAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—(AP)—Blood stains found on a kimona led police to believe tonight that foul play was involved in the mystery surrounding the disappearance from her home here last Wednesday of Mrs. Knutte H. Houck, wife of a St. Elizabeths hospital physician found in an irrational condition in Hornell, N. Y., Friday.

Mrs. Houck, police say, was last seen Tuesday night by Dr. J. Cunningham, of the St. Elizabeth hospital staff, who was visiting his fellow physician, Dr. Houck disappeared about 4 p. m. last Wednesday.

Three year old Hugh Houck, the only child of the couple, was abandoned in the home and when the absence of his parents became prolonged, Mrs. H. K. Houck of La Crosse, Wis., mother of the doctor, was notified.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 19—(AP)—Herbert Randolph Galt, editor of the St. Paul Pioneer Press and Dispatch for 13 years, died today in a local hospital from heart disease. He was 45 years old.

Both in Upperville, Va., April 27, 1881, Mr. Galt started newspaper work in Baltimore in 1900 with the Baltimore American as a reporter. two years later he went to the Baltimore News. In 1909, he came to St. Paul.

For four years he was city editor and then in 1913 became managing editor of the Dispatch and Pioneer Press.

He was one of the first members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors and has been prominent in the work of that organization.

Mr. Galt was married in 1908 to Miss Elsie Robinson Andrews of Albany, N. Y., and she and their two children, John Randolph and Elizabeth Andrews survive.

SIX MEN BELIEVED TO HAVE PERISHED AT SEA

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 19.—(AP)—No trace had been found tonight of the six men believed to have perished when the coast guard schooner Lincoln, supply ship based on Cape May, N. J., burned and sank early yesterday off the North Carolina coast.

Gordon J. Schultz of Chicago, and Howard Carter of Ann Arundel county, Maryland, only survivors of the disaster, were picked up by the British steamer Defender, expected at Galveston, Texas, Dec. 24.

Two coast guard cutters and three patrol boats which have been searching the vicinity of the disaster, reported today having sighted bits of wreckage, but no evidence of the missing members of the crew.

An empty lifeboat also was sighted by the steamer Nantucket last night about three miles from where the boat went down. Whether any of the 42 put off in this boat was not established, although first reports had indicated the men probably had no time to launch the lifeboats because of the swiftness of the Lincoln's destruction.

The Lincoln was a converted rum runner which was confiscated by the government.

FIRE PROVED FATAL TO A BOY IN MIDDLETOWN

MIDDLETOWN, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Taken from the third floor of a burning building early today after being overcome by smoke, Joseph Tino, 6, died later in the Middlesex hospital. His sister, Sebastiana, 9, and a brother, Paul, 6, rescued at the same time, were revived after being taken to the hospital and tonight were said to be in "fair condition."

The fire started in a pool room on the ground floor of the building at 54-56 Summer street. It was discovered by a policeman who turned in the alarm. Another officer, Theodore Mowalski, who helped rescue three other Tino children who were sleeping in separate rooms on the top floor, was overcome by smoke, but was revived at the hospital.

Alfonso Pisa, a barber who operated a shop on the ground floor of the building, and his wife and three children who lived on the second floor, were awakened by smoke. They got out in safety.

The damage to the building was estimated by the owner, Henry Battilla at $10,000.

BOMB FOUND IN HALL OF JUSTICE, SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 19.—(AP)—A bomb consisting of a hollow steel cylinder, filled with nitro glycerine, 200 revolver cartridges and bolts, found in a suitcase in the hall of justice last night, was opened by police today.

In the center of the tube was a pet-cock through which acid dripped slowly to the explosive inside from a small bottle, the mouth of which was stopped with a cloth. At the rate at which the acid was dripping, the infernal machine would have exploded this morning almost at the same hour that a blast rocked the hall of justice a year ago, when a bomb left in the corridor exploded. No one was injured.

Police officials believe the person who deposited the bomb last night is the same one who dropped the bomb in the corridor a year ago, with the idea that it would explode as department heads were entering the building on Sunday morning.

NINE FIREMEN INJURED AT FIRE IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—(AP)—Nine firemen were injured, four seriously, in a $200,000 fire here early today which destroyed a three story music store and damaged several other business houses in the downtown district.

Six firemen were knocked down by a gas explosion, another fell four floors to the pit of a blazing elevator shaft, while two others were injured by flying glass and burns. William White, who fell down the elevator shaft, was saved by his brother, also a fireman, who leaped from the fourth floor landing and slid down the elevator cable.

A. M. E. ZION PASTOR LEAVES CHURCH TO BECOME BAPTIST

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 19—There was no pastor to lead the progressive congregation of some thirty-five members of the A. M. E. Zion church in prayer Sunday. The church and the parsonage, Rev. Alfred E. Hendricks parted company during the week after the Rev. Mr. Hendricks admitted that his unexpected absence from the church on the previous Sunday was due to the fact that he was in Norwich where he was baptized in the Baptist church. A week ago the parishioners gathered for their regular morning service. The minister failed to put in an appearance and after waiting for some time the day was changed with a simple prayer. Later during the day Mrs. O. E. J. Sentley, secretary of the board of trustees of the church, received word that Rev. Mr. Hendricks had been stopping at the Calvary Baptist Mission in Norwich where he was baptized. The church members felt justified in being vexed at this conduct and when Mr. Hendricks returned to this city he was summoned behind closed doors to go over the matter with the board of trustees. According to Stokes-Watson, chairman of the board, the pastor admitted having been baptized in the Baptist church. He did not make a definite statement, however, that he had renounced the Methodist for the Baptist denomination. Mr. Hendricks said that he had no fault to find with his salary, but that he had been critized by Presiding Elder Auten of Cambridge, Mass., and that in anticipation of coming events he had already sent in his resignation to that official. Without further ado the board of trustees voted to accept the resignation and added a request that Mr. Hendricks leave the premises as soon as possible. The church owed Mr. Hendricks $4.70 on his salary and this was made up even $5.00 which was handed him with parting compliments.

Rev. Mr. Hendricks was appointed pastor by the local mission last spring at the New England conference, succeeding to Rev. David R. Overton, who was transferred to Torington. The mission is a progressive one, though small in numbers. A building, housing the church and the pastor's family was purchased on Spring street some years ago and a little over a year ago, while Rev. Mr. Overton was pastor, a celebration took place when the mortgage note was burned.

Edson Spocking of Hampton took an appeal to the superior court from a fine of $5 and costs imposed in the Chaplin town court Saturday afternoon on a charge of cruelty to an animal. Another charge of killing a deer was nolled by Justice of the Peace Samuel B. Harvey. Some ten days ago Spocking, caretaker of an estate, came upon a deer which had been wounded and was being pursued by David Garrison and Porter Knapp. Spocking borrowed a gun from Knapp and struck the deer over the head, killing it and incidentally breaking the gun. Spocking reported the incident to the authorities, stating that he had killed the animal to relieve it of its suffering. Garrison and Knapp were both fined for shooting and pursuing the animal. Then the case took another turn and with Garrison and Knapp as state witnesses Spocking was himself brought before the court. Included among witnesses for the defense were Game Wardens Fred Ash of Pomfret and John Alhouse of Hartford. Grand Juror Frank W. Landon was prosecutor in the case.

Mrs. John Killourey and her young daughter, Miss Winifred Matthews, sustained slight injuries and a Dodge car which the former was driving was damaged when the machine got out of control and struck a pole on the brief but dangerous one-way stretch where digging for city sewers is underway on West Main street, near the foot of Mansfield avenue, about 7 o'clock Saturday night. The little girl suffered cuts when thrown against the windshield and Mrs. Killourey was thrown against the steering wheel. The short stretch of one-way traffic was icy and deeply rutted and the accident was considered unavoidable.

A one-story garage of brick construction is to be erected on land of Oliver L. Willard on Valley street to house the new agency for the Ford Motor company in this city, it was announced Saturday. Work on the new garage will start this Monday and an effort will be made to have it ready for occupancy by March. The garage will have a frontage of 100 feet and a depth of 50 feet, with a roof clearance of 12 feet. The building of the new garage comes following the resignation of the Elmer Auto company as agency for the Ford.

The contract for the remodeling of the Bank street engine house so that accommodation can be provided for new pieces of apparatus which will be received in March, has been awarded by the fire department committee of the common council to Oliver L. Willard. According to Chairman Walter R. King the entire front of the building will be altered to allow the installation of immense doors which will allow two pieces of apparatus to run out at the same time. The work is to be started this Monday.

From four to six degrees below zero was the average thermometer reading in this city Saturday morning, one of the coldest thus far in the winter. During most of the day the mercury remained at about 20 degrees. The sudden sharp cold caused some of the wires of the Southern New England Telephone company to snap from the poles at South Willington. Speedy repairs were made, however, and service was not badly affected.

Engine company No. 1 answered to four still alarms Saturday in the following order: 7:10 a. m., short circuit in passenger bus at the New England Transportation company, damage of five dollars; 9:11 a. m., chimney fire in residence at 371 Ash street owned by Alice Bughee and occupied by E. Platt, 41 gallons of chemicals used, no damage; 9:40 a. m., 238 High street, chimney fire in residence owned by H. Bonin and occupied by Walter Griggs, three gallons of chemicals; 1:45 p. m., chimney fire in three-tenement house owned by Dominick Menditte at 406 Valley street, six gallons of chemicals.

Mrs. John Healy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Bishop of 74 Church street sustained a broken leg in an automobile accident on the Lincoln highway at New Brunswick, N. J., one week ago Sunday. Two persons were killed and two others badly injured in the accident. Mrs. Healy, who is widely known here, is a patient in a hospital. She was formerly Dorothy May Bishop and was married in this city three years ago.

A Christmas party was given Friday evening by the girls at the State Normal school residence hall with members of the senior class residing outside the dormitory as guests.

Miss Pauline Bill of this city and Mrs. M. L. Fairfax of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., have cablegrammed their safe arrival in the West Indies where they plan to remain until spring.

All stores in the city will remain open until nine o'clock evenings, starting Tuesday night to Friday inclusive, for the accommodation of late shoppers, it was announced Saturday by the Business Men's association.

Miss Catherine Shanley of West Park street is making good recovery at St. Joseph's hospital where she underwent an operation two weeks ago.

Miss Lema Fullerton, student at Mt. Holyoke college, has arrived at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Fullerton for the holidays.

Edwin Hall, student at the University of Pennsylvania arrived Saturday to spend the holiday recess with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Louis Hall.

G. Raymond Young of Norwich spent the week end in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Newton of Stafford Springs were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Jordan.

Russell Noyes, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Noyes is at his home here from the Wharton school of finance and commerce at the University of Pennsylvania, for the Christmas holidays.

Russell Hipman, student at Worcester Tech is with his parents, Justice and Mrs. George E. Hinman for the holiday vacation.

Miss Doris Noyes, dietitian at Mt. Sinai hospital in Hartford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Noyes of this city, spent the week end in Boston.

Miss Margaret L. Persons of Skidmore college, Saratoga, N. Y., is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ashton C. Persons for the holidays.

Continuances until a week from this Monday were granted in the deer killing cases of former Representative Oscar A. Baker, of Warrenville and Albert F. Beck of this city which were taken up before justice of the Peace Barlow in the Ashford town court Saturday afternoon. All of the state testimony was heard including evidence that the accused with a third man who escaped were found putting the quartered portions of a freshly killed deer into their automobile. Among state witnesses who testified was Deputy Game Wardens John Ash of Pomfret and Fred Alhouse of Hartford. It is expected the defense will seek to establish that the deer in question was found already dead by the defendants. There is some question also to be discussed relative to the town boundary lines in the vicinity of the alleged deer killing took place. Grand Juror Otto Hattin is prosecuting. Two prominent local attorneys have been retained by the defendants.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Miss Marion Moran of Hartford is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Moran.

Mrs. George E. Knapp of Stafford street attended the funeral of her sister, Mrs. L. R. Harsha in Chicago last week.

The hospital Aid Society has recently reported $200 in the savings bank to be added to the fund for the nurses' home.

There was a merry throng at the children's community Christmas party in Warren Memorial hall Saturday afternoon. The party was for the children of Stafford, 10 years of age and younger. It was under the direction of the public health nurse. This undertaking is supported entirely by personal donations as well as those from clubs, fraternities and societies. The party Saturday afternoon was one of the best attended and most enjoyable ever given for the little folks.

Mrs. Edson has moved from West Main street to Carlo Brighetti's house on East Main street. The house vocated by Mrs. Edson will be occupied by Harry Bradley and family.

The public schools closed Friday for the holiday vacation of two weeks.

St. Jean de Baptiste society recently elected the following officers: President, Alverado Sabourin; vice president, Mrs. Ellen Ironside; secretary, Mrs. Rose Roberts; treasurer, Gaidra Houle; financial secretary, William Labrichi; mistress of ceremonies, Mrs. Louis Desloge; sentinels, Albert Allard, Henry Woods; organist, Mrs. Cary Woods.

Mrs. W. B. Bean was the guest of friends in New London for a few days last week.

Following the meeting of Stafford grange Tuesday evening there will be a Christmas tree. Each member is to plan for the tree as usual.

DANIELSON

FALSE ALARM CALLS OUT DANIELSON FIREMEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 19—Men who belong to Danielson's fire department for one reason or another—certainly it isn't the money they get for their splendid service—would award anything but a gold medal to the person who pulled in an alarm at 2 o'clock Sunday morning from Box 53, corner of Broad and Cottage street, for a fire supposed to be raging in the Leon V. Brown home up a lane off Broad street in the Christian hill section of Danielson.

There was no fire. At the time the mercury was flirting with the zero mark, Chief A. P. Woodward said later that before the alarm was pulled in someone called his house and told him there was a fire at the Brown place. He says he advised them to pull in an alarm, and in due time, the fire sirens were arousing the borough to believe that the services of the fire department really were required. Out went the firemen on a fool's errand, not because they were anxious for a trip. Within ten minutes the recall sounded and they were not at all displeased to hurry back to quarters, all of which might indicate to the population at large that pulling in a fire alarm pre-supposes that there is a fire; that it is hardly chummy to set a community on edge because one happens to believe there is a fire.

MERCURY DROPS TO 10 BELOW AT DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 19—Twenty-two men wearing more clothing than goes into a closing out sale talking with two women who regard clothing as a mere incident to living in an age that requires certain ingredients to form and custom stood on a street corner here Sunday and, by a rare chance, unanimously agreed that it was cold. This was in the early morning, of course. One of the party with the ability to make frozen joints function walked over to where a nearby thermometer was recording what the weather was doing and informed the party that it was 5 below zero. On hearing this 19 of the men shuddered as chills ran up and down their spines and one of the women remarked that advance models of spring hats show a preference for a combination of straw and satin bands. While the men sought a warm place to thaw out their overshoes there was discussion among the fair sex as to what-do-you-suppose they will be wearing at the beaches within a few weeks.

Aside from all of this, Sunday produced the coldest morning of the season in Danielson. There are those who have other than trick thermometers and who were up early that told of seeing readings down to 10 below zero at 5 a. m. Even the most conservative among those who did not crawl out to look things over before 9 o'clock told of nothing warmer than zero. Those who like old-fashioned winter have their wish.

Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church in Danielle a solemn high mass of requiem was said at the funeral services for Joseph Mondor. The officers of the mass were Rev. Ignatius Kost, the pastor; Rev. Anthelme Mollard, M. S., pastor of St. James' parish, and Rev. Ludovic Paradis. The body was entombed in St. Joseph's cemetery. The bearers were Philip Cuson, Omer Cusson, Harvey Cusson, Peter Cusson, George LaBelle and Joseph Dumas. L. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

From the home of the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aldei Couty Saturday afternoon the funeral of their infant son, Robert, was held with a service at St. James' church at 2 o'clock, Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S., officiating. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Laurent Trahan, Lucien Boulais, Abel Loiselle, Gabriel Poirier, L. E. Kennedy had charge of the arrangements.

Many people who are imbued with the spirit of Christmas and who give of their time and energy to make the holiday more happy for the multitude engaged Sunday afternoon in rehearsals for affairs planned for the Yuletide season. At the Baptist church the choir and cast of the pageant to be given next Sunday night assembled. At American Legion hall members of the carol choir singers gathered to go over the Old Christmas anthems, under the direction of Mrs. F. O. Armington. And all were happy in doing this, that will bring joy to hundreds.

The real drive of Christmas shoppers got underway Saturday. Crowds in Danielson's stores were reminiscent of war-time, when everybody had money and indulged in hectic competition to be rid of it, for one thing or another. Those who have no faith, in the future of New England should have been about observing the people buying liberally of all the things that wanted to make someone happy. Some of the stores were jammed to the doors. Here was evidence that Danielson and the people of communities who trade here have money in generous allowance and that they will spend it under proper impulse. Probably the greatest injustice that has been done New England in recent years is the creation in many minds that this section of the nation is slipping. It isn't so and, risking the hazard that most prophets assumes, it never will be.

In the town court Saturday morning Judge W. Fenner Woodward found Leonardo Scimto, 21, of Bridgeport, not guilty of a charge of reckless driving. The charge against Scimto dates back to November 21, when he was here visiting with relatives.

Mrs. Mary Sisss, who is resident in the Mashentuck section of the town, appeared as a witness against Scimto and testified that she was thrown out of her machine when the car that Scimto was driving was in collision with it. She was considerably injured, and it is said, a civil suit for damages will follow the action before the Killingly court Saturday. Another witness was Miss Margaret Chukosy, a daughter of Mrs. Sisss by her first marriage. She was riding with her mother at the time of the accident.

The evidence introduced at Saturday's hearing was such as to be regarded by the court as insufficient to warrant a finding of guilty. Scimto's defence was that traffic conditions were such immediately prior to the accident, cars approaching, that the accident was unavoidable.

This (Monday) evening in G. A. R. hall employes of the Southern New England Telephone company in the Danielson, Putnam and Moosup divisions—such of them as are not kept on duty in the operating department—will have a Christmas party here. There is to be a tree and a gift for everyone, refreshments, dancing and a general good time. Such parties have been a feature of the telephone organization's activities in this section for years.

The crusade against the raiding of forest lands in the town of Killingly for Christmas trees this year has borne some fruit. For one thing—at least this is co-incident—Christmas trees have been out on sale here in quantities for the first time. This takes care of the needs of anyone who wants a tree without going on to some farmer's land and chopping down a growth that one day would be worth money to him—and without breaking the law. But the big source of protection has been due notice, through one source of publicity or another, that the town of Killingly has a forest patrol this year and that people who go out stealing trees are apt to be hailed into court for it.

Miss Grace O'Connell, student at a college in Boston, is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. O'Connell for the Christmas season.

Francis McDonald, student for the priesthood at LaSalette college in Hartford, is with Michael Head and family of Academy street for the holiday season.

Miss Katherine T. Thayer of Worcester was a Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. Carl Witter.

Every evening until Christmas the stores in Danielson will be open for the convenience of holiday shoppers.

COMMUNITY TREE VERY ATTRACTIVE IN APPEARANCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 19—The community Christmas tree in Union square with its colored lights gives a very Christmas-like appearance to residents of this city as well as those who pass through the city on the New Haven road. The tree is a very large one and its location on Union square just opposite the railroad station and the parking place of the motor busses is the most favorable one that could be imagined. The tree is placed there by the Putnam Rotary club. On Friday evening, Christmas eve, there will be carol singing under the direction of C. Dwight Sharpe. All who can sing are requested to help make the chorus for the singing a large one.

In a recent edition of the London "Times" the literary supplement of the paper carried a column and a half review of Professor Malcolm Willey's book, "Country Life and the Rural Press". The criticism was a very flattering one.

Miss Rita Kelley of Pomfret, a teacher in the first grade of the Model school, Willimantic, is a patient in St. Joseph's hospital in that city, having recently undergone an operation for appendicitis and is reported as resting comfortably. Miss Kelley is a graduate of Putnam high school.

The funeral services of Frederick C. Lawton of Woodstock were held this afternoon at the Congregational church on Woodstock Hill, Rev. David Hatch officiating and burial was in the cemetery adjoining the church yard.

Mr. Lawton was 60 years of age, died at his home after a brief illness although he had had heart trouble for several years. He was a well known efficiency expert and had spent the greater part of his business career in Providence and Detroit, but several years ago built a home in the Elmdale section of Woodstock to spend the rest of his life and has been prominently identified with the religious, social and civic life there. Mr. Lawton was a talented musician and was the organist at the Congregational church. He had recently been elected treasurer of the Woodstock Agricultural society and was a member of the Israel Putnam lodge of Mason's A. F. and A. M.

He is survived by his widow and two children, a son, Chester Lawton, of Ridgewood, N. J., and a daughter, Miss Louise Lawton, now studying music at the Boston Conservatory of Music.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of Norwich will hold a clinic at the Day Kimball hospital on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 21. This will be the last time that Dr. Campbell will be in Putnam until after the holidays.

There were two basketball games at the armory on Friday night. In the first one the Celtics defeated the K. of C. team by a score of 40 to 19. The former took the lead from the first and kept it throughout the game. The Headquarters company quintet won easily from the Black hand White Collegians by 32 to 17.

Myron Chamberlain, son of Kinney Chamberlain of Three Rivers, Mass., and grandson of the late Edward Chamberlain of Woodstock, has received the appointment of principal candidate from his district, for appointment to Annapolis Naval academy.

Miss Edith Pease, a senior at the Oberlin, Ohio school of Kindergarden is spending her vacation at home with her parents Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Pease.

Franklin Perry, a sophomore at Amherst college is at home for the Christmas vacation.

Nathan Prince, president of the Hartford Connecticut Trust company and a director of the Cargill Trust company of this city has been a Putnam visitor for a few days.

John H. Corbett of New Haven, formerly Y. M. C. A. county secretary with headquarters in Putnam has been the guest of friends here.

Miss Esther Wilson of Wellsley college and her brother, Leon T. Wilson, Jr., of Northfield academy, are at home with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon T. Wilson for their holiday recess.

Mrs. Louis E. Law has been entertaining Mrs. Bertha Brewster of Providence. Mrs. Brewster was formerly Miss Bertha Lovering and a resident of Putnam.

The Misses Bertha and Edith Child, both students at Simmons college in Boston are spending their two weeks' vacation with their mother, Mrs. Annie C. Childs of South Main street.

William P. Warren was in Providence yesterday on business.

Professor and Mrs. Malcolm M. Wiley of Hanover, N. H., are the holiday guests of Prof. Wiley's mother, Mrs. Helen M. Wiley of Oak Hill. Prof. Wiley is professor of sociology at Dartmouth college.

Herbert J. Miles of this city has returned from Albany, N. Y., where he attended a convention of Blister Rust workers of New England and the state of New York. Mr. Miles is the representative of the federal government as the Blister Rust control agent in this section.

Miss Irene Dugas of this city, a student at Brown university at Providence played the principal role in a play given recently by the French club, "Le Salon Francais". This club is composed of students at Brown university who give many plays and entertainments in French during the year.

The fact that officers of the various societies and organizations which have much to do with the distributing of Christmas cheer among the needy families in Putnam, report that this year there has been a decided falling off of the number of requests for relief, would indicate that the financial condition of Putnam is improving.

Mrs. Augustus M. Bartlett, 65, died at 8 o'clock Sunday night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Howard E. Brown on School street, Putnam. She is survived by her husband, a son, Ellery M. Bartlett of Eastford, and a daughter, Mrs. Howard E. Brown.

STONINGTON

John Dodge who is attending school in Massachusetts is at the home of his parents for the holidays.

Clarence A. Wimpfheimer has returned to New York having been in the borough on business.

The Christmas exercises at the First Baptist church given by the Bible school were held Sunday morning at 10:30, all taking part in the program in a very pleasing manner.

The Mothers' circle of the Second Congregational church met in the church parlors Thursday afternoon and held Christmas exercises. Refreshments were served.

A whist and dance was held in the rooms of the Steam Fire Engine company Friday evening. The later part of the evening was spent in dancing.

Word has been received in the borough of an operation performed on the eyes of Victor Johnson who is at a hospital in Albany. Mr. Johnson as he is getting along as well as can be expected.

Miss Margaret Monjo of Connecticut college is spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Monjo.

Nicholata Squadrito is home from Springfield, Mass.

The girl scouts are collecting donations of games and toys, to be furnished over to the visiting nurse who will distribute them where needed.

Miss Mae Rix was in Westerly Saturday.

Miss Carolyn Derrick is to enter the employ of the South County Public Service Company in Westerly today, (Monday).

Henry Barnes and family of New York are at their summer home just north of the borough for the holiday season.

Mrs. Dwight C. Stone of Hanover, was a recent caller in the borough.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Connor, entertained during the week a few young friends of their son Francis J., celebrating his fourth birthday. A large birthday cake made a very attractive table decorations. Games were played and refreshments were served. Master Connor received many gifts.

A. P. Loper has returned from a business trip to New Haven.

A Christmas concert was given on Sunday morning, Dec. 19 at the First Baptist church by the Bible school. The program follows:

Processional, song by the school "Rejoice,"; responsive reading led by the superintendent, Dr. Thompson, prayer; song by the school "Seek Him in the Starlight"; salute the Star Martha Levy, recitations; Glad Welcome, Barbara Wiseman; Hello Central, song, primary class; recitations Albert Zellar; Edith Robbins, Good Judgment, song by the school, Gladly Bring Garlands; recitations by Arthur Andrews and Rhoda Wiseman; Christmas Shopping; solo, Beatrice Brown, Starlight; recitations, Henry Brown, Is There a Manger? Edmund Dibling, The Golden Thread, class song, Miss Brewster's class, Christmas Welcome, recitations, Mary Andrews, Jean Adams, Ada Gavitt, Why Behave, Missed Christmas; song by the school, Sing O Ye Seraphs, recitation, James Rittenhouse, "A Christmas Hint," recitation by Joel Campbell, sing school; Where Seek Ye, recitations, Orvilla Rittenhouse; song, Miss Kelly's class, remarks by the pastor, offertory, solo, song school, here's a Glady O'er Judea, benediction.

The Christmas tree will be this (Monday) evening and for the cradle roll in the afternoon.

The borough grades will have exercises and a tree this week.

During the week a raid was made at 8 Gold street, at Marion Pontis, where wine was found, and a second raid was at Mr. and Mrs. William Schafer's on Northwest street, where a man was found drinking. Mrs. Schafer was in charge of the place. After a diligent search a keg which contained about a gallon of liquor was found. Mrs. Schafer was taken in charge and furnished a bond of $500 for appearance in court today (Monday).

Hyman Wiseman of the borough gave bond for the above. Pont was not taken into custody. Patrolman William Oatman and Frank O. Burrows and three helpers made the two raids.

A resolute man is often found to be remarkably shy on resolutions.

WESTERLY

CHARLES CLARENCE MAXSON DIES EARLY SUNDAY MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 19—Charles Clarence Maxson, 77, died about 4 o'clock this morning at his home, 126 Main street. He had been confined to the house for two weeks by illness following a nervous breakdown suffered several years ago. He was formerly a member of the Rhode Island state returning board, a former member of Westerly town council for six years and until his retirement from the building trade associated in conducting a lumber yard and construction business in Westerly.

Born at the house in which his death occurred, Aug. 16, 1849, he was the son of the late Charles and Anna Maria Barber Maxson.

He married Emma Albertine Utter, daughter of Dr. Albert Utter, of Plainfield, N. J., 49 years ago. Since the death of Mrs. Maxson, about nine years ago, her sister, Miss Jessie M. Utter of Plainfield, N. J., has resided at the Maxson home. Mr. Maxson had one sister, Abby M. Maxson, who was the wife of Fred L. Hickox. He is survived by two sons, Harry Wescott Maxson of Montreal, Canada, and Charles Clarence Maxson, Jr., of Lakeland, Fla.

After his early education in the public schools of Westerly, Mr. Maxson attended Andover, Mass., Academy, and after taking a preparatory course entered Sheffield Scientific school at Yale university. When a young man he became a clerk for the firm of C. Maxson & company, contractors and builders, of which his father, Charles Maxson was the principal partner and its acknowledged head, the other member being Jonathan Maxson. The firm built many large wooden hotels along the Rhode Island shore. At the death of Charles Maxson in 1881, the Randolph-Bentley company was organized, its members being R. Court Bentley, Albert N. Crandall, William Randolph and C. Clarence Maxson. The company existed until 1889, when it sold out to the R. T. Kenyon company. It was then that Mr. Maxson ceased his connection with the contracting business. The R. T. Kenyon company later became the W. C. Hiscox company, now doing business on Main street.

Mr. Maxson was a staunch republican. He served the town of Westerly as a member of the council for six years.

He was one of the building committee appointed for the erection of the new town hall building on Broad street in conjunction with the superior court house in 1912.

In 1904, when the late George H. Utter was governor of the state of Rhode Island, Mr. Maxson was appointed a member of the R. I. state returning board, and served for nearly 20 years. He was appointed to the board when it was first organized and was forced to resign because of ill health.

Mr. Maxson was director of the Washington National bank and when the Washington Trust company was formed he became one of the directors. He served up to 1914, when he resigned because of poor health. He was also a member of the Colonial club.

His church membership was with the Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church of Westerly.

The 52nd annual Kingston fair is to be held on the fair grounds at West Kingstown on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 14, 15, 16 and 17, 1927, both day and night, as voted at a meeting of the standing committee held on the fair grounds the past week end. During the year 1925 there was no fair held at the grounds following a disastrous fire when grandstand and other buildings were razed. A reorganization was effected and under the new management a successful fair was conducted in September, 1926, 40 men having pledged $500 each for the continuance of the fair for five years, this group being the governing board.

Westerly Sanitary corps, founded by D. Frank I. Payne, formerly of Norwich, is to have its fifth annual dinner and dance Thursday evening, Jan. 6, 1927, with a dinner at the Elm Tree inn, Pawcatuck, followed by a dance at the Rhode Island hotel. The committee consists of Clarence Stenhouse, chairman; Archie Melkle, George Quattromoni, J. Henry Burk, Raymond Wilcox, Charles A. Mack and Benjamin E. Peabody, Jr.

Misquamicut tribe, No. 18, Improved Order of Red Men, Friday evening observed the annual past sachems night in their camping grounds, Mechanics hall, Welch block. The stumps were filled as follows: Sagamore, Arthur F. Babcock; senior sagamore, Otis Chapman; junior sagamore, Albert G. Martin; prolit, James H. Weeks of Stonington; first warrior, William Minchen; second warrior, William Dower; third warrior, Harry Gavitt; first brave, Albert Bennett; second brave, Colby Stanford; guard of the wigwam, John Chappell; guard of the forest, Allen C. Slade; first sanap, Robert Havens. Seventeen of the men who have held the Sagamore's stump were in attendance, including Past Sagamore Charles Berry, who was chosen to that office when the tribe was instituted.

Miss Angie M. O'Brien, R. N., died Saturday at her home, 39 Spruce street, where she has been in ill health for several months. She has been a resident of Westerly for the past 40 years and was well known here.

For the past 25 years she had been a nurse at the Providence City hospital. She received her training for her profession at St. Joseph's hospital in Providence. She was the daughter of the late Michael and Hannah O'Brien. Surviving her are a brother, Patrick H. O'Brien of New London, and a sister, Mrs. Mary T. McGowan of Westerly.

At Calvary Baptist church Sunday morning Christmas music was rendered by the choir, Miss Jessie M. Utter, leader and organist, as follows: Anthem, "Sing, Oh Heavens," Tours; anthem, "Oh Holy Night," Adam; violin solo, "Christmas Hymn," Kron, Harold Nichols; offertory, anthem, "Christmas Bells," Dudley Buck; cantata, "Story of Bethlehem," West. Rev. Lewis A. Walker, pastor, took for the subject of his sermon, the Spirit of Christmas. The Christmas observance of the church and Sunday school will be held in the vestry Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock.

At Christ Episcopal church Sunday morning a Christmas program was given the choir, Mrs. Charles S. Larkin, organist and choir leader. The program: Organ prelude, Adoration, Gaul; processional hymn, "Adeste Fideles," Wade; vesper, Christ Child's Lullaby, Scott; response, "Thou Art the Angel Gabriel," Goepp; Miss Lizzie C. Dennison; Te Deum in A flats, Dudley Buck; anthem, There Were Shepherds, G. Vincent; Kyre, Gloria Tibi, Gratias Tibi, Moir; hymn, O Little Town of Bethlehem, Pedney; offertory anthem, While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks By Night, Scott; Sigmund Cordis, Cantus Sedulius, Mohr; "O Holy Night," Adam, Mrs. J. C. Danson; Gloria W. Excelis, Stainer; Nunc Dimtis, Stainer; Sevenfold Amen, Stainer; recessional hymn, Stuc G Stig This Blessed Morn, Hopkins; organ postlude, Hosanna In the Highest, Dunham. The choir consists of 24 voices, including Mrs. Jessie C. Danson, the soprano soloist and is under the direction of Mrs. Florence S. Larking, director and organist.

JEWETT CITY

UNION SERVICE SUNDAY ATTRACTS TWO HUNDRED

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 19—The Sunday union services at the Congregational church were attended by nearly two hundred. A union Sunday school service was held, Dr. Rees giving an illustrated talk on The Two Pathways. His talk on Startling Revelations in Jewett City was a straightforward setting forth of conditions which was listened to with great interest by nearly two hundred. The subject discussed Sunday evening was Destiny. Monday evening's topic is The Unanswered Question. Tuesday afternoon at three there is to be a meeting open to everyone, the topic being Satan Came Also. The last service will be held Tuesday evening.

Temperature as low as five below zero was reported Saturday morning and Sunday ten above was the average. Good Christmas weather, it is called!

Dr. Rees goes to officiate at the funeral of Mrs. A. E. Gallup in Danielson this (Monday) afternoon.

Important meeting of K. of C. this evening in their rooms.—adv.

The Christmas exercises at the Baptist and Congregational churches will be held Friday evening, and at the Methodist church on Saturday evening.

MYSTIC

The program arranged by Principal George W. Ingram of West Mystic school was given in the school house Friday evening.

The music by the eight-piece orchestra was delightful. They responded to several encores. All are good musicians.

The annual Christmas tree exercises of the primary department of the Baptist Sunday school were held Saturday afternoon in the vestry. The attendance was large as the parents were guests. The children having part were Helen Lewis, J. Alden Lamb, Benjamin Hewitt, Phebe Denison, Lloyd Chapman, Seymour Stoddard, Jr., Marjorie Lamb, Harriet Denison, Dayton Blewett, Constance Brown, Malcolm Craig, William Brown, Catherine Gilleng, Caroline Craig, Emily Stoddard, Wilhelmina MacDonald, Beatrice Packer, Barbara Chapman, Jennie Blake, Arlene Leonard, Bertha Ladd, Mary Miner, Marion Marrow, Arthur Lewis, Virginia Gray, Eleanor Wilson, Ralph Bickford, Herbert Chapman impersonated Santa Claus and all the children received gifts and candy.

Funeral services for Mrs. Caroline Pendleton Moser were held at the home of her son, Frederick Moser, 47 High street Friday afternoon and were conducted by Rev. Frederick G. Chutter, of the Congregational church of which she had been a member for over sixty years. He paid an eloquent tribute to her edifying Christian life. Rev. Mr. Chutter read the committal service at the grave in Elm Grove cemetery. The bearers were Alden Fish, William M. Holmes, Frank Buckley and Wallace Phillips. Relatives were present from Stonington and Hartford.

The funeral of Mrs. Maria Campo Bagatta was held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fortunato Panciera of Bruggerman place, Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. Requiem high mass at St. Patrick's church at 9:30 was sung by Father Thomas F. Mooney. Burial was in Elm Grove cemetery.

Funeral services for Henry Riggins were held at his home on Noank road Saturday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Edward E. Knapp, of Cedar Crest, West Mystic. He paid a fitting tribute to the life Mr. Riggins had lived and also coming to Mystic to make his home. Rev. Mr. Knapp read the committal service at the grave in Elm Grove cemetery. The bearers were Charles D. Anderson, Robert D. Bradley, Otto Grossman and Richard Foley.

After the annual election of Mystic Rebekah lodge, No. 54 Friday evening, in Odd Fellows hall, a Christmas tree social was enjoyed each having brought a small gift to be placed on the tree. Candy and oranges were also distributed. The officers elected are Noble grand, Mrs. Eleanor Lucy; vice grand, Mrs. Anna Burroughs; recording secretary, Mrs. Catherine Gilbert; financial secretary, Mrs. Carl Hoelck; treasurer, Mrs. Harriet Eccleston. The installation ceremony will be in January. District Deputy President Elizabeth Griswold being the installing officer.

Mystic Oral school closed Thursday and the children have gone to their homes for the holiday vacation.

The auxiliary to Richard William Morgan post entertained those who assisted in the traveling basket canvass Thanksgiving day, at the home of Mrs. Clifford Dalsen, Friday evening. A chicken pie supper was followed by a Christmas tree, with Santa Claus distributing gifts to all present. The remainder of the evening was devoted with music and games. Mrs. Wilhelmina Gromley, retiring president was presented a gold auxiliary badge, also a gold bar pin from the American Legion. She has been active in all work conducted with both organizations. Mrs. Charles Palmer district committee of Hartford was present also Theodore F. Anderson, post commander, of Mystic.

Mrs. Eva Burdick and Mrs. Louise Jones attended the Pomona grange meeting in Norwich.

Mrs. Mabel P. Moser, her son Theodore and daughter Carolin, of Hartford, attended the funeral of Mrs. Caroline Moser Friday at the Pomona grange meeting in Norwich. Mrs. Walter C. Morgan of Mystic grange was elected lady assistant steward.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Main and daughter Hazel, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Morgan spent Friday in Providence.

Miss Mildred Main of North Stonington spent Friday evening here with friends.

Hilts Klein of New London spent Friday night here with his children.

The W. C. T. U. is to meet with Mrs. Mary S. Brown Wednesday afternoon.

The Congregational church is to hold its Christmas tree and exercises Tuesday evening the 21st.

Mrs. George E. Tift had a birthday party at her home on Pequot avenue Saturday evening. Music was furnished by Marcus Jones. Games were played and sandwiches, cake, doughnuts, cookies and coffee were served. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. William Bradshaw, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Wiedler, Miss Minnie Wiedler, William Carey from Groton, Frederick, Ralph and Lillie Wiedler of Ledyard, Irving Holdredge, Burnett's Corners, Mr. and Mrs. John Panciera, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cnquanta, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mapel, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Chesebro, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Whittle, Miss Fannie Wiedler, of Mystic.

The Christian Endeavor society of the Baptist church met in the vestry Friday evening. Officers elected to serve for the next six months are: President, Mrs. David M. Bennett; vice president, Earl Cutler; secretary, Betty Wheeler; treasurer, Robert MacGregor; pianist, Elizabeth Thorp. After the business session, games were played and ice cream and cake were served.

Fred Whittle, Mrs. Robert Whittle and Mrs. Thomas Whittle spent Saturday in Providence.

At the South County Poultry and Pet Stock association show at Westerly, Mrs. Albert A. Haley of Old Mystic won 1st, 2nd and 3rd prizes on White Silkies exhibited.

Miss Anna Wilcox returned to her home in Quinebaug Thursday having been a patient at Westerly hospital for ten weeks, owing to a broken hip.

Thermometers in Mystic registered zero Saturday morning.

Ernest L. Duhaime, a student at Georgetown university, Washington, D. C., is spending the holiday vacation at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs Albert Duhaime.

DID YOU THINK OF GLOVES AS A GIFT?

They are a handy thing to have about on a cold day.
And then, one is not really dressed for the street at this time of year with naked hands exposed to the weather.
Cracked and bleeding hands are almost as conspicuous as a red nose and a mighty sight more uncomfortable, perhaps because there are twice as many of them.
These hands of ours earn their keep and are worthy of the utmost consideration. They feed us, they clothe us, they protect us, and their aid to the expression of thought is second only to that of the tongue.
The merchant could present good reasons without end to prove his point that gloves are both good to give and good to receive.
But there is a single reason better than all the others he could present: "Give gloves as a Christmas gift because you love somebody."
We think this is a good place to buy them.

ADVERTISING THE STATE

Much has been said from time to time about the importance of keeping New England and its advantages to the front, Publicity and advertising have been regarded as highly desirable in other lines of endeavor and it is rightly felt that what is good for business in general has elements of value for this part of the country.

The New England council has been doing much to get the respective New England states, and that of course means the people of those states, interested in New England problems and their solution. Stimulation of interest has been aimed at and there's no question but what it has been accomplished. The result has been that there's no question but what it has been accomplished. The result has been that there is more thinking concerning New England as a unit, and in connection therewith there cannot fail to be more thinking concerning the respective New England states.

The outcome is going to be beneficial to New England industry, New England products, New England power development, New England attractions and opportunities as viewed both from within and without. In Massachusetts the proposition of having a publicity department for that state is to be presented to the next session of its legislature, the idea being to have a commission of three members, who would serve without pay, direct the work for which an appropriation of $50,000 will be sought.

If Massachusetts makes such a move the other states cannot linger behind. As important parts of New England they have their merits to be set forth, their facilities and their attractions. There may be a disposition in some quarters to wait and watch the outcome in Massachusetts if the plan is adopted. Others will not be satisfied with this watchful waiting policy but will be desirous of joining and keeping up with the procession in the belief that what is good for development purposes in one commonwealth is good for another and that by joining hands in this direction New England will gain the attention of the country as it can in no other way. In any well directed movement Connecticut will not hide its light under a bushel.

SMITH'S DUTY

Even though Governor Small of Illinois has considered it desirable to defy the efforts in Washington to have him refrain from appointing Senator-elect Smith to fill out the unexpired term of Senator McKinley, it is certainly anything but a pleasing reception which his action got in the national capital. Had he wanted such an appointment blocked he could have done nothing more effective to accomplish it. He has invited an increased opposition to the Smith appointment, even antagonizing those who were non committal.

Governor Small has shifted the responsibility now to the shoulders of Senator-elect Smith. If he accepts the appointment he faces both republican and democratic action, and if he declines he leaves the way open for the naming of a temporary senator whose nomination is likely to be confirmed.

Senator-elect Smith faces a fight whether he undertakes to get his seat now or at the opening of the 70th congress to which he was elected. He can expect the same sort of a fight either time, but it is the desire on the part of the republican leaders that such a contest be avoided at this short session. It is a reasonable request. Just because the gentleman from Illinois is anxious to get into the fray doesn't mean that the business of the present session should be completely upset and action invited that will necessitate a special session of the next congress to do what the present congress can and should do.

There are those who are willing to wager that Senator-elect Smith will never take his seat. Whether that is so or not, there is no good reason for determining it at this time in view of the manner in which it would be sure to clog congressional machinery. This should be plain to the senator-elect. He should have recognized the necessity of placing personal desires secondary to national affairs. Governor Small hasn't seemed willing to make the move to do this, but it will be wisdom on the part of Mr. Smith if he now declines to accept the appointment and makes his fight some months hence.

RECLAIMING THE REBELS

By their acts, some at least of the rebellious republicans in the lower house of congress are going to be tried. Efforts have been underway to bring about a reconciliation. Progress has been made and if it continues as successfully as it has started there are indications of desired results. But it isn't a case of relying entirely upon promises. In order that there may be some check, there is an understanding whereby certain desired committee places will go to insurgents if they show that they are really back in the party fold, and are not just getting coveted places under false pretenses. What they are in the way to receive is only what would have been obtained by them had they remained true to the party organization. They are desirous of such places and they are wanted back in the party, if the understanding about such reconciliation is carried out all will be well but a period of probation is deemed advisable and upon that will depend whether the agreement goes through.

One of the leading insurgents in the house has been Congressman Nelson of Wisconsin, a leader of much influence and ability among the Wisconsin delegation, whether in Washington or at a national party convention. He has been quite as stubborn in Washington as he has been in conventions but it has been costly. It is needless to say that a committee chairmanship appeals to him. By his seniority, if he had been regular, it would have belonged to him and he would have received it. By his actions he deprived himself of the much desired position, but he desires to make amends by going straight in the future.

It is a case of deeds and not words. The committee chairmanship goes to another until the fourth of March. At that time this chairman will have completed his term and if in the meantime Congressman Nelson has been conducting himself as a republican should be expected to do and not antagonising his party he will step into the vacancy.

It is a test that bears all the elements of fairness and one that must be recognized by all concerned as no more than could be expected under the circumstances.

THE NEW WHITE WAY

The citizens of Norwich and those who pass through or stop here are having an opportunity to appreciate the decided improvement which has been made through the better lighting of Franklin and Bath streets. The extension of the white way system gives to these much used streets decidedly changed appearance at night. They are brought out of the darkness and conditions rendered much more desirable and safe both for those who walk and those who ride.

Quite the same as the better lighting of Main street and Broadway, this gives a much more favorable impression of the community. Measured by the lighting of its business center Norwich has been brought up to date and will rank favorably with other cities of its size in providing well lighted business streets as well as the important entrances to the city. There are opportunities for extension in several directions. There are other parts of the city which deserve attention in the way of lighting, but there cannot fail to be commendation for the progress that is being made.

The work on the latest extension has thus far been directed to the furnishing of the new lights during the Christmas season, a particularly fitting time with the stores remaining open in the evening, but the complete improvement will not be concluded until after the wires have been changed over from the large wooden poles to the new steel ones which, while they are more numerous are uniform, and make a much better appearance, and the old ones removed. This white way adds another to the private and public improvements which have been provided for Franklin and Bath streets.

GERMANY'S CABINET

A new cabinet is to handle the affairs of Germany, although it will probably be some little time before its makeup is completed. The Marx cabinet was the cause of a heated debate in the reichstag, such as might under some circumstances have resulted in its voluntary resignation. That is apparently what was aimed at, but when the cabinet refused to take the hint it was voted out of existence.

This situation developed following the recent agreement among European nations at Geneva. It was not, however, based upon that action which resulted in the decision to turn over the military control of Germany to the league of nations but developed from dissatisfaction with certain members of the cabinet who were considered as too much involved with the arms scandals.

In the new cabinet it can be expected that they will be replaced, but it will be surprising if Foreign Minister Stresemann does not continue to hold his office. Under the Marx cabinet Germany has been steadily going ahead in foreign affairs and much of this must be credited to the ability and influence of Minister Stresemann whose work at Locarno and Geneva have been of great benefit to his country and aided in the advancement of the understanding among European nations to its present position.

While the reorganization is going on there is bound to be a period of uncertainty in Germany and another test of the ability under the many party system in Germany to get a cabinet that will give satisfaction to the elements. It is a case where the socialistic element is making its strength felt against those regarded as too strongly militaristic.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Getting down to the home stretch for Christmas, have you got all your shopping done?

That war which Cape Cod has declared with mosquitoes will tolerate no interference from the league of nations.

With a fourth worker of a Memphis bank checked short those bank employes must have been playing give away.

These are the days when more than a few remember that there's a chance to throw out much needed food for the birds.

Governor Trumbull, we are informed, has renamed his staff, which is another way of saying one good term deserves another.

Invariably there's a demand that laws be given teeth, but quite often it's the case that they never get accustomed to using them.

The man on the corner says: If the speed law is raised just for a night to accommodate Santa Claus there will be few complaints.

The rota has been getting considerable publicity and the indications are that it's going to result in a decided increase in business.

WOMEN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A little mint gives a nice flavor to fruit punch.

Unbleached muslin window shades will help lighten a dark kitchen.

Hang blankets on the line to let the sun and wind freshen them.

Cook lamb as for fricasee and serve with boiled rice and curry.

Add thinly sliced onions and tomatoes to the fried egg sandwich.

Pimentoes cut in fancy shapes make an attractive garnish for salads.

A delicious luncheon dish is made of asparagus tips and eggs, baked in a casserole with grated cheese.

Fried pineapple or fried peaches are delicious served with chicken. Cut the fruit, dust with flour and fry until they are a deep brown.

A clear fire for grilling can be obtained by sprinkling a little saltpeter over the coals.

Soak a new toothbrush overnight in a glass of water. The bristles will not come out and the brush will last twice as long.

Salt should never be added to cereals until after they are cooked, as it hardens the cellulose and prevents the starch granules from expanding to their full size.

All fresh vegetables should be perfectly crisp before they are put into boiling water to cook. If they have become wilted, they should first be restored in cold water.

Keep in the attic a "charity box" where outgrown clothes, toys, books and other articles may be stored so that when a "call" comes there will be no hunting.

To tell if jelly has jelled dip a silver knife into the boiling juice and place on the ice. If the jelly wrinkles as you push your finger along the knife it is done.

Sometimes after cooking certain vegetables or fruits aluminum ware will be stained. This is caused by alkali. A good cleanser is a salty bacon rind rubbed thoroughly on the metal.

Save [illegible] stamps, as they are useful for getting into corners when scrubbing [illegible]. Let the skewer stick in the handle while you are scrubbing wainscoting. After being used once or twice it forms a little brush and is invaluable.

KITCHEN SHEARS

A pair of long-bladed scissors carefully sharpened at the ends are a great kitchen help. Use them for cutting up fowls, removing tough tendons from meat, shredding lettuce, removing cores from grapes.

CARE OF SWEEPER

The box of a carpet sweeper should be frequently opened over dampened newspaper, the dirt emptied out and hair and lint cleaned from the brushes with a button-hook, coarse comb or old scissors. The mechanism should be kept properly oiled.

REMOVES LINT

When clothing [illegible] to the varnish of the [illegible] leaving a coat of lint upon it rub the [illegible] with a cloth saturated with turpentine and follow with a cloth dampened with linseed oil. Rub vigorously with both applications.

STAINED WALLS

Darkened and smoke-stained [illegible] may be cleaned by applying [illegible] of starch and water on a piece of flannel. Let this dry then brush off lightly with a clean brush.

COOKING HINTS

To keep doughnuts from burning drop a piece of raw potato in the boiling fat.

A dessert that will be relished occasionally is [illegible] gingerbread served with whipped cream.

[illegible] cakes brown cake on top [illegible] has risen then as it rises it [illegible]

[illegible] to separate yolks of [illegible] break them over [illegible] will pass through.

[illegible] that have been salted [illegible] made edible by [illegible] raw potatoes. [illegible]

[illegible] and tenderest poultry should be roasted or boiled; the older fowls better boiled, stewed or fricasseed.

Fish, meats and peas should be cooked quickly in boiling water with the cover [illegible] of the saucepan to allow the steam to escape.

Ham, corned beef, tongues and all meats that are not to be served hot are all improved if they are allowed to cool in the water in which they are boiled.

EMBROIDERED COTTONS

To give a bit of color to a hall or living room few things are more effective than huge pieces of natural color cotton embroidered in close designs similar to those done in Persia and Egypt. The original ones are usually in shades of red or in tones of brown and yellow combined, and are strikingly handsome. They are ideal to hang on the wall or over a plain screen.

FRESHEN THE CURTAINS

No doubt many of your window draperies are now showing an accumulation of dust. Select a clear windy day and hang them out in the air for a while. It is surprising how much of the dirt will be removed and how fresh your hangings will look.

BABY CALFSKIN USED FOR FROCKS

One of the Parisian furriers has started a new vogue with "baby milk," which is the fur of the new born calf. This skin is so flexible it may be used for tailored dresses, as well as for coats. Frequently the small close hat worn with the costume, which is allowed to keep its natural coloring, is of the same material and the shoes are adorned with inserts of the same fur.

NATURAL ICEBOX

During the cold wintry months the ice bill can be cut down. If the air is cold enough to keep butter from melting when you place it in the window ice box, you can safely leave any foods exposed outside and they will not spoil.

THE SHINY SERGE

When a dress suit of dark serge becomes shiny with wear, sponge it with hot vinegar, and press it in the usual way. No odor of vinegar will remain, the shine will disappear and the material will be much improved in appearance. The vinegar will leave no stain.

MAKE IT FIT

If the candle is a little too large for the holder, dip the end into hot water until it is softened. Then press it into the candlestick and you will find it will fit splendidly.

DICTATES OF FASHION

The newest umbrellas, extremely short and stubby, are of striped or plaid silk.

Sweaters in bright Scotch plaids are worn with knitted skirts of the predominant color of the pattern.

The French combine furs very attractively this season, outlining gray or black furs with a narrow line of ermine.

Moleskin waistcoats are amusing styles, and are most frequently coupled with velvet suits or those of very elegant wool.

A necklace that is somewhat different is made of large squares of onyx separated by crystal rondelles. It hangs almost to the waist.

Large squares of brocade are fringed with ostrich and are worn doubled over so that it gives the effect of a double fringe of graduated width.

Glorified kimonos are made of flower tinted crepe de chine with wadded bands of crepe in a contrasting pastel shade. One of orchid is trimmed with bands of peach and pale green.

Rose quarts delicately etched and carved into pendants that are swung from black cords make ideal gifts that are a bit different.

Tulle is considerably in evidence, often for ruffled dance frocks where the edges are picoted with gold or silver thread, or sprinkled with sparkling sequins or rhinestones.

One of the loveliest frocks for a debutante is a period dress made of white moire with a deep hem of black velvet cut upward in the center of the front. Wide silver lace of a heavy mesh conceals the joining of the two materials.

NEWEST IDEAS IN SHOE STYLES

The latest shoe for day wear comes well up over the instep and many of the newer pumps extend upwards in tongue effect with a dingle button at the side. Single strap models continue popular for street wear as well as do the higher cut pumps.

Sandal effects and strapped models of elaborate type are stressed for evening wear. Jeweled heels and buckles adorn many models.

Black satin slippers with gold or silver heels and rhinestone strap buckles are new.

Heels of colored satin, particularly greens and reds, are used on brocaded slippers, the heels matching the color of the gown.

SILK SCARF IS USEFUL GIFT

Monogrammed scarfs make useful gifts for men as well as for women. In the men's department of many shops the evening muffler of heavy silk is made with an embroidered medallion in which the monogram is to be placed. Girls prefer large initials set in lengthwise manner embroidered in letterings which look somewhat Chinese. If one wishes, one can secure paper designation initials in the art departments and do one's own embroidering.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES

When [illegible] scallop, stitch around three scallop with the machine. This prevents tearing between [illegible] which so often happens with this material.

When making pincushions, insert a piece of cardboard through the center. It will prevent losing the needle in the cushion and also keep the cushion in shape.

[illegible] hose will have less tendency to break again if darned diagonally across the weaves instead of with [illegible] give it a trial.

When making turnback cuffs for a man's shirt, sew the smallest sized snap on the cuff about one inch from the edge and at the proper place on the sleeve, and you will find this quite a time saver. The cuff will not have to be tacked after each laundering.

MILLINERY CUPBOARD

Many girls find it is more convenient to keep their millinery all together in a cupboard rather than in several hat boxes, as the hats can then be put away or lifted out with less likelihood of their being crushed than when they are in a box. When the hats are placed on the shelves, it is best to protect them by resting them on silk pads. Many girls like to have these small cushions scented. Tissue paper [illegible] wrapped around the hats and [illegible] them from dust, but it is best [illegible] hats hung from [illegible] the cupboard for protection from dust the tissue wrapping is unnecessary.

AN OLD HEN

If you distrust the roasting chicken and are afraid it will be tough, try this method of cooking it. Prepare it for roasting and then place it in a covered boiler with about two cups of water and let it steam for 1 hour. Then roast as usual and you will find the fowl will be tender.

WHEN EGGS ARE HIGH

If a cake calls for two eggs you can obtain the same results with one egg if the white is separated from the yolk and beaten until stiff. Then add the yolk and keep beating until light-colored and creamy. Use this mixture in place of the two eggs.

A GOOD INVESTMENT

The fireless cooker is fast becoming the boon companion to the business woman who lives alone or with other women workers. She can prepare her dinner at breakfast time, and when she arrives home at night the cooker has proven itself a most competent maid.

PREVENTS SKIDDING

If the food chopper is inclined to skid around on the table, before fastening the gripper to the table place a square of sandpaper under the clamps, rough side up. Then screw the chopper tight and the clamps will not work loose.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Sixteen hundred women in England now hold positions as magistrates.

Mrs. R. E. Mitchell, a young Cornish girl, has been awarded a medal for being the best butter-churner in Great Britain.

Queen Maud of Norway enjoys the reputation of being the best dancer and the best skater of all the women of European royalty.

Tape measures, held aloft by fellow employees of a dry goods establishment, formed a novel archway for the bride at a wedding in England the other day.

A woman recently detected in an attempt to evade duty on some valuable jewels purchased abroad had concealed the gems in the milk in her baby's bottle.

Miss Florence Richards, an expert in cataloging, has just celebrated her 50th anniversary as a member of the staff of the Boston Public library.

Mrs. Lena D. Sulzer of St. Louis, one of the four women in the United States to be at the head of a savings bank, is a great-great-granddaughter of Henry Duncan, the Scottish clergyman who founded the first savings banks.

IT WILL KEEP

If you run short of ice, you can keep milk sweet by adding two teaspoons of limewater to each pint. The addition is beneficial.

PLENTY OF WATER

When cooking vegetables with a strong flavor, such as cabbage, cauliflower, brussels sprouts or turnips, always put them in an open kettle and cover with an abundance of water.

RECIPES

Fairy Crisps: 1-4 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 cup dates, sliced, 1 cup chopped walnut meats, 2 egg yolks (unblanched), 3-4 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 egg whites.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt. Mix finely sliced dates and chopped nuts through the flour with the fingertips. Beat egg yolks; continue beating while adding the sugar gradually. Add the vanilla and the dry ingredients, dates and nuts. Mix well. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites.

Drop the mixture by rounded teaspoons two inches apart on a well-oiled baking sheet or inverted pan. Bake in a slow oven (275 degrees) for 25 to 30 minutes. Remove from pan with a spatula or broad-bladed knife. When cool, store in a tightly covered metal box.

Handy Sweetmeats: The holiday season with its festivities brings the best of toothsome goodies to the fore. Shelled and salted nuts, glace fruits and nuts constitute the more distinctive type of sweetmeat. When purchased in attractively decorated tin boxes, they make excellent individual gifts.

Glace fruits are so easily damaged in appearance by the ordinary pasteboard box that the tin container is a real necessity. It is strong and tight, keeping the fruits in all the delicious juciness that is their best quality. Glace nuts, too, are best when kept in these snug tin boxes, which also insures their freshness.

Keep a can of nuts for salads, cakes, puddings, poultry stuffing, and other cooking uses. They are handy, too, to serve at an impromptu card game or party. As a bon voyage gift, a tin box of nuts is always welcome.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D

Libraries and the Care of Books

We do not get the most out of a book unless we own it; we cannot take a personal interest in borrowed books, and, although it pleases Mr. Augustine Birrell to think of the thousands of thumbs that have turned over its pages with delight, it is difficult really to know a library book with its soiled pages, battered covered and the date when it must be returned impending like the Day of Judgment.

There is the same difference between a book that you own and a library book that there is between a home and a hotel; the one is stamped with the individuality of its owner, the other is common property. It is pleasant to have a feeling of proprietorship in the great men of the past and to speak of my Homer or my Shakespeare. How close it brings us to a man who we possess a book with his autograph or book-plate in it, or which, better still, he has read and marked. If for instance, we owned Lowell's Don Quixote with the notes written on its margin in repeated readings from which he drew the material for his famous address, what an inspiration it would be.

The books that you skim you may borrow, if you buy them they will take up room on your shelves that may be more profitably employed; but the books that you wish to read again and again, to ponder over and to study you must own.

Today's Anniversaries

A pessimist is a man who believes that every chestnut has a worm in it.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Theodore E. Burton, who is in line for congratulations today on his 78th birthday anniversary, is a former United States senator from Ohio and at present one of the representatives of that state in the lower house of congress. Mr. Burton is known in Washington as a high authority on finance and international affairs. He was born in the town of Jefferson, O., and received his education at Oberlin college. He studied law, practiced his profession, was sent to congress in 1889, and, most of the time from that date until he entered the senate in 1900, he was a major figure in the house whenever it came to debate of revenue production, banking, and appropriations. He closed his career in the senate with a great fight against fraudulent and venal appropriation bills. Mr. Burton was a member of the debt commission and in 1924 he was chosen to make the keynote speech at the republican national convention in Cleveland.

Today's Birthdays

Prince George, youngest son of King George, who was a recent visitor in Canada, born at York college, 34 years ago today.

Marion Talley, the young opera singer who, like Byron, awoke one morning to find herself famous, born at Nevada City, Mo., 20 years ago today.

Harvey S. Firestone, one of America's captains of industry, born in Columbiana county, Ohio, 58 years ago today.

Dr. Walter S. Adams, director of the Mt. Wilson observatory, born at Antioch, Turkey, 50 years ago today.

Theodore E. Burton, former United States senator and now a representative in congress from Ohio, born at Jefferson, O., 75 years ago today.

Stories That Recall Others

Aid in Preaching

Two colored men were bewailing the hard times felt in their agricultural endeavors.

"Times is tighter than I ever seen them before," said one. "I can't even get hold of a nickel! If something don't turn up I'm going to start preachin' again. I done that once and I ain't got good to do it again."

Her Help Was Not Needed

One afternoon two women met on the street. One said to the other:

"If I didn't have this baby buggy I'd go over and help that blind man across the street."

The other, looking up, saw a well dressed man carrying a cane, patiently standing by the curb.

"Why, I'll help him," she said, and going across the street took him by the arm as she said:

"I'll help you across the street."

But to her chagrin, he replied: "Why, lady, I'm just waiting for a street car."

Inventors of new wrinkles are not popular with women.

HARRY O. WILLIAMS ILL— STRICKEN IN NEW LONDON

Early Saturday afternoon, Harry O. Williams, a young man in business in Westerly and Mystic, was in New London and leaving his car at a garage, went to a restaurant for lunch. He was suddenly taken so ill that it was feared he would die. After a time he managed to get back to where his car had been left, when he was again overcome. Some friend notified James N. Kelly, of Huntington street, who went immediately and drove Mr. Williams to the Kelly residence, 68 Huntington street, bringing a doctor along.

Throughout the late afternoon and evening Mr. Williams was given constant attention by Mr. and Mrs. Kelly, so that by about 10 p. m., he had recovered from the attack of acute indigestion and it was deemed wise to grant his request and take him to his home in Westerly.

Mr. William has not been well since October, when his car was run into, his wife and a young woman friend being when so badly injured that they have but just been able to leave the hospital. The news of the young man's illness caused his friends deep concern. On Sunday he appeared to be greatly improved, however.

FUNERALS John F. Burns

Funeral services for John F. Burns were held Saturday morning at 8:30 o'clock at his home, No. 78 Roath street, requiem mass being celebrated at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Memorial church by Rev. William A. Keefe. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and the floral tributes were many and beautiful.

At the offertory Horace Corning sang De Profundis and for a waiting hymn he sang Lead, Kindly Light. At the recession Mrs. M. J. Farrell played Chopin's Funeral March. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, Lisbon, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. J. J. McCabe. The bearers were Marcus Driscoll of Westerly, Timothy Driscoll, all of Jewett city and Thomas Driscoll, all of Jewett City, and Thomas F. Burns of Norwich. Arrangements were in charge of Hourigan Bros.

DATA SHOW VACCINATION IS NOT DANGEROUS

The weekly health bulletin issued by the Connecticut state department of health says in regard to vaccination:

The plan for smallpox prevention of state and provincial health authorities quotes Hugh S. Cummings, M. D., surgeon general, U. S. P. H. S., as follows:

"The claim is made that vaccination is dangerous. The medical officers of the navy have vaccinated since 1917, approximately three fourths of a million persons without a death. Medical officers of the army have, during this period, vaccinated five and a quarter million persons. Only one of these nearly six million men died during the course of vaccinations and this man died of pneumonia.

The Detroit vaccination figures also show that practically anyone may be safely vaccinated against smallpox. There were $17,000 persons vaccinated in Detroit during 1924 without a death or serious accident. Of these about 500,000 were vaccinated in May or early in June. Smallpox had constantly increased up to the end of May. The outbreak terminated the latter part of July. At a Detroit hospital during this outbreak persons ill with other diseases, new born babies and their mothers, were vaccinated without ill effects in any case. A tabulation of such cases not usually vaccinated follows:

773 mothers of new born babies, 676 babies, one or two days old, 845 persons with tuberculosis, 844 persons with scarlet fever, 436 persons with diphtheria, 53 persons with measles, 90 persons with erysipelas, 31 persons with venereal diseases.

The reasons for vaccinating these sick persons are because they were being treated in the Herman Kiefer hospital, a part of which was also used as the smallpox hospital.

In spite of the fact that the means for preventing smallpox is well known this disease continues to be widespread and destructive. Incomplete reports made to the U. S. Public health service from 62 countries includes 218,000 cases, and more than 50,000 deaths from smallpox during the calendar year 1924. The same countries reported 165,000 cases of smallpox and more than 45,000 deaths during 1923. A number of months ago the surgeon general of the public health service invited the attention of the state health officers and of the public in general to the menace of smallpox. At that time this action was severely criticised. The claim was made that there was no menace from smallpox and that conditions were being misrepresented. Reports for the calendar year 1924 showed however, an increase of 75 per cent. in the number of cases and 628 per cent. in the number of deaths from smallpox in the United States, over the year 1923. What might have happened had our people not been awakened to the necessity for vaccination can only be surmised.

There is one other point that should be emphasized, that is, the accomplishments in saving and prolonging life. The average length of life in this country has been increased from 40 years to 58 in two generations and the rate of increase is becoming more rapid. This increase is not due entirely to the lowered death rate of children, because reports during the past two or three years indicate that we are beginning to prolong life in the middle and later ages.

These changes have been brought about not only by the introduction of improved sanitation but by the discovery of the means of preventing disease by control of disease carriers and immunization, including vaccination. A group of research workers, who could be quickly named, are responsible for most of the developments of modern hygiene and sanitation. All of these men believed in the efficacy of vaccination and used vaccination against smallpox as one of their sanitary measures. It does not seem reasonable that they could have been wrong in interpreting the value of vaccination and right in their other conclusions.

Every means of progress in prolonging human life has been contributed by those who know that vaccination does prevent smallpox.

WHITE CROSS COUNCIL HONORS MEMORY OF DECEASED MEMBERS

The words of Christ, whomsoever believeth in Me shall never die, were the main thoughts of the sermon preached Sunday evening at St. Patrick's church by Rev. George J. Donahue, of Pomfret, as the memorial sermon in honor of the deceased members of White Cross council, No. 18, Knights of Columbus. Rev. Fr. Donahue was showing that Christ alone possessed the power over life and death and gave the world the only real hope of eternal life.

This message of Christ, said Rev. Fr. Donahue, confirms the latest test, the latest sorrow, as well as sorrows of 2,000 years back. His message, however, is really 2,000 years ahead of the time. Death is always heartless, no matter how easy its approach may be. Death ruthlessly calls loved ones from our midst. This dedication evening is to good fellows and good Knights who now sleep in peace, enriched by the hearts that refuse to forget. This service proves that though death continues to take its toll, members of White Cross council have resolved that Catholic love for the dead must never die.

As we stand at the grave of a brother, we wonder if we shall see him again, feel the pleasing touch of their hands, hear their voices and hear those welcome footfalls we knew in life. Let us seek an answer to this question which is in every mind at the time of death.

For the answer to the questions let us look to the world, that strange thing which had always been antagonistic to Christ. The world tells us only that in the midst of life there is death. Omar was worldly and he said that even the wilderness would be sweet if the shadows on the grass could be removed. Thus the world has no message for us except that which we already know.

Let us go to the poets, those real poets who possessed gifts no other man has possessed. Real poets are inspired, things they have given us they themselves may they could never add to. They wrote under inspiration. Even the poet has no solution to life and death, the nearest they come is that life is a short journey and that the soul comes from afar. These inspired writings simply are flashes of light, leaving the darkness heavier when they disappear, simply because they have shone. Catholic poets sing differently because they know, yet we have no answer from the poets.

Let us look to science. The scientist has done wonderful things but the only light they give us of that which God has given them. Science tries to explain life and death. They use meaningless words, nothing but words and words. That is the best science has to offer.

Now let us reason as all intelligent people do. If there is no life after death why be good, why do artists touch the canvas and produce wonders, why do we desire children? Men yearn for immortality; they believe in a hereafter. The rose Bush in winter is not dead and it will bloom again in the spring. Am I less than a rose bush on the lawn. No. I cannot be. In Caruso less than the disk which now brings us his wonderful voice. No, it cannot be. There is no death for we shall live again.

Let us go back to the story which will be told a few days hence. The story tells of the stillness of the night the shepherds with their flocks. Suddenly the heavens opened and a clear light appeared. There was the sound of song, always associated with Christ. Then, as the last stupor stood and gazed. The shepherds were frightened, the sheep were frightened. Suddenly there came a voice saying, "Fear not, fear not." The voice told the shepherds to fear neither life nor death, for unto you this day a saviour is born.' This was a new message and a new truth. Christ came and grew to manhood and carried this new message to the people. In many ways He proved to them that He possessed power over life and death. They called Him Master and followed Him.

Then Christ died and with Him died all the hopes of mankind. But this was not for long. Three days later Christ rose from the grave. He told them that He was the resurrection and the life and that those who believed upon Him should never die. He died and returned as a final proof that He possessed power over life and death.

Now let us return over the road we have traveled. The world, the poets, the scientist, the man who reasoned, all fail to give us final proof. Of all famous, mighty men who have died Christ alone returned. Coming from sublime to earthly, think of the wondrous powers of Houdini. Even he died and thus far has not been able to break loose from the shackles of death.

Believing in Christ we know we shall meet our brothers again, not only for a short time, but for all eternity.

The special musical programme for the service was in charge of Henry J. LaFontaine, selections by Mr. LaFontaine on the organ and choral numbers being most pleasing. Before the sermon, a delightful rendition of Veni Creator, Warner, by a quartet composed of Mrs. Bernard Coyle, Miss Loretta Bellefleur, Walter LaFontaine and Henry LaFontaine, was a feature of the musical part of the service.

The programme was as follows:

Elizabeths Prayer ..... Wagner
Improvisation ..... Lemaire
Air ..... Bach
Marche Romaine ..... Gounod

Organ

Jesu Redemptor ..... Yon

Choir

Some Sweet Day ..... Doane
Walter LaFontaine

Reverie with chimes ..... Navin
Veni Creator ..... Werner

Quartet

Salutaris ..... Mauro Cottone
Tantum Ergo ..... Mauro Cottone

The final two selections were rendered by the choir. The benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, was given by Rev. John J. Reilly, chaplain of White Cross council.

The ushers for the several services during the day were William McKnight, John P. Corcoran, Alexander Kilroy and Michael J. Murphy.

At Morning Services

White Cross council began the day by assembling at the K. of C. home, on Broadway at 7:15. The solid phalanx, led by Grand Knight Jeremiah E. Sweeney and associate officers marched to St. Patrick's church, where the entire block of pews on the epistle side of the main aisle was reserved for them. Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, who as usual read the low mass, from the pulpit commended the knights for their public manifestation of the faith that is in them, by thus showing to the world their belief in God, in His divine son and in the supreme gift of the Redeemer—His own body and blood, soul and divinity in the eucharist of the altar which they had assembled to receive into their souls, sanctified by the sacrament of penance. Pseudo-science and the lightweights in the intellectual world may smile; but the Catholic knight is never shaken in his faith, and the rector admonished his hearers to the same tenacity of purpose as had their exemplar, Christopher Columbus, Christopher—Christbearer, who came to bear to this part of the world the Christ, the knowledge of religion, which the K. of C. puts into practical daily acts.

The pews on the gospel side of the nave were reserved for the Rosary society, Miss Annie G. Stanton, president and to that organization also, as publicly manifesting honor to the mother of Christ the rector spoke briefly. When later the two societies led the great body of worshippers assembled to the altar, Monsignor May had the assistance of Rev. Myles P. Galvin in administering holy communion. Many offered their communions for relatives and friends who were members of White Cross council and who were to be publicly memorialized at the evening services.

In special compliment to the K. of C., Organist Henry J. LaFontaine was at the church to play the processional and recessional marches for this early service, also to accompany for congregational singing in which Rev. John J. Reilly was chorus leader for the opening hymn, "Come, Holy Ghost." At the gospel, there was congregational singing of the favorite hymn to the Blessed Virgin, "Mother Dearest, Mother Fairest" and as the last gospel was being read "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name" was sung. At the consecration and offertory, Mr. LaFontaine gave an organ number introducing the chimes with marked effect. He himself sang the communion solo, as the long lines of knights moved to the sanctuary railing, "O Lord, I Am Not Worthy That Thou Shouldst Come to Me."

SENDS WILDER CASE BACK TO COMMISSIONER

That now famous compensation case of Harriet A. Wilder against the Russell Library Co., employer and the Travelers' Insurance Co., insurer, growing out of the suicide of Miss Edna H. Wilder, librarian, has entered another stage.

In a decision handed down Saturday by Judge Newell Jennings, James J. Donohue, compensation commissioner of this district, is ordered to correct the finding. The decision, while apparently simple, may result in laying the court facts associated with the death of Miss Wilder and the way her claim came to be presented, which will completely alter the standing of this now famous case the country over.

The court in directing the order points out that the case "bristles with technicalities," that it suggests an entirely "new and important extension of the scope of the compensaiton law." It is held that the record before the court does not provide the facts upon which further action may be pursued. The relations of Miss Wilder, for instance, to other things than her service for the Russell Library, also other facts which are considered important.

Lawyers everywhere have been studying this case, also all employers of labor, especially manufacturers with large plants. The decision has been discussed all over Connecticut and in other states. It has been held that if Commissioner Donohue's ruling allowing compensation stands and is accepted the country over, or even in this state, it will revolutionize the operation and cost of the compensation law.

It will be recalled that the claim was made that because of Miss Wilder's attention to her duties as librarian her nerves were affected and she was led to kill herself.—Middletown Press.

WHITE GIFT SERVICE NETS APPROXIMATELY $360

The annual white gift service of the Sunday school of the Central Baptist church took place Sunday noon at the church. Gifts for the Near East relief and for special mission work were placed on the platform by the various classes. In all, approximately $360, including $160 pledged by the men's class last Sunday, were received and of this amount $315 is for the Near East relief. The remainder is for special mission work.

The service which was very attractive and impressive, came to a close with an address by the pastor, Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., on The Giving of Self.

At the evening service there was a special programme of Christmas music an attractive feature of the service. The pastor, Rev. Dr. Pitt, preached on the topic, The Tenth Commandment.

WATERBURY MAN MAY SUCCEED JUDGE NICKERSON

Judge Harry J. Beardsley of Waterbury district court, may succeed Judge Leonard J. Nickerson of the superior court, who retires early next year according to the Waterbury American. That paper says:

Judge Harry J. Beardsley of the district court is slated for promotion to the superior court bench. It was learned from an authoritative source that Judge Beardsley has the inside track for the next superior court appointment by a wide margin and that he has the favor of Gov. John H. Trumbull and the republican state machine.

Judge Beardsley will in all probability succeed Judge Leonard J. Nickerson who retires early next year, having reached the age limit, unless there is a death among the judges prior to Judge Nickerson's retirement.

WITTER BYNNER WRITES OF SANTA FE WRANGLE

Witter Bynner, poet, traveler and lecturer, had a four column illustrated story in the New York Sunday Times from Santa Fe, New Mexico. Mr. Bynner, a former Norwich resident and a relative of the members of the Brewer family, narrates the strange condition which has arisen because of the Federated clubwomen's plan to make of Santa Fe their summer stamping ground.

The story is so interesting that the Times devoted a half column editorial to the odd situation.

NO ERROR FOUND IN GRISWOLD CASE

No error is found in the case of I. M. and Fannie Ostroman of Griswold against Otto Anderson, Sr., also of Griswold, according to a decision handed down by the supreme court. The case was appealed from the court of common pleas by the defendant on a judgment for the plaintiff in the amount of $264, rendered by a jury.

The plaintiff alleged that the defendant had trespassed, cut down and carried away trees from the plaintiff's land.

In Memory of Deacon Burnham

The flowers at the United Congregational church Sunday were in memory of Deacon Waterman R. Burnham and were provided by the members of the Sunday school class he used to teach.

OBITUARY Patrick H. Good.

Saturday morning at 8:15 Patrick H. Good, 76, died at his home on Everett street, having been in failing health for nearly a year. Mr. Good was born in Ireland, March 17, 1848, the son of Richard and Julia Hogan Good. Following his early education in his native town he spent two years in study at a college in Dublin conducted by the Jesuit Fathers.

Sixty years ago he came to this country and for about 25 years was employed at the Cold Spring Iron mill at Thamesville. Later for ten years he occupied the Stanton farm on Mohegan hill which he had purchased, moving from there to the former Palmer Bill property, opposite the sanatorium, which he had modernized and improved and which has been the home for about 20 years.

About 43 years ago he was united in marriage with Abigail Kelly in St. Mary's church, by the late Rev. Daniel Mullin. Mrs. Good survives her husband, with four daughters, Mrs. D. J. Mooney, of Hartford, Mrs. Vincent W. Weiss, of New York, Misses Mary T. and Julia I. Good of Norwich, also by three sons, James J. Good, of Buffalo, N. Y., Dr. William Murray Good, of Waterbury, and Richard L. Good, of New London. A daughter, Sister M. Pauline, died at the convent in Willimantic about four years ago. There are 13 grandchildren.

A faithful and devout attendant at St. Mary's old church, when the new St. Patrick's church was projected Mr. Good not only gave generously toward it, but also helped solicit funds for its erection and after the edifice was completed he was one of the original pew-holders. Until ill health prevented he attended the daily parish mass at St. Patrick's. He was a member of the parish Holy Name society; also he was a charter member of the Catholic Chuck Extension society and of the Irish-American Historical society, of New York, to which organization he had given a number of valuable books and records.

For the past 20 years he had devoted his time to cultivating his garden and beautifying the grounds at his handsome and sightly home. He was a good neighbor and a man of generous impulses, ardent in his labors for religion, charitable, kindly and well disposed in his dealings throughout his long life.

Joseph Lee

Joseph Lee, of No. 33 Chestnut street, brother of John M. Lee, died suddenly Saturday afternoon while sitting in a chair.

He had been complaining of not feeling well for a few days, but early Saturday afternoon he became unconscious and when a physician was summoned he was pronounced dead.

Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve viewed the remains. Death was due to heart trouble.

The deceased was born in Norwich, son of the late Daniel and Mary Mahon Lee and had lived here all his life. For a number of years past he has been in the employ of the city, in charge of the various municipal parks. Twenty-five years ago he was united in marriage with Catherine Butler of Norwich Town, since deceased. He is survived by two sons, George B. Lee, Joseph F. Lee, and one daughter, Catharine F. Lee. He also leaves the following brothers and sisters: John M. Lee, David Lee, Charles F. Lee, Mrs. Thomas F. Burns, Catharine Lee and Ellen Lee.

Mrs. John H. Miner

Following a short illness Charlotte M. Rogers, 85, wife of the late John H. Miner, formerly of Bozrah, died about 7 o'clock Saturday morning. Her death occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jessie M. Browning, in Rehoboth, Mass., where she has made her home since the death of her husband Jan. 28, 1920. Among the surviving relatives is a sister, Mrs. John L. Hill of 24 Colt street, Norwich.

STURDY MASONIC COLLECTION NOW AT STATE LIBRARY

Announcement has been made that there has been added to the Joseph C. Michelson collection of coins, medals and currency at the state library in Hartford, a collection of Masonic medals and badges which belonged to George Ambrose Sturdy, late of New London.

Mr. Sturdy, who for years was the grand secretary of the grand council of Royal and Select Masters of Connecticut, and was also secretary of Brainard lodge and of Union chapter, Royal Arch Masons of New London. He was recorder of Cushing council, Royal and Select Masters and of Palestine Commandery, Knights Templar of New London. The Mitchelson collection includes many other Masonic medals and badges and the collection was received with great appreciation.

GAVE PAGEANT AT CANDLE LIGHT VESPERS

Candle light vespers and the pageant of the Consecration of Sir Galahad took place Sunday evening at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, at 6 o'clock. The vested choir joined in singing Christmas carols and the pastor, Rev. A. N. Foster read a poem, "The Mystic Christmas".

The pageant involved 30 participants garbed in medieval costume and their portrayal of the story of the holy grail as the center of the legendary lore of the English knights of King Arthur of the round table, was very effective and realistic.

Prior taste in arrangement and precision of movement the rendition was most gratifying. The auditorium and annex were crowded and seats were reserved for the delegations from other churches which had voted to attend the services.

The Sunday school Christmas tree party will be held at the church on Wednesday evening, Dec. 31 at 7:30 o'clock.

DAMAGE SUIT OVER SALE OF PROPERTY

According to papers filed with the clerk of the superior court in this city, damages of $5000 and a decree for conveyance "or that the title be otherwise vested in him," are sought by Kles Goldstein, of Colchester, against Lunifield, et ux, of Colchester.

It is alleged that on Dec. 10, 1926, Mr. and Mrs. Lunifield agreed to sell to the plaintiff the farm known as the Sam Morgan place, together with the personal property, for $8,300. It is further alleged that the defendants refused to go through with the sale although the plaintiff is ready, able and willing to buy.

FACES CHARGE OF EVADING TAXI FARE

Gus Bahmer, Pittsburgh, Penn., 30 years old, was arrested Sunday by Police Sergt. Myron C. Morgan on a charge of evading taxi fare. He will be presented in the city court this (Monday) morning.

FIVE ARE ARRESTED ON INTOXICATION CHARGES

Five men were arrested over the week by the local police on charge of intoxication. Their cases will be disposed of in the city court this (Monday) morning.

CHILDREN OF REVOLUTION HAVE CHRISTMAS PARTY

The members of General Ebenezer Huntington society, Children of the American Revolution, met Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Leslie L. Brewer, No. 168 Thames street, at which a Christmas party was held following the regular business. The president, Miss Betty Spear, presided at the meeting which opened with the singing of America, repeating the Lord's prayer in unison, the bringing in of the flags and the salute to the flag. The roll call was answered by each member giving the name of the ancestor making him or her eligible to join the society.

The reports of the officers were heard and accepted and one new member, Virginia A. Brown, was admitted to membership. The children packed a Christmas box for the Ellis Island kindergarten and material was received for the January box for the workroom at Ellis Island.

The society voted to purchase a picture of the D. A. R. float which appeared in the Armistice day parade. The children were requested to begin saving articles for the rummage sale of children's clothing to be held later and announcement was made that a series of bridge parties will be held to help raise funds for the budget.

Two birthdays, coming close together, were observed by the society, those having birthdays being Leonard Boyce, and David Brewer. There was a Christmas tree with Christmas favors and the children sang carols. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Brewer assisted by Mrs. Frank L. Royce, Mrs. Alexander Durie, Mrs. Charles Standish and Mrs. Myles E. Standish.

CHRIST CHURCH MISSION CLOSED SUNDAY NIGHT

The Sunday evening service at Christ Episcopal church brought to a close the highly successful and instructive mission conducted at the church the past week by Rev. Walter E. Bentley, missioner, former Shakespearean actor and founder of the Actor's Church Alliance. At 9:15 in the morning there was a junior preaching service and at 10:30 o'clock there was the usual morning service with holy eucharist and preaching. The missioner's topic at the morning service was What Think Ye of Christ?

The evening service opened at 7:30 o'clock and the missioner preached on the topic, The Second Coming of Christ and the Universal Judgment at the End of the World. This sermon brought to a close the sermon series of the past week. A special program of Christmas music added to the attractiveness of the service.

NORWICH TOWN

Sunday morning, at the Norwich Town Methodist church, the pastor, Rev. Albert E. Whitten, said in the course of his sermon, taking as his text Isiah 9: 6-7: He commemoreateth at this season the greatest even of history. The very calendar bears evidence of this. The whole of the civilised world reckons time from the birth of a Jewish babe. Every morning the newspapers of the world readjust their date to his cradle. The centuries carry His signature, and the years of the modern world are labelled by universal consent the "Years of Our Lord."

Jean Paul Richter's fine words are still worthy of quotation: "Christ, the crucified Jew, being the holiest amongst the holy, lifted with His pierced hand empires off their hinges, turned the stream of centuries out of its channel and still governs the ages." He has changed the moral order of the world. He is the "Prince of Peace." Therefore, all things contrary to peace must universally and finally cease. The carol the angels sang at his birth sounds this same not, "On earth peace, good will toward men." To spread the spirit of good will in the evangel of Christianit. To harbor an unkind and critical spirit is to oppose Him whom we profess to follow. How often our actions hear evidence that we have forgotten this!

Here we recall Charles Dickens' Christmas story, "Marley's Ghost." It has been said that when the story appeared for the first time it did more to foster the spirit of good will through England than all the sermons preached in the churches. Old Scrooge is too busy making money to bother with Christmas. He has no patience with his nephew who calls in to wish

ACADEMY FIVE WINS EASY GAME FROM WARRIORS, "Y" TEAM BEATEN

The Academy five had little trouble with the Warriors Saturday evening at the Y gym, coming through on the long end of a 49 to 18 score. Although the high school quintet was handicapped considerably by the loss of five star performers, "Ducky" Jackson and "Lee" Pingree, nevertheless they had enough to easily gain the decision over their opponents.

The game in itself did not produce much basketball of any real quality as the Academy so far outclassed their opponents that there was little contest. The winners could probably have amassed 15 or 20 more points had they been of the mind thereof, but they seemed willing to take the game and attempt of correcting various defects in their play and much passwork with less desire to shoot was seen.

Capt. Torrington was high scorer with ten goals from the floor and two fouls for a total of 22 points. Jarvis was next best for the winners with seven baskets and two fouls for 16 points. Both of these players teamed up well and their floor work was very good.

Hilderbrand did the best work for the losers with two field goals for a total of four points.

In the other game on the evening's program the Hi-Y of Danielson took the honors from the local Y quintet, 40 to 27. The up-staters, with the exception of the first quarter were well in front with their pass and floor work completely bewildering the locals. Nisbet, Barrett, husky center, and Sheppard, forward, were the winner's best bets, the former with seven goals and one foul for a total of 15 points and the latter with five goals and one foul for 11 points.

Capt. Brown played best for the losers, his evening's work being four field goals and five fouls for 13 points. Sid Segal also did well.

COAST GUARD CADETS NOSE OUT NEW BEDFORD

NEW LONDON, Dec. 18.—The Coast Guard Cadets came up from behind to win by a score of 31 to 28 over New Bedford Textile school here Saturday night. At the end of the first half the Cadets were behind, 14 to 16. In the last half they showed a brand of basketball not to be denied and they evened it up in short order and in the last five minutes they made several field goals from mid-court.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL LEAGUE STARTS THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—(AP)—College basketball quintets of the east will move into action on New Year's day in quest of the inter-college league championship won last season by Columbia. The opening game will bring together Yale and Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.

Three other contenders, including the title-holder of the 1925-26 race, will make their bow one week later with Columbia opposing Princeton and Yale tackling Dartmouth. Cornell, sixth member of the circuit, will play its opening game against Columbia here on January 15.

The season will extend to March 12. The schedule:

Jan. 1, Yale at Pennsylvania; 8, Dartmouth at Yale and Columbia at Princeton; 12, Columbia at Dartmouth and Penn at Princeton; 15, Cornell at Columbia, Dartfouth at Pennsylvania and Princeton at Yale; 22, Princeton at Dartmouth and Yale at Cornell.

Feb. 5, Pennsylvania at Cornell; 9, Columbia at Cornell; 12, Pennsylvania at Columbia; 16, Cornell at Princeton and Yale at Dartmouth; 19, Pennsylvania at Yale and Dartmouth at Cornell; 21, Dartmouth at Columbia; 22, Yale at Princeton and Cornell at Pennsylvania; 26, Pennsylvania at Dartmouth, Columbia at Yale and Princeton at Cornell.

March 2, Yale at Columbia and Dartmouth at Princeton; 5, Columbia at Pennsylvania and Cornell at Dartmouth; 10, Princeton at Columbia; 12, Cornell at Yale and Princeton at Pennsylvania.

TILDEN WINS BOTH IN DOUBLES AND SINGLES

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Starting his campaign to recapture the national tennis championship, William T. Tilden today won both the singles and doubles finals of the Penn Athletic club indoor tournament.

The former title-holder defeated Manuel Alonso, Spanish Davis cup star, in the singles, 6-1, 6-3, 6-4, and, paired with the youthful Wilbur Coen, Kansas City, won from Alonso and Gena Dixon by default after four hard-fought sets.

In the singles Tilden showed much of his old-time form. Despite his apparent superiority, Alonso gave him a keen contest. In the final set the Spanish player staged a brilliant rally and won the opening four games with the loss of only three points. Then Tilden braced and ran off six straight, taking the last game without losing a point.

After winning the first two sets of the doubles, 7-5 9-7, Alonso, who had played two matches earlier in the day, and Dixon began to weaken. Tilden and Coen breezed through the next two sets, 6-3, 6-2, when Dixon was forced to give up the battle because of a cramp and blistered feet. Alonso and Dixon had taken the court with only a ten minute rest after having defeated Sam Gilpin and Carl Fischer in the doubles semi-final 12-13, 6-5, 6-3.

BEARS AND PACKERS TIE IN SLEET STORM

CHICAGO, Dec 19.—(AP)—The Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers played a 3 to 3 tie football game today on a sleet swept field for a Christmas fund benefit. Purdy of Green Bay kicked a 55 yard field goal in the third period and Paddy Driscoll of Chicago kicked one for 35 yards at a sharp angle in the fourth period to tie the score. One hundred thousand tickets were sold for the contest, but hardly more than 25,000 were present because of the rain and sleet.

The tie with Green Bay left the Chicago team in second place in the National league, with 12 victories, 3 ties and 1 defeat. They were beaten only by the Frankford Yellowjackets of Philadelphia, which finished first with 14 victories, 2 ties and 1 defeat.

Green Bay finished fifth, the Pottsville and Kansas City teams ranking third and fourth.

STIFF PRACTICE SESSIONS AHEAD FOR ACADEMY

Practice for the Academy will be held four days during this week in preparation for the stiff test expected Christmas night from the Alumni five. Coach McKean will put his charges through hard sessions and hopes to have the squad in A-1 shape by Saturday evening.

The Alumni will lineup with several amateur stars of the city and vicinity which will include the following: Jack Hinrichs, Phil McNamara, Eddie Mack, Farnk Barber, Tut Dahl and Ell Segal among others and this outfit can be depended upon to give the school quintet a stiff tussle from start to finish. The Alumni will also practice during the week in preparation for the encounter.

Mossman Beats Jackson.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Burt Mossman of Eldora, Iowa, defeated Frank Jackson, fellow Hawkeye, for the world's horseshoe pitching championship here 52 to 49 in a contest which lasted until the early hours of this morning. Mossman, only 20 years old, won five games to three for Jackson.

AGGIES LOSE OPENING GAME AT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—The Crescent A. C. basketball team defeated the Connecticut Aggies Saturday night at the Crescent club-house, 87 to 18. The game was the fifth the New-Mooners have won this season. The Brooklyn quintet led throughout the entire contest and at half time led by 21 to 5. Keating was the high scorer with four field goals and one foul.

The Connecticut team started off in good defensive style, holding Brooklyn scoreless until almost the middle of the first period. Keating was the first to score for Crescent, and he was followed closely by a basket by Van Duesen. It was at this time the Crescents drew away from their opponents, and the Aggies did not threaten further.

DELANEY-GORMAN BOUT HOLDS INTEREST THIS WEEK

NEW York, Dec. 19.—(AP) — The heavyweight elimination scythe will sieg twice this week in rival promotion hands, going into action at Jersey City tomorrow night under the guidance of Humbert J. Fugazy and returning here on Wednesday to operate in the flatic timbers of Tex Rickard.

Into its path tomorrow night will step Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., the world's light-heavyweight champion, and Bud Gorman of Kenosha, Wis. Their 10-round no decision match will feature a Christmas fund show which also includes another time-up fight for the bantamweight title-holder, Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, who is matched to defend his crown here Jan. 7 against Bushey Graham of Utica, N. Y. The champions' foe in a second ten round fray is to be Peter Mack of Jersey City.

Although Delaney will concede Gorman a 30-pound weight advantage, the 175-pound class champion today ruled a 2 to 1 favorite. Promoter Fugazy anticipates a capacity throng of 9,000 in the Jersey City armory netting receipts of $80,000.

Taking over the reaper two nights later, Rickard will cut into a field of six other huskies at a show featured by a ten-round collision between Jim Maloney of Boston and Harry Persson, the Swedish giant. The four additional candidates to be tossed into the paths of the scythe will pit Monte Munn against Knute Hansen, midwestern punchers, and Martin Burke of New Orleans against Otto Von Porat of Norway, former Olympic champion. Both contests will be over the ten-round route.

Maloney rules a strong favorite over Persson, whose stock took a tail tumble last week when he lost a decision unexpectedly to Pat McCarthy in Hartford.

LEADING NEGRO BOXERS TO PERFORM FOR LANGFORD

BOSTON, Dec. 19.—(AP)—Leading negro boxers of New England have expressed their willingness to participate in the bouts sanctioned by the New York athletic commission for the benefit of Sam Langford, famous old Boston "tar Baby".

Once hailed as the greatest battler of his weight in the world and veteran of scores of ring encounters with the best fighters of his day, Langford today is almost blind and poverty stricken. He recently appealed to the National Sports alliance for $500 with which to establish a bootblack stand in this city.

Friends of the former boxer, who already has lost the sight of one eye and is partly blind in the other, hopes to raise sufficient funds from the benefit show to enable him to live comfortably for the rest of his life.

Langford recently has been acting as trainer and advisor to Homer Robertson, Boston negro middleweight and former national amateur middleweight champion. Robertson is among the negro boxers who have volunteered to take part in the benefit show. Others include Chick Suggs, New Bedford featherweight; George Robinson, Cambridge middleweight; and Jack Townsend, Boston heavyweight. The date for the show has not been announced.

JOE TURNESA WINS SACRAMENTO OPEN GOLF TOURNAMENT WITH 287

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 19.—(AP)—Overcoming a three stroke advantage by scoring a brilliant 69 on the final eighteen holes, Joe Turnesa of New York today took first place from a large field of the country's foremost stars in Sacramento's $2,500, open golf tournament over the Del Paso Country club course. Turnesa had a total of 287 for the 72 hole tournament.

Eddie Loos of Chicago, who was tied with Turnesa for the lead at the end of the first and second day's play, slipped badly on the last lap and took second place with a total of 290. His last round was 75. Loos' Smooth 72 in the morning round had given him a three stroke lead over the field at the end of 54 holes.

Harold Sanderson, Deal, N. J., displaced "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, for third place with two wonderful rounds of 71 and 69 for a total of 292. Mehlhorn was fourth with 293.

Other players to place in the money prizes were Frank Walsh, Bobby Cruickshank, Al Watrous, Al Espinosa, John Golden, Arthur Demane, Tommy Armour, Johnny Farrell, Abe Espinosa, Larry Nabholtz, Mel Smith, Ed Dudley and Frank Minch.

Minch, Del Paso pro., had a total of 305 to tie for sixteenth place. Turnesa drew down $600 for first place with graduated awards for the first sixteen players.

Abe Espinosa was in magnificent form in the afternoon round and equalled the course record of 68 made Saturday by Arthur Demane, of Great Neck, Long Island, N. Y. Espinosa missed a six foot putt on the 18th green for a 67. In equalling the course record, he set up a new mark for the first time holes by scoring a 32, five strokes under par. He had another birdie at the tenth, making him six strokes better than par at that point.

The scores:

J. Turnesa, New York, 143—75—69—287.

Eddie Loos, Chicago, 148—72—75—290.

B. Mehlhorn, unattached, 145—74—74—293.

T. Armour, Washington, 148—76—77—301.

A. Demane, New York, 144—78—78—300.

R. A. Cruickshank, New York, 150—71—74—295.

Larry Nabholtz, Cleveland, 150—78—78—306.

J. Farrell, New York, 151—74—76—301.

J. Golden, New Jersey, 151—74—74—299.

Al Watrous, Grand Rapids, 151—73—71—295.

C. F. C. CLASHES WITH BALTIC M. S. TONIGHT

The C. F. C. of this city and the Baltic Men's club are scheduled to clash at the Y gym this Monday evening in what should be a fast tussle throughout.

The locals will present their regular lineup with the possible exception of Leffingwell who was injured in a previous game. They will start the game in the following order: Lambert and Jackson, forwards, Ludlow, center, Brown and Capt. Armstrong, guards.

The Baltic quintet will present a strong lineup in an attempt to return home with the bacon. A fast preliminary is slated for 8 o'clock between the Y camps and the Y intermediates, both of this city.

AMATEURS AGAIN TURN BACK HAGEN AND HUNTER

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 19.—(AP)—The amateur duo—George Von Elm, National champion, and Dr. Paul Hunter, many times California state titleholder, golfed its way to another victory over the professional team of Walter Hagen, unofficial world's champion, and Willie Hunter, who formerly held the British amateur crown, in exhibition play here today.

The amateurs, who last Friday chalked up a five and three triumph, were up, at the end of today's 36 hole ...

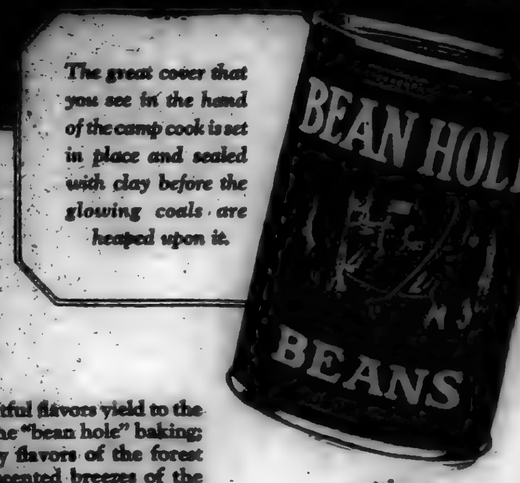
A layer of beans
—a layer of pork
—another layer of beans
—and a layer of pork
—then a cup of molasses
—and a cup of brown sugar

Sealed tightly in this big iron bean pot —buried under a heaping pile of dying embers baked slowly for 12 hours mellow, tender as butter



The great cover that you see in the hand of the camp cook is set in place and sealed with clay before the glowing coals are heaped upon it.

Flavored clear through

. . . . with their own wonderful juices, delicious sugar cured prime pork, molasses and brown sugar.

No way of baking beans produces such fine baked bean flavor as the Maine woods earthen oven called the "bean hole."

Without question this method of preparation adds greatly to flavor, not only on account of the way they are baked, in hot coals over night, but because of the bean pot in which they are baked.

The very shape of this big-bellied iron pot accommodates itself to the pile of hot coals heaped over it and the beans are baked evenly and thoroughly on both sides, top and bottom, baking through and through the last layers of beans and pork on top as thoroughly as the first layers on the bottom.

New and delightful flavors yield to the thoroughness of the "bean hole" baking; and then the very flavors of the forest itself, the sweet scented breezes of the woods, the appetizing odor of the ground oven's blackened sides; the camp fire's dying embers—all impart their wonderful fragrances.

Those who know how appetizing "bean hole" beans are would have baked beans in no other way if it were not for the inconvenience of preparing them out-of-doors.

Now for the first time every one may have this appetizing out-of-doors "woods" flavor in baked beans in convenient, available form.

NEW LONDON FIRE CHIEF TO SUE— RUN INTO BY DAIRIES CO. TRUCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 19—Fire Chief Charles H. Rose Saturday caused a suit for $15,000 damages to be brought against the Eastern Dairies Co., Inc., 92 Pequot avenue, claiming that amount of damages for injuries which Chief Rose sustained last summer when the fire department's speed automobile was struck by a truck of the defendant company. Property of the company, including its building and its equipment were attached Saturday by Deputy Sheriff Miguel J. Martin. The city of New London has also caused suit for damages in the sum of $500 to be instituted against the ice cream company for damage sustained by the automobile. Both cases are returnable before the superior court at its January session.

Chief Rose suffered his injuries, principal among which was a compound fracture of the left, when he was responding to a fire in the southern section of the city. The speed auto was being driven by Wesley Woods and upon leaving the fire station, proceeded through Union street to Pearl street. As the auto headed for Bank street she was crashed at the corner of Green street by the ice cream company truck. The speed auto being wrecked and forced off the highway and against a building. Chief Rose was taken to Lawrence hospital, where he was a patient about three months. He is still disabled, walking with difficulty.

FOUND IN RIDGEWOOD PARK IN DANGER OF FREEZING

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 19—George Hagney was found in such a drunken condition Saturday night that it was strange he was not frozen to death or suffering from exposure to such an extent that hospital treatment was required. Instead he is locked up at the police station, apparently none the worse for his experience and will be presented in the Waterford town court Monday afternoon. Hagney in his intoxicated condition wandered to Ridgewood park, back of Ocean Beach and about 8:30 o'clock when Walt Dimmock and August Govencello were walking through the park they were found down and out. Dimmock and Govencello placed Hagney in their automobile and conveyed him to the police station for to allow him to remain in the open with the temperature close to zero would probably have resulted in Hagney's death.

BOOZE SENDS TWO MORE TO WRECKS TO WORKHOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 9—Two more in trying to mix additional liquor with the liquor they already had in their possession, they became intoxicated easily, without proper food or rest and irregular in their meals if they ate at all. Two of the victims were committed to the workhouse from the police court Saturday. They are John Hetherington and John Sullivan, the latter a second term, while the latter is serving a sentence for being drunk and disorderly. Hetherington has spent a number of terms in the police station since his arrival in this city from Scotland. Sullivan has been a frequent visitor to the police station since last October last. He is capable of steady work, but he does odd chores about and picks up some money in that way. He has been an inmate of the alms house, but was so obstinate there that he would not stay. He has threatened to kill himself several times, but he has been unsuccessful. He seems to have run into some trouble and was presented in court Saturday as a vagrant. He said he was not able to work, a fact that was apparent even if he did not admit it. In the absence of a hangover duty he was sent by the court to the workhouse. Billings was drunk and disorderly. He could not show that he had visible means of support. He also was sent up. He said he worked a few hours daily about a hotel, meanwhile he went thirsty, but that was not the truth, manifestly. Yards about hotels are not cleaned up daily at this time of the year. Both men will have a warm place to sleep, they will be away from the weather and will have food, that is wholesome and which will satisfy hunger. They are only two of a number of such cases to be seen in the city daily.

Miss Elizabeth Ennis, of 10 Methodist street and Mrs. Fred Barker and infant son, 30 Mercer street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today. Miss Ennis suffered a fractured arm a fortnight ago when she fell from a bicycle which she was riding.

George J. Kiley has sold a building lot, Norwood avenue, to Charles D. Carroll.

William Callahan, 126 Third street, Woonsocket, R. I., was found on State street early Saturday morning suffering from an acute attack of asthma. He was taken to the police station and a physician, who was summoned to attend Callahan, ordered his removal to Home Memorial hospital, where his condition was said to be serious.

One of the fire alarm wires on Williams street, near Main street, became dislodged early Saturday morning and was discovered by Patrolman John Sullivan dangling from the pole. It was believed that the wire was the property of the Connecticut Power company but a repair gang sent to make repairs determined that the wire was the property of the city. Electricians of the fire department went to the pole and made repairs.

Carl L. Miles, 21, United States Coast Guard, a member of the crew of the U. S. S. Shaw, state pier, was arrested Saturday night by Patrolman William Riordan charged with breach of the peace by Francis Donegan. Miles was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $25 and will be presented in the police court Monday morning.

Henry C. Begue, P. O. Box 88, Montville, came to New London Saturday afternoon and during his stay in this city he went to a State street barbership. While there his overcoat was stolen. Begue not discovering the theft until he was about to leave the shop. He went to police headquarters and reported his loss, but no trace of the thief or the coat was found.

Dr. Albert A. Bishop, 2 Nameaug avenue, drove his automobile to State street late Saturday afternoon and after he attempted to start the engine last night the mechanism failed to function. It developed that the trouble was located in the battery and because of the hour it was necessary to park the automobile for the night as repairs could not be made. Today the automobile was removed to a garage.

Louis Kaplan, Bank street merchant, reported to the police Saturday evening that his Hudson coach had been stolen from the rear of 78 Bank street. The state police, Groton barracks, New London police, and the police of Norwich, Westerly, New Haven and Hartford, were requested to be on the lookout for the stolen auto. Hardly had the telephone requests been concluded when Kaplan notified the police that the auto had not been stolen, but had been used by a friend without the knowledge of the owner.

The New Haven police reported to the New London police Saturday night that two automobiles had been stolen earlier in the day from streets of the Elm city and requested that a lookout be kept for the autos. One of the automobiles is a Dodge sedan, 1923 model and carries Connecticut registration number. The other is a Star coach, 1927 model and of Connecticut registration No. 8X—2164.

William Kosatlin, 76, familiarly known as "Dutch Billy," and employed at the Hotel Royal, died at Home Memorial hospital Friday night, having been a patient there less than a day, death resulting from a shock Friday morning. Kosatlin, who was born in Germany and resided in New London many years. He was a carpenter many years ago was foreman in the employ of Bolles Stull, local contractor. He was at one time a member of Pequot lodge of Odd Fellows and during such membership he went through the chairs in an unclothed manner. He was also at one time a member of Herwegh lodge, Sons of Hermann.

Charles Lawski, 22, of 128 North Bank street, who was arrested Friday night by Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolman Lawrence Pardy, charged with intoxication and carrying concealed weapons was not presented in the police court Saturday morning. Lawski, who had been admitted to bail of $200, furnished by Louis Milenbein, jumped his bail. His bond was ordered forfeited by Judge Victor Prince Saturday morning. Lawski, it became known today, was taken out of the city by a friend, a Polish youth residing on North Bank street. Lawski secured the services of his friend and was driven to Meriden at 4 o'clock Saturday morning. Lawski left his friend in Meriden and the latter returned to New London. It is possible that Lawski's friend will be arrested charged with aiding a prisoner to escape. Lawski went to the Crown theatre Friday evening and had been drinking. While there he displayed a fully loaded 38-calibre revolver, and caused such annoyance to patrons that the police were summoned and Lawski was arrested. He is considered a dangerous character by the police.

A sailor from the United States Coast Guard station base, state pier, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman Henry Sylvia, charged with breach of the peace. He was locked up and will be presented in the police court Monday morning. The sailor, according to the police, had been a patron of the Nicholas Haddad locker room, 129 Main street and where Haddad does tailoring for the sailors. Haddad had clothes in his possession belonging to the sailor, but refused to give them to the latter, because, he said, the sailor owed him money. This afternoon the sailor entered the locker establishment and demanded his clothes. When they were refused him the sailor started to battle Haddad for his clothing. Mrs. Haddad telephoned to the police that a fight was in progress at the locker room and that a murder would be committed unless the sailor was taken into custody. Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith were sent to the Main street place, but before they arrived there Patrolman Sylvia had happened along and arrested the sailor. He was turned over to Automobile Officer Clarence Martin who was attracted to the Haddad place by a crowd collected in the street as Martin was on his way to the police station.

Mrs. G. K. Smith and daughter, of Broad street, are at Miami, Fla., where they will remain indefinitely, having left New London Friday night for the southern resort.

A still alarm caused Deputy Fire Chief Calvin Edmunds and the Pequot Hose company to go to Lighthouse Inn, Lower Boulevard, Friday night and combat a chimney fire that gave indications of becoming serious. The firemen subdued the burning soot with a small quantity of chemicals and without damage of consequence resulting.

A man of about 60, a stranger in this city, is being given shelter at police headquarters. Saturday afternoon he approached Patrolman Henry Sylvia on Main street and requested to be locked up as he was without funds and was suffering from the cold.

COUNCILOR MAY'S PETITION HAS 486 SIGNATURES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 9—The petition circulated by Councilor James A. May several weeks ago, requesting the city council to call a special city election that the voters and taxpayers might cast their ballots to approve or disapprove the action of the council in authorizing payment of $12,000 to Mr. Swan of New York to come to New London and lay out a zoning area, was filed with City Clerk Julian D. Moran Saturday noon. The petition contains the signatures of 486 voters, 89 more than is necessary to compel the calling of the special election. Councilor May stated that he had personally checked up the signatures and found that all but 15 of the names appeared as registered voters of the city, which makes it compulsory that the special election be held. City Clerk Moran will determine the validity of the signatures the coming week and the petition will go to the council that a date for the special election may be fixed at the meeting of the council to be held Dec. 27. Councilor May stated that he is not opposed to the zoning of the city, but that he is opposed to an outsider being brought to New London and handed $12,000 when there are competent residents of the city qualified to perfect the zoning problem. The election to approve or disapprove the petition will probably take place the early part of January.

With mid-winter temperature, for the mercury has registered close to the zero point the past 48 hours, several ponds in and on the outskirts of the city, have become frozen sufficiently to permit skating with safety and as a result these ponds were thronged with young people today.

Orazio DiMaggio, one of the best known Italian residents of New London, is confined to his home on Montauk avenue, threatened with pneumonia.

Ice dealers are planning on storing the first of their harvest this month for with near-zero weather prevailing ice on the several ponds has attained a thickness of between seven and nine inches. With continued cold weather for a day or two, 12 or 16 1-2 inch ice, which is the thickness desired, will have been attained, so harvesting can start.

The police are still making a concerted effort to apprehend George Wesley, 16 John street negro, who slashed Henry (Red) Ellison, government transport fireman, in the gambling resort, 16 Atlantic street Tuesday night. All day Saturday colored men and women were brought to police headquarters in an effort to learn Wesley's whereabouts. So far all information was obtained it is believed that Wesley is being harbored somewhere, either in the city or nearby. Since it is known that Wesley was without funds when he slashed Ellison it can be realized that he would be unable to go far in his automobile and for that reason, alone, the police contend that the negro is not far from New London, if indeed, he is not in the tenderloin district. Wesley's housekeeper, a girl of not more than 22, who had the appearance of a child more than a young woman, was brought to the police station, together with several other men and women Saturday afternoon. The housekeeper declared that she did not know the whereabouts of Wesley, although she admitted having received telephone calls from him, but also declared that she did not know whether the calls were from outside the city. Other acquaintances of Wesley stated that they believed the man was in New London, but such statements were also taken as being misleading. Ellison is still receiving treatment at the private hospital and his condition is reported as being such as to indicate that he will be discharged within a few days.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bread Theatre

Alfred A. Santell, the brilliant young director who has given the screen "Classified" and "Bluebeard's Seven Wives", has made another winner. It is "Sweet Daddies," which enjoyed an enthusiastic premiere at the Bread theatre last night. The new production is one glorious laugh from beginning to end, with thrills and love interest and a few other things thrown in for good measure.

"Sweet Daddies" is without question the "Sweet Daddy" of all the comedy dramas we've seen this season. From the opening scene, when a freshly baked berry pie spreads itself over the immaculate white shirt front of Gaston Glass, the gale of merriment which sweeps the audience does not recede until the final fade-out.

Palace Theatre

As clean and wholesome and inspiring as the vast outdoors it pictures so realistically, "Forlorn River," latest of the Zane Grey classics, swept into the Palace theatre last night to stir the sluggish blood of an eager first night audience.

Here is a swift, exciting romance-drama that has much of interest to moviegoers quite apart from its entertainment values. It recreates one of the most colorful and violent periods in the upbuilding of the west—that rip-roaring era when the forces of law and order clashed in a desperate struggle for supremacy with the forces of outlawry. Those were the days when a quick trigger and a fast horse were a man's best friends. Because of this historic significance, "Forlorn River" has an heroic flavor usually lacking in the average so-called western.

George C. Hull, the scenarist, and John Waters, the director, have done full justice to Mr. Grey's original story, both in the matter of adaptation and staging. The picture is a thing of speed and suspense, bristling with dramatic action, which has been skillfully balanced with some excellent comedy moments. In addition, it has the advantage of extraordinary scenic settings, for it was filmed against the rugged background of Zion National park, Utah.

Jack Holt heads a competent cast in the picturesque role of a "good-bad-man." He first appears as an outlaw and fugitive from justice, but later turns against the cattle rustlers in his efforts to rescue the girl he loves. Arlette Marshal, charming French actress, plays the harassed heroine with commendable restraint and sincerity. Edmund Burns acquits himself creditably as Miss Marshal's boyhood sweetheart. To Raymond Hatton belongs all the credit for the many laughs scattered throughout the production. His portrayal of the tramp cowpuncher is a neat bit of characterization.

Before trying to fool your wife or your husband Edward Everett Horton suggests that all married people and single as well go to the Palace theatre and see "Poker Faces", a humorous picture of married life in which Horton co-stars with Laura La Plante. In the supporting cast are Tom Ricketts, George Siegmann, Tom O'Brien and Dorothy Revier. Harry Pollard directed.

Broadway Theater

Norwich has a right to be proud in sending into the world Pauline Frederick, one of the greatest emotional actresses the screen has ever known. She has found what is believed to be a finer vehicle for her talents than her famous Madam X. This new role, the part of Jeannette Picto in Chadwick Pictures Corporation's Devil's Island, provides this brilliant star with an opportunity for the fullest display of her versatility.

Devil's Island which will be shown at the Broadway theater for three days beginning today is the first motion picture ever made with the French penal settlement at Devil's Island for its background. Leah Baird, who wrote the story especially for the star, spent many months of research so that this picture would portray accurately this strange and little known land of grief and sorrows.

In addition to Miss Frederick, the cast of Devil's Island includes several well known players such as Marion Nixon, John Miljan, Richard Tucker and others.

Bobby Vernon in Broken China has a screamingly funny offering, while an up to date Kinograms completes the bill.

Of making books there is no end—otherwise there would be fewer race-tracks.

DRIVER FINED FOR NOT HAVING LICENSE

John White of Lynn, Mass., paid $45.50 to the city court Saturday morning after having been found guilty of operating a motor vehicle without a license or registration. The car was owned by William Karr of Springfield, Mass., and White backed it out of the Thames Square garage and into the traffic beacon at the square. In addition to White's being fined, Karr was ordered to pay for the damage to the beacon, an amount of $40. The base of the beacon was broken and the upper part ripped open as the result of the collision.

PLAINFIELD

DEATH OF MRS. PEARL LEWIS AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 19.—Louise A. Johnson, widow of Pearl Lewis, 69, died suddenly at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alfred D. Ashley at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Until Friday she had been in her usual health, but Saturday she had a sinking spell and fell into a chair. She dressed Sunday morning, but about 3 o'clock experienced another sinking spell from which she failed to rally. She was highly thought of in the community and will be greatly missed.

Surviving her are a sister, Miss Nettie Johnson of Jewett City, the daughter, Mrs. Alfred D. Ashley of Plainfield and two sons, Harold of Plainfield and Fred of Jewett City. She also leaves a granddaughter, Miss Helen Ashley and a grandson, Pearl Lewis, of Jewett City.

The members of St. Paul's Boys' club are looging forward eagerly to their annual Christmas party to be held Tuesday, December 21, at the home of Mrs. Eunice Holmes. Plans for this party were made at a largely attended meeting of the club Tuesday evening in St. Paul's hall.

The girls' physical training of P. H. S. has been re-organized recently with the aim of meeting the requirements of the state programme. There are now four divisions. The first two groups meet the first and second periods Wednesday, under direction of Miss W. Bannister; the third on the sixth period Wednesday under the direction of Miss Wholey; and the fourth group meets Tuesday, during the regular physical training period. In addition all pupils have setting-up drills daily. The schedule of the physical training period follows: Five minutes devoted to marching; 15 minutes to drill; 15 minutes to games; 15 minutes to dressing and preparing for gymnastic work on Thursday, health talks are given.

At a recent meeting of Moosup lodge, No. 118, A. F. and R. M., these officers were elected: W. M., Fred O. Cooper, of Plainfield; S. W., Joseph Francis, Moosup; J. W., George E. Mortimer, Moosup; treasurer, Benjamin F. Dawson, Plainfield; secretary, Orren E. Kenyon, Moosup; S. D., Floyd R. Main, Moosup; J. D., J. Earl Knox, Sterling; S. S., Carl A. Main, Moosup; J. S., John Stones; chaplain, Milo Appley, Canterbury; marshal, Richard Dagett, Moosup; tyler, Milton Winson, Plainfield; auditors, Bradford W. Danielson, Lowell M. Salisbury and W. Franklin Sheldon.

During the week the Girls' Friendly society met in St. Paul's hall for the annual Christmas party. A social time with informal dancing rounded out the evening. Mrs. Annie Crocker is branch president.

In the grammar school the pupils are well along toward disposing of five thousand stamps which will be several hundred more than were sold last year.

The line-up for the inter-class games at the high school during the week follows:

Boys—
Seniors.	Sophomores.
Marcure, lf	lf, Bakanowsky
Peterson, rf	rf, Derda
Baker, c	c, Welsh
E. Hopkins, lg	lg, Driscoll
K. Shippee, rg	rg, J. Fox

Substitutions: Sharadowsky for Shippee, F. Hopkins for Sharadowsky, T. Foy for Marcure. Score 17-14 favor of Seniors. Referee, Mr. Chapman.

Girls—
Seniors.	Sophomores
Yvette Noel, rf	ar, Irene Generous
Anna Donais, lf	lf, Anna Ker
Theresa McNally, c	c, Clarissa Loring
Elsie Maggid, rg	rg, Irene Zercl
Clara Soper, lg	lg, Dorothy Barbe
Calla Bersgren, rg	rg, Norma Da

Substitutions: Barbe for Soper, Theresa McNally. Score 23-17, favor Seniors. Referee, Miss Whaley.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Heyward returned recently from an enjoyable ten day trip to Florida, going down by motor with Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Salisbury and returning by rail and water. A trip down the Indian river was one of the many enjoyable features of the trip which covered over 1,000 miles in all.

Friday morning a Buick sedan bumped into a standing freight car at the second crossing. Quick thinking on the part of the driver prompted him to turn into the gulley and although the car overturned none of the occupants were injured.

William Bellevance of Moosup went to New York during the week to see his son, Edward, at the Post-Graduate hospital, where the young man has been undergoing treatment for five weeks.

Rev. William C. Prentiss with Jason Lathrop as delegate, attended the ordination of Rev. Harold Arnold, in Franklin, Sunday.

The Camp Fire Girls of the Congregational church gave a Christmas party Saturday evening in the vestry. The Boy Scouts were their guests.

Mrs. Herman Johnson was leader of the Christian Endeavor Sunday evening. The subject was, "How We Can Express the Christmas Spirit?"

Miss Dorothy F. Pdentius, a student at Stain Margaret's school Waterbury, came home Saturday for the Christmas vacation.

Fred Lyon is ill with grip.

Mrs. Benjamin Briggs, who fell recently, remains in a serious condition at her home on Railroad avenue.

The annual meeting of the Boy Scouts was held recently in the Congregational vestry. Through the kindness of Mrs. Lotta Dodge and Mrs. Elmer Phillips, the scouts were given a meat pie supper. During the evening a brief farce was put on by Raymond Roode and Arnold Smith. The following officers were elected: Secretary, Arnold Smith; treasurer, Paul Phillips. John Dodge and Paul Phillips were appointed patrol leaders.

The M. M. Club held its Christmas and annual meeting at the home of Mrs. Irving Flagg. Christmas gifts were exchanged, whist was played. The first prize was won by Harriet Chapman and was a pair of fancy shoe trees; second, a set of salt and pepper shakers, was won by Mrs. John Bradford. The consolation, a lingerie set, was awarded Mrs. Raymond Lathrop. During the business session the election of officers took place and resulted as follows: President, Miss Florence Wibberly; vice president, Mrs. John Gallup; secretary, Miss Treasa Sullivan; treasurer, Mrs. John C. Kingsley. A lunch of sandwiches, pickles, cake, coffee and candy was served by the hostess.

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—(AP)—A spectacular buying movement, which rivalled in breadth and volume some of the greatest "bull" markets in stock exchange history, was set in motion this week by the proposal of the United States Steel corporation, to reward its stockholders with a 40 per cent stock dividend worth more than $200,000,000.

At the close of the week, after a readjustment from the first sensational advance the average price of selected industrial stocks was at the highest level ever recorded and the railroad averages reached a market unequalled since 1913.

The two outstanding individual performances of the week were given by U. S. Steel and Atchison Railway. The former established a new record price of 160 1-2 on a turnover which exceeded 600,000 shares the day following the announcement of the corporation's "melon cutting."

Atchison, which is expected to make a similar distribution to stockholders next year, soared more than 10 points during the week to the best price in its history at 160 7-8. Stocks of many other large corporations in a position to make more liberal disbursements were buoyant.

Foreign exchange trading was featured by a rise in the French franc to the year's peak price above four cents on reports that stabilization measures would be undertaken next year with the aid of an American loan.

Commodity markets were unusually quiet. Wheat futures fluctuated within a one cent range, and cotton scored a moderate recovery.

COURT TO SET DATE FOR McCOOK HEARING

Hearing on State Attorney Arthur M. Brown's motion of demurrer in the case of the state vs. John J. McCook, et al, which was to have been heard at the short calendar session of the superior court in this city, Friday, was postponed by Judge Allyn L. Brown, as the respondents' counsel were not in court. Judge Brown postponed the hearing of the motion to a date to be fixed by the court upon motion of counsel for the McCooks. Dr. J. J. McCook, principal defendant in this action, is seriously ill and is said to be at "death's door." Due to the fact neither party would be inconvenienced by the continuance, the matter was postponed to some time in January, it was said.

The state seeks to acquire the land of the McCooks in East Lyme joining the Seaside sanatorium by condemnation proceedings, which the state sets forth is necessary for an addition to the sanatorium property for the proper care of children crippled with bone tuberculosis.

Sherman F. Woodward of Bethany, New Haven county, and Morris Gold of New Haven were given judgment by Brown in the amount of $44,235 against Solomon, Hyman, Louis and Barnet Liebman of New Haven, formerly of Lebanon, and the Broadway Bank and Trust Co., of New Haven.

They will become the owners of the Grand Lake hotel property the second Monday in February, if the defendants do not redeem their property before that time. The judgment was by strict foreclosure and not by public sale or auction.

This is the second time within a year that the hotel property has been in litigation. The first time the property was foreclosed by the Progressive Finance & Realty Co. against the Liebmans.

The hotel property is located in the town of Lebanon.

HELD FOR USING U. S. MAILS TO DEFRAUD

Frank Edgar, 19, of South Coventry, was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Earl Mathewson in Norwich Saturday morning to answer to a charge of using the United States mails to defraud. The accused waived examination and is being held for the U. S. district court to be held in New Haven the fourth Tuesday in February. Bonds of $300 were named. Edgar was proprietor of the now defunct Progressive Card shop, with headquarters on Church street, Willimantic.

Edgar advertised through newspapers in different cities and other mediums that upon the receipt of one dollar he would remit to patrons fifteen printed or colored cards. There were numerous complaints that he did not make good his bargain after receiving the dollar and at the instigation of the postal authorities a warrant was made out for the young man. He was arrested at Willimantic by Officer Hurley and brought to Norwich by Deputy U. S. Marshal A. P. Marsh of New Britain. Edgar is said to have admitted his guilt. According to the commissioner, the amount of money received by Edgar for which no cards were returned was small.

ALLEGED DRUNKEN DRIVER UPSETS COUPE PARKED BY ROADSIDE

After the Overland, touring car he was driving had crashed into the rear of a Ford sedan owned by Raymond Christiansen of Corning, road in front of the Moose home, Laurel Hill avenue, about 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening, William C. Hayman, 42, of No. 4 Thames Terrace, was arrested on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor. Hayman was driving down the hill, evidently headed towards Shetucket street, when he crashed into the rear of the coupe. The impact pushed the coupe up the high embankment by the roadside and the coupe, becoming overbalanced, fell over sideways on its left hand side, in the street.

The crash broke the windshield on the touring car and smashed the lens in both headlights and damaged the radiator. Beyond this the touring car was little damaged. Hayman was cut by flying glass and after his arrest by Officers Peter Driscoll and Michael Dwyer, was given medical attention at the police station by Dr. William T. Driscoll. Hayman was found to be suffering from a lacerated wound on the right hand and a cut on the nose. Sergt. Matthew Delaney booked Hayman on a charge of driving while under the influence and held him in bonds of $300 for his appearance in the city court this (Monday) morning.

The Christiansen machine was apparently little damaged in its upset. The glass in the left hand windows was smashed, the spare tire carrier practically ripped from its fastenings, and the left hand side of the body was scratched and somewhat damaged. Mr. Christiansen had parked the machine by the roadside just a few minutes before the crash and had gone into the Moose home.

PREACHED ON LEGEND OF THE VIRGIN BIRTH

The Legion of the Virgin Birth as Related to the Christmas Message, was the theme of the sermon delivered by Rev. A. N. Foster, pastor of the church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist at the Sunday morning service. The text was Isaiah XLIX—13—Sing, O, Heavens and be joyful, O, Earth and break forth into singing O, Mountains, for the Lord hath comforted His people and will have mercy upon His afflicted.

For over 100 years Americans have observed the anniversary of George Washington, said Rev. Mr. Foster. That period spans not a little of ignorance and tradition has been busy and numerous variable stories have developed. We are quite confident he would have lived several years longer but for the ignorant practice of "bleeding" by the medical profession of that day and we can believe it would have made no essential difference if he had been born in Rockbridge county rather than Westmoreland and on February 21 or 23 rather than the 22.

The essential thing has been to center thought on his majestic and commanding character.

For over 1,000 years Christendom has commemorated the birth of Jesus Christ. That period spans much of ignorance and superstition and dogma and technique have been busy.

Somewhat doubtful if shepherds would be watching in open fields in wintry December and the presumption is that the Nazarene was born at Nazareth and yet dogma has insisted he was born at Bethlehem on December 25.

The doctrine of the Virgin Birth as reflected in the authoritative creeds of the fourth century and later, is a part of the magnified estimate of bodily sin prevalent in the western church for centuries.

It involved extreme practices of asceticism and penance. Divine approval was found only in the exceptional. In the light of modern knowledge it is pertinent to say that the doctrine implies the physiologically impossible and that it is ethically needless.

If our leader does not share our common lot, how can he be our example?

Dogma and technique have magnified incidental and even irrelavant matters and have obscured the really important things.

And literalism also has made barriers against the natural observance of Christmas.

The beautiful story of the guiding star and the watchful shepherds and the three wise men and the crowded Inn—all that is fascinating poetry and not history despite the dictates of dogma.

We western people are so accustomed to commercial language that we inject its terms even into religious talk. We talk about "selling" religion and making piety "pay" and the "dividends" of worship!

We ask how the earth can "shout and sing" and how the trees can "clap their hands for joy?" In fact we don't know Hebrew poetry when we see it, so literal and so mechanical have we become in the days of our prosperity.

It seems at times as though conventional piety held out Christian discipleship as a price to the dispirited or mental acrobat who could claim to believe the greatest number of unreasonable things!

The natural observance of Christmas implies the presence of children and they imply sentiment and story and song. What other great teacher so tenderly blesses little children?

Reflective, mature minds see in the parable of Jesus the great and vitalizing principles of life's philosophy and recognize their indebtedness to him for seeing more clearly the message of truth and the lesson of conduct.

More than that satisfaction, however, is the blessing that comes from closer acquaintance with an honored presence and a revered character—one whose lips "spake words such as never spake before"—even "words of eternal life". 'Tis this which gives inspiration to our daily routine. Here do we find the large and natural reason for the gratitude and joy of the Christmas observance.

RESERVES DECISION IN CHURCH CASE

At the short calendar session of the superior court in this city Friday morning Judge Allyn L. Brown took the papers in the case of Ross, et al, vs. the Third Baptist church of Stonington. The motions on which Judge Brown reserved his decision were for an order authorizing Receiver Henry Harris of Westerly and New London to pay witness fees and judgment fee; allowance to receiver and counsel and instructions concerning final disposition of assets of receivership.

The church, organized by colored people, went out of existence in 1922.

Mr. Ross of Stonington, who seeks to have the affairs of the society wound up, stated that he has been clerk and deacon of the society since 1886. There are now only eight living members, five of which are residing in Stonington. There is no parent organization and a sum of $8,700 remains to be disposed of.

It is the aim of the petitioner to have the balance of the money go into a fund "for the perpetual care and maintenance of the graves of the deceased members."

MAY VOTE $350,000 FOR THAMES RIVER

Included in the proposed appropriations in the rivers and harbors bill which is now trying to fight its way through the U. S. senate at Washington is an item calling for $350,000 for improving about seven miles of the Thames river. Various New England senators are interested in certain provisions of the measure hitting their states. They are all expected to vote for the bill and this means for everything in the bill.

USE OF SIRENS ON MACHINES IN STATE

The use of sirens on motor vehicles other than fire apparatus has been called into question in a letter to the state motor vehicle department as the result of an accident which occurred in Hartford last week.

According to information laid before the department, an ambulance responding to an emergency call ran by a mechanical traffic signal which was set against it, the driver "relying on his siren to get him the right of way," and collided with and overturned a private coupe proceeding from an intersecting street.

A few days later, the motor vehicle department was asked in a letter by what right the ambulance was equipped with a siren. The question was asked in view of an enactment of the 1925 session of the legislature which primarily gives ambulances and fire apparatus "the right of way over all other traffic upon any public or private way," provided the ambulances or fire apparatus were equipped with distinctive warning devices, such as a horn, gong, bell or siren, but stipulated that "nothing in this law shall be construed as permitting the use of a siren upon any motor vehicle other than a vehicle used by a fire department, a fire company or any officer thereof."

The department has pointed out to its correspondent that that enactment merely provided that "nothing in that particular act shall be construed as permitting the use of sirens upon vehicles other than those used in connection with fire departments, companies or officers." Another section of the motor vehicle law forbids the use of sirens on any vehicles except fire apparatus or police patrols, without written permission from the commissioner of motor vehicles. It is required by the law that that written permit be carried at all times upon the motor vehicle for which it is issued, and produced on the request of any proper officer.

Prior to the 1925 enactment mentioned, such a permit was issued for the Hartford ambulance involved in the accident. Since the 1925 law went into effect, siren permits have been granted by the motor vehicle department only when the applicants have first received the approval of the fire and police authorities of their localities.

COUNTY POULTRYMEN MEET AT BUCKINGHAM MEMORIAL

Poultry raisers in this section of the state gathered at Buckingham Memorial Saturday morning for the annual county meeting and heard an interesting program in charge of Prof. Roy E. Jones and Carl Dossin of the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs. There were also talks by Christopher Chrisson of Groton, successful poultryman who has a plant of 4,500 leghorns and County Walter T. Clark, the latter's talks being illustrated.

The program of the meeting was as follows: 10:30 a. m.—Infectious Poultry Diseases and How They Travel, Carl Dossin, Conn. Agricultural college; 11:15 a. m. Results of the New England Feed Conference and Feeding for Egg Production, Prof. Roy E Jones, Storrs. 12 m., lunch 1 p. m., The Value of Junior Poultry Work in New London County, Carl Dossin, Storrs. 1:30 p. m. Some Things to Which Our Success is Due in Breeding, Hatching and Rearing, Christopher Chrisson Chrisson Egg Farm, Groton. 2 p. m., Results of the Grow Healthy Chicks Programme and Poultry Programme for 1927, W. T. Clark, county agent 3:30 p. m., Revising Brooding Practices, Cutting Labor, Preventing Disease and Utilizing Sunshine, Prof. Roy E. Jones, Storrs.

PRESTON-HALLVILLE ROAD IS OPEN TO TRAFFIC

Road conditions and detours in eastern Connecticut made necessary by highway constructions and repairs announced by the state highway department are as follows:

East Lyme on the post road, route No. 1, the Golden Spur bridge is being reconstructed. Temporary bridge is in use. Old Saybrook, one way traffic for one-half mile.

Preston-Hallville road, route No. 179 is open to traffic, but shoulders are incomplete. Bolton Center road is under construction, but is open to traffic.

Bridge over Quinebaug river at Wauregan, route No. 144 is under construction, open to traffic.

Scotland-Canterbury road, route No. 141, is under construction. Open to traffic.

Woodstock-Massachusetts line road route No. 142, is under construction, open, to traffic.

Norwich-New London road, route No. 12, in towns of Waterford and Montville is under construction. Open to traffic. Through traffic will avoid this work by using the Norwich-Groton road on the east side of the Thames river.

Chaplin, route No. 101, bridge at South Chaplin is being constructed. No detour.

Sterling, route No. 101, bridge is being reconstructed. Bridge is open to traffic.

ASHFORD DEFEATED LINCOLN THROUGH SPITE, PAPER CLAIMS

In an editorial calling attention to "an undoubted spirit of independence observable throughout the state," as likely to crop out in the general assembly of 1927, the New Haven Journal-Courier regrets the absence of Representative Allen B. Lincoln of Ashford, who stirred up things somewhat in the assembly of 1925, and indicates some reasons why Lincoln was not re-elected. It says:

Allen B. Lincoln, a Missourian, as regards demonstrations, and a "bad man" in debate and especially with his informed and convincing pen, was not returned, his little town of Ashford thus missing the only opportunity for fame that has come to it since someone gave it a town hall. It seems the Ku Klux Klan became prejudiced against Lincoln because his cosmic fairness insisted on doing justice to the other side at town meeting and the illiterate notifications placarded on the fences in his district, warning all good men to stand by the republic and for "pure womanhood" 100 per cent, at their peril, were to those who know the innocent and fearless Lincoln, the funniest thing since Hector was a pup.

The winter is pretty sure to be an interesting one. There are important matters coming up and the recent campaign developed a belligerency intensified by the defeat of Mr. Morris and Judge Tyler, that in their friends will take the form of the closest scrutiny. There are already strictures calculated to make headlines only waiting affront to take fire and the moment anyone tries to run off with the gold foil on the dome of the capitol there will be trouble. We look for insurgency before the robins nest again.

Love may be blind but it usually manages to find an eye opener.

NORWICH ENTERTAINERS GIVE VOLUNTOWN PROGRAM

At Voluntown during the week, a pleasing entertainment was given in Union hall for the benefit of St. Thomas' church by a number of young men from Norwich. The program consisted of selections by D'Atri's Wauregan hotel orchestra, Edward Connolly in stories, Fred Dugas in clog and buck and wing dances, Warren Kane in songs, Metropolitan Glee club and F. J. Appleby in soft shoe dancing. The program was well received. After the entertainment the orchestra furnished popular music for dancing. At the close Rev. Father Ludovic Paradis served sandwiches, cake and coffee to the cast, who gave their services free of charge, which kindness was greatly appreciated by pastor and people.

CALLED FOR FIRE IN CLOTHES CLOSET

The fire department was called upon Saturday noon for a fire at the home of Howard A. Maynard, No. 293 Central avenue, a tenement owned by Mrs. Mary Pusatsy, for a fire in a clothes closet in the kitchen. Damage estimated at about $100 was caused and the firemen were compelled to lay a large chemical line and use 51 gallons of chemical to extinguish the blaze.

It is believed that the fire was caused by a spark from Mr. Maynard's pipe, as he had entered the closet shortly before the fire was discovered. Mr. Maynard endeavored to fight the fire before the arrival of the firemen, using a tea-kettle filled with water. He was burned somewhat about the arms while fighting the fire. Engine 3, Squad A and Deputy Chief Henry Taft responded to the alarm.

SUFFERING FROM BLOOD POISONING AT HOSPITAL

The condition of Harold W. Riley, of No. 609 Boswell avenue, who has been a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital for the past two weeks suffering from blood poisoning, remained about the same Sunday night. Mr. Riley injured his right arm at the elbow a few weeks ago and soon afterwards blood poisoning set in causing intense pain and necessitating his removal to the hospital.

No decision has yet been made to amputate the injured arm and it is hoped that the poison may be drained from the arm before extreme measures become necessary.

HEFLIN TELLS SENATE THAT JESS SMITH WAS MURDERED

Alabama Senator Asserted That Attorney General Dougherty's Friend "Knew Too Much"—Pictured Secretary Mellon as Receiving Campaign Funds From "Brewers and Bootleggers"—Avers That Jess Smith Was Assigned to Get $2,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Unlimbering another attack on the Harding administration, Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, told the senate today that Attorney General Daugherty's friend, Jess Smith was murdered "because he knew too much," and that it would "open the eyes of the nation" if the inside story of the recent Fall-Doheny oil conspiracy acquittal were ever told.

Secretary Mellon was pictured by the Alabaman as receiving funds collected from Smith from "brewers and bootleggers," in payment of advances to the Harding campaign fund. In all, he said, the treasury secretary advanced $5,000,000 to the republican national committee, and Smith was delegated to get back $2,000,000 of it from the bootleg trade and through the agency of the United States district attorneys.

To support this statement, the senator produced excerpts from testimony given by former District Attorney Boyles, of southern Alabama, in a court proceeding at Mobile. The court record, he said, showed that Boyles testified he talked with Frank W. Boykin, a friend of Smith, about raising the $2,000,000. Reading from the record, Heflin said Boyles quoted Boykin as saying that "the plan is to have liquor men, the man in the liquor business and the breweries to contribute to this fund," and that United States attorneys in some places already had been arranged with" to do the actual collecting.

All of this testimony, said Senator Heflin, was read at a secret meeting of the senate judiciary committee last April, when Boyles' nomination for another term as district attorney was pending. Boyles himself was present and, according to the committee record, he said at one point that he had not all the things attributed to him. The district attorney did say, however, according to Senator Heflin, that he had asked Jess Smith to help his candidate for United States marshal.

"So Boyles was to get Jess Smith, this bootleg gambler, to have his men appoint United States marshals, to gather in the loot on this rotten work.

"I don't know whether it was Mellon's money, or the government's. But I know $3,000,000 was brought in and Jess Smith was assigned to get the other $2,000,000."

Senator Heflin said he made these statements because he had heard that he would receive a request from District Attorney Buckner, of New York, for evidence to bear out his charge that Smith was murdered. He continued:

"This is one of the reasons why they wanted to get rid of Smith. I stated here the other day that Jess Smith knew more than anybody else connected with the department of justice of the high handed work of Mr. Daugherty, and that the reason for getting rid of him was a very strong one.

"We were conducting here a general investigation of the whole thing. It was rumored also that Jess Smith grew exceedingly nervous over it and that he had made up his mind to make a clean breast of it all. But Jess Smith never lived to make that clean breast. He was murdered."

The jury that acquitted Albert B. Fall and Edward L. Doheny in the oil conspiracy case here was described by Senator Heflin as a collection of "dice shooters and card-players," and he suggested the senate ask that the conspiracy charge against Fall and Harry F. Sinclair be tried in some other city.

STORY OF IRREGULARITIES IN ALIEN PROPERTY CASE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—(AP)—Spurred by reports that Comptroller General McCarl had uncovered evidence of irregularities in the administration of alien property, a movement got under way today for a senate investigation of the custodians' office.

The comptroller general has laid his report before President Coolidge, who has not made it public, but senators who have knowledge of its contents assert that it shows a thorough inquiry is warranted.

On the other hand, Secretary Mellon is authority for the statement that no evidence of a dissipation of seized property was revealed in the McCarl report. That methods of which he complained have been abandoned by the present custodian, and that no action is contemplated by the administration as a result of the comptroller general's findings.

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, who has been demanding a return of the German nationals' property, declared, however, that the report disclosed the "worst system of looting this country has ever known."

The alien property investigation already authorized by the senate, virtually has been shelved because the senate did not provide funds.

Senator Borah, who is chairman of the investigating committee estimated that $60,000 would be required for the inquiry. It is now the plan of some senators to bring the issue back before the senate shortly after the holidays and press for an appropriation.

GROCERY CLERK HELD UP BY BANDITS IN STRATFORD

STRATFORD, Dec. 20—(AP)—Two bandits, one of them armed, held up Edward Burritt, clerk in the Holmes grocery store, corner Main and South avenue, Stratford, at 7:10 tonight, and rifled the cash register of $57. They made their escape in an automobile, which had been left near the store with motor running.

The two men entered the store together and one of them asked for a package of cigarettes. As the clerk turned from the counter, he gazed into the muzzle of a revolver, held by one of the pair, who ordered him to stick his hands up.

The other then directed him to open the cash register, which he did, and one man taking the money, they fled, after admonishing Burritt to remain quiet.

OBITUARY

Charles Frederick Brooker

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Dec. 20—(AP)—The career of Charles Frederick Brooker, 79, copper magnate and leader in republican politics of Connecticut, for more than half a century, had closed today by death.

Mr. Brooker, who probably bought more copper than any other individual in the world, died in his suite in a hotel here today after a long illness from a complication of diseases. He had been in declining health for some time and came here Nov. 17 in the hope that the change would benefit him.

About a week after his arrival he suffered a slight stroke and a few days ago lapsed into unconsciousness. Last Friday he rallied somewhat and his physicians believed he might recover, but early today his condition grew rapidly worse and death came shortly after ten o'clock.

With him when the end came was Alton Farrell, a step-son, who was summoned last week. Other near relatives include two nephews and two nieces, all of whom were in Connecticut. Mrs. Brooker died in 1917.

Born in Litchfield, Conn., in 1847, Mr. Brooker lived at Ansonia in late years. He was for twenty years president of the American Brass company, retiring from that post in 1920 to become chairman of the board of directors. He remained a director in several copper companies, including the Anaconda and Chile corporations and the Chile Exploration company.

Perhaps his greatest business effort was the consolidation of a number of brass manufacturing companies into the American Brass company. He entered the metals business at the age of 17.

Although Mr. Brooker was always intensively engaged in his metal business, he found time to take a leading part in the republican affairs of Connecticut for more than 50 years, starting as a republican member of the lower house in 1875, he was state senator, state committeeman and national committeeman, serving as delegate at large to five national conventions of his party. He also had been a member of the executive committee of the national organization.

The body will be sent to Ansonia tomorrow where funeral services will be held in the Christ Episcopal church in which Mr. Brooker was a vestryman. Interment will be at Torrington, Conn.

USED CASTOR OIL TO CULTIVATE WHISKERS

TIMMINS, Ont., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Pat O'Gorman, winner of $50 cash, a gold watch, a ton of anthracite coal, a rocking chair and a safety razor for the longest, fullest growth of whiskers in a given time, today revealed the secret of his achievement.

O'Gorman, who is a prospector, told his admirers that he laid his good crop and its long texture to castor oil.

"Applied," he said, "externally."

SENATE AND HOUSE SPLIT OVER FEDERAL JUDGES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—(AP)—The row between the senate and house over legislation to provide additional federal judges was broadened today when the senate judiciary committee unanimously went on record against the house program.

The house was charged in the committee with treating the subject too lightly by attempting to pass an omnibus bill to create judges where the need was not proved. Manager on the part of the house were reported firm in their stand for the ten judges, which the house added, and threaten to prevent the enactment of any measures creating judgeships unless they are included.

The dispute started at the last session when the senate passed five separate bills providing for additional judges in the districts of western New York, Connecticut, eastern Pennsylvania, Maryland, and southern Iowa.

When they reached the house, all five were included in one measure with ten additional judges, and this bill was passed by the house.

When the omnibus bill came to the senate, the judiciary committee cut off the additions and sent to the senate calendar the house bill carrying only the five judges already approved by the senate.

STRESEMANN PLEASED WITH THE GENEVA PACT

HAMBURG, Dec. 20—(AP)—Germany regards the agreement reached at the recent league of nations council at Geneva for the withdrawal of the interallied military control commission, as recognition that Germany has disarmed, Dr. Gustav Stresemann, foreign secretary in the ministry which resigned several days ago, and who had a prominent part in the Geneva discussions, made this statement today. He added that it was incompatible with the spirit of the league of nations for other countries to continue heavily armed while for Germany alone there were detailed armament restrictions At further meetings, he declared, Germany "will raise the problem of bringing the idea of universal disarmament nearer realisation."

Dr. Stresemann was speaking at a banquet given in his honor by the free state of Hamburg. As for the country's foreign policy, he said, it would not be affected by the resignation of the burgeois coalition cabinet of Chancellor Marx.

"Germany's foreign policy," he went on, "is supported by an overwhelming majority of the German people; even in circles first opposed or skeptical, the fundamental ideas underlying this policy have begun to take root."

The German leader emphasized that another great accomplishment of the Geneva session was the successful bringing together of the European statesmen.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

PARIS, Dec. 20—(AP)—The forty immortals of the French academy are cautious in their attitude towards the claims of spiritualism in the interests of another form of immortality. They have admitted the word "medium (plural mediums)" to their famous dictionary, but with this definition worthy of the great Dr. Johnson: "Person supposed to have the power of establishing communication between living beings and what is called the spirit world."

SLAYING OF CHILD UNCOVERS TALE OF BASEST DEPRAVITY

CHICAGO, Dec. 20—(AP)—Confessed slayer of six year old Walter Schmith, killed because of fear that the child would tattle about an attempt to force degeneracy upon him, Harold Joseph Croarkin, 26, son of a wealthy family, was held in seclusion by the police tonight.

Although Croarkin was surrendered late yesterday by this uncle, Francis P. Croarkin, attorney and former member of the Chicago school board, and almost immediately confessed he killed the child with three blows with a blacksmith's hammer, no charge had been placed against him.

Jailed once previously for attacking a child, Croarkin said that fear of a penitentiary sentence for a second offense impelled him to entice the Schmith child to the garret of the Devon Riding academy and beat him to death

From eight to twelve other children, equally divided as to girls and boys, had been lured to recent victims, Croarkin admitted after nearly twenty hours of questioning.

He told a story of frightened wanderings from Friday night when he revealed the slaying to two Catholic priests until he was surrendered late yesterday.

As Croarkin left the state's attorney's office today he was confronted by C. B. Feeley, father of a little girl Croarkin was arrested last summer for having annoyed. Feeley was restrained with difficulty and shouted that he would save the county the expense of Croarkin if he could get to him.

Richard Pospishel, 14, who had frequented the Devon Riding academy premises, returned home today after an absence since Wednesday with a story which set the police looking for two men.

An effort will be made to connect Croarkin with a number of depredations of a "cat bandit" who for months has leaped upon unaccompanied women in the Devon avenue district.

DRY AGENTS KILLED TWO DOGS ON GUARD AT STILL

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Raiding a Brooklyn garage guarded by two dogs so fierce that they had to be shot before entrance could be gained prohibition agents today seized an alcohol redistilling plant valued at $45,000 and 10,000 gallons of alcohol, valued at $100,000 on the retail bootleg market.

Two men found at the still gave the names of Frank Lopresti, of New York, and Frank Bandinni of Brooklyn. They were arrested and locked up for hearing tomorrow.

The plant consisted of two 1,000 gallon stills extending from the first through the second floor. The quality of the liquor, agents said, was poisonous. The alcohol not only was bad originally but contained a denaturing substance and was intended to keep automobile radiators from freezing.

Half the alcohol had been prepared as "whiskey," the agents said, while the other half was "in the process of manufacture."

PRINCE CAROL MAY SOON GO BACK TO RUMANIA

PARIS, Dec. 20—(AP)—King Ferdinand's prodigal son, Prince Carol, may soon go back to Rumania to be given the fatted calf in the shape of his country's throne, which he renounced last January. The king, sick in body and tired of the task of wearing the crown, wishes to abdicate the throne and have Carol succeed to his scepter. This wish be made known at a recent secret council at Bucharest, it is learned here on high authority.

Carol is taking life easy at Neuilly and has not seized eagerly at this new invitation to come back; instead, it is said that he has laid down two conditions. These are first, that King Ferdinand must acquiesce in Carol's divorcing Princess Helen, and that if possible she must leave the country before his return, and, second, before he ascends the throne, the present government must be ousted and a democratic ministry headed by Professor Jorga, leader of the opposition in the chamber, and comprising the leader of the new nationalist-peasant party must be put in power.

MOTHER AND TWO BABIES VICTIMS OF HOMICIDE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 20—(AP)—The bodies of Mrs. Lorral Haines, 38, and her two baby children were found in their home here early today under circumstances which police declare form one of the most puzzling homicide mysteries here in recent years.

The babies had been garroted with silk stockings found tightly drawn about their necks. The manner in which the mother met death mystified the police. The coroner took over the woman's body for an examination.

Three rooms in the house were found by the police in disorder. The contents of a bookcase were strewn about. The drawers of a bureau in a front room also had been ransacked.

The officers were met by the husband and father, M. F. Haines, employe of a refrigerator company, who declared he returned to his home early today to find his family slain. He is being held.

OTIS CO. MAY CONTINUE PLANTS IN NEW ENGLAND

BOSTON, Dec. 20—(AP)—The Christmas outlook for two small New England communities brightened today. Ware, Mass., of whose 3,500 population 1,500 labor in the mills of the Otis company, and Greenville, N. H., which could muster but 1,350 souls at the last census, are both "one industry" towns. The report that the management of the Otis company planned to transfer operations to the south threatened their existence.

Today, however, a special committee told the stockholders assembled here that it was possible to continue operations in all the New England mills of the company. While this is not assured as yet, the special committee and the board of directors are to meet this week to formulate a definite plan to perpetuate a New England industry which is nearly a century old.

Ware greeted the news with enthusiasm today and looked forward to a merrier Christmas. The stockholders who attended the meeting also appeared pleased.

Pope Not in Complete Accord With Fascisti

Dispels Hopes of Any Immediate Settlement Between the Church and State.

ROME, Dec. 20—(AP)—Hopes for a speedy settlement of the Roman question, that is, reconciliation between the church and the state, were dealt a severe blow this morning when Pope Pius in an allocation before a secret consistory criticised religious conditions in Italy. Although praising Premier Mussolini personally with unusual warmth, the Pontiff in the course of a fifty minute address, in which he analyzed religious affairs in Mexico and France, as well as Italy, condemned the conception of the state shown by certain fascist elements.

"We declare pointedly," Pope Pius said, "that so far as religious interests, which are the supreme interests of the people, are concerned, the faith in the force of right, in the victory of laws, in the efficacious good will of the authorities is not yet complete or secure.

"It seems that an obscure menace—confirmed by clouds of suspicion, interferences and difficulties—hovers over the activities of the 'Catholic action organization' which is the apple of our eye. It seems the task of the education of Christian youth, which is an important part of our divine mission, is endangered. It seems there is a conception of the state which cannot be Catholic, which absorbs and monopolizes everything, which makes citizens believe the state end is again being emphasized."

It seems the ministers of religion are treated in a fashion unworthy of their high calling. It seems that the laws and provisions, in themselves good, are being enforced and interpreted in many cases by men who, under new names and new banners, remain enemies to society and religion.

"We are hopeful and confident," the Pope concluded, "that it will soon be unnecessary to describe such conditions and conceive such fears and that with the removal of these things and the restoration of assurance and confidence among all honest people, complete, peaceful co-operation for the common good and prosperity may be achieved."

Pope Pius, with considerable feeling, referred to the "persecution" of the Catholic church in Mexico, saying:

"We cannot help denouncing once more the persecution which for many months has raged in Mexico with inhuman ferocity, impiety especially, according to news received at the last moment, has become even more cruel. We have been informed that venerable bishops have been torn from their sees, the government concentrating, incarcerating and even killing pious ecclesiastics and slaughtering the unarmed faithful praying before the venerated sanctuary of the most Holy Virgin."

Despite the protests of our young students, he added, "the persecution has been extended inside private schools."

DOMESTIC TROUBLE LED TO WOMAN'S DISAPPEARANCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20—(AP)—A fruitless search was conducted today by police and relatives for the body or hiding place of Mrs. Gladys W. Houck, wife of a staff physician at St. Elizabeth's hospital here who dropped out of sight last Wednesday.

The husband, Dr. Knute Houck, who also disappeared Wednesday was brought back today from Hornell, N. Y., where he was picked up on a street apparently suffering from a mental breakdown.

Houck, held under guard at Gallinger hospital, gave police no clew as to the whereabouts of his wife. Still in a highly nervous condition, he told a disconnected story of how she had "left" him and how he himself had vanished from his home the same night.

Weeping bitterly, Hough admitted that he and his wife had had "trouble," and that the night before she disappeared he had beat her.

"I was dirty and contemptible," he said. "Then I awoke from a good dream to see her slipping out of the door.

The 30-year old physician dismissed suggestions that his wife might have committed suicide She had threatened to end her life on several occasions, he said, but he felt sure she would never carry out such a threat.

Expressing confidence that once he got home again he would find his wife waiting for him. Houck said she probably was with friends somewhere.

KILLED BY FALL DOWN 90-FOOT VENTILATING SHAFT

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—(AP)—James G. Godfrey of Brooklyn, a sub-contractor on the Holland vehicular tunnel, under the North river, was killed tonight when he fell into a 90-foot ventilating shaft into the bottom of the South Tube at the foot of Calan street. Godfrey was making an inspection tour with two other men and was lighting the way for them across the planking over the top of the shaft when he slipped.

Rose Diamond Found Hidden In An Apple

Chambermaid Discovered Famous Gem When She Bit Into the Fruit.

PARIS, Dec. 20.—(AP)—A modern Eve biting into an apple that did not belong to her has brought about the recovery of the famous Rose diamond, stolen two months ago from the gem tower of the Chantilly chateau of the Duc D'Aumale.

This modern Eve—a hotel chambermaid—yielded to the tempting piece of fruit yesterday morning and tonight all France was reading of how this led to the arrest of the men responsible for one of the greatest jewel robberies of recent times and to the recovery of a good part of their loot.

At first the police merely announced that the diamond, known as the "Trand Conde," had been recovered, leaving the public to deduce that their detective force had done a great piece of professional work. But tonight the truth came out, revealing that the police enjoyed a piece of luck worthy of the pen of the world's most imaginative writer of detective yarns.

The story as it became known tonight was that Leon Kauffer, one of those arrested for the robbery, left his hotel room in Paris Saturday in great disorder, saying he would be gone for 24 hours. Sunday morning the chambermaid whose name has not yet been given by the police, decided to clean the room. She noticed in a valise which Kauffer had left opened as luscious looking an apple as she had ever gazed upon. She yielded, but at the first bite her teeth grated against something so hard that she screamed. Investigating, she found imbedded in the apple a pinkish stone and called a policeman. He took it to headquarters where it was immediately recognized as the celebrated Rose diamond.

Returning to the hotel, detectives found Kauffer, a 29 year od Alsatian. He was rummaging in his room and the detectives inquired: "What are you looking for?"

"For a clean shirt," was the reply.

"You are sure it is not an apple?" the detectives suggested.

The young man turned pale; he shuddered and then said: "Since you know everything, it is useless to deny it. Yes, I am looking for an apple in which I hid the Rose diamond which Souter and I stole from Chantilly."

Emile Souter and two fences were quickly sought and arrested.

M'DERMOTT'S ALIBI IS PLACED BEFORE JURY

CANTON, O., Dec. 20—(AP)—Patrick Eugene McDermott's alibi on his whereabouts at the time Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, was assassinated last July 16, was laid today before the jury trying him for the murder.

Seated in an improvised witness chair, Mrs. Hattie Gearhardt, invalid keeper of the rooming house where McDermott stayed between July 9 and 16, and was known as "Charles Thompson," told the jury that "Thompson" went to bed on the night of the murder at 10:30 o'clock. She said it would have been impossible for him to have left the house without her knowledge after that time. Mellett was killed shortly after midnight.

Prosecutor C. B. McClintock confronted Mrs. Gearhardt with her grand jury testimony in which she was said to have made a statement that she did not know where "Thompson" was on the murder night. She maintained she could not remember having given the grand jury such testimony. She was followed to the stand by Harry Van Gutten, a bus driver.

TWO PERSONS INJURED IN TROLLEY ACCIDENT

WINDSOR, Dec. 20—(AP)—Two persons were injured and several others were badly shaken up when a northbound trolley car was in collision with an empty five-ton coal truck at Station 41 between here and Poquonock tonight. John Rogers, of Rainbow, a passenger on the trolley, received a broken leg. Conductor Bowers was cut by flying glass.

The collision occurred when the truck slid off of the highway onto the trolley tracks and the driver, Frank Jowers, of Hartford, was unable to steer it back. The truck, owned by the Boardman Coal company, of Hartford, was badly damaged. The driver escaped injury by jumping from the truck into a snow bank.

The trolley was crowded.

SOLDIERS "FIRED" FOR FORCIBLY KISSING GIRLS

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 20—(AP)—Because they forcibly kissed four girls, three privates of the Seventeenth Infantry, Fort Crook, near here, face dishonorable discharge and imprisonment.

The kissing incident occurred at an interburban station near the fort and involved Odell Malone, Hillsboro, Texas, Olin Shafer, Redding, Iowa and William W. Bullard, Springfield, Mass.

Charged with drunkenness, disorderly conduct and bringing disgrace on the service, Malone and Shafer were sentenced to dishonorable discharge and ten years imprisonment. Bullard's trial started today.

30 MEN, SEEKING WORK, WERE DROWNED IN HUDSON RIVER

Seven Men Are Reported Missing and 25 Are Under Medical Care For Submersion—The Men Were Bent on Answering a Help Wanted Advertisement of a plant at Edgewater, N. J.—In Midstream, the Launch Which Was Conveying the Men Was Caught Between Huge Cakes of Ice and Capsized—21 White Men and Nine Negroes Were Drowned.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20—(AP)—A pitiful platoon of the army of the unemployed set forht across the Hudson river today, singing and in high hopes, but evil fortune dogged their path and the icy waters engulfed them. Of the 62 who left Manhattan, 30 were tonight known to have been drowned, 7 were reported missing and 25 were under medical care for submersion.

A hundred or more men, white men and Negroes, out of work in the saddest season of the year to be without funds, answered a help wanted advertisement of the Spencer-Kellogg and Sons Edgewater, N. J., plant early this morning at the 95th street pier.

A cold wind blew off the ice-choked river and this was no crowd to have fur coats. Men upon whom fortune had long since ceased to smile, many of them were gaunt fellows who asked only a chance to live and were willing to work hard for the chance.

And they were men who had spirit in them too, for instead of cowering in corners from the biting wind they stamped about and sang and danced as they waited for the launch which the advertisement had said would take them across the river.

The launch came, the Linseed King, a frail 42 footer of 10 tons with but a 10 foot beam. Captain John Rohweider of Jersey City, called to them to climb aboard.

"Hurry it up, boys," he said. "There's two loads here and I've got to get back for the second load. I ought to be over there now."

In they piled, till the little cabin was filled (like a subway jam, one of the survivors said later) and others were standing in the deck.

Off went the Linseed King, burrowing her nose through ice floes that made the river like an Arctic sea, hard fresh water ice river men said, down from the upper Hudson and at that time being forced upstream by a flow tide.

Singing still and clapping their hands to keep warm were these men who wanted work, and the sound of their voices floated back to shore lustily over the ice.

Midstream at last and then tragedy stalked unannounced upon the stage. Suddenly the Linseed King careened to one side, ground it is believed between huge cakes of ice with hundreds of tons of other ice behind it.

The frightened passengers scrambled all to one side in a mad effort to right the crazily tilted craft. Like a crazy pendulum the Linseed King swung back to normal and then listed to the other side, over and over and over until the water rushed over her gunwales and she capsized completely.

About half of those in the cabin were thrown into the freezing water or managed to run from the compartment in time to jump. The other half were trapped where they were and death was at least merciful in that it must have been quick.

As the submerged launch floated sluggishly among the grinding ice floes some of the freezing men clung to it desperately while others climbed onto tipping cakes of ice and lay flat with the cold water lapping over them.

The singing was turned to screams for help now, but heard from above the screaming sounded not at all different from the shouts of song and no one paid attention. One lighter captain who had watched the men off and might have been able to aid them, heard their cries but only shrugged as he moved closer to his cabin stove.

"I just thought they were still singing," he said later, "and didn't even get it out of my cabin."

And so it was almost half an hour before the first rescue boat reached the scene. But then they came thick and fast, tugs and launches and fire and police boats.

Twenty-four poor half frozen men were dragged onto tugs and thawed out in engine rooms while being rushed to an emergency hospital established at a New York pier. From there they were taken to hospitals. Captain Rohweider was picked up swimming strongly for the Jersey shore and taken to Edgewater.

Placed under a doctor's care the captain was questioned at length by Edgewater police and then was sent for by the Manhattan headquarters. He refused to cross the river, however, saying that he was suffering acutely from submersion and further questioning would have to wait.

After the living had been cared for the task began of recovering the bodies of the dead. Three were found in the river at the scene of the accident. The others were taken with grappling hooks from the cabin of the Linseed King where it was beached at 254th street on the Bronx shore after being carried upstream by the ice.

Crowds gathered on the shore, some of them wives and mothers and other loved ones of the men who had sought their last job. One by one the bodies were brought up and laid on the ice shore until there were 27 in a long sad row, bringing the total of known dead to 30.

Captain Rohweider told police that there had been 60 men in the Linseed King when it left the Manhattan pier and so search was continued for the seven bodies still unaccounted for. Of the known dead 21 were those of white men and 9 negroes.

A half dozen investigations were begun during the day to determine if possible where the blame lay and whether the tragedy might have been avoided.

WEATHER DELAYS START OF PAN-AMERICAN FLIGHT

SAN ANTONIO, Texas., Dec. 20—(AP)—Baptised with rain and christened in mud, the army's five Pan-American flight planes were prevented today from starting on their 20,000 mile flight.

The planes were designed for water, air, and dry land but not for mud. The particular variety of tenacious gumbo which covered Duncan field here today after many hours of rain held the great ships as though they were riveted to the ground.

The 10 pilots, who had expected by tonight to be well on their way to the south, struggled throughout the morning with changing emotions, now hopeful that they could get away, now uncertain, as rain and fog swirled intermittently about the field.

Finally, after the ships had been formally christened despite the precipitation, and after all angles of the situation had been considered, Major H. A. Dargue, flight commander, announced at 1 p. m. that he would not risk the journey until tomorrow. He set 9 a. m. tomorrow tentatively as the hour of departure.

YALE PRESIDENT FAVORS WAR DEBT CONFERENCE

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 20.—(AP)—President James Rowland Angell of Yale university today expressed himself as being in accord with the professors of Columbia university, who advocate a conference on the war debt. He said:

"I am in hearty accord with the expression of the professors of Columbia university on the matter of the international debt and reparations payments. I have always thought that our American attitude on this matter would, in the long run, be found to be unwise from the purely business point of view as it has much of it seemed to me to be unworthy and ungenerous from the moral point of view. We did not go into the war to make money, much less to make enemies of our allies, and in our own selfish interest, if for no higher reasons, we cannot afford to stand upon a purely legalistic or financial interpretation of any of our war time loans.

"I sincerely hope that some such steps as my Columbia colleagues suggest may be taken by our government and met in a corresponding spirit by the nations of Europe."

ARREST OF DEFAULTING MEMPHIS BANK TELLER

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 20—(AP)—Courtney Glisson, young teller of the Bank of Commerce and Trust company, Memphis, who fled leaving shortages approximating $462,000 was in the hands of the law tonight, according to Memphis police, after seven weeks of nation-wide search.

The whereabouts of the former teller and details of his arrest were withheld by officers who declared Glisson would be returned to Memphis before Christmas day. Disclosure of these details, police said, might interfere with plans for bringing Glisson here.

W. M. PROBASCO HELD ON A CHARGE OF HOMICIDE

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Wallace M. Probasco, son-in-law of the late Robert G. Ingersoll, was released on $12,500 bail today on the charge of "suspicion of homicide" brought against him after Mrs. Robert H. Ingersoll, wife of the former watch manufacturer, was found shot to death in her Park avenue apartment. Probasco was found in Mrs. Ingersoll's apartment suffering from three bullet wounds. He told the police she shot him, then killed herself.

Probasco was admitted to bail by a special session of the homicide court, which visited him in the prison ward of Bellevue hospital and sat in the adjoining room. It was said that Probasco will be removed from the hospital as soon as his condition permits, since his family wishes him to be treated by surgeons of their own choice.

Dr. Charles Norris, medical examiner, found that Mrs. Ingersoll's death was caused by "a bullet wound in the woman's left breast, through heart and lungs, self-inflicted."

Probasco said he went to Mrs. Ingersoll's apartment in response to a telephone call from her. Police said an intimacy had endured for years between the two. Probasco said he had affected a reconciliation with his wife and went to Mrs. Ingersoll's apartment determined to break off relations with her.

When she handed him his hat, he said, she concealed a pistol beneath it and as he reached for it, she shot him.

FOR SAFETY UNIT IN MOTOR VEHICLE DEPT.

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Among the legislative matters which Robbins B. Stoeckel, commissioner of motor vehicles, will propose during the coming session of the general assembly, will be one for the establishment of a safety unit in his department.

Commissioner Stoeckel made this announcement today while telling members of the board of control of the New Haven safety council of his plans for extending the safety promotion work carried on by his office to the limit of its possibilities at the present time.

The new unit would be under the direction of some one who has wide experience in this branch of promotion and that officials would work in harmony with the safety councils of the state and with other agencies which aim to reduce accidents and the general hazard of driving in the state, Mr. Stoeckel said

STEAMER REACHED BOSTON WITH FIRE IN HER HOLD

BOSTON, Dec. 20.—(AP)—The shipping board steamer West Cellas, Baltimore for Hamburg, reached port here this afternoon with fire still smouldering in her hold but under control. A fireboat went alongside to drown out the flames as the ship dropped anchor. A survey of the damage to cargo and vessel will be made before the voyage is resumed.

ELABORATE OBSERVANCE OF CHRISTMAS IN LOCAL CHURCHES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 20—Elaborate preparations for the observance of Christmas day are being made at the various churches in the city. Four morning masses with special Christmas music will be celebrated at both St. Mary's and St. Joseph's churches, the hours being at 5:30, 7, 8, 9:15 and 10:30 o'clock. A Christmas eve service will be held at St. Paul's Episcopal church and the rector, Rev. Frederick C. Williams has invited members of all other Protestant denominations to join in a great union service with a program of carol songs by the choir and the sounding of trumpets on the rectory porch at 10:30 p. m., Friday night. The midnight service will start at 11 o'clock. A holy communion and sermon will be held at the Windham Center Episcopal church at 10 o'clock Christmas day by Rev. Mr. Williams. Christmas services were held Sunday at all other local Protestant churches. Rev. A. S. Muirhead, pastor of the Methodist church preached a sermon on Preparing for the King. At an evening service Christmas hymns were sung with accompaniment by the Nichols church orchestra. At this service Rev. Mr. Muirhead spoke on the subject, The Open Door and a tableau of The Nativity with a musical setting was presented.

At the First Congregational church Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock preached on Christmas—A Day of Poetry and Prophecy. There was special Christmas music by the church quartet and choir. At the afternoon service the Christmas pantomime, Why the Chimes Rang, was given.

Rev. David Winslow Lovejoy took for his subject, Is There a Santa Claus? at the morning service in the First Baptist church and his theme for the evening worship was A Plea for Contentment. Christmas carols were sung by a large chorus of men and women.

Copies of the new Willimantic tariff of fire insurance rates effective at once were received here by agents Monday from the New England Insurance exchange of Boston. The rates, known as the Dean analytical rates, are based on a scientific study of each individual building or risk and its contents, each building being rated for its general condition and construction with credit or discredit for good or bad features.

Under existing conditions the new rates are a trifle higher in general but there are instances where the rate is lower than the old. It is expected, however, that the application of the new rate will follow the same course as it has in other places in Connecticut and that with the correction of defects the credit marks will rise and a lower rate be the consequence.

Two hundred sacks of mail are arriving daily at the local post office as evidence that the Christmas rush is actually on. Most of the mail comes in on the train arriving from the west at 5:36 o'clock. Monday morning fully 100 more sacks arrived on the Central Vermont railway boat train and the early morning train from Hartford. The nine regular city carriers are carrying peak loads and in order to avoid the last straw which broke the camel's back the substitutes have been called in to remain on duty until the zero hour at noon Saturday. A special consignment of mail which this year is being kept on the move the Sunday preceding Christmas arrived in due time. This (Tuesday) a three ton truck manned by Fred LeClaire will go into commission to handle bundles. Special delivery carrier, Patrick Haggerty, has been doing noble work handling an unusual rush single handed for several days.

Fire Chief Henry J. Kelley sounded the warning against the careless use of candles and combustibles as Christmas decorations, Monday. Electric lights, properly wired to avoid short circuits are by far preferable to candles. All lights on Christmas trees should be extinguished before retiring. Inflammable materials should be absolutely avoided.

Mrs. Mary Jane Daley Uncles, 64, wife of William K. Uncles, died at her home in South Coventry Sunday following a long illness. She leaves her husband, three daughters, Mrs. John Boucher and Mrs. Franklin Smith of South Coventry and Mrs. Francis Grady of Hartford; two sons, William P. and Alexander P. Uncles of Boston, Mass.; one sister, Mrs. Catherine Reynolds; and three grandsons and three granddaughters. Mrs. Uncles was one of the most widely known residents of Coventry.

The cold snap which brought the mercury down to as low as six below in the city Sunday morning, quavered and broke Monday and late in the afternoon the weather became comfortably warm. Unless hit and miss predictions of rain come true another cold session such as has just been experienced will thicken the ice in this section so that the ice dealers can begin harvesting before the middle of January. With no freak weather intervening the ice is expected to be about one foot in thickness by that time. It is already seven inches thick at the municipal pond in Mansfield and ten inches at the Brown brothers pond. The Willimantic river at Ayer's cove is covered with a layer from four to six inches thick.

Mrs. Justina Dudick, 34, died at her home on Quarry street Sunday after an extended illness. Besides her husband, Stephen Dudick, the deceased is survived by two daughters, Anna and Edith; three sons, Harry, John and Peter Dudick, all of this city; three sisters, Mrs. Esther Lucas of Chaplin and Mrs. Anna Gerrick of South Windham and a sister and a brother residing in Europe.

Illness overtook Anson B. Olds and Joseph F. Paulhus, regular mail carriers of the local post office Monday morning and they were forced to suspend work. Carrier Olds was stricken while on his route and a relief carrier had to be sent to his aid. Carrier Paulhus, although suffering from a severe cold finished his morning delivery.

A kerosene cook range exploded at about ten o'clock Monday morning in the residence on Columbia Venue owned by George E. Buck and occupied by Charles E. Spooner and family. Engine company No. 1 was summoned. The blaze was extinguished in time to prevent damage of any extent.

Miss Mary O'Neill, daughter of the late Michael and Catherine Sugrue O'Neill died at the home of her brother, John J. O'Neill, 43 Summit street, Sunday. The deceased had been ill for several months. Besides her brother she leaves no other relatives.

In conjunction with the efforts being made by the local business men to accommodate eleventh hour Christmas shoppers by keeping the stores open until nine o'clock evenings this week, the New England Transportation company will operate special coaches to Perkins' Corners and South Coventry the last three shopping evenings.

The annual plea to property owners to have chimneys cleaned out and thereby avoid about ninety-five per cent. of the frequent chimney fires from which there is a possibility of grave danger, is again being made by Fire Chief Henry J. Kelley.

JEWETT CITY

DEATH OF ALBERT DUGAS—HOME ONCE "LITTLE RED HOUSE"

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 20—Albert Dugas, 74, died at his home on Palmer avenue today, after a long period of ill-health. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Noe Dugas, and was born in Griswold. For a number of years the family owned the brick house which gave the name to Amanda B. Hall's book "The Little Red House in the Hollow," and a picture of which is on the book cover. The young man was born in this house. For the past few years the family has lived on Palmer avenue. He was an automobile salesman, always courteous, and had a host of friends. He was a member of the K. of C., F. of A., and the Holy Name society. He is survived by his parents, two sisters, Mrs. Alpherie Tetreault and Loretta Dugas and three brothers, Levi, Dona and Ovilia Dugas.

THE A. A. YOUNG ROADSTER ROLLS DOWN 30-FT. BANK

(Special to the Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 20—Mrs. A. A. Young and Mrs. A. A. Young Jr., had a miraculous escape from death, this morning, when the Hupmobile roadster in which they were riding crashed through the fence and rolled down the thirty foot embankment near Round Hill, on the state road. The machine landed at the bottom on all four wheels, but was faced in the opposite direction. Mrs. Young, Jr., was driving toward Jewett City, when the car skidded on the curve, which was almost glare ice at this point. The fence was torn down for some distance. The occupants of the machine were brought to their home. Mrs. A. A. Young has a strained back, and Mrs. Young Jr., a cut on her head, but neither was seriously injured. The machine which was only recently purchased, is a wreck, and will not be moved until Tuesday.

Special meeting of K. of C. tonight at 7 to take action on the death of Bro. Dugas.—Adv.

MYSTIC

The Methodist church was well filled Sunday afternoon to hear the harvest cantata given under the direction of Ira F. Noyes, with Mrs. Annie Denison Lathrop organist and G. Victor Grinnell, violinist. The choir was assisted by Willard W. Kellgwin, tenor and Charles E. Lamphere, bass.

The largest congregation that has gathered since Rev. Louis J. Shepler became pastor of the Baptist church was that of Sunday morning. The church was prettily decorated with green and red with flowering plants, poinsettias in the center. The decorations were the gift of a member whose birthday came on that day. The music by the quartet was well rendered the organist being assisted by Miss Isabel Grinnell, violinist. The sermon was especially timely. At the Men's Bible class taught by the pastor new members were present making 50, the largest so far.

The attendance of the whole school was 185. Mrs. Davis' class was second 19 being present. There was also a good attendance at the evening service to hear the special music and sermon.

NOANK

The Noank Nuggets team played the Blue Devils of New London in a game of basketball in the town hall, Saturday night before the largest crowd of the season. The Nuggets eoyed with the visitors team and sent them back to the city with the short end of the score, 41 to 16. The contest was one-sided all the way through. The second team went in for 10 minutes and held them in check. The pass work was good and the Blue Devils were lost and did not know where the ball was. Swift Ellis was high man for the evening getting 7 field goals; E. Bracci was next with 12 points. Shinto for New London was the only man to find the hoop for his team and put in 5 from the middle of the floor. Robertson stood the whole length of the floor and with a pretty shot the ball went in clean. Now the Nuggets have won three games and lost three. With Ebbets back in the lineup this week will see a difference in the pass work of the team.

The Boy Scouts play the Busters and won, 28 to 11. The Scouts have a good team, have not lost a game yet, and are trying to have a fast team here. Clark was the star for the Scouts getting 10 points. Sherman for the Sheiks, with 4 goals from the floor was high man. Referee Fitzpatrick, Scorer, Morrison, Timer, Phelps.

Dancing followed the games. Mallett's Ramblers orchestra of Stonington played for the evening. While the dance fans was sitting around the hall waiting for the music to start, Manager Neil Morrison introduced Walter Welles, known as "Lightfoot Jake" who gave a 10-minute exhibition of some of the latest steps. He received great applause from the crowd and was awarded a prize. The dance and game was given by the young Nuggets for the benefit of Noank fire company and a good sum was cleared.

Leo Brewer of East Lyme is spending a few days in town with friends.

The radio fans in the village have been trying to get the golden state, California, for the last week and all have failed except Frank Schoolmaker. At a late hour he got California and it was an orchestra playing in a hotel, which he listened to. When this stopped playing the man broadcasting the station said "California" and bade radio fans good night. One young lady throught she had a station out west and after listening in for 10 minutes, although it was past her bedtime at 12.30 o'clock she discovered that it was a station in New York and was some mad to find out her mistake. She even woke up her brother and told him about it.

DANIELSON

HARMONY COURT ELECTS OFFICERS FOR 1927

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 27—Harmony Court, No. 11, Order of Amaranth held its annual meeting at Masonic hall, recently, at which time reports of the year's work were read and all were interested to hear of the progress made by the court since its institution in October, 1925.

Regret was expressed that circumstances necessitated the resignation of Ethelle M. Parkhurst, associate matron, Beatrice B. Beckett, treasurer, and C. M. Lagee, secretary.

The election of officers resulted in the following corps of elective officers. The royal matron will name the appointive officers on the night of installation which will be on the regular meeting night, the third Thursday of January: Royal matron, Mabel H. Walter; royal patron, Horace D. Burdick; associate matron, Ethel G. Ingalls; associate patron, J. Earle Knox; treasurer, Agnie E. Anderson; secretary, Catherine K. Bard; conductress, Annie E. Knox; associate conductress, Calista B. Gardner; trustees, one year, Miriam Boomhower, two years, William Walter, three years, Bertha Brooalley.

During the social hour coffee and doughnuts were served by Lillie Robertson and William Walter.

The body of William Witter, 83, who died Saturday in Chicago, is to be brought to Brooklyn for burial Thursday afternoon. Mr. Witter was a native of the town of Canterbury, a son of James Henry and Sarah Witter. He remained on the farm with his father until attaining his majority and eventually became an accountant in Hartford, where he lived for years. For a number of years he has been resident in Chicago. Mr. Witter leaves his wife and three children, a brother, Frank, of Hartford, and a sister, Mrs. Estelle Gilman.

For hunters are having a great season. This particular December has brought them unusually satisfactory weather conditions for giving reynard a chase and they have not been slow to seize their opportunities. Already a very considerable number of fox pelts are in course of preparation for disposal in the fur market. Incidentally this season's yield of valuable furs taken in this region include a considerable number of excellent mink pelts and some few otter also have been taken. The trappers report a successful season.

Radios repaired, battery charging and all other radio troubles given attention. Call Mr. James, Tel 342-2. —adv.

Public schools of the town of Killingly will close for the holiday recess at the end of the afternoon session next Thursday. The vacation will extend until Monday, Jan. 3. Supt. William E. Parker of Killingly's school system said Monday afternoon that simple Christmas exercises will be held in various schools, each program arranged by the teachers and the schools concerned.

Opening of the enlarged high school for inspection by the public awaits the arrival and installation of the auditorium seats. It is anticipated that this event will occur some time between mid-January and the end of that month.

Carol singers who are to go about Danielson on Christmas eve bringing good cheer and the spirit of Christmas to all mankind are to assemble in the vestry of the Congregational church following the Christmas tree and distribution of gifts on Davis park in the earlier part of the evening. It is probable that the singers will start out about 11 p. m. Lights in the windows of homes will have the attention of the singers and be regarded as an invitation for them to pause and sing. Clergy of Danielson and the visiting nurse have been asked to supply the singers with lists of shut-ins that these people may have the special attention of the carolers.

At the Nazarene church Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, funeral services for Mrs. Mildred L. Gallup, wife of the pastor, Rev. Palmer E. Gallup, were conducted by Dr. Milton E. Rees, now conducting evangelistic services in Jewett City, assisted by Rev. Harding W. Gaylord of the Westfield Congregational church, Rev. Roger C. Stimson of the Methodist Episcopal church and Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Baptist church. During the service, which was largely attended, Mrs. Kent A. Darbie and Mrs. George Miner sang Nearer My God to Thee.

As at the church service, each of the clergymen had a part in the committal service at Westfield cemetery. The body was entombed to await burial at East Providence in the spring. The bearers were the Messers Barstow, uncles of Mrs. Gallup, Kent A. Darbie, George Miner, Percy Hammond and John Dolloff. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

An amusing development from the unfavorable publicity given Danielson a fortnight ago by a Sunday paper published in the western part of the state and specializing in knocking heads rightand left is the interest the writeup awakened in the mind of a Bridgeport entertainment promoter who specializes in going about this and adjoining states catering to the needs of those who crave amusement. The article in question mourned over the fact that the only entertainment provided for Danielson people is motion pictures. Straightaway this gives him his idea to do something for this community in the entertainment line and he has started negotiations to bring an attraction here temporarily. Anyone who wants to pay can get in.

THREE BRUISED WHEN AUTOMOBILE OVERTURNS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 20—An automobile driven by Tony Gobiette in which Mrs. Rose Lavigne and daughter Rita were passengers overturned on the grade on Farrow street last night and all three narrowly escaped death.

The steering wheel mechanism went wrong and the car shot to the side of the road and started to climb an embankment. It overturned and the top of it was completely demolished. Mrs. Lavigne was badly bruised about her face and neck, her daughter, a girl of 13, was severly bruised and suffered a deep cut on her arm requiring six stitches to close it, and the driver suffered many bruises and contusions.

Mrs. Lavigne lives on Walnut street and one of the apartments in the house is occupied by her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Dubois.

The Christmas sale at the Howe-Marot school for the benefit of the Day Kimball Hospital netted about $600 for the institution. This sale for the hospital is an annual event and the girls always turn over to Miss Bloxham a good sum. It has been said that this sale was the most attractive one the girls have ever given and that is saying a great deal because they have had very attractive ones each year.

William Murray, telegraph operator, is now official code instructor of the Putnam Boy Scouts. Classes are being held in the evenings for the scouts interested in trying for a good rating.

The Oscar W. Swanson post No. 67, American Legion auxiliary of North Grosvenordale has completed the work of filling the Christmas boxes for Allington hospital and they have been shipped to the American Legion headquarters at New Haven for inspection. After which they have been forwarded to the hospital to be distributed among the disabled ex-service men. Each box contained two pairs socks, one flashlight, two linen handkerchiefs, one pair of soft slippers, one package of stationery, one pocket comb, pencils, chewing gum talcum powder and Christmas card. Each article was wrapped in red or white paper tied with Christmas ribbon and decorated with seals.

This auxiliary is one of the most active of the state and the money to pay for these boxes was obtained by giving various entertainments throughout the year and is also a portion of the poppy profits.

The Rev. and Mrs. M. G. Thompson, who spent last summer in Pomfret and where Mr. Thompson took charge of the services at Christ's church during the illness of Rev. F. H. Bigelow, the rector, have gone to Palm Beach, Florida, where Mr. Thompson will supply at one of the Episcopal churches during the winter season.

Rudolph Swanson and Reuben Swanson have gone to Florida where they will work under William C. Van der Laan of Miami Beach. They have been delayed by the uncertain business prospects, but Mr. Van der Laan now writes that much activity is now being shown and that he could guarantee steady work for the winter. Mr. Van der Laan is a former well known resident of Pomfret and is now doing landscape gardening at Miami.

Richard Whalen has returned from the Massachusetts General hospital at Boston where he recently went for observation and possibly an operation. The doctors of the hospital, after keeping him there for a time, decided that it would be best not to operate at the present time.

Mrs. W. W. Arcelli of Pleasant street is the guest of relatives at Springfield for a week.

Miss Celia Aframe of South Main street is entertaining friends from New York city.

Earle Smithson of Hartford spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Smithson.

Mrs. Earle Morse and son Donald have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Morse, South Main street.

Mrs. J. Laundry of Providence is the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. A. P. Gagne.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Dean of Windham Center have been the recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Adams of South Main street.

Arthur Lindberg, a member of the U. S. S. Navy, stationed on the U. S. S. Mercy, now in the Philadelphia Navy yard is spending a fifteen days furlough with his mother, Mrs. Claudia Wilcox of Canal street.

Chandler Morse, a senior at Amherst college and Franklyn Perry a sophomore at the same college are spending their holidays with their parents in the city.

Mrs. Sarah Jones of New Jersey is the guest of Mrs. Helen Willey of Oak Hill.

Miss Lottie Alley and Miss Beulah St. John of Providence street have returned from a visit to friends at Hartford.

UNION

A parish social and sing was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Heck, Tuesday evening. This evening was also celebrated as a birthday party for the son of the host and hostess, Edwin Heck. Most of the guests present were from this town, but Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morey of Westford, Wayland Heck of Sturbridge, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Coolidge of Stafford Springs attended. The evening passed very pleasantly with music and games. The birthday gifts for Edwin Heck who had attained his 21st year, were numerous and useful. The bachelor's kit which his friends had provided for him was an object of much interest and amusement. It contained many useful articles, from a set of buttons and pins to a Ford car. Cake, coffee and fruit were served during the evening. The thoughtful hostess provided a share of these to be sent to friends were ill and unable to attend the party.

Archie Green and family of North Ashford have moved into the Thomas Harmon house. There will be four children from this family to attend the East school.

Miss Mary Bradway and a friend, Miss Harris of New York were recent guests of Miss Bradway's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Bradway. Mrs. Margaret Munro of Springfield was also a week end guest at the same time. The three guests are hospital nurses.

Mrs. Holcomb R. Howard was a guest of Mrs. Harry Palmer in Hartford last Tuesday.

L. M. Reed, who has been ill for a few days is gaining and is able to sit up.

The church and community Christmas tree and Christmas exercises will be at the church Christmas eve, Dec. 24, at 7.30.

The schools of the town closed Friday for the Christmas vacation.

A very enjoyable and profitable meeting of the L. B. A. was held at the town hall Thursday. Sewing was done during the day. A covered dish dinner was provided at noon. Little Edna Horton, her schoolmates and teacher Miss Mary Agard, of the Center school, accepted an invitation to the L. B. A. dinner, thus celebrating little Edna's birthday. In the afternoon, Mrs. Sara White Dimock finished her course of instruction in reseating chairs. The members have greatly enjoyed this course. The president, of the L. B. A. has some very interesting plans for the January and February meetings.

MANSFIELD CENTER

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

That train service from Norwich 75 years ago was somewhat worse than the service today is shown when the fact is known that over six hours were required to reach Hartford from Norwich. Publicity in papers in the state, entered into by the Norwich Courier, quickly brough a change in the New London, Willimantic and Palmer railroad schedule and daily round trips became possible.

News in part from the Norwich Courier of 1852 as as follows:

Tuesday, December 14, 1852—Since the line of the Hartford, Providence and Fishkill road has been determined upon, the suggestion has been thrown out in various quarters that the time was not very distant when the business interests and convenience of Norwich might require the junction of that road with the Norwich and Worcester road by a branch road running from some point near the tunnel, above Greeneville, and striking the Hartford and Providence road at a point in Lisbon, near what is known as "Tarbox's upper privilege"—about three miels ober the tunnel. The estimated cost of building this branch road is only about $50,000.

Another thing that will bring this about more quickly is the poor service being given by the New London and Palmer road. Unless this road adopts some better system of service, Norwich will be called upon to have some real means of transportation to Willimantic and the proposed branch road will bring this to a reality.

The case of the postmaster at Danielson, for the unlawful detention of a package of post office stamps, was to have been tried at Hartford yesterday but owing to the illness of Judge Judson thes trial was postponed. With this case two smuggling cases one for Norwich and one for New London, were also postponed.

A glass bowl containing goldfish nearly caused a fire in a nearby town recently. The sun shining on the glass bowl was causing rays to fall on the book on the table and when discovered smoke was coming from the pages of the book, which had been somewhat charred.

Thursday, Dec. 16, 1852—Bridgeport papers are right when they state that the railroads in this state are giving poorer service than the old stage coaches did. Take for example the trip from Norwich to Hartford, about 40 miles by railroad. One leaves Norwich for Willimantic early in the morning and arrives in Willimantic a half hour after the train has pulled out. There is nothing to do but whistle Yankee Doodle until four o'clock in the afternoon, when another train goes to Hartford. One can however go to Palmer and then to Springfield and Hartford, a trip of 100 miles to accomplish a 40 mile journey. When we figure it now takes about 6 hours to reach Hartford by train we wonder if it is an impgovement on the days of staging.

Col. Alex DeWitt, one of the directors of the Norwich and Worcester railroad has been elected to congress in the Worcester district.

Horace Greeley speaks in this city next week on the subject Self Culture. The course under which he comes to Norwich is known as The Uptown Course.

Quinebaug Engine company No. 1 should have all credit for the fire fighting at Clark's Mill on a recent date. There boys responded quickly and within five minutes had a solid stream of water playing on the fire.

Saturday, December 18, 1852 — We now take pleasure in announcing that a change in the schedule of the New London Willimantic and Palmer railroad will make it possible to go to Hartford and return to Norwich in the same day, and vice versa, and have about 5 hours to spend in Norwich or Hartford before making the return trip. Under this arrangement Norwich may now get her mail from Hartford without it going first to Worcester, as has been necessary in the past. It is also presumed that daily mail service from New York will come back. It is also hoped that this mail will soon come over the New Haven New London road and not through Hartford. Private enterprises are now outstripping the government, papers from New York reaching here by 2 p. m. of the same day, while mail takes many hours longer.

Receipts of the Norwich and Worcester road for the month of November aggregate $21,746.79 as against $18,723.77 for the corresponding month last year.

CHAPLIN

The nominating committee of the Endeavor society has chosen the following officers for the coming six months:

President, Bernard Church; vice president, Mrs. B. M. Keech; recording and corresponding secretary, Ada Lanphear; treasurer, Mrs. J. W. Lanphear.

Dr. and Mrs. A. D. Marsh and little daughter Jean of Hampton were dinner guests with Mr. and Mrs. W. B Gallup last Saturday. Dr. Marsh and family are soon to leave Hampton, many of Chaplin are sorry to lose the services of so skilled a physician, who has rendered medical aid in many of the homes in town for a number of years with marked success.

Rev. Mr. Knott preached Sunday as usual and in the afternoon left to stay over night with their daughter, Mrs. Raymond Green in Willimantic. Monday they went to Pinabing, N. Y., where they visited their son William Knott and family over Monday night. They intend to arrive in Miami before Christmas. Rev. Mr. Knott has labored here faithfully for five years his pastorate including also the North Windham church where he also ministers. Mr. and Mrs. Knott expect to be absent until the second Sunday in April when they hope to return to take up the work here again.

Rev. and Mrs. John H. Knott are to spend the winter with their daughter, Mrs. Fred Fussard and family in Miami, Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Arnold Peckham of Willimantic were dinner guests with Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Trowbridge on Wednesday.

Representative elect George A. Reed who passed his eightieth birthday in September, has been confined to the house for a number of weeks and not able to be out yet.

Mr. Reed who knows how to fat good pigs, recently killed three less than nine months old their combined weight being 1922 pounds, an average of 340 2-3 lbs each.

GURLEYVILLE

Miss Arlene Linderson of Eagleville formerly of Gurleyville is very ill with typhoid fever. Master Philip Linderson is staying with Mrs. Hattie Dodge for the present.

Mrs. Joseph Snow is in St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, ill with congestion of the lungs.

Mrs. Carl Erickson of Chaffeeville was a recent caller on Mrs. Marguerite Morse.

The Sunday school here is planning a Christmas concert and tree.

CRUISER AUTHORIZATION

A sentiment in congress relative to our navy is unquestionably influenced to a large extent by the activities of other nations. That is invariably the case. When one nation gets out of line with the others and seems to be pushing ahead there is an eagerness to keep up with the other fellow. This means an everlasting race involving huge expenditures and really giving that nation an increased advantage over the other. In fact all would be just as well off if they stuck to their relative positions with smaller navies. This was the point recognized and followed at the Washington conference which led to the restriction on capital ships.

Because the British are figured as having more cruisers than we have and because Japan has nearly as many there is a demand here for more cruisers. The strong sentiment in congress in that direction is to a certain extent justified, and the representations made have resulted in President Coolidge giving his approval to a program for authorizing the construction of ten new cruisers. Three cruisers were previously authorized, but it is to be noted that authorization and the appropriation of money for construction are two different things.

As the situation now stands with an enlarged naval program probable, to which the president has given his sanction, it will be made evident that it is the intention of this government to keep up with cruiser construction by other countries if it is obliged to though it would rather not indulge in such expenditures. This indicates the national sentiment and should have its good results in connection with any disarmament conference that is called to apply additional restrictions. An important feature of the proposed authorization is that the president will be given authority to stop work on any such vessels if a conference situation should warrant it.

DAWES AGAINST PRIMARY

As the result of his observation of the working of the direct primary, Vice President Dawes regards it as a failure and he wants to see it abolished and a return made to the convention plan of making nominations.

He has had some excellent opportunities to note the effect of the primary and while he isn't the first to direct attention to the undesirable conditions which it makes possible, he adds weight to the opposition to the retention of the system.

When he attributes to the primary the huge campaign expenditures which have been made, and which have called forth severe criticism, he is on good ground. The old time convention may have had its faults, faults which it was expected that the primary was going to correct, but there wasn't the opportunity for as large an expenditure as there is under the primary. There is now the primary campaign and the election campaign, and when it comes to covering a whole state in an appeal to the voters it means a large expenditure of money can be legitimately made but it gives no assurances that the state will get the best man through such a method. It in fact bars many from participating. He points out the desirability of getting away from the "rule of the oligarchy" and returning to representative party government.

Vice President Dawes' voices his sentiments after the primary results in his own state of Illinois and in Pennsylvania to say nothing of other states that have for a long time been under fire. He could want nothing better than just such instances to illustrate the conditions against which he talks. Even the primary's friends have to admit that the disclosures are damaging ones. Even congress is undertaking to say what it is going to do or not do with the senators elected under such conditions. Because large sums of money have been spent does not necessarily mean there has been corruption. It does mean that the primary encourages such outlays and they can be expected to continue and increase. The vice president is firm in his belief that the remedy for this situation lies in the abandonment of the primary and it is more than suspected that he expresses the views of many others.

AMERICAN TOYS

There is always gratification in seeing American industry grow. There have been some remarkable results because of the chance that was created by the war. The dye and chemical industry has undergone great development. Where we were once dependent upon Germany for such goods we are now independent and supplying certain foreign markets.

Another industry that has gotten a similar chance is the toy industry. This isn't as large as the dyestuff business but it has nevertheless undergone a 12 fold increase in production in the last two decades. Here again we have entered a field which was dominated by Germany before the war. Inability to get German goods after the World war broke out made it necessary to strike out for ourselves for it was quite as necessary to have toys as it was to have dyestuffs. The result is that we are not only producing toys enough to meet the domestic requirements but we are selling them in considerable quantities to Canada, England and Cuba. Importations haven't stopped but where Germany once practically controlled the market, our imports are but about 5 per cent. of our requirements.

By the report of the department of commerce toy production in this country last year reached a total value of not far from $80,000,000. This is not to be sneered at when it is realized that back in 1904 our toy business amounted to less than $6,000,000. We have been forced to do this, but getting into it we have seen a light, acted the chance for American products and continued to furnish more and more until the market now extends beyond the country.

Our exports of course enter into competition with Germany, Ger...any probably puts cheaper goods on the market. Because it can do so it commands a large volume of trade but in those countries where there is a desire for better goods and better toys, the American products are getting a firm hold and will continue to do so. We are now according to last year's figures, exporting toys to the value of only $2,240,000 but that is more than half of the entire production of toys in this country a couple of decades ago.

COASTING ACCIDENTS

Stamford is the latest city to have a serious coasting accident, and one that may result in a fatality. Apparently it was a case where no restrictions are placed on street sliding for the youngster, who was injured and the automobile he ran into were proceeding on the same street.

Such an accident brings to attention the experience of other cities and steps which have been taken therein, either to set aside certain streets for coasting during fixed hours, or the prohibition of all street sliding.

Had Stamford done this it can now be appreciated that the boy who was injured would not now be in the hospital with a reported condition of "not good," but in failing to take action of any character Stamford is not so different from many other cities of this state.

It seems to be characteristic that preventive measures fail to get slight attention but there's a great howl of protest as soon as such an accident happens with demands that something be done immediately. In view of what other cities have done and are doing, before or after accidents, there's sufficient reason in the interest of safety to anticipate the possibilities and guard against them by preventing the dangerous conditions.

There is no community that likes to take action that will interfere with the wholesome pleasure of its young people. Rather is there is a desire to encourage it, but when it is a case of safeguarding the young people it is preferable that a bit of pleasure should be sacrificed to having any of them killed or seriously injured. Between the two, there can be no doubt as to which is preferable.

WAR DEBT REVISION

Whatever else may result from the plea by 43 professors at Columbia university it will give heart to those who have persistently been urging the cancellation of our war debts. That the statement urging an international conference for the purpose of an adjustment of international debts will get some attention is to be expected, particularly so since it is insisted that those who signed it are not concerned personally or politically in the outcome other than the benefits which they believe will accrue in behalf of peace.

How congress will react to it can best be judged by the attitude which has been taken heretofore to efforts for the cancellation of the debts or for reducing them below the estimated capacity to pay. Even the leniency which has been displayed in connection with the terms in the Mellon-Beranger agreement concerning the adjustment of the French debt has been openly criticised, and the belief exists that for the purpose of forcing nations to hesitate and think a bit before plunging into war it is well that they should meet the obligations which were incurred in financing the last war. As long as it is possible for nations which are in the habit of going to war and which have leaned rather strongly to militarism to get their hands on funds with which to wage wra whenver they desire they are less inclined to change their ways than they would be if they were obliged to pay the bills.

Perhaps the Columbia professors can convince congress and the country of the necessity of changing its position but the impression is that it will not be an easy task. Nevertheless their plea is entitled to fair consideration.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—There is a wide diversity of opinion here as to the wisdom of taking up coal legislation at this session, or whether it is better "to let sleeping dogs alone".

But whatever the opinion, there is now little likelihood of any coal measure passing at this time.

Congressman Merritt of Connecticut said this week, in an interview for The Bulletin, that he believed no action should be taken at this time, toward strengthening the hands of the president or in any way agitating the coal question. Mr. Merritt takes the ground that there is enough coal to supply the needs of the country—that with 70 per cent of the bituminous miners non-union men, a strike in the bituminous field could not put the country in distress or bring on a coal shortage. He believes it unwise to stir up a controversy or agitate the matter so long as things are running smoothly. It would only provoke trouble, as Mr. Merritt views it, and there are many other strong supporters of President Coolidge, who frankly hold the same opinion as to taking up the coal situation at the short session which ends automatically March 4.

Senator and Mrs. Bingham have put in a busy week socially as well as the senator putting in long days and hard work at the capitol while appropriation bills and matters of national importance were before the senate. Mr. Bingham has been assigned to a place on the appropriation committee, which is a decided compliment to a senator who has been here but a short time. Appropriations is one of the most important committees in the senate and the selection of Mr. Bingham is regarded as a high tribute to his zeal and ability.

Among the social affairs in which Mrs. Bingham figured this week either as hostess or honor guest were a dinner given by Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. McNider; a reception in which Mrs. Bingham and Madame Sze, wife of the Chinese ambassador joined; as well as entertainments for the Yale Glee and Banjo club, one of which was a tea given by Mrs. Bingham.

Apple growers of New England are interested in a bill introduced by Mrs. Rogers of Massachusetts to standardize apples in all containers, somewhat along the line of the apples in boxes law.

Mrs. Rogers will somewhat modify her first bill and introduce in a short time one that fully meets the approval of the department of agriculture and the chairman of the committee on agriculture in the house.

Eighteen billion postage stamps, representing a face value of $450,000,000 made up of paper weighing 900 tons and 370,000 pounds of ink represent the output by the government in 1926. The cost of producing them was approximately one cent for each 125 stamps and placed end to end the stamps would girdle the earth eleven times, according to statements by experts here. Piled on top of each other the U. S. currency made each year would be as high as the Washington monument. The daily strip of currency is 330 miles long, and the cost of producing a $100 bill and $1 bill is practically the same.

Figures are not always interesting, but somehow a two cent postage stamp takes on added importance when views by the mile and even a dollar bill when counted by the ton grows bigger in everything but intrinsic value.

Here is another interesting summary: Out at the great military hospital, the Walter Reed, 117,673 patients were admitted in 1925, and yet it is not a hospital for the general public.

There is much "tall timber" in the senate these days. Six footers are no rarity, men below the average height also are there found in goodly numbers. Among the latter is the very affable and capable Senator Simmons of North Carolina, who this year wears a black skull cap at all times. Simmons cannot be much over five feet. He is apparently the shortest man in the senate unless Glass of Virginia goes him "an inch less". Both Glass and Simmons are regarded as about the strongest leaders and wisest legislators on the democratic side of the senate.

Then come four score or more men of average height and we find a group of six-footers and above, lead by Bingham of Connecticut, who out-towers them all, with Gould of Maine, Smoot of Utah, close seconds, Harreld of Oklahoma, Shortridge of California, Heflin of Alabama, Warren of Wyoming and Willis of Ohio, all in the six foot rank.

Gould of Maine has made an excellent impression on the senate. His straightforward manner, complete poise and genuine "down-east" accent and colloquialisms remind one of the Vermont traits of Atty. General Sargent, even though accent and phrases are distinctive to the different New England localities.

Mr. Gould is attending to his senatorial duties as vigorously and calmly as though he was not under democratic fires as to his eligibility for a seat in the senate. Thus far his most vigorous aphithet has not gone beyond the "by gorry" class.

Vice President Dawes, thus far, has smiled blandly at all delay and all "thrusts" made by the democrats of the senate. He has not startled that body by any suggestions of his own.

Gen. Dawes is a most delightful gentleman, when unruffled by what he deems unsound or unsafe methods. He has a cordial greeting for those he meets either in social or official life; he has a smile that belies his gift for talking back on occasions. His voice is well modulated and low pitched, and no way suggests he sometimes shatters "Mike" into splinters when talking over the radio on his proposed reform of senate rules. In fact, the Dawes as seen in everyday life and the Dawes when roused to wrath are two widely different propositions.

The judiciary committee of the senate will not act on the nomination of William J. Tilson of Georgia for a federal judgeship until after the Christmas recess according to agreement made today.

Tilson of Georgia is a brother of Floor Leader John Tilson and his nomination was held up by the Georgia senators who demanded a democrat should be selected for that office at the same time entering other protests.

GIRLS ARE ALL ALIKE

Peter Cortland's gray eyes twinkled as his aunt continued her enumeration of the fine qualities of her latest "find."

"In other words," he laughed when the old lady paused for breath, "you've broken your promise and have gone on a wife-hunt again for me."

"But—"

"First it was Helene," he went on relentlessly, "with the pale gold hair that she wore long, her only distinction, by the way. Then you found that tall dark girl that was surely going to vamp me. And the only vampish things about her were her long green earrings, and—pardon me—but she had a terrible time trying to live up to them. The rest of the girls—what's the use? They were all cut out of the same pattern."

"But," began his aunt feebly, for she had not yet fully recovered her breath, "but Patricia Keene—"

"Patricia Keene, eh? Well, your latest is to be complimented on her name, anyway, Patricia. She'll be different, of course! They all were. About as unlike as two blades of grass. Well, sorry I can't stay to meet the fair Patricia, honey. But it's close to midnight now. The fair Pat will be coming in any minute. Did you say she was at a party?"

"I didn't say," old Mrs. Cortland retorted. "She's going home in a few days. You'll be sorry," warningly, as he kissed her goodby. "Some day you'll be sorry, Peter. When it's too late. She's a wonderful girl. Goodby."

Patricia Keene. Graduate of Vassar. Society bud. Marvelous dancer.

"They all were," murmured Peter descending the stairs. "Leave it to Aunt Jane. Now, where's my car?"

There were three cars parked outside the fashionable hotel where Aunt Jane lived. Peter entered his—a royal blue seven-passenger.

"And now for home. Midnight, and a good hour to go."

He drove silently along, and turned south on Michigan boulevard. It was a dark night; cloudy, with a threat of a storm.

Suddenly, his eyes on the windshield, Peter caught sight of a figure crouched on the back seat. Some one was hiding! Waiting for the timely moment to leap upon him—gun in hand.

Maintaining an outward calm Peter drove on. The figure in the back was trying to dive lower; only the hair, close-cropped was visible now. Another block, and another.

Peter slipped his hand into an inner pocket while the car sped on. Then on a sudden it stopped and in the same instant Peter jumped from his seat and flung himself upon the crouching figure.

"So! Thought you'd get away with it—ye gods! It's a girl too!"

"Oh, please! Let me go for goodness sake. I'm not—not—you're hurting me! I tell you I'm not at all what you—you—oh, let me explain!"

"Explain away, little girl bandit," thrusting her beside him on the front seat.

"Oh, this is awful," she groaned, clutching his arm. "I was waiting for—something to—to go away, and I sat down in your car. I didn't know whose car it was. And the—the something didn't go, and I fell asleep—"

"Sounds fishy," murmured Peter. "Go on, my dear."

"But it's true! I—I was hiding from a man I didn't want to meet. His aunt's a dear old friend, but she's an awful bore as a matchmaker—"

Peter turned swiftly to her. "Name?"

"P-Patricia Keene—why, where are you going?"

"Back," laughed Peter, swinging the car around. "Back to dear Aunt Jane. And to-morrow—gosh! I'll say you're different, Patricia Keene."—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Layman's Talk.

Mr. Editor: It is well at this time to draw attention to the fact that the precepts and dictates of Christianity are given to us for practice and not simply for information or study, but in order that they shall be obeyed.

The promises of Scripture cease to be promises if there exists no connection between obedience and reward. Neither would the threatenings have any influence if obedience were excluded.

Theology is not a subject that belongs exclusively to the curious investigator, student or specialist. It speaks with equal authority to the masses—the learned and the unlearned—being of interest to all, in having relation to the present conduct and future destiny of all.

This, if apology be deemed necessary in this case.

Christianity is not a superstition, nor to be treated as such, nor to be classed with as one of many forms of Oriental religions. Those who regard it as such are in a class by themselves, and are unfit to estimate its valuation.

Jesus Christ was not a mythical character nor the teachings of His system, at all unscientific or muddled. The seemingly mysterious in his life is explainable, and is explained in his system—by himself and by his appointed apostles. If we believe the gospels these things were set out and were well in hand and understood during his lifetime; and he suffered for them and paid the penalty.

To those who would ask how he could be our example if he shared not our common lot, we have very many answers given in the system itself. Jesus Christ stands unique in His system. He is only secondarily in it as our example, but primarily as our Mediator.

Hence, as Mediator, he took upon himself the dual nature so as to enable him to "lay his hand upon both"—God and man—filling the emergency to the full.

By the divine prerogative he became as much human as the rest of us, "being born of a woman—born under the law to redeem those who were under the law" and its penalty.

What is there in the Virgin birth to frighten us, and scare us away from the cross. The virgin birth is not a theory, which may be held fast or loose. It is a doctrine of Scripture, upon which we must stand sure footed.

"The seed of the woman" was not an X quality even to the first generation. Our new instructors should be posted on science enough to be familiar with the dictionary word "Parthenogenesis," and what it stands for among students of science.

In a age when we are so advanced it will be well for us to give some time to quiet devotional study. There were in Christ's day unbelievers in him and the mysterious—a class respectable who didn't believe in angel nor spirit nor resurrection. They were called "Saducees." Jesus said they "erred, not knowing the Scriptures nor the power of God."

A LAYMAN.

Norwich, Dec. 20, 1926.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Knud Rasmussen, who has been awarded one of the few honorary life memberships in the National Geographic society of the United States, is a celebrated Danish Arctic explorer whose ethnological observations have added much to the world's knowledge of conditions among the Eskimos. For the greater part of 25 years he has roamed over Greenland and other parts of the frozen north, his expeditions being supported financially by an association of Danish business men and natural scientists who have made Arctic exploration their avocation and hobby. Rasmussen is far better trained for exploration than many leaders, because of the breadth of his interest in social and economic phases of the life of the Arctic dwellers. His thorough knowledge of the far north was evidenced by the fact that he was one of the first to attack the legitimacy of Dr. Cook's claims to discovery of the North Pole.

Many a man fails to make good because he spends most of his time trying to prove that luck is against him.

Today's Anniversaries

1620—The Pilgrims left the Mayflower and landed at Plymouth rock.

1776—Benjamin Franklin arrived in Paris as the American envoy to France.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D

Sweeten and Elevate Life

You may have a library full of books, but what you really are is determined by that part of them which you have read and laid to heart. Yet the unconsciousness tuition of books has a real value, we learn to love them by having them about us. Merely to surround ourselves with great books and with the portraits of those who have written them has a refining influence as constant as it is unnoticed. That the essay of Emerson or the poem of Longfellow is where you can lay your hand on it, that the kindly faces of the writers look down on you from the wall, associations such as these sweeten and elevate life.

Although there is a luxurious beauty about an elegant edition that it is not to be lightly esteemed, there is a satisfaction in knowing that we can derive as much food for thought from a cheap Shakespeare as from a first folio. The truest book-lovers are those who love the thoughts that the books contain. Complete editions of standard authors are the best to own. The print should be large and the books easy to hold and to open. If edited at all the work should be done by a competent scholar. It takes a great deal of editing to spoil a classic, but nowadays there is too much editing, too much thinking is done for us.

Stories That Recall Others

Was Ready For Change

One morning Junior, age five, came down to breakfast with a very bad cold. He was so hoarse he could hardly talk above a whisper.

"I can't imagine what gave Junior such a cold?" said his mother.

"Oh, but I can," said Junior, "it's just—come natural. My voice is changing."

Horseshoe Not Lucky

Jack and Jim had parked their brand new sedan on one of the streets to let others have a look. A man driving a horse and wagon came dashing down the thoroughfare and at a point a few feet in front of the parked car the horse threw a shoe. The shoe sailed through the air, crashed into the windshield of the car, smashing it, and landed on the floor of the car.

The young men appealed to the authorities about their rights but learned they had no other course than to bring a civil suit. Now Jack says no one can convince him that a horseshoe is lucky.

YOUR HEALTH

GOITRE IS PREVENTABLE

By J. Garland Sherrill, M. D., Louisville, Ky.

Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

The term goitre is applied to enlargements of the thyroid gland. The latter is a small structure lying across the windpipe, and moved up and down in the act of swallowing. It is below the Adam's apple.

This little gland produces a secretion which enters the blood stream and nutrition of the individual. If this gland produces its secretion in too small quantities for proper nutritional balance, certain characteristic changes occur show physical and mental growth, lassitude, and accumulation of fat.

On the other hand, when this gland becomes over-active, an exaggerated activity of the body results, such as restlessness, excitability, muscular tremor, rapid pulse, loss of flesh, and later, bulging of the eyeballs. Between these two extremes there is quite a variation in the amount of secretion and the results.

Natural increase in the size of the gland occurs at certain periods of life, most noticeably at budding manhood and womanhood. This enlargement apparently occurs to provide an increased production of the secretion necessary for that period of life.

Certain localities show an unusual number and persistance of thyroid enlargements. The iodine content of the water is usually low in these regions.

It has been found that a certain amount of iodine in chemical combination in the gland is necessary for its proper function. When the amount of iodine is small, enlargement of the thyriod takes place, apparently from the effort to supply this need.

Goitre in its early stages is preventable, the physiologic type by proper amounts of iodine, given under the direction of a physician, the pathologic type by the removal of the local infection producing it.

Later such efforts are unavailing, and the increase in size and other distressing symptoms progress so that surgical intervention becomes necessary. Certain degenerations in the cardiac apparatus occur in the late cases which add to the gravity and sometimes exclude both medical and surgical aid.

The following statements seem justified on the basis of known facts:

Goitre is a preventable disease. It is curable in the most advanced cases. This may only be accomplished safely under competent medical advice. Such measures as rest, medication, x-ray, and proper surgery are necessary to obtain the best results.

New Anti-Knock

The German chemical firm, the Badische Anilin und Soda Fabrik, will, it is said, place on the market in the near future an anti-knocking compound having some of the drawbacks of the lead compounds that have caused such controversy.

This new component, which permits of unusual compression in the automobile sylinder, is iron-carbonyl, a compound of iron and carbon monoxide. It is a brown liquid, boiling at 103 degrees C. and soluble in benzole and petrol. Although it is toxic, yet this disadvantage is almost entirely mitigated by the fact that in the atmosphere and daylight it's completely oxidized to ferric oxide and carbon dioxide.

Too often the supposedly dead past is merely a case of suspended animation.

FUNERALS.

Edward James Whalon, Jr.

The funeral of Edward James, Jr., infant son of Edward J. and Madeline Mary Kelly Whalon, was held at 11 o'clock Monday morning at the home of his parents, No. 13 Bushnell place. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mary Theresa Moran.

Funeral services for Mary Theresa, infant daughter of James S. and Nora Foley Moran, were held at 8 o'clock Monday afternoon at the home of her parents, No. 220 Broad street. The services were conducted by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May, pastor of St. Patrick's church and burial was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Joseph Lee

Funeral services for Joseph Lee were held Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock at the late home No. 59 Chestnut street, requiem high mass being celebrated at St. Patrick's church at 9 o'clock by Rev. Myles P. Galvin. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends at the service and the floral tributes were beautiful, evidencing the love and esteem in which Mr. Lee was held by all who knew him.

Henry LaFontaine was at the organ during the service and at the offertory sang De Profundis. For the waiting hymn Roderick Sullivan sang Lead Kindly Light. Burial was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery where the committal service was read by Rev. Fr. Galvin. The bearers were Andrew Dennes, Joseph Ford, Charles McGibney and John C. Donovan. Arrangements were by Shea & Burke.

Patrick H. Good.

Monday morning at 9:15 the funeral of Patrick H. Good was held from the family home on Everett street. At 10 o'clock in St. Patrick's church solemn requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. John J. Reilly, with Rev. Myles P. Galvin deacon and Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, sub-deacon. Rev. Henry E. Quinn and Rev. Charles M. Kelley, of Willimantic, were in the sanctuary.

The solos during the mass were by Roderick F. Sullivan who, following the final absolution by Father Reilly sang "Jesus Saviour of My Soul." During the last gospel Organist Henry J. LaFontaine played Abide With Me, using the chimes and as a recessional he gave Lead, Kindly Light. The epistle and gospel and the prayers in English were read by Rev. Father Galvin.

Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, the committal prayers being by Monsignor May. The bearers were Mr. Good's sons, Dr. William Murray Good, of Waterbury, James J. Good, of Buffalo, and Dr. Richard L. Good, of New London, a son-in-law, Dr. Vincent W. Weirs, of New York, a grandson, Richard Good Mooney, of Hartford, and Charles Conrade, of Norwich.

In attendance at the funeral were relatives and friends from Hartford, Willimantic, Buffalo, Waterbury, New London and New York, besides many acquaintances, neighbors and friends from Norwich and suburban places.

Among the choice flowers were two beautiful baskets sent by the associate teachers of Misses Mary T. and Julia L. Good, in the West Thames street and Mt. Pleasant street schools, and after the funeral services there were left in the sanctuary, in remembrance.

The funeral arrangements were in charge of Cummings & Ring.

Eugene S. Brock.

Norwich relatives returned Monday evening from New York where they were called by the death of Eugene S. Brock, son of former Patrolman Thomas Brock and Hanora Sullivan Brock. Mr. Brock had been ill for three months with heart trouble. He died Saturday morning at his home, 201 East 39th street.

For the past 30 years Mr. Brock had lived in New York, where he was foreman for the Arthur McMullen company, subway contractors. Ten years ago, in New York, he was united in marriage with Miss Katherine E. Engler. She survives him; there are no children. He is also survived by a brother, Thomas P. Brock, of New York, and by three sisters, Mrs. Andrew Byrne, Mrs. John G. Andrews and Mrs. John J. Shea, all of Norwich. There are also several nieces and nephews.

He was a member of St. Gabriel's parish, in New York, and the funeral services were held in that church at 10 o'clock Monday morning. Requiem high mass was sung by Rev. Father Boyle. As he had served throughout the Spanish war in Company C, 3rd Regt., under Captain Charles A. Hagberg, he was paid the honor of a full military funeral by David Wilson camp, No. 59. The choir sang America as the body was borne from the church. Members of Wilson camp were honorary bearers and burial was in the National cemetery at Cypress Hills, where the squad of six men from Fort Jay, Governor's Island, fired three volleys over the grave and the bugler from the fort sounded Taps.

Friends and relatives attended the funeral from Norwich, Elmhurst, Long Island, Englewood, N. J., Brooklyn, N. Y., and other places.

Among the beautiful flowers were handsome tributes from the various military organizations, from the firm by which Mr. Brock was employed as well as from relatives and acquaintances.

Mr. Brock was born on the West Side, Norwich, attended school in the West Chelsea district and was well known by a large circle of friends who will sorrow to learn of his death.

The home life of Mr. and Mrs. Brock was singularly happy and much sympathy is felt for the widow in her great bereavement. His Norwich relatives also will have the sympathy of many friends.

COURT RESERVES DECISION IN DEGANGE-RUBIN DAMAGE SUIT

Shortly before 3 o'clock Monday afternoon and after an all day session of the superior court, Judge Allyn L. Brown took the papers in the $3,500 damage case brought by Francis DeGange, New London architect, against Meyer Rubin, et al., of New London. Mr. DeGange is suing to collect for services rendered as architect in connection with the preparing of plans and supervising the construction of the Crocker house garage conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Rubin in New London. The trial was started in the superior court here last Thursday and was continued until Monday morning. It was expected that the trial would be completed about noon Monday, and trial of the divorce case of Arthur Chester Brown of Salem against Isabelle Yeomans Brown of this city, was to have been taken up during the afternoon. The divorce case was started Friday afternoon. As the DeGange trial took up the entire court session Monday the divorce case trial was put off until this (Tuesday) morning.

During the DeGange trial Monday, Mr. Rubin, one of the defendants, was called to the stand. During the testimony he admitted that he was gratified to find that he had two more feet of land space than he thought he had when the construction work on the garage had started.

After learning that there was two more feet of space, he went to Worcester, he said, with Mr. DeGange, to arrange for additional steel. Later he received a bill for some $400 which he paid. He never presented this bill to Mr. DeGange.

He knew the lot was lower at one end than at the other, he testified, but did not know enough about reading the plans to see how Mr. DeGange had taken care of this difficulty. He couldn't recall any conversation with Mr. DeGange that there was a possibility of his building another story on the garage and that therefore would need a larger chimney flue. In fact, he testified, there was no conversation about a second story, and therefore no need of a larger flue.

Witness testified that there were certain changes made in the construction work, not authorized by him, but which he afterwards ratified.

Witness testified that some time in July last, he called the attention of Mr. DeGange to the bill for the extra steel and said he was going to deduct the amount of the bill from the amount due him (DeGange). He said if the garage floor had been constructed as Mr. DeGange planned he would have lost space for three cars.

Marshall White of New London, testified that he has been employed by Meyer Rubin for over two years. He was asked as to what he knew about the rate to be charged by Mr. DeGange.

Mrs. Anna Rubin, wife of Meyer Rubin, and one of the defendants, testified that she is a joint owner of the garage with her husband. She told of talking with Mr. DeGange about building the garage, but nothing was said at that time about the price. Later she talked with Mr. DeGange and he named a price of four per cent. She told of Mr. DeGange later asking more than four per cent. Witness identified a memo she had made of payments on the garage. The total cost of the garage was $24,490.07.

Witness testified that she did not authorize and extras. She testified that she and Mr. Rubin told Mr DeGange they wanted the garage to cover the entire lot. She told of Mr. Rubin complaining that the floor was not level. She had understood the floor would be one level stretch.

Witness said that people had made comments on the steel construction work. She said the shape of the roof is not as called for in the plans.

On cross examination by Attorney E. W. Perkins, Mrs. Rubin said that other architects had submitted plans to the garage. It was in June that Mr. DeGange and Mr. Rubin had a misunderstanding. The first payment on the garage was made in January, she said, and the first bill Mr. DeGange submitted for payment was in May. She identified the bill which had been laid in as evidence. She had had no discussion with Mr. DeGange as to how he reached the amount of the bill.

Mr. Rubin again took the stand. Questioned by Attorney Arthur Keefe, witness said he told Mr. DeGange that he wanted the washstand in the garage big enough so that when it was used, water wouldn't run all over the stand. As it is, water runs all over the stand.

Mr. DeGange was called to the stand by Attorney Perkins. During the testimony he said that the change in the size of the chimney was agreed upon. If the garage had been built according to what he had in mind machines could be left in it without brakes on. He was always ready and willing to help straighten out difficulties in connection with the extra work.

Answering questions put by Attorney Keefe he said he knew that no extras were to be charged for unless they were in writing.

He denied that he had seen any of the Bartolucci bills (for extra work) until they were brought into this case. Later he admitted that he had seen the Bartolucci bill for some $400 in Attorney Lubchansky's office.

Both sides rested a few minutes after 5 o'clock and the arguments were immediately started. Attorney Perkins for the plaintiff and Attorney Keefe for the defendants, arguing the case. The arguments were concluded a few minutes before six o'clock and Judge Brown took the papers. Court was then adjourned until this (Tuesday) morning.

MORE GIFTS NEEDED BY DUWELL CLUB

The Duwell Athletic association which arranged the Christmas tree for the scholars of the Bishop school on the East Side section of Norwich, last year with such great success and who have been working energetically to make this year's affair even bigger than its predecessor, again make an appeal for presents for the families of the East Side residents or of anyone desirous of aiding in the work.

Boxes prettily trimmed have been placed in the stores of William Disco, Michael Marr and Preston Public market on Main street and in Loule's candy store at the corner of Hedge avenue for the receiving of these presents but there are still many presents to be furnished. The club members will give to every school child a present but it is the hope that as was the case last year there will be enough presents contributed to enable the giving of another present to every child. Anyone may contribute, the only restriction is that the present shall not cost over 50 cents and that no package be marked.

The teachers of the Bishop school worked Monday evening in the new club on Hedge avenue sorting and marking the presents given by the club and on Tuesday afternoon the wives of the members will meet at the same place and wrap the presents. A present and a box containing candy, oranges and apples will be given to each scholar and if the families of the East Side will aid each child will receive two presents.

The Duwell orchestra which has been rehearsing a new programme especially for the entertainment to be given the evening the scholars assemble in Pulaski hall for the distribution of the gifts is rapidly rounding into shape under the able direction of Frank Monroe and the scholars themselves are to sing Christmas carols in which they have been rehearsed by their teachers.

The committee in charge of the affair under the chairmanship of John Marshall has worked hard and conscientiously to make the affair a grand success and again urge everyone to aid by leaving some kind of a present in the boxes which have been provided for gifts in the various stores. They ask the co-operation of every East Side resident or anyone who is interested in making the school children's Christmas tree a success to hurry up with their contributions as it is only a short time to the big night for the kiddies.

Announcement was made Monday evening that La Montague, the well known magician, will give a magical performance as part of the entertainment programme.

COMMON PLEAS COURT CASE IS SETTLED

A settlement out of court was reached Monday in $335 damage suit of Dr. Frank W. Hewes of Groton, against Edward Morgan, also of Groton. Attorney Perry J. Hollanderskv represented the physician and Attorney Clayton B. Smith was counsel for the defendant. The case was scheduled to be heard before Judge Charles B. Waller and a jury in the court of common pleas at New London Monday.

MACHINES COLLIDED AT HICKORY ST. AND BOSWELL AVE.

Early Monday evening a Lexington machine driven by Robert D. Smith of No. 585 Main street and owned by John J. Herbert, collided with a machine registration number, 7784, at the corner of Hickory street and Boswell avenue. About $75 damage was done to Mr. Herbert's machine.

KNOCKED DOWN BOY ON NORTH MAIN ST.

Walter Konikowski, of No. 123 North Main street, reported at police headquarters Monday evening that on Saturday the Hudson coach he was driving knocked down John D. Wilmont, 14, on North Main street, near Bogue's garage. The boy, who lives at No. 64 North Main street received an injured left arm which was attended by Dr. John W. Callahan.

HAYMAN APPEALS FINE OF $200 AND COSTS

In the city court Monday morning, William C. Hayman, 2, of 1 Thames terrace, was ordered to pay $200 and costs, on being found guilty of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. Hayman appealed the finding of the court and was released on bonds of $500.

Hayman was arrested by Officers Peter Driscoll and Michael Dwyer after he had driven his Overland touring car into the rear of a parked Ford coupe owned by Raymond Christianson of Corning road. The accident occurred in front of the Moose home on Laurel Hill. The impact pushed the Ford up the embankment, causing the car to overturn.

Gus Behmer, 20, a chief petty officer on the U. S. S. Camden paid $13.50 for his refusal to pay a taxi fare of $6 on Sunday afternoon when he and his friends had used the cab to that amount on the registers. The total court bill was $13.50, and although Behmer could not pay the $6 Sunday he paid the $13.50 Monday, which was payday aboard ship.

Several sippers of the cup were fined for partaking of too much liquor, thus winding up the court session of the day.

THERMOS OFFICE EMPLOYEES HAVE CHRISTMAS PARTY

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mrs. William Rossoll, West Main street, by the office employees of the American Thermos Bottle company, Monday evening. There was a Christmas tree, prettily decorated and gifts were distributed to all present. Dancing and games were enjoyed after which refreshments were served, the refreshments consisting of punch, cake, fruit, ice cream, and candy, etc.

Those present were Misses Helen McMillan, Helen Twomey, Adeline Coughlin, Loretta Gadle, Jane Breen, Kitty Coughlin, Marie Desmond, Edna Phillips, Lois Bell, Sadie Mopsik, Agnes Peloquin, Dorothy Rogers, Sophie Grimkowski, Elizabeth Sullivan, Edith Tift, Eleanor Ludwig, Marion Jervis, Celeste Copeland, Vera McGuinness, Isabelle Petroni, Louise Lessard, Georgia Fillmore, Elizabeth O'Neil, Dorothea Tucker, Mary Huggard, Clarice Melvin and Margaret Driscoll. The party broke up at a late hour, all wishing the hostess a very Merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

SPIRITUAL ACADEMY TO HAVE NEW YEARS PARTY

"The voice that spoke to the Shepherds" had a new meaning, when Mrs. Harriet Hindley, of Providence, delivered a very stirring address, at the Spiritual academy, Sunday, dealing with the most interesting events preceding the birth of Christ. The application of the scientific law governing the possibility of the Angels speaking to the shepherds, was made to our every day living, making the delivery of spirit messages a simple episode when the law permits.

Clairvoyant messages formed the later half of the service and proved absorbing and convencing.

President Charles A. Dowsett announced the appearance next Sunday, of Amelia Adams, famous flower medium, also the annual Christmas party on New Year's eve.

BILL TO INCREASE PENSION FOR VOLUNTOWN WOMAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

ONECO, Dec. 20—Among 28 private pension claims now pending prepared by our townsman C. B. Montgomery is one H. R. 15,228 introduced at his request, by Congressman Freeman increasing the pension of Josephine Baton of Voluntown from $30 to $50 per month. These private bills are incorporated in one bill known as an "omnibus bill" usually several hundred of them under the one head, and are reported and passed about unanimously at the closing day of each session. All of the Connecticut congressmen and both senators are sponsors for several such bills all being deserving soldiers or widows that the general law does not cover.

POSTOFFICE PREPARES FOR HEAVY CHRISTMAS RUSH

Although many people have followed the suggestion of early mailing of Christmas parcels there are still as many more who have failed to do this and the next few days will see the high tide of business at the local postoffice.

Throughout the day Monday there was a continuous stream of people at the mailing windows at the post-office and this will become heavier as the week becomes older. Incoming mail is already beginning to show the Christmas increase although the peak days will come later in the week, probably Thursday and Friday. Outgoing mail began to feel the upward surge Monday the men at the windows finding over a score of people there Monday morning waiting for business to start.

The warning of the government to tie parcels securely and mark the addresses clearly may well be heeded for already incoming mail is showing the usual number of torn parcels, with addresses none too clear. Although every effort is made to deliver these torn and poorly addressed parcels, when the rush reaches the peak, these must naturally be placed one side to allow a speedy delivery of those packages plainly marked.

WEDDINGS

Smith-Cram

Announcement is made of the marriage at Stratford on Dec. 11, 1926 of Ellsworth Foster Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Smith of Beaver Dam, Stratford, and Miss Jean Bryson Cram of this city, daughter of Mrs. Thomas N. Cram of Bridgeport. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Cyrus Severance.

Gulliver-Porter

Miss Eugenia Barnard Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Porter of Portland, Conn., and Asahel Green Gulliver, son of Mrs. William C. Gulliver of New York city, were married Saturday afternoon in Trinity church, Portland, by the rector, Rev. Sidney Wallace, and Rev. Jay T. Stocking of Montclair, N. J.; the latter an uncle of the bride.

Miss Anne B. Porter was maid of honor for her sister, and the other attendants were Miss Margaret Russell of Middletown, Miss Kate Cheesman Paston, Miss Elizabeth Bunnell, Stratford and Mrs. Edward Norris, Jr., of Utica, N. Y., a cousin of the bride.

Charles Sheldon of Washington, D. C., brother-in-law of the bride-groom, was best man, and the ushers were Barclay Robinson of Hartford, Austin Barney, Farmington; Elbridge Stratton, Bronxville, N. Y.; Sherman Baldwin, Edward W. Bourne, Thomas R. Cleaveland, James S. Hemingway, Jr., Dr. Samuel W. Lambert, Jr., Malcolm H. Ross, Hugh A. Ward, Dean K. Worcester and Frederick P. Todd, cousin of the bride, all of New York.

After Jan. 10, Mr. Gulliver and his bride will live at 37 West Fifty-fifth street, New York.

Mr. Gulliver's father was a member of the well known Norwich Town family.

OBITUARY.

Miss Margaret Lawton Somers.

After an illness of several years Miss Margaret Lawton Somers died Monday morning at 3:30 o'clock at her home at No. 45 Huntington avenue.

Miss Somers was born in Norwich, May 29, 1903, the daughter of William and Edith Lawton Somers. She attended St. Patrick's parochial school and was a graduate of the Norwich Free Academy. She was a member of St. Patrick's parish. In school life as well as the short period following her graduation from high school, Miss Somers was extremely popular among the younger people with whom she associated. At the Academy she was a member of one of the sororities and took an active interest in its welfare.

In her home life she was cheerful and kind, this attitude being most prominent during her long period of suffering. News of her death will be received with deep sorrow by her many friends and those saddened by the loss of a beloved daughter and sister have the sympathy of all.

Surviving her besides her parents is one sister, Edith Hunt Somers who lives at home.

Augustus P. Avery

Augustus P. Avery, a native of Groton but for more than 50 years a resident of Brooklyn, died suddenly, Friday at his office in Brooklyn. Mr. Avery was 76 years old and he was born in Groton, the son of the late Albert Lay Avery and Johanna Wheeler Avery. His early days were spent as a resident of Groton, from where he moved to Brooklyn, going into the insurance business.

Mr. Avery resided in Throop avenue, Brooklyn, with his wife and daughter, Louise, who survive him. He is also survived by a brother, John N. Avery, of North Stonington, and two sisters, Miss Annie Avery of New London and Mrs. J. P. Sarren of Providence. Another brother, Thomas W. Avery, died at his late home, Eastern point road, on Oct. 22.

Augustus Avery was well known in the town of Groton where he had been a frequent visitor. He had many friends in the town, and his passing is deeply regretted. Funeral services were held from his late residence, Throop avenue, Brooklyn, on Monday afternoon.

The Community Christmas tree on Norwich Town Green was a dazzling spectacle Sunday evening, when the multi-colored lights were turned on for the first time this season

Following were the numbers: Katinka (Russian fox trot), Tobias; "Lonesome and Sorry, Conrad; Who's Sorry Now?, Snyder; Make the Dream of the Rose Come True, Seloman; I'd Climb the Highest Mountain If I Knew I'd Find You, Lew Brown; Humoresque, by Anton Dvorak; Silent Night, Holy Night, Gruber; Baby Face, Benny Davis; Away In a Manger, (No Crib for a Bed), Stilman; That Certain Party, Donaldson; Onward, Christian Soldiers, A. S. Sullivan; My China Doll, Charles George; Tonight's My Night With Baby, Joseph Meyer; Brown Eyes (Why Are You Blue?), Alfred Bryan; Show Me the Way to Go Home, Irving King.

Mrs. Williams who has frequently entertained at the hospital with piano numbers, also played in the Gulle trio, was ably assisted by Master Glassbrenner. He is a former pupil of who this winter is studying music in George Gulle, accomplished violinist, New York.

PREDICTS EXTREMELY COLD WEATHER FOR JANUARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STERLING, Conn., Dec. 20.—The Cloud Digger is being overwhelmed with demands for the circular letter he has agreed to send out the first of December, January, February and March, owing to the many that read his semi-annual predictions and in nearly every instance mentions his correct forecast for December. Among his regular subscribers for this form of prediction are more than 100 New York city contractors and builders, some of them very prominent in that business. One New York city contractor mentioned reading the fall prediction in The Bulletin and desired to have the circular letter sent monthly to over a score of prominent contractors. He opens his January predictions in this way: "January, 1927, is coming during a warm wave of two or three days, quickly followed by the worst month of January you ever knew, with terrible cold as far south as middle Florida and frost as far south as West Palm Beach."

CONDITION OF H. WALES LINES IS UNCHANGED

MERIDEN, Dec. 20—(AP)—The condition of H. Wales Lines, was unchanged this evening, after several weeks of illness. He appeared to be somewhat stronger this morning, and sent for his stenographer, to whom he dictated some letters. He then lapsed back into a state of coma.

Mr. Lines' brother, the Rt. Rev. Edwin S. Lines, Episcopal bishop of the diocese of Newark, N. J., came to visit Mr. Lines today for a few hours. It is believed by those around him that only the indomitable will power of Mr Lines is keeping him alive.

URGES LICENSES FOR HOSPITALS IN STATE

In his annual report for the fiscal year 1926, now in the hands of the printers, Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, secretary of the state department of public health, directs attention to the necessity of supervision over the establishment of hospitals.

He reports that during the past few years several small hospitals have been established in Connecticut for the care of the sick, and that "in certain cases these have been established by a physician whose license has been revoked or by persons who have not had even the training of a nurse. It is a menace to the sick of the state when they can be misled by a building with a sign 'hospital' on it." This matter needs prompt action he adds.

In his reference to the increase in deaths due to cancer Dr. Osborn says that in 1880 the death rate in Connecticut from cancer was 35.3 per 100,000 of the population and that in 1925 it was 103.5. He adds that cancer is of unknown origin and that "there is practically no indication that in any form it is a communicable disease."

SUSIE AIRS VIEWS ON SPIRIT OF GIVING AT CHRISTMAS TIME

"The Christmas spirit" seems to be the theme of Susie's letter this week and her frank comment may not be so far from wrong at that. Her letter follows:

Dear Sports Ed:

Say, is there anything to this Christmas spirit bunk or not? You know Ed, its kind of got me stopped at that when I stop and give people and things the once over. There's Christmas spirit and Christmas spirit. No I ain't referring to that what comes in a bottle at $6 to $12 a quart, what I mean is that spirit that warms the old heart by knowing that you've done somebody a good turn, when you know all the reward you'll get is a white mark on the credit side of life's ledger entered by the great bookkeeper.

In looking over pre-Christmas preparations, I've kinda come to the conclusion that its a sort of a commercial proposition with most folks. Some people think it's a time to pass on what we got last year to somebody who'll probably pass it on next Yuletide. I know, 'cause I got back one of my gifts last Christmas what I give a certain party five years ago. There's a saying that chickens come home to roost and I guess it's the same with Christmas presents. With some people its only a trading proposition where you got to use your old bean or you'll get stuck.

You know the other day I was down town and a Jane comes up to me and says "Say Susie, do you know what Mary's going to give me for Christmas?" "No, why?" says me. "Well," says the Jane, "You know I don't wanta go and give her nothing if she ain't going to give me something and then again I don't wanta send her a post card and have her send me something that cost a dollar, you know I don't wanta stick nobody like that." Well right there's the great Christmas spirit for you, ain't it? Well you know that got my goat right then and there so I opens up on this jane and says: "Listen here, if you only think a postcard worth of Mary why send her a card and if you like her real well send her something she'll like, not necessarily expensive, but some little thing that will carry your feeling for her. And then forget about it and when Christmas comes if you don't get nothing from her just think Mary didn't have enough money to buy something to measure up to her love for you. If you do that I'll bet you have a wonderful Christmas."

The person what's looking to get more than he gives and the feller what gives just to make a show ain't getting the kick outa Christmas they ought to. That ain't the Christmas spirit at all and believe me, Ed, them kind of folks don't get no credits opposite their names. Say, I know a feller right here in this town what every Christmas give away hundreds of dollars to the poor folks and there want no mention of it in the press and nobody knew nothing about it. Believe me, that feller will stand way ahead of some folks when his account in life's ledger is closed although here there's a lotta people what is ready to slam him every chance they get. There's a lotta lodges and organizations right here in Norwich that are doing a lotta of good but ain't ballyhooing about it, and just because folks dont know about it they go and say the organization ain't doing nothing and ain't no good, just a bunch of four-flushers. Then if the papers do get hold of it and print it them same folks will do a right-about-face and say that the organization is blowing their own horn and looking for free publicity. Them folks with warped minds like that ain't no go to community and they better give themselves the once over and see just what they has done for folks what ain't so fortunate as they.

If you are going to give on Christmas give with a spirit of love the same as He whose birthday we celebrate who gave willingly of his life that we might have happiness. It ain't what you give, its the love that goes with the gift that counts. This may sound kind of funny coming from me, a girl of the streets, as old Hepsey said I was, but that's the way I feel when Christmas comes around and I ain't ashamed of it either.

Say speaking of Hepsey how would it be if I sent him a dozen lemons for Christmas, they ought to taste kind of sweet to him seeing how he's got such a acid disposition.

Well Ed, here's wishing everybody what I know a happy, happy Christmas and may Santa Claus be good to the kiddies.

Yours as ever, Susie.

C. F. C. FIVE TAKES CLOSE GAME FROM BALTIC

The C. F. C. added another victory to their list Monday evening when they took Baltic into camp 46-41. The first half developed into a nip and tuck battle the C. F. C. being but 2 points in the lead at the end of the first half. At the start of the second half the C. F. C. increased their lead and held it throughout the remainder of the period.

Brown and Lambert led in the scoring for Norwich with young Ducky Jackson helping them considerably. Douville and Ray Terrington starred for Baltic.

The C. F. C. team play their next home game on Dec. 27 against the Westerly Collegians. The C. F. C. will have their regular quintet for Leffingwell who was injured in the first game of the season, is expected to be back in the lineup.

YANKS COMPLETE TWO BASEBALL TRADES

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP)—The New York Yankees today completed two deals, sending Infielder Aaron Ward to the Chicago White Sox and Pitchers S. A. Jones and Walter Beall to the St. Louis Browns, the New York World will say tomorrow.

In exchange for Ward, the New York team will get Jack Grabowski, catcher, and an infielder from the Chicago club, Eddie Collins, deposed White Sox manager, may be the second player to come here in the exchange.

For Jones and Beall, St. Louis will exchange Cedric Durst, outfielder, a left-hand pitcher and two other players, the World will say. Joe Giard is mentioned as likely to be the moundsman.

Because of the criticism growing out of the Walker-Flowers middleweight title match in Chicago recently, it is understood the New York State Athletic commission is opposed to sanctioning a return match in New York.

DELANEY MAKES SHORT WORK OF GORMAN WITH KNOCKOUT IN SECOND

JERSEY CITY, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Jack Delaney, world's light heavyweight champion, scored a sensational two-round victory tonight over Bud Gorman of Wisconsin, gaining a technical knockout with a slashing attack that ended the fight after one minute, 35 seconds of the second round.

It was Delaney's first bid for honors in heavyweight ranks. He spotted Gorman 25 pounds, weighing 175 to his opponent's 200, but put a swift and dramatic finish to what was to have been a ten-round match.

Held to even terms in the first round, and cut about the nose in the first few seconds of the second round, Delaney appeared slated for an interesting bout until his sharpshooting right hand found its mark. A clean smash to the point of the chin topped Gorman to the floor for a count of eight. Another knocked him down for a toll of five. He came up each time, but was out on his feet, hopelessly beaten but clinging to the ropes when Referee Jack Masterly stopped the fight.

Bloody and groggy from these few seconds of severe punishment, Gorman staggered to his corner, a grotesque smile on his face. It had happened so quickly that he hadn't apparently found out what it was all about. It took several minutes of vigorous work to bring him back to normal.

It was an impressive victory for Delaney, one that gave a big boost to his aspirations to establish himself as an outstanding contender for the crown sported by Gene Tunney.

It was only Delaney's second bout since he won the 175 pound crown from Paul Berlenbach last July. But neither the sharp edge of his speed nor the power behind his whip lash punches appears to have diminished. If anything, there was greater driving force and accuracy to his blows tonight, once he found his stride and the range. He was upset by Gorman's aggressiveness for the first few minutes, but once he hit the target, it was all over.

Gorman displayed unusual gameness. He was glassy-eyed after the first shot to the chin and all but out after the second, but each time dragged himself to his feet. With one hand grasping the ropes and the other instinctively raised to his head. He was taking a terrific pounding when the fight was stopped.

The Preliminaries

Stepping out of his class, Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, world's bantamweight champion, decisively outpointed Petie Mack of Jersey City, featherweight, in the ten-round semi-final which was fought to the accompaniment of boos and catcalls.

Rosenberg, outspeeding and outhitting his rival, received the unanimous verdict of newspapermen but there was little exciting action. The champion staggered Mack in the fifth and sixth rounds with stiff rights to the head, but the Jersey City fighter rallied in the last few rounds.

Rosenberg weighed 124 1-2 and Mack 126.

Andy Divodi, shifty Brooklyn welterweight, pounded out a victory over Jack McFarland, of Elizabeth, New Jersey, in a ten round preliminary.

McFarland was outboxed and cut badly about the face but lashed back occasionally with sharp swings to the body. Divodi weighed 142 1-2 and McFarland 146 1-2.

In another ten-rounder, Johnny Green, 120 1-2, of New York, gained the newspaper verdict by a shade over Giovanni Salerno, 124 1-2 of Jersey City.

The four-round opening preliminary resulted in a draw between James J. Braddock, 169 1-2, of Union City, N. J., and Doc Conrad, 170, of Elizabeth.

ROGERS HORNSBY TRADED TO NEW YORK GIANTS FOR FRISCH AND JIMMY RING

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Within less than three months after he had piloted the Cardinals to a World's championship, and brought St. Louis its first baseball pennant in 26 years, Rogers Hornsby star second baseman and playing manager, has been traded to the New York Giants. The action followed disagreement with Sam Breadon, president of the club over a contract.

Breadon announced early tonight that Hornsby will go to the Giants in exhange for Frankie Frisch, infielder and Jimmy Ring, right handed pitcher. No money was involved in the deal, the club president said.

Breadon announced that the trade was made because of his failure to reach an agreement with Hornsby over a contract at another meeting today, in which Hornsby asked for a three year contract and Breadon stood pat on a one year document. The meeting was the second discussion over the contract in two weeks.

"I believe that to be a good trade," Breadon said. "We get a star second baseman to replace Hornsby and we get a first string pitcher to fill a first string pitching gap that has been on our club. I closed the deal with Mr. Stoneham, president of the New York club."

"I realize that it is a sensational trade but it had to come. I did my best to reach a contract settlement with Hornsby, but I learned at the conferences with Hornsby today that a settlement was impossible. I offered what I considered a very fair contract. Hornsby still had a year to run on his old contract, which was at $80,000 a year in 1925 and 1926. I desired to combine this contract with new terms to cover the season of 1927 and to increase Hornsby's salary $20,000 from $30,000 to $50,000.

"Hornsby turned down this offer. He still insisted on a three year contract and he asked for $150,000 for three years. He said he would stand pat on this demand and I realized then that I would be unable to sign Hornsby to a manager's contract and that to protect the Cardinal interests I would be compelled to trade Hornsby.

"I am very sorry that I could not come to terms with Hornsby but there was no further use in dickering and I felt that the best thing I could do was to make the best trade I could get for him."

Informed of the trade, Hornsby said: "If they want to trade me, it's all right with me, but it doesn't look right that I should be traded from a club that I just managed to a world's championship. I gave the Cardinals all I had and I asked for a contract that I believed I was entitled to. However, I do not believe the mere trade is the end of the matter."

He declined to amplify the last remark, but regarding the trade, said: "I guess it might be a pretty good exchange, I don't know. I don't like to comment on it."

Breadon said that he did not have a new manager for the Cardinals in mind.

"Right now I do not know who will be the next Cardinal manager," he asserted. "Before I sign another manager I will give the matter much thought. I do not intend to rush into the matter hurriedly as I realize the importance of signing the right man."

Roger Bresnahan, Giant coach, mentioned in rumors as being considered for the post of new Cardinal leader "will be considered," Breadon said, "but so will many other baseball men. Bresnahan has no inside track to the job and right now is not being considered above the other men who will come in for consideration."

Breadon said tonight that Hornsby told him at the conference today to trade him, but Hornsby denied that he had made such a statement. He explained that he had said he could not be expected to play second base unless he was manager.

Hornsby whose first appearance in professional baseball was in Texas, came to the Cardinals in the fall of 1915 when Miller Huggins was manager of the team. He earned a regular berth in 1916 and performed at second, third and shortstop. He hung up a batting average of .313 that year, increased it to .327 the next, but slumped to .231 in 1918. In 1919 he began another climb which found him in 1924 with a batting average of .424.

For six years he topped National league batsmen and in 1926 was voted the "most valuable" player. The past season Hornsby batted only .317. He was incapacitated considerably by boils and injuries.

Frisch came to the Giants in 1919 from Fordham university where he flashed brilliantly as a baseball and football star.

In his first year as a utility infielder, Frisch batted only .226. The next season he batted .280. He became a full-fledged regular in 1921 and received recognition as one of the most valuable infielders in the league, lifting his average to .341.

Since then he has been generally regarded as a dangerous batter and one of the fastest fielders in the circuit.

Ring wore many minor league uniforms before finally clinching a place in the majors with Cincinnati in 1919. Receiving his first trial from the Brooklyn Robins more than 13 years ago, He played in successive campaigns with Albany in the New York state league, Lowell in the New England league, Jersey City in the International and Chattanooga in the Southern association.

Traded to the Phillies in 1921, Ring had his best year in 1923 when he won 18 and lost 16 games.

Ring pitched only five complete games for the Giants last year after being acquired in a deal which sent pitchers Wayland Dean and Jack Bentley to the Quakers, but he was in action in 34 others. The records credit him with 11 victories and 10 defeats for an average of .524.

HORNSBY TRADE SAID TO INVOLVE HALF MILLION

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Secretary James Tierney of the New York Giants tonight confirmed announcement of a player exchange with the St. Louis Cardinals under which Rogers Hornsby, star second baseman and manager of the world's champions, will come here in exchange for Infielder Frankie Frisch and Pitcher Jimmy Ring.

The trade was accepted as the biggest in the history of modern baseball, involving players estimated to be worth more than half a million dollars. Hornsby's worth was placed at $300,000, both the Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers having offered a quarter of a million for him two years ago. Frisch and Ring together were priced at the same figure.

The acquisition of Hornsby by the Giants gratifies a hope long held by Manager John McGraw. He sought the brilliant Cardinal player, not only as a strengthening link for the New York infield, but as a rival metropolitan attraction for Babe Ruth of the Yankees.

The first hint of a pending deal between the two clubs, involving Hornsby was given at the recent National league meeting here when magnates admitted that the split between President Sam Breadon and his manager

PROSPECT OF COLLINS JOINING THE YANKEES

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Player negotiations, designed principally to obtain a seasoned catcher and infielder, have been pending with four rival American league clubs, Ed Barrow, business manager of the New York Yankees, disclosed today.

Only one deal appears likely to be consummated but this carries a hint that Eddie Collins, deposed manager of the Chicago White Sox, will wear a Yankee uniform in 1927.

According to Barrow, it involves sending Akron Ward, utility infielder, to Chicago for Grabowski, a catcher, "and an infielder." The Yankee official would not say whether Collins was referred to in this proposition but baseball men inclined to a belief that the former "king of second-basemen" is headed here, anyway.

Ward apparently is slated to be traded, whether or not the Chicago deal is put through. He was included in proposed deals with the Boston and St. Louis Americans, each of which, Barrow said, fell through. The Browns would not part with Marty McManus, star second baseman, along with several other players in exchange for two Yankee pitchers, Sam Jones and Walter Beall. Boston also refused to listen to proposals to trade either of two young pitchers, Wiltse and Ruffing.

Washington also was approached by the Yankee for a catcher, either Ruel or Tate, but nothing came of it.

Meanwhile the club was put through one minor league deal, the purchase of a third baseman, Julie Werre, from the St. Paul club of the American association, and expects to complete another, with the Toronto Internationals, for pitcher Stewart.

Mike McNally, veteran utility infielder, has been released to Binghamton, of the New York-Pennsylvania league to become manager of the club.

EASTERN GRIDDERS ASSEMBLE FOR INVASION OF WEST

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—(AP)—A score of the huskiest football stars of the east and middle west gathered here tonight for an invasion of the west, seeking the scalps of an equal number of westerners in the annual east-west game at San Francisco New Year's day.

Thirteen of them are from eastern schools and seven from the western conference. They weigh around 190 to 200 pounds each.

They left tonight at 8 o'clock on the Chicago & Northwestern's Oriental Limited.

The lineup of the eastern All-Stars is as follows:

Ends, Kenneth Weston, Penn State; William Flora, Michigan and Mike Goodwin, Carnegie Tech.

Tackles, Harry Hawkins, Michigan; Early Wilkie, Wisconsin; Bob Johnson, Northwestern and Lloyd Yoder, Carnegie Tech.

Guards, Ross McHenry, West Virginia; Dutch Slaughter, Michigan and Syd Dewey, Michigan.

Centers, Austin Strubel, Wisconsin, and James Desmond, Loyola, Baltimore.

Backfield, Dan Allen, Yale; Walter Diehl, Bucknell; Louis Reuber, Washington & Lee; William Pritchett, Penn State; William Amos, Washington & Jefferson; Frank Kirkleski, Lafayette and George Neal, Western Maryland.

GRANGE SAYS HIS BOYS MADE TOO MUCH NOISE

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 20.—(AP)—Harold E. (Red) Grange and four members of his New York Yankee professional football team, tonight declared that reports concerning their arrest at a small hotel here at 4 o'clock this morning were "misleading."

They admitted that fines of $10 each had been paid for them, but declared they held themselves guilty of nothing more than "maybe making too much noise too late at night."

Grange and his team mates were arrested by police called by the hotel proprietress, who told them to leave after their noisy entrance to the lobby.

Grange was charged only with disturbing the peace. The others, R. V. Scott, W. S. Oliver, A. T. "Pooly" Hubert, and A. A. Woods, were charged with intoxication and disturbing the peace.

Grange declared tonight his companions were not drunk, and that no liquor was found on any of them. He related that they decided to pay the fines rather than defend themselves because of their scheduled departure tonight for Beaumont, Tex., to play George Wilson's Pacific coast professionals.

They said they were merely out wandering around seeing the town, "but maybe we should not have been so noisy," Scott said.

All the gridsters admitted having considerable argument with the police. Grange said the hotel proprietress met them in the upstairs lobby and told them to leave, that she did not have any rooms.

"We hadn't even asked for any," Grange said.

"Then they called the police when we were slow about getting out," said Scott.

All the men were packed into a patrol wagon and taken to jail.

At 8 a. m., the prisoners were released and allowed to make $300 bond. Then they decided rather than fight the charges and possibly delay their schedule they would pay off.

TAFTVILLE PLAYS MIDDLETOWN TEAM ON CHRISTMAS

There will be no basketball game at Taftville this evening the game being postponed to Christmas afternoon when the fast Middletown Recs will come to Taftville to try to take the measure of he Taftville Celtics in what should be a battle of blood. The Middletown team is being coached by Carlson, former coach at Wesleyan, and is the pick of that city. This team is considered one of the best in the state and the local management is fortunate to secure them for this holiday attraction. Their lineup consists of men who have made reputations for themselves both in high school and semi pro basketball. Lineup for this team will appear later in the week.

The locals were put through a stiff practice on Sunday afternoon under the coaching of Joe Belair and feel sure that they will again break in the win column after losing a hard game to Danielson. Manager Raymond of the local team is uncertain who he will start in the game but feels sure that his team will be the equal of the visiting team. As a special attraction for the fans Father Malley's Sacred Heart school basketball team has been secured for one of the preliminaries. This is their opening game of the season but under the coaching of Father Malley they have developed into a good team and should give a good exhibition in this sport which has just started at the school. Their opponents are still undecided but some fast team will be secured.

SPORTING NOTES
(By The Associated Press).

The Intersectional football [illegible] New Year's day at Pasadena, Calif., between the undefeated Alabama and Stanford Eleven will be broadcast, play by play, over the chain of stations controlled by the National Broadcasting company, including WJZ and WEAF of New York. Graham McNamee, premier announcer of WEAF, will describe the details of play, which will be brought over 4,000 miles of wire to New York and relayed over 19,000 miles more to other radio stations.

England's foremost thoroughbred stake-winner for 1926 showed bigger earnings than the leading money-winner of the American turf. Lord Woolavington's Coronach, which captured the Epsom Derby and St. Leger, earned £9,424 pounds, or approximately $193,060. Samuel D. Riddle's Crusader topped the American list with $166,000.

Many people regard yaching as an amusement only for boys. Yet in America and in Europe it has become a highly organized sport. Both sailing and power boats are included in the hobby, some of the latter running to six feet in length, and managing a speed of over 20 miles an hour.

TOBASCO SAUCE HAS PLENTY OF "KICK"—BUT YOU COULDN'T LIVE ON IT, MORNING, NOON and NIGHT.

A bottle of tobasco sauce seems to have lots of strength . . . but it couldn't satisfy a hungry man. Stinging the tongue doesn't appease the appetite.
2.
A glass of milk is cool and smooth. But it packs more nourishment and power than a gallon of tobasco.
3.
So it is with cigarettes. Those that are hardest on the tongue are often weakest in their ability to appease the smoke-taste. For harshness is seldom quality.
4.
That's why OLD GOLD, though the most satisfactory cigarette in the world, is the most polite. It delivers all the satisfaction you desire . . . but does it graciously and smoothly.

RULES FOR YOUNG WRITERS

1—Write plainly on one side of the paper.

2—Use pen and ink, not pencil.

3—Short and pointed articles will be given preference. Do not use over 250 words.

4—Original stories or letters only will be used.

5—Write your name, age and address plainly at the bottom of the story.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Night and Night

The earth is purple in the evening light,
The grass is graver green.
The gold among the meadows darker glows,
In the quieted air the blackbird sings more loud.
The sky has lost its rose—
Nothing more than this candle now shines bright.
Were there but natural night how easy were
The putting-by of sense
At the day's end, and if no heavier air
Came o'er the mind in a thick-falling cloud.
But now there is no light
Within; and to this innocent night how dark my night
—John Freeman.

God's Candles

Across the desert's golden sands.
The yucca grow in stately bands.
Or clinging to the canyon's wall.
The green shafts stand erect and tall
Bearing snowy blossoms clustering thick.
A tinge of color, a shadowy wick.
Glows faintly at the very tip.
The lowly Indian, mystic race.
Who looks at nature face to face.
Call them God's Candles. One can hear.
Invisible bells peal in the air.
And see them kneel in humble prayer.
God's Candles star the wonderous west
But only the Indians have made them blest.
—Sarah McCrady Trescot, Pendleton, S. C.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Once again it seems necessary to call the attention of the young writers of the Wide Awake Circle to the rules at the top of this column. Lately Uncle Jed's mail has brought him a great many letters written on both sides of the paper. The rules at the top of this column specify that only one side of the paper should be used. There is a reason for this rule and the reason is that it makes a lot of extra work for the printers in turning over pages. Very often the paper is thin and when both sides are used the writing shows through and becomes indistinct so that it is difficult to read it. Letters of this kind are not used.

It is surprising how many young people write nice interesting letters but forget to sign their name at the end of the letter. Sometimes they sign their name but neglect to give their address. Once in a while writers give their address but forget to sign their name.

Now with names and addresses missing Uncle Jed has no way of telling from whom the letters come and therefore could not send them a prize book, should their letters be worthy of a prize. If writers who send in letters fail to see them on the Wide Awake page they will know that there was a reason, either they have written on both sides of the paper, so that it is difficult to read the letter, or they have neglected to sign their names and give their complete address. Uncle Jed suggests that the Wide Awakes read over their letters after they have written them and make sure they have signed them properly before they put them in the mail.

WINNERS OF PRIZE BOOKS

LETTERS OF ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Mary Izzkowski, North Franklin—I wish to thank you for the prize book. I enjoyed reading it. My sister and I are glad to get books in the same series.

Ruth Blaterwick, Norwich, R. F. D. No. 6—I received the very nice prize book which was sent to me. I wish to thank you for it. It is very interesting.

Walter Brown, Taftville—I have received the book you sent me and I want to thank you for it.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY THE WIDE AWAKES

Biography of a Pencil

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to reproduce the biography of a pencil.

A few years ago, I was a fine young cedar tree in the forest of Switzerland. One day some woodcutters came along and cut me down. They put me on a wagon and brought me to the factory. After going through much machinery I saw that I was a beautiful pencil with a long piece of lead in me. I had a fine rubber cap upon my head. My color was red with silver trimmings. I was very proud of my appearance.

I was shipped to America and after much traveling I reached Norwich, Conn. I was bought by the owner of a large store and was put in the window. I attracted the eyes of many children. One morning I was having a rather dull time when in came a boy and purchased me for five cents.

He strapped me under his strap which held his books. I soon found friends which were an arithmetic and an ancient history. After a short walk we reached a large building which afterward I discovered was a school. My master used me very much for he said if the lessons wouldn't stay in his head, they would stay on the paper.

One day I fell off the desk. My master did not notice this. A little boy passed up the aisle and stepped on me. Of course all my lead was cracked. Seeing this my owner tried to sharpen me but it was of no use. He was very disappointed and said, "You were a beautiful and faithful companion, though I am very sorry to part with you there is no help for it." He threw me into the waste basket. A week later the janitor came around to collect the waste baskets. He threw me with the rest of the rubbish into the roaring fire in the furnace. I burned to ashes. This was the end of my short life.

Nathan Hale

Dear Uncle Jed: One of the saddest incidents of the Revolutionary war was the execution of Nathan Hale at New York. While military operations were going on around New York city, Washington sent him inside the British lines to gather information. He preformed his work with great skill and was about to depart for the American headquarters when he was arrested as a spy. He was tried and found guilty and by order of Sir William Howe was executed the next morning. He died lamenting that he had but one life that he could offer up for his beloved country. A statue was erected to his memory in New York city in 1893.

Progress in Transportation

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you and the Wide Awakes about 150 years of progress in transportation in America.

In the year 1776 the American colonies broke away from England and the Declaration of Independence was signed, making America a country of its own. Then it had to be dependent upon itself and one of its first problems was transportation.

America had a good start in ship building. When the Declaration of Independence was signed, America had many ships built. Many of the shipyards were along the coast of New England and soon commerce began.

Transportation in America was carried on by horse back first and later by stage coaches which were pulled with four to six horses.

In the year 1860 the pony express was founded which made communication easier. Buffalo Bill, one of its greatest leaders rode with many others, 100 miles across the plains to some distant station, or post office.

In the year 1807 Robert Fulton invented the steamboat which made faster progress in transportation with other countries.

The steam engine was invented by Arkwright. It proved to be a great invention in carrying freight.

The Panama Canal was cut across Panama and was finished in 1914. It made a shorter route to the Pacific coast.

Automobiles and airplanes have also been invented. All these inventions help to bring the world countries closer together.

Caught Stealing Plums

Dear Uncle Jed: Once there was a farmer that had an orchard of peach and plum trees put together. He did not like to have these touched so he would guard them as much as possible. Nearby there was a neighbor that was poor and didn't own anything. There was one boy in the family and he was a very spiteful boy. One day he went to this farmer's orchard and climbed one of the trees with the best plums on it. He ate all he could and then started to fill the inside of his shirt. He had about a dozen or so when of a sudden he heard the farmer below. He had a bean pole in his hands and started to poke the boy's feet till they almost died. The boy was afraid to come down so he held the pole and pushed the man away from the tree a little and then gave a jump to the ground. He ran till out of sight then he went home, got his father's gun, put in a cartridge and went back to the orchard. The farmer was still there so he took aim and shot at his legs. Then he buried the gun and went home. The farmer was lame for a long time but he never found out who shot him.

John Paul Jones

Dear Uncle Jed: John Jaul Jones was a brave American officer. He was born in Scotland. He emigrated to Virginia, entered the colonial service in 1775 and in June 1777 took command of Ranger, a vessel of 18 guns. In September 1779 he attacked the Serapis, an English frigate, which surrendered after a long battle. For this victory, congress voted Captain Jones a gold medal. He died in Paris.

Our 29th President

Dear Uncle Jed: The 29th president of the United States was a farmers boy, born at Blooming, Ohio. At the early age he entered a printer's office, learning to set type, and later completed his education at Ohio Central college. Entering the newspaper field he eventually became proprietor of the Marion Star. He became U. S. senator in 1915 and in 1920 was elected president on the Republican ticket. Harding was taken ill while returning from a trip to Alaska and died in San Francisco.

A Big Snow Storm

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write you about the snow storm of last Sunday. It was a terrible snow storm. The wind blew hard and the snow drifted in piles. It was about a foot and a half deep in some places in the morning. It began quite early in the morning and it lasted the whole day. It snowed the next day also. Not many children came to school on Monday and when our teacher rang the bell there were only nine pupils in school but after a while some more came until we had 17 in all. We have 22 altogether, but the rest were sick. When I got home in the evening I made a few paths about the house. I hope you like my story.

A Snow Storm

Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you. I'm going to tell you about the first snow storm. It started to snow about 4:30 p. m. The wind blew so fiercely and snow drifts piled so high that in an hour's time familiar objects were covered so you could not recognize them. But in spite of that you could hear boys shouting out in the streets. They were enjoying the snow storm. The snow could not keep me home to look through the window only. After receiving my mother's consent I left the house to join others. At first it seemed very enjoyable but before I reached the corner of the street the flakes were shooting all around me so that my eyes failed to see what was beyond. Shivering to the very marrow of my bones I returned home on the first day of the storm.

Couldn't Go to School

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write you about the snow storm of last Sunday. We had a deep snow storm. It was about two feet deep. It drifted over four feet in some places. The wind blew terribly and it was awfully cold. On Monday morning I went out and made some paths about the house, and in the afternoon there was a snow plow along and cleared the road so I could go to school. I did not go to school on Monday because the snow was too deep but I went to school on Tuesday. Well this is all hoping you will like my story.

Our Pets

Dear Uncle Jed: I have been wanting to write you about our pets we have at our farm, way out in the country. We have a very pretty cow called Bader and she comes to the door for bread and apples every day and I always give her some. Then she goes all over the farm to roam all day.

We have a dog called Buddy who will sit up and beg very pretty for most anything you have, also a little kitten we call Red. He will also sit up for me. When he lies down and you call him he just looks out of one [illegible]

My daddy just got a very nice horse called Jack and we are going to make him like us just the same as the other animals. I think it is nice to have them all like us. I hope you will like my story.

A Scare I Had

Dear Uncle Jed: One summer day at about 7 o'clock in the evening I was standing on a hill in the country. As I looked about me I saw a scene which I never forgot. The sun looking like a large ball of fire was setting in the west. The sky around it was full of rainbow colors. They sent their rays through the trees and on a lake which was near by. When the sun shone through the trees you would think they were on fire.

Just then something jumped out from a stump behind me and I, not knowing what it was got scared and started for home, because I did not want to take any chances when wild animals prowl around.

Robert Fulton

Dear Uncle Jed: The first steamboat was invented by Robert Fulton in 1802. The people called it Fulton's Folly because they thought he was crazy in trying to make a boat go by steam. It was launched on the Hudson river at New York and steamed to Albany, 150 miles, and in 32 hours. Others made experiments with steam but Fulton was the first one who successfully applied it to navigation of vessels. He was the son of a poor farmer and was born in 1765. He died in 1815 and was buried in New York city.

Did Wrong Homework

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I hope you and the Wide Awakes will enjoy my story.

One day when I came in the school yard I asked my friends if they had their home work done. They told me they had it done but thought it was all wrong. I told them I had done it too. I said it was very easy and I have them all correct. When I came in school we corrected it. To my great astonishment I found they were all wrong. After I also found out I had done the wrong ones.

Has Had Chicken Pox

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't written you for some time but I always read your letters to the Wide Awakes also their letters to you and I enjoy both.

I wonder if you will smile when I tell you I have had the chicken pox. This is my third week out of school and I am all better now. I expect not to go to school until next Monday and I have promised myself that I will make things hum this week with all this beautiful snow.

I expect to go to New London to see Santa Claus, but from what I have read I think he makes a better showing in Norwich and I wish it was so I could go up there.

I hope that you and all the Wide Awakes have a happy Christmas.

First Snow We Had

Dear Uncle Jed: This year it snowed for the first time, Dec. 3, 1926. The girls and boys were glad because they could play and ride on their sleighs, build snow forts and make snow balls. As it snowed Friday some children ran out shouting, Hurrah! Hurrah! Saturday night the children went on the sleighs having more fun than ever. No accident happened and when it was time to go home the children were very sorry to leave but still they had to. The days were warmer and the sun shone so the snow melted, leaving the ground all muddy. But we did not care because we know that we will have more snow as this was only the first snow storm.

A Stamp Collection

Dear Uncle Jed: Gilbert was a stamp collector. He did this partly because he liked to and partly because he wanted to get money enough to go to college.

A stamp collector had been trying to get a certain stamp for a long time. He had traced it to a remote island in the South Pacific.

The following is a letter that Gilbert wrote there.

Millville, New York.
Nov. 13, 1926.

My Dear Postmaster: Do you know of any person having a stamp dating back into the 17 hundreds? I have been looking for such a stamp in order to get to college. I would like to know if you would try and find such a stamp if you will?

The stamp, if I get it, will be sold for much money, I will give you a percentage of it.

Yours truly,
GILBERT YOUNG.

Gilbert worked hard on his studies so he could enter college the coming fall. In about a month he received a letter from the postmaster as follows.

South Pacific Island.
Dec. 15, 1926.

Dear Gilbert: I have such a stamp as you wished and am sending it by registered mail. Never mind about paying me any money it was no bother at all getting the stamp.

Yours for good fortune.
JAMES WOOD.

On December 26th the letter with the stamp came. Gilbert thought it a very good Christmas present.

Gilbert sold the stamp for much money so it was possible to go to college.

Sammy Jay Is Sorry for the Young Trees

No greater wonder than a tree
Has ever been, or e'er will be.
—Old Mother Nature.

Did you ever stop to think how true this is? A seed is tucked away in the brown earth. From it springs a tiny plant, and there is nothing but the earth, the air, the rain and the sunshine to build from it a great towering tree. You see, growth is really only one form of building. It is wonderful beyond anything that man has ever done or ever can do. That is why it seems such a dreadful thing to cut a great tree, unless it is very necessary.

Sammy Jay had something of this feeling as he watched Farmer Brown's Boy cutting young spruce trees and young hemlock trees there in the Green Forest. It didn't seem at all right to Sammy. He couldn't understand it at all, and he felt, oh, so sorry for those young trees. He wondered why Farmer Brown's Boy was cutting them. For once in his life he wished he could understand his language.

At first Sammy was tempted to scream "Thief! Thief! Thief!" and let all the other little people in the Green Forest know what was going on. But he knew that screaming "Thief! Thief!" would do no good. He knew that all the screaming in the world wouldn't cause Farmer Brown's Boy to stop. So he held his tongue and watched.

After Farmer Brown's Boy had cut half a dozen of these young trees Sam my discovered something. He cocked his head on one side and studied and studied and studied. He flew over to another tree where he could get a different view, and again he studied.

"I'm sorry for these young trees," said Sammy to himself, "that have been cut, I certainly am. But I believe it is going to be a good thing for those other trees that haven't been cut. They will have more room to spread out and grow. They will grow faster and bigger and be stronger. Now I wonder if Farmer Brown's Boy is doing it on that account. I wonder if that is why he spent so much time over here looking around before he began cutting those trees. And I wonder what he is going to do with those trees he has cut. I suppose the only way I'll ever find out is by being patient and watching."

Meanwhile Farmer Brown's Boy was whistling as he worked. He was very careful as to each tree to see that it fell where it would not injure any other tree. After a while he began talking to himself, as he had no one else to talk to. "It certainly does hurt to cut a tree. These are beautiful young trees and I don't like to cut them. But if I should let them grow they would crowd each other so that all their beauty would be lost. A lot of them would die after a while. They would be starved for sunlight and air. But by cutting these out now, before they have begun to be too much crowded, I shall be giving the others a chance. The Green Forest will really be more beautiful for losing these young trees. Yes, sir, there is no doubt about it. If I came in here and took all the young trees growing up here, that would be another matter. But I have picked out only those trees which will make the Green Forest better for losing. I am actually helping the trees that are left, and at the same time these young trees are going to give great joy."

Farmer Brown's Boy looked up just then and saw Sammy Jay watching him. Farmer Brown's Boy grinned. "Hello Sammy," said he. "I suppose you are wondering what all this is about. I suspect you are thinking all sorts of bad things about me because I am cutting these trees. But if you knew what I know, you would know that I am adding to the happiness of the Great World."

Trees

Dear Uncle Jed: I am very thankful and delighted for the prize book I received. Now I am going to write about the trees.

There are many kinds of trees but the most common are, the ork, elm and poplar. We can find these trees almost every where. The elm especially is often planted along the sidewalks in the city.

The parts of a tree are the roots, trunk, branches and leaves. Trees have flowers in the spring and fruit in the fall. The brown covering of trees is called bark; this keeps the tree warm and dry. The roots hold the tree firmly in the ground. The trunk keeps it erect and bears the branches. The branches bear the leaves and give a beautiful form to the tree. The branches and the leaves form the shade. The fruit contains the seed for a new tree. The leaves help to nourish the plant by taking in air and water.

Trees are both beautiful and useful. They provide us with timber which we use in building, manufacturing and for fuel. The bark is used for corks, tanning of leather and for turpentine. Pitches and sugar are derived by tapping trees. Trees prevent floods by carrying the water down the slopes gradually instead of having it flow rapidly down the slopes carrying the soil with it. Trees give shade to our homes and parks. Birds and other small animals make their nests in trees.

The Bee and the Rose

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I hope you and the Wide Awakes will enjoy my story. One day a rose feeling very happy saw a little bee coming along. The bee came right up and lost no time in getting all the honey she wanted. She was glad that she was so lucky as to find this beautiful rose. After a while it became dark. The bee had to go home. She then flew away. The rose closed up feeling very sad. She had lost all her sweetness.

MARY SHAFER FINED $150—KEPT LIQUORS FOR SALE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 20—Before Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck in a session this morning of Stonington town court, Mary Shafer of Stonington entered a plea of guilty to a complaint charging the keeping of intoxicating liquors for sale. She was fined $150 and costs of $18.93, also received a 30-day jail sentence with a 6 months' suspension. The fine was paid. As a warning, Judge Wilcox informed the respondent if she or any member of her household should again be detected in selling liquor on her premises, the suspended sentence would become operative.

At a regular convocation of Palmer chapter, No. 28, R. A. M., William M. Spencer, high priest held Monday evening in the Masonic rooms on High street when the Mark Master degree was conferred by the chapter officers. By special dispensation the next regular convocation will be Jan. 10th.

Nearly five hundred were present Sunday afternoon at the United theatre for the Christmas song festival held under the auspices of the Young Women's Community association. Under the leadership of Ralph H. Koelb, assisted by Robert Valentine, organist, the gathering of men and women sang familiar Christmas carols, the words of which were projected upon the moving picture screen.

Sunday afternoon in St. Michael's church assembly rooms the annual Christmas entertainment, was held beginning at 4 o'clock. The affair was in charge of St. Michael's branch, Connecticut Council of Catholic Women. Following a musical program by boys and girls of the parish, Santa Claus distributed a variety of gifts and candy from a Christmas tree on the stage. Every child in the parish was remembered. Rev. John F. X Quinn, pastor of St. Michael's church, was presented a beautiful bouquet.

The funeral of Miss Annie M. O'Brien, R. N., was held Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock from her home on Spruce street. In the solemn mass of requiem at 9 o'clock at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, with Rev. the Immaculate Conception, Rev. J. F. Vincent, S. M., was celebrant, Rev. Lawrence Fahy, S. M., deacon, Rev. Fr. Tooey of Providence, subdeacon, and Rev. Henry Bruno, S. M., master of ceremonies. Burial was in St. Michael's New cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Vincent and Tooey. The bearers were Neal Murphy, Edward Murray, James Murray, John Murray, John Briody and Maurice Harty.

At the annual meeting of Ames P. Chapman auxiliary No. 11, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War held the past week end in Pawcatuck, the following officers were elected:

President, Ethel Laing; vice president, Laura Wilter; three trustees, Minnie Allen, Ida Clark, Cora Saunders; treasurer, Edna Tate; patriotic instructor, Emma Mark; chaplain, Harriet Griffin; guide, Cora Gagnon; assistant guide, Laura Burdick; inside guard, Hattie Bromley; outside guard, Cora Brillock; first color bearer, Gertrude Holdredge; second color bearer, Beatrice Smith; press correspondent, Hattie B. Lawton.

Delegates to Division convention held at Newport, R. I., in April, Emma Mark, Gertrude Holdredge, and Gladys Lawton. First alternate, Ella Bennett, second alternate, Cora Saunders, third alternate, Edna Tate. Delegate to National convention at Dayton, Ohio, Hattie Lawton, alternate, Minnie Allen. The auxiliary members are to be guests of the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, Jan. 6, for a joint installation. The auxiliary voted to change the meeting night to the third Thursday night in the month. The next meeting will be held Jan. 20. At the close of the meeting a social, including a Christmas tree, was held, each one receiving a gift. Refreshments were served by the social committee.

Granite council, No. 177, Royal Arcanum, at its annual meeting elected these officers: Representative to the grand councils, H. S. James; alternate representative to the grand councils, W. W. Barber; regent, Raymond E. Gavitt; vice regent, Ira Murphy; orator, Albert E. Barber; S. P. regent, W. W. Barber; secretary, Ethan P. Gavitt; collector, William C. Frances; treasurer, John C. Loughhead; chaplain, William Wheeler; guide, Harry S. James; warden, Arthur B. Burdick; sentry, Samuel E. Larkin; trustee for three years, W. W. Barber; representative to the hospital bed association, Fred L. Arnold.

The annual Christmas tree observance of Craigielea lodge, No. 112, Daughters of Scotia, was held Saturday night for the children in the Mechanics hall, Welch block. Every child under 14 received a gift from Santa Claus, besides a box of candy and an orange. A short entertainment was given with songs by Miss Mary Brown, Dennis McGowan and Joseph Brown. Recitations were by Miss Mildred Tough and Wilfred Robinson. Games were provided by the committee in charge, and prizes were awarded the winners. Refreshments were served and dancing brought the successful affair to a close.

With the continuation of snowfalls and cold weather special efforts have been made to complete or secure a tight covering or roof over the new business [illegible] the South County Pu[illegible]pany at 42 High street [illegible] Nardone block, corner of Elm [illegible] Canal streets.

As the result of [illegible] work at the Nardone block Monday morning, bricklayers on the Canal street side completed the laying of the red brick above the third story window frames and with continuation of higher temperature the frieze of white brick for a cornice can be completed. The High street cornice of white brick is already in place. Carpenters have rushed the process of laying the wooden roof above the third story along High street and about one-half of the wooden roof on the Canal street side is now in place, and covered with tar paper.

At the light and power office building of the South County Public Service company Monday the work of mixing cement for the top floor of the building continued and men were laying brick on the north wall, which is already a story above the Walton building adjoining in which is the New Park hotel. Not much work has been done in covering the steel trusses for the center section of the building.

During the third week in December Westerly Zoning Inspector Louis J. Roecis has issued the following permits:

Dec. 14—Thomas D. Thatcher, New York. Alterations to summer cottage with the addition of a dormer window on the south side of the house on Manatuck avenue, Watch Hill, Isaac Sherman cobtractor.

Dec 17—Elite Cleaning company, Joseph Stellian, 88 Main street. Addition 10 feet by 10 feet at the rear of plaint at 89 Main street.

John McDonald of Providence, formerly in Westerly with the Westerly Water Works, returned home Monday afternoon, having been called to Westerly by the death of his cousin, Miss Annie M. O'Brien, whose funeral was held on Monday.

William J. Ahearn left Westerly Monday morning for Providence.

Mrs. Lena Collins who has been at a hospital in Tennessee, is the guest of relatives and friends in Pawcatuck.

Mrs. Joseph Thompson of Norwalk, O., who fell and fractured the bones of her left ankle, several days ago is improving since the fracture was reduced by Dr. J. Gordon Anderson.

Thomas Tavernaite, known as "Young Firpo" in his role as athletic mascot is able to be about on crutches, following a broken leg which he suffered by a fall from a tree after attending a Westerly high school game several weeks ago on Westerly Athletic field.

COMMUNITY TREE PLANS OF CHRIST CHURCH CHOIR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 20—A large symmetrical pine to be used as a Christmas tree, secured from the Preston farm on the Westerly-North Stonington highway, has been brought to Westerly under direction of the choir of Christ Episcopal church and will be placed in the centre of the front lawn of Christ church, corner of Elm and Broad streets. This tree will be gay with colored lights every evening until the New Year, giving out to the community Christmas cheer, and suggesting good will to all who pass by.

Next Friday evening, Ghristmas eve, at 9 o'clock the choir will sing carols by the tree, Mrs. Jessie T. Davison leading. A melodeon will be used, played by the organist, Mrs. Charles S. Larkin, also a cornet played by Stanley Livingstone. The words to the carols will be thrown upon a screen, so all may be able to see plainly. The carols used will be "Joy to the World," "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," "Once In David's Royal City," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Noel" and "Silent Night."

The choir is inviting all the people of Westerly and vicinity to take part in the singing, and hope to make the air ring with praise and adoration to proclaim the birth of the Saviour of the world.

A year ago an illuminated Christmas tree was placed on the front lawn of the Broad Street Christian church, at the junction of Elm and Granite streets and continued to be lighted during the holiday week.

Judge Oliver H. Williams in the Third District court disposed of business as follows:

New writ entered—William G. Johnson of Charlestown, R. I., vs. Antone Brommet, alias, of Narragansett. A suit brought for $100 damage as a result of alleged negligence in an automobile accident on the Point Judith road, September 15th. Continued two weeks.

Further writ entered—Henry Craddock, alias vs. Frank Iacono. Continued two weeks.

Original docket—State Thomas E. Brown, chief of police of Westerly, complainant vs. Angelo Tusano. Continued two weeks.

State Thomas E. Brown, complainant vs. Jake Davis, Mary Naugent, Harry Stewart and Mary E. Bihachi. All continued three months.

State, William L. Kay, deputy chief of police of Hopkinton vs. Arline McDonald. Continued two weeks.

Civil docket—Charles Rogers vs. Marie T. Tefft. On motion of Solicitor Ferguson this case was discontinued.

Mary D. Foley vs. Charles J. Messenger. Continued one week.

Bradford Garage and Supply House vs. E. Franklin Peckham. Marked ready, heard and continued for further consideration and judgment.

Thomas Sullivan of Rose street, Pawcatuck, was discharged Sunday from the private hospital, where he was taken on Monday last, suffering from a broken left arm and nose received while at work with painters on the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto A. Schreiber at Watch Hill. While removing shutters from Pinecroft cottage on Ninigret avenue, the ladder slipped and he was thrown to the ground.

Margaret Bolton of Taunton, Mass., was also discharged from the hospital and Mrs. Henry Langworthy of Stanton street, Pawcatuck was admitted.

Westerly lodge No. 1212, Loyal Order of Moose, will have the eighth annual Christmas celebration in their rooms, Mechanics hall, Welch block, Tuesday evening, December 21st. The usual elaborate programme of entertainment and the distribution of gifts to the children are planned.

NEW LONDON MOTORMAN BLAMELESS IN DEATH OF CHARLES E. BRISBAIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21—James Wilcox, motorman in the employ of the Connecticut company, will not be prosecuted on a charge of manslaughter in causing the death in New London two weeks ago of Charles E. Brisbain, who was run down and instantly killed by the trolley car of which Wilcox was motorman. This morning when the case was called in the police court, Judge S. Victor Prince ordered that a nolle be entered. Judge Prince had received a recommendation in that effect from Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Niedzwiecky, who stated that he had not received a copy of the finding of Coroner J. J. Desmond, who conducted an inquest in New London Friday, but that Coroner Desmond had verbally informed the prosecutor that the report would shortly be made and that Wilcox would be entirely exonerated of any act of criminality. Brisbain was killed when he started to cross from the west side of Bank street to the east side, about 500 feet south of Division street. He had cleared the rails for north-bound trolley cars, and suddenly decided to return. As he did so he stepped in front of the trolley car which was en route to the State street terminal. Brisbain was struck before Wilcox could bring the car to a stop and his body was terribly crushed beneath the brake rigging. So fast was the body wedged beneath the car that it had to be jacked up in order to be removed.

THREE MORNING FIRES, BUT DAMAGE NOT SERIOUS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21—The fire department was given plenty of work this morning for they were called out in response to alarms for three fires, none of which resulted in serious loss. The first occurred at 1:20 o'clock when a brick chimney fire was discovered in the residence of A. J. Malcof, 527 Bank street. The fire had gained great headway when smoke filled the rooms and aroused the family. An alarm was rung in from Box 42, corner of Howard and Bank street. Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and four companies responded and the fire, which had made its way to partitions, gave the department much work to subdue, holes having to be chopped in the walls that chemicals might be thrown on the blaze. The damage will amount to several hundred dollars. A still alarm was received for a blaze at the Garde theatre, State street. The blaze there was inconsequential, having been caused by the overheating of the sprinkler system. The third fire was in a tenement house, corner of Ocean avenue and Orchard street. A lively blaze was discovered in the kitchen and probably started from an overheated stove. An alarm was sent in from Box 46, corner of Ocean and Lee avenues and brought five pieces of apparatus to the fire. The flames were attacked with chemicals and were quickly subdued. The house is occupied by Antonio DiMaggio and family.

NO MARINE DISASTERS FOR SEVERAL REASONS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21—Not in many winters, during severe weather, have there been fewer marine disasters in the Sound than have been recorded this winter thus far. Sailormen say that the barges in use now are of a more seaworthy class than were the barges that formerly were used to carry coal. Besides, there are fewer coastwise sailing vessels in commission now than were in use in many winters. That, too, is naturally a cause of fewer disasters.

C. E. Schall, Inc., has sold a tract of land between Parkway and Rockbourne place to Lucius E. Welton.

The funeral of William Kesstlin was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 13 Ocean avenue, the services being conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of First Church of Christ. Members of Pequot lodge of Odd Fellows, of which organization Mr. Kroestlin was formerly a member, acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

The funeral of William Webb was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 62 Washington street, the services being conducted by Richard W. Mansfield, superintendent of B. F. Learned mission. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

Phillye King, 5, residing at 25 Denison avenue, was knocked down by an automobile driven by Nathan Santa, 17 Ocean avenue, this morning as the child was attempting to cross Shaw street, near Denison avenue. The girl was taken to Lawrence hospital, where an examination showed that she had suffered only minor bruises, so she was taken to her home.

Mary Warner Holt, 84, widow of Thomas J. Fengar, died Saturday night at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. William N. Dow, 807 Pequot avenue. Mrs. Fengar had been ill a long time, her demise resulting from infirmities attending her advanced years. Besides her daughter, Mrs. Fengar is survived by another daughter, Mrs. Lena H. Wilbur; a sister, Mrs. John H. Colby and a brother, Charles F. Holt, East Sandwich, Mass., and a grandson, Charles F. Wilbur, this city. Mrs. Fengar was born in East Haddam, Aug. 13, 1843 and removed to New London when she was but three years of age and had resided here ever since. She was the eldest member of the Montauk avenue Baptist church and the oldest member of Templar commandery, Order of Golden Cross and the Women's Relief Corps.

Richard G. Wright, 41, died quite suddenly this morning at his home, Waterford, after an illness of several weeks. He is survived by his wife, two brothers and two sisters and his mother. He was employed by the New England Collapsible Tube company, this city and was a member of Pequot lodge, I. O. O. F. Mr. Wright suffered an attack of the heart trouble this morning and because of the weakened condition of the vital organ, he expired a short time after.

The annual Christmas festival, given by the Max Pollack company, Poquonock road, Groton, to employes and friends, was held Saturday night at the plant and was attended by 200 men and women, including officials of the company. The gathering was welcomed by Henry Johl, an official of the company, on the main floor where a finely prepared repast was served. At the conclusion of the feasting Mr. Johl addressed the gathering, using as his subject, "Peace on Earth." Mr. Johl referred to the hearty co-operation between employer and employes and to the happy prosperity that the concern had enjoyed during the year about to close, to which prosperity the employes were a large contributor, through their faithful and earnest efforts. Mr. Johl was presented a mahogany clock and William Johl received a bathrobe. Brief addresses were made by Joseph Pollock, of New York, vice president and treasurer of the company and State Treasurer Ernest R. Rogers. Songs and dancing added to the enjoyment of the evening.

Ernest J. Beauchamin, a Coast Guard sailor, of No. R base, at the state pier, was intoxicated Saturday and went to a Main street tailor where he bought some clothing. Then he wanted to make an exchange of the goods and finally became involved in a struggle with the tailor. He was arrested as a result and today was fined $10 in the police court. Carl Lee Miles, also a Coast Guardsman, was drunk at the Salvation Army hotel. From there he went to a nearby restaurant and there had a fellow sailor by the throat on the floor when a police officer entered. Miles told the court this morning he did not remember what had happened. He realized that he was drunk. A fine of $10 was his penalty.

Two civilian drunks, one found laid out in the snow on Douglass street, were disciplined by the court.

The stores of this city have inaugurated a new schedule of hours for Christmas shoppers, and will keep the stores open in the evening during the week. The experience Saturday evening was not such as to encourage the belief that trading will be brisk during the night hours. In this city people have become accustomed to the shorter hours in the stores and they do not change willingly.

George Wesley, the colored man who cut "Red" Ellison while in a gambling place on Atlantic street, a few days ago, and who got away from the city, has not yet been apprehended. He bears an honored name among the colored people of New London, but he has disgraced it now. He is said to be an inoffensive fellow ordinarily, but he allowed his temper to run away with his discretion when he lost his money at poker and his crime is the result. He has brought about a better condition for the city, nevertheless, for the Roosevelt club, the name of the resort where the cutting occurred, will no longer exist here. The outting of Ellison makes that certain. The place has never borne a good reputation and was regarded by the police as a cover for crimes though they could not fasten crimes upon those who frequented the resort. The building in which the club has its headquarters is a most forbidding place at the entrance—dirty and neglected in the extreme, but it was a shelter and as such gathered the lowest characters in the city.

COUNCIL TO SAFEGUARD CITY SCHOOL CHILDREN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 21—The city council was in session 45 minutes this evening, speedily disposing of the business that came before it. It was proposed to limit the size of garbage and ash receptacles. It is proposed to limit the size of such receptacles to No. 3 ash cans, that a path shall be shovelled two feet wide to the receptacles; that rubbish shall be tied in bundles and that no building material shall be taken away as rubbish. The matter was referred to the committee on public work for report.

Only half a dozen permits for building construction were presented to the council and all these were granted. They included one two-family house and a cottage.

The report of the city auditors was received and Councilor Murray for the finance committee, stated that some recommendations were made by the auditors which would be considered in committee. Councilor Streeter spoke at length on the report and said that it did not constitute the constructive audit called for by the charter. He disclaimed any purpose to criticise, but said there were many changes that should be made and that a constructive audit should be made even at a cost of $3,000 or $4,000, which would obviate the making of such an audit as was made every year. He called attention to methods that prevailed and which, he declared, should be changed. He named particular instances in which he asked for changes, that the city might know exactly its liabilities, what it had, how it owns to have the money, and how it was to be used, and in what fund.

Councilor Scott for the committee on public safety, reported that his committee had considered changes to be made in the corner of Main street and Crystal avenue and said that after the committee had considered the matter it was decided to allow the proposed changes to remain in abeyance till the proposed planning of the city has been made.

In regard to protecting school children in greater degree than heretofore, Councilor Scott said that, in response to a letter from the superintendent of schools the city manager is to have spaces marked off at the school entrance which will be followed by the children in going to and leaving the school buildings.

Linus Fellows, through his counsel, gave notice of a claim for damages because of injuries he sustained on Waller street. The notice was referred to the director of law.

An electric sign was asked for on State street.

There never were so many C...istmas trees in the stores of this city as at present, nor were there such a large number of Christmas wreaths offered for sale. Boys have been hawking them about the streets for a few days and have found a good demand. Farmers boys have picked up a good many dollars in selling wreaths which they have made from laurel and ground pine tied to rattan or a small hoop. The boys have sold their stock on the streets of the city for a few days.

The pioneer restaurant managed by Chinese in this city has passed out of business—the Canton. It is under attachment and its equipment is to be sold at auction next Monday. The Canton had deteriorated so that its patrons were mostly sailors of the rougher class and that was more than it could stand.

Mrs. John Killeen and infant son, of Uncasville; Mrs. Phoebe Sheffield, of Stonington; Nasha Corra, 116 Williams street; Mrs. Leslie Gray and infant daughter, Westerly; Mrs. William White, Groton; George Gallup, Waterford; Lynden Adams, Niantic, and William Hopkins, this city, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Sunday and today.

The police this afternoon made 12 arrests when 11 Negroes and one white were taken on charges of gambling and which charges emanated from the slashing of Henry ("Red") Ellison, several nights ago by GeGorge Wesley, of 14 John street. The arrests were anticipated for the police in the grilling of numerous witnesses in an effort to ascertain the facts of the murderous attack upon Ellison, obtained corroborative statements which proved that gambling was countenanced, in fact, solicited, at the Atlantic street resort. The statements of the witnesses showed that gambling was in progress at the resort practically every night and that the favorite game was stud poker, although craps was sometimes an attractive form of gaming. This afternoon Sergeants Samuel Hick, Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh, Patrolman Thomas Lyden and Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin rounded up the gang. They are Walter K. Anderson and John Williams Asevedo, charged with conducting a gambling resort; Nathaniel Mandis, Charles King, Charles Nathan, Marcus Smith, Thomas Stevenson, William Matthews and John Farrish, charged with frequenting a gambling resort and Peter Castano, Robert E. Lee and Thomas Goode, charged with being material witnesses. Castano is the only white, being an Italian. Anderson and Asevedo were held in bail of $1,000 each, the frequenters in bail of $150, each, and the witnesses in bail of $25, each. All furnished sureties on their respective bonds and they will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning.

UNCASVILLE

The Comstock Cemetery association held its annual meeting at the Central Vermont railroad station recently and elected officers as follows, Dan D. Home president, Mrs. Charles Hope, secretary; Hubert Dart, treasurer, Fred R. Perkins superintendent.

Sunday evening a union meeting was held at the Mohegan church. Members of the following churches attended: Union Baptist, Montville Center Congregational and Uncasville Methodist Episcopal.

The Montville League of Women Voters held a whist in the Community house Dec. 13. Those in charge were Mrs. Robert Chapel and Mrs. Frank Craig.

The regular meeting was held Dec. 14, Mrs. Rosemary O. Anderson of New London was the speaker, and Mrs. Arthur Blaisdell gave a report of the state convention held at New Haven recently.

The social union of the Montville Center Congregational church held their annual supper and sale in the chapel Dec. 10. Those in charge of the supper were, Mrs. Ellen Fox, Mrs. Woodmansee, Mrs. Ella Chapel, the waitresses were Miss Agnes Lathrop, Miss Alice Glasbrenner, Mrs. William Vallett and Miss Marion Browning. The cake was in charge of Mrs. John Fellows and Mrs. George Bradford; candy, Miss Jessie Bradford, Frank Schonfield had charge of the ice cream booth, assisted by Nathan Kirsh; jam, jellies and fruit were sold by Mrs. McDonald; fancy work was in charge of Miss Jessie Schonfield, assisted by Miss Helen Lynch and Mrs. Vickary; fancy articles, aprons, quilts and rugs were sold. George Johnson and Donald Vallett had charge of the fish pond. The supper consisted of baked beans, brown bread, meat loaf, pickles, scalloped potatos, salad rolls, coffee and pie. The proceeds of the supper exceeded $1.50.

Mrs. Amelia Cooke Gilbert, who recently slipped on the ice and broke her ankle, is reported resting comfortably at W. W. Backus hospital.

Miss Grace Hooper of Montville has gone to Rockville for the winter.

MANSFIELD DEPOT

Rev. J. W. Carpenter attended the ministers meeting at South Coventry Monday.

Mrs. M. Burnham Thompson is confined to the house ill with grip.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cosgrove and Miss Maud Bingham spent Thursday evening with Miss Helen Sykes at South Coventry.

Mrs. Robinson spent the week end at her home in Columbia.

Miss Glenise Leigher of Palmer, Mass., formerly of this place is ill with pneumonia at her home. Her mother, Mrs. John Leigher of Mansfield Training school is caring for her.

Mrs. Walter Snow and Mrs. Irving Botham were Willimantic shoppers Wednesday.

Miss Ruth McCollum entertained a party of friends at her home, Monday evening.

Frederick Harre and Miss Mary Clark of Holyoke, Mass., visited Mr. Harre's sister, Mrs. Cosgrove Sunday.

TOLLAND

A large delegation from Tolland went to the hearing about the extension of the bus line of George Gary from Willington to Hartford. All but three miles of the 30 miles is covered by a franchise at present and it would seem a great pity to have the bus go right through Willington and Tolland every day on its trips and still not be able to take people as passengers from these towns.

Miss Helen A. Sparrow, a student at Brown university is spending the holiday season with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Myron G. Sparrow.

Miss Alice E. Hall a student at Storrs college is home for the holidays.

The Study class held a preliminary meeting, Dec. 13, and appointed the following program committee: Rev. William C. Darby, Miss Margaret Morris and Mrs. Thomas Neill. The first meeting will be held Monday evening Dec. 27 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis B. Price. The hostesses will be Mrs. Price, Miss Thelma E. Price and Miss Hattie J. Jewett.

The schools of the town will hold Christmas exercises and trees in their respective school buildings this week.

The Christmas tree for the Sunday school of the Federated church will be held in the church Thursday evening. A program consisting of singing, recitations and Dickens' Christmas Carol is to be given before Santa and the Christmas tree are enjoyed.

A Christmas Pageant, Good Will on Earth, will be given Sunday evening Dec. 26. The pageant is under the direction of the young people in Mrs. C. Hibbard West's class.

An Attractive Window.

One of the windows that is attracting much favorable comment from the Christmas shoppers as they go along Franklin street is that of the Norwich Electric Co. The main window is exceptionally attractive in its setting depicting a radio nook in a home. There is the fireplace, the radio with its dials all set for a station, and the cheery French window with its lights lending a real homey atmosphere to the setting. The other windows are also attractively decorated.

TODAY'S EVENTS

This is the last full day of autumn, with winter making its advent tomorrow.

This is also the shortest day of 1926, a little less than a full minute shorter than yesterday or tomorrow.

One hundred and fifty years ago today Benjamin Franklin arrived in Paris as the American envoy to France.

Patriotic societies throughout the United States will observe today as Forefathers' day, the anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth in 1620.

The Rt. Rev. Mgr. Edward F. Hoban today observes his fifth anniversary as auxiliary bishop of the Roman Catholic diocese of Chicago.

The silver jubilee of their ordination to the priesthood will be celebrated today by two bishops of the Roman Catholic church—the Rt. Rev. John M. Gannon of Erie and the Rt. Rev. Thomas W. Drumm of Des Moines.

The first woman ever invited to deliver the convocation address at the University of Chicago is Mrs. Katherine H. Goods, member of the Illinois legislature, who will be the speaker today at the quarterly occasion of the granting of degrees.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bread Theatre

The Fair of Lion de Belfort, which corresponds to a fair or carnival in this country, and which is residents of Paris is something to look forward to from one year to another, was photographed by Rex Ingram for use in his production of "The Magician" which will have its first showing at Bread theatre Wednesday.

Lion de Belfort is a wide place in France this is like the equator on the left bank of the Seine and is equally as large as the Place Vendome, Place de Concorde or any of the other known places in the heart of the new and modern Paris.

It is marked by a huge statue of a lion in the very center of the place and it has been the custom for many years to hold a yearly fair which is attended by the rich and poor from the young and old of Paris. Few American tourists who visit France get away from the cafes to the Prair of Montmartre to witness this typically French celebration but any Frenchman knows the exact day and date it starts and finishes each year. There are merry-go-rounds, side shows, games of chance, games of skill, rides of all kinds, and everything else that has ever been included in an old fashioned county fair.

Alice Terry, who enacts the leading feminine role in Rex Ingram's production of "The Magician" for Metro-Goldwyn, is in private life, Mrs. Rex Ingram. Miss Terry has been featured in almost all the pictures her husband has directed, including "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," "The Prisoner of Zenda," "Scaramouche," "Where the Pavement Ends" and "Mare Nostrum."

Palace Theatre

If you are looking for thrilling adventure and warm romance you will find them in "Forlorn River" Paramount's thrilling film version of Zane Grey's latest story, now showing at the Palace.

The ingredients from which the prolific Mr. Grey has fashioned his latest brain child include one outlaw, one heroine, one rich ranch grasp, and a choice assortment of cattle rustlers, ranch owners and sheriff's posse.

The latest cattle rustlers and the sheriff's posse is productive of an abundance of fast play, screen-able thrills, dare-devil action and gun fighting. The love affair between the outlaw and the rancher's daughter is complicated by the former's loyalty to his rival, who has saved his life. Here, then, are the two parallel threads of the story, with some excellent comedy thrown in for good measure by the time the tense conclusion arrives.

The acting is uniformly good, which was to be expected from a cast boasting of Jack Holt, Raymond Hatton, Arlette Marshal and Edmund Burns. As the hard-riding, gun-fighting outlaw, Holt runs through his entire western repertoire in his usual finished style. Hatton contributes a delightful bit of foolery with his inimitable portrayal of the ragged cowboy. Arlette Marshal carries off the feminine honors. This charming French actress possesses youth, beauty, personality and talent, and that's a hard combination to beat. Edmund Burns is admirably effective as the square-shooting rival.

Under the deft directorial hand of John Waters, the action ripples along in a smooth uninterrupted flow, maintaining a tempo and pace that hold the interest until the final flicker. The wild, natural scenery is another of the picture's impressive attractions.

"It couldn't have been better."

This was the consensus of opinion and our own reaction to "Poker Faces" when it opened at this theatre last night. Edward Everett Horton and Laura La Plante are noted for their deft comedy touches in preceding pictures, work together to a spectacularly humorous climax.

The picture was undoubtedly one of the happiest entertainments that has been offered here in weeks. The story consists of a series of well timed complicated situations so necessary to comedy and so beloved by comedy fans.

The story might have been given to a director other than Harry Pollard. It would have been funny played straight. But given to Pollard it proves to be an hilarious 90 minutes' entertainment.

ROCKVILLE

Frank M. Hill and Wilfred E. Barber made a business trip to Woonsocket, Tuesday.

Eugene, little son to Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Palmer was bitten over the eye, Monday by their dog while playing with it. The wound was dressed by Dr. E. J. Knerr of Hope Valley.

Mrs. Lee Jordan is confined to her home by illness.

J. Palmer Greene has been ill with a cold.

Mrs. Annie B. Kenyon and son Leslie Kenyon were recent callers on Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Barber.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Lewis and infant son Lester, were guests Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Barber.

It is sometimes easier to keep out of the matrimonial harness than it is to get out.

MARKET WAS STEADY

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—Heavy profit-taking resulted in the stock market losing some of its buoyancy today, but a large number of stocks moved up sharply and the general undertone was steady. Trading was again in large volume with the increase in "odd lot" business generally accepted as an indication of an expanding public interest.

While the selling movement was natural after several days of steadily rising prices, it probably was accelerated by the heavy calling of loans, which sent the call money rate up from 5 to 5 -13 per cent. The weekly statement of banks' loans, issued by the New York Federal Reserve bank after the close of the market, showed an increase of nearly $54,000,000 in the week ended last Wednesday.

The prospect of further "melon cutting" by such corporations as Allied Chemical, Otis Elevator, American Smelting, United Drug, Atchison, New York Central and Baldwin, is generally believed to be one of the main forces behind the current up-swing in prices. The action of the U. S. Steel directors in declaring a $5 per cent stock dividend is believed to have paved the way for several other distributions, particularly those sponsored by the so-called Morgan and Baker interests.

U. S. Steel common closed 1 5-8 lower at 137 1-2 while the new stock, selling on a "when issued" basis, which was transferred from the curb, sold between 136 7-8 and 136 5-8 closing at the low figure. General Motors, American Can, American Smelting, Chrysler, American Car & Foundry, Dupont, Mack Trucks, Nash, Pathe and Westinghouse Air Brake all sold down a point or more. Heaviness of the Baking shares probably was accentuated by the announcement of a senate inquiry into the alleged "bread trust."

In the railroad group, Atchison touched a new record high at 170 and then slipped back to 168 1-2. Reading common and second preferred, Southern Pacific and Canadian Pacific eclipsed their previous 1925 top prices.

Another flock of new high records was established in the industrial and specialty groups, the list including Allied Chemical, Corn Products, National Biscuit, Eastman Kodak, United Drug, Interboro Rapid Transit, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, American Smelting preferred and Warren Bros., the last named scoring an extreme gain of over 6 points on the announcement of a $75,000,000 contract with the Cuban government. Heavy trading in Radio corporation was associated with rumors concerning the company's development of a new talking motion picture.

Banks called about $15,000,000 in loans, which was expected in view of the deficit in reserve shown in last Saturday's clearing house statement. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Establishment of a new 1925 high level for French francs at 4.06 1-2 cents overshadowed all other developments in the foreign exchange market. Other rates were mixed, demand sterling yielding slight to around $4.84 9-16 while Italian lire again crossed 4.50 cents.

Commodities held steady in quiet trading. An increase of over 700,000 bales in cotton ginned prior to Dec. 13, as compared with the same period last year, proved to have been discounted by the cotton market, closed 1 point higher to 5 points lower. Wheat held firm in reflection of the strong domestic position. Raw sugar was unchanged and coffee futures fluctuated within narrow and irregular limits.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—Bond prices transacted around the best levels of the year today although trading was dull and most of the changes were insignificant. Indications that the huge holiday demand for currency would hold money rates firm for the rest of the year and the greater speculative attractions of the stock market curbed buying activities.

A rise in the francs to a new high record for the year failed to stimulate interest in French bonds, most of which worked lower along with Belgian and Italian obligations. German General Electric 6-1-2s were the only strong feature of the foreign group.

Active bidding for the local traction issues, particularly Interborough and Third Avenue railway issues, was based on reports that serious consideration would be given by the transportations authorities to an increase in fares. Interborough 6s and Third Avenue Adjustment 5s gained a point or more.

Traders and investors were discriminating in their choice of railroad and industrial bonds. Some of the Baltimore and Ohio divisional issues were strong and a good demand was noted for several of the New Haven obligations. "Katy" 5s "A," Peoria and Eastern Income 4s, Rio Grande Western 4s and Williamsburg and Eastern 5s.

A $4,500,000 loan for Bulgaria, part of a large international issue, will be marketed here later this week. The offering, which will be made by Speyer and Company, will mark the third European loan sponsored by the league of nations. A $3,000,000 issue of twenty year 7 per cent bonds for the department of Cundinamarca, Colombia, will be offered tomorrow.

CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—Trading in today's curb market continued in large volume but the price movement showed greater irregularity. Heavy calling of loans induced considerable profit-taking in some of the recent strong spots, but offerings generally were well absorbed.

Victor Talking Machine was an individual feature, soaring 7 1-2 points to a new record high at 155, or 40 points above the option price recently obtained by a New York banking syndicate on a majority interest in the company.

Radio shares displayed a firmer undertone on reports of unusually good holiday business. Motor and coal shares showed little change. Baking shares were only slightly easier on the announcement of a senate inquiry into the alleged "bread trust."

Strength of the Pipe Line shares featured the oil group.

Revival of activity and strength in United Gas and Improvement featured the public utility group.

TAFTVILLE

The pageant to be presented at the annual service of the Taftville Congregational church school is "Why the Chimes Rang", and it will take place Thursday evening at the church. The committee in charge includes Miss Gertrude M. Young and Mrs. Edwin Gordon Crowdis. After the pageant there is to be a Christmas tree and a visit from Santa Claus in the vestry where gifts will be exchanged.

The Community Sewing club held its regular meeting Monday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

The members of the Dramatic club are to present their comedy, "June Time" in Hanover early in January. This will be the fourth presentation of the play.

Moses Durocher and family have moved from South Second avenue to a house on Providence street.

The incoming and outgoing mails at the local postoffice already have assumed Christmas proportions.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Newsham, Jr., and family have given up their house on Norwich avenue.

Horredore Fregeau of Danielson spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fregeau of Providence street.

Miss Mary Nolan is chairman of the committee of St. Veronica's T. A. and B. society which is arranging for a Christmas party for the members in the society's rooms on Providence street Wednesday evening.

Fire department No. 1 was called out Saturday night about 10 o'clock for a chimney fire in the house at 29 North A street.

Joseph Phalen of South A street has returned home from the Backus hospital where he underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Mrs. Roy Clarke and her daughter, Miss Marian Clarke of New London have been guests this week of Axel L. Aberg and family of North Third avenue.

Jack Vetter of Norwich avenue was taken to Backus hospital Monday morning, suffering with a severe case of ulcer of the eye.

The board of management of the Tolland County Temporary Home for Children at Vernon Center consists of County Commissioners William I. Higgins of Coventry, Harry C. Smith, Rockville and George Siswick, Stafford Springs; Charles E. Dow, commissioner of child welfare and Dr. Stanley H. Osborne.

SETTLEMENT IS REACHED IN SUIT OVER SUPPORT OF CHILD

The case of Catherine Dwyer, of Poquonoc bridge, Groton, against George Chagnon of Montville, which was appealed from the decision of Justice of the Peace Clayton B. Smith, and in which the 19-year old girl seeks support for a child, of whom she claims Chagnon is the father, was begun before Judge Charles B. Waller in the court of common pleas at New London.

Justice Smith, after hearing the evidence, did not hold Chagnon responsible for the child's support. Attorney George Curtis Morgan appeared for Miss Dwyer, while Attorney Frank L. McGuire represented Chagnon.

The testimony of the plaintiff was to the effect that on Jan. 21, 1926, Chagnon called at her home, which was then at 140 Ledyard street, in a limousine. In the back seat, she said, was Miss Helen Weyant of Howard street. Miss Dwyer said that she got into the front seat with Chagnon, while a former sailor named Ernest Allen, a roomer at the Dwyer home, got into the back seat with the Weyant girl.

The witness testified that they drove to Gallows lane. A baby was born Oct. 12, 1926.

On cross-examination by Attorney McGuire, the girl said that for three weeks in January, save for three nights when a girl friend stayed at her home, she was alone during the nights in the house with Allen. She said her mother, a trained nurse, was obliged to be away these nights attending to patients.

Miss Dwyer maintained that nothing wrong had ever taken place between Allen and herself, but upon cross-examination by Attorney McGuire said that one night when she was alone in the house, Allen came in about 10:30. She said she had retired about an hour previous and that he came into her room and kissed her "goodnight" for which she hit him with a box. She admitted that Allen was a boarder at the home steadily up to last Saturday.

Dr. Isadore Hendel testified that he was called to the house when the baby was born and said that he had put the name, Chagnon on the birth certificate, the girl having given him the information and told him that Chagnon was the father. He said, however, that he qualified the statement as being made by the baby's mother. He later filed another statement.

The trial of the case continued throughout the afternoon until about 5.30 o'clock when the plaintiff and defendant sides reached an agreement to settle the matter between themselves.

WOULD ADMIT WOMEN TO JURY SERVICE

With the mailing of instructions last week to all its county chairmen and 92 local presidents, the Connecticut League of Women Voters has begun a vigorous campaign to bring about passage by the 1927 legislature of a bill admitting women to jury service.

The measure proposed identical with that introduced by Mrs. Harry S. Coe of Waterbury, president of the league, when she was a representative in the 1925 Legislature. The bill provides for the exemption of women from service for the same reasons applying to men, and, in addition, exempts "any woman who is a trained nurse, an assistant in a hospital, an attendant nurse, or who is nursing a sick member of her family, or who has the care of one or more children under 16 years."

The local officers of the league are instructed to form delegations of their members, go before the representatives and senators in their respective districts and urge passage of the bill. They are to report to Mrs. Coe by January 3. Miss Beatrice H. Marsh, executive secretary, said she expects results.

Agitation for jury service for women was initiated by the league in 1921, with little success. By 1923 sentiment became more favorable. In 1925 the bill received much legislative support. Although it was reported adversely by the judiciary committee, the senate refused the unfavorable report and thereby signified its approval of the bill. The house accepted the report, tabling the bill by a vote of 115 to 60.

MAY MOVE COAST GUARD ACADEMY TO NEW BEDFORD

Removal of the Coast guard academy from New London, Conn., to New Bedford, depends on the willingness of the war department to let the future officers of the coast guard to use Fort Rodman as the academy, says a special despatch from Washington to the Boston Transcript. Coast guard officials have all urged the transfer to New Bedford, but so far, the war department has not come to a decision in the matter. Fort Rodman has many buildings available for the coast guard school and is garrisoned only by a care-taking detachment of the regular army. All that would be needed is the erection of an academy building. Officers' quarters and mess halls are available there now.

It would cost $600,000 to put in the improvements needed at New London. All that is needed at New Bedford is an expenditure of about a third of that amount, approximately $200,000. The budget message contained no provision for a new academy or for repairs to the existing one at New London. If the war department decides about Fort Rodman before the session is over, an appropriation might be provided in the supplementary budget estimates.

FRANKLIN SQUARE NOW IN HOLIDAY ATTIRE

Franklin square is now dressed in holiday attire, over 500 lights of various colors having been strung there by the gas and electrical department at the suggestion of the chamber of commerce. The lights are strung from the Boston store to Discoe store on Main street, from the Thayer building to a point about opposite the Boston store and from the Thayer building to a point near Belt Bros. market. These lights, added to the decorated street lights give the city a most attractive appearance at night, the decorated lights including the entire white way system on Main, Franklin and Bath streets, Broadway and Union square.

The 500 feet of wire used in the decorations is the wire used last year by the chamber of commerce in stringing the lights at Union square. The green and red bulbs are furnished by the Norwich Electric Co.

Gave Panatrope Programme.

Sunday night the Palace theatre, in co-operation with the Hanover-Curland Co., gave the Norwich public a thrill by playing on the stage of the theatre the Brunswick Panatrope, an all electrical reproduction musical instrument. The principal of this wonderful new discovery in musical reproduction is a magnetic pick-up which picks up the music recorded on the record and then amplifies it in several stages. The music not only filled the theatre but it was also distinctly heard in the lobby of the theatre. On several occasions it was found necessary to turn down the volume one stage as the power of the tone was too large for the theatre.

The machine was played before the opening of the show and the selections played were as follows: Tripoli-Symphonic march, Creatore's band; Bye-Bye Blackbird, Bennie Kruger's orchestra; In a Persian Market, International Concert orchestra; What Was I To Do, Benny Kruger's orchestra; Blue Danube waltz, International Concert orchestra; She's Still My Baby, Ben Bernie and his Hotel Roosevelt orchestra; In a Chinese Temple Garden, International Concert orchestra; Petrushka, Ben Bernie and his Hotel Roosevelt orchestra; Syncopation, Symphonic march, Creatore's band.

At the conclusion of the programme the public applauded generously. Several requests to again play the machine was received by the management of the theatre and if possible, arrangements will be made to repeat the entertainment next Sunday.

LARGE AUDIENCE AT Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY SERVICE

The gymnasium at the local Y. M. C. A. was filled Sunday afternoon at the 4 o'clock service. After the singing of the hymn the Scripture reading and prayer, Hugh Kinder rendered a vocal solo.

The moving picture "Lovey Mary," which was to have been shown through an error of the distributor in New Haven could not be presented, but an equally impressive and helpful feature, "The Sky Pilot," was shown instead and it proved to be a most pleasing story, featuring a man of God working for his Master in a very unlikely place, with the roughest type of men, and while at first he met with terrific opposition, he finally won out and wielded a wonderful influence upon those who at first opposed him.

Between the reels Secretary Hill gave a brief talk on the topic, "The Basis of Christmas," and he spoke in part as follows: There are those who make Christmas a holiday, forgetting the real meaning of the day. Then very many people have made it simply and only a time of giving and getting gifts; swapping dollars in the form of presents, thus commercializing the day. There are yet others who press hard for good business at the Christmas season. These are all legitimate uses perhaps, but they do not constitute the basic idea of Christmas. It is true that Christmas was inaugurated with a most precious gift; no less than the gift by God of his Son, a present, so to speak to the world. It was difficult for the Heavenly Father to make his gift to the world; the only place that would admit him was a stable. In all of our giving at the Christmas season, let us be sure to give ourselves and all we have or ever hope to be to the Christ who gave himself so fully for us.

FIRE DEPT. TO INSPECT LOCAL HAZARDS

As a safeguard against fire Chief Howard L. Stanton is soon to have members of the fire department conduct an inspection of all local public buildings, schools, churches, etc. Capt. Dennis J. Brennan is already out on this work and it is anticipated that owners of the buildings will co-operate with the fire department in this work.

The inspection will include both town and city property and everything liable to cause serious fires will be removed from buildings. Men out on this work will be experienced men of the department, those who have been out on previous inspections during "clean up week" and at other times deemed necessary by Chief Stanton.

PAGEANT AT LEFFINGWELL PORTRAYED CHRIST'S BIRTH

On Sunday evening a Christmas pageant was given at the Leffingwell Baptist church which vividly portrayed the birth of Christ. All the parts were well taken, and credit is due Mrs. N. A. Whitney and Mrs. G. W. Borden who were in charge of the rehearsals.

Special music was also rendered by the children of the Sunday school. Mrs. H. E. Beard and Mrs. G. W. Borden sang Holy Night, and Miss Carolyn Beebe rendered the solos, The Birthday of a King, and Born in a Manger. The following is a list of characters in the pageant:

Joseph, Mr. Spicer; Mary, Mrs. Hearn Durr; Shepherds, John Hracyk, Roy Beard, Emile Geoffry; Wise Men, Jesse Rogers, John Rathbone, A. H. Beebe.

The following comprised the chorus: Mrs. A. H. Beebe, Miss Mary Hracyk, Miss Zelda Mowrey, Miss Caroline Beebe, sopranos; Mrs. G. W. Borden, Miss Mildred Leffingwell, altos. H. E. Beard, Russell Murray, tenors. Chas. Ellis, Jule Goldberg, Albert Murray, basses. Miss Alice Leffingwell was at the organ.

SILVER JUBILEE DATE OF FORMER NORWICH PRIESTS

Four priests of the Hartford Roman Catholic diocese, two of them pastors of Hartford churches, will observe the silver jubilee of their ordination to the priesthood today (Tuesday), the Feast of St. Thomas the Apostle. They are Rev. John A. Dooley, pastor of St. Lawrence O'Toole's church; Rev. John J. Ambot, pastor of Holy Trinity Lithuanian church; Rev. John F. Callahan, pastor of the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle, West Hartford, and Rev John F. X. Quinn, pastor of St. Michael's church, Westerly, R. I.

Rev. John A. Dooley, pastor of St. Lawrence O'Toole's church, is a native of Bridgeport. He is a graduate of Holy Cross college and the Grand seminary, Montreal. He was ordained at the seminary December 21, 1901, by Archbishop Paul Bruchesi. Before coming to St Lawrence O'Toole's parish he served at St Patrick's Norwich; Sacred Heart, Waterbury, and as pastor at St. Mary's South Coventry.

Rev. John J Ambot, a native of Lithuania, was ordained December 21, 1901, at St. Joseph's cathedral by the late Bishop Michael Tierney. He was stationed for a short time at Sacred Heart church, New Britain, then transferred to St. Mary's church, Norwich, where he was assistant for three years. In 1904 he became pastor of St. Joseph's church in Norwich, where he remained for eight years. He was then appointed pastor of Holy Trinity church, Hartford which he built, the church being dedicated December 19, 1915.

Rev. John F. X. Quinn, pastor of St. Michaels church, Westerly, was born in Mechanicsville. He was graduated from the grammar school of that place and Putnam high school. He received his classical training at St. Lawrence's college, near Montreal. He studied philosophy and theology at the Grand Seminary, Montreal where he was ordained December 21 1901 by Asbbishop Paul Bruchesi. Following his ordination Father Quinn was assistant at St. Joseph's Cathedral under the late Bishop Tierney and Bishop John J. Nilan, the present bishop of Hartford. He was then appointed pastor of St. John's church, Montville, where he remained nine years. For the past three years he has been pastor of St. Michael's, Westerly.

MAY SHIFT COMMITTEE ON MOTOR VEHICLES

Definite recommendations will be made to the 1927 legislature that committees on motor vehicles and aviation be substituted for those on woman suffrage and excise, it has been decided by Representative Ernest L. Averill of Branford and Benjamin W. Alling of New Britain, attorney general-elect. The suggestion to the incoming general assembly will be made by Mr. Alling and Mr. Averill as members of a committee on revision of the rules named by the 1925 session to consider possible improvements in legislative procedure in line with suggestions made by Gov. Trumbull at the 1926 McKinley association dinner.

Legislation pertaining to motor vehicles and to aviation has been handled in previous sessions by the committee on roads passed upon highway legislation. While there may not be much legislation for the aviation committee to consider at the 1927 session, Mr. Averill said, it is felt that the growing importance of air transportation will mean a steadily increasing amount of business to be considered by a committee on aviation. Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel announced in an address in New Haven Friday that one of his recommendations to the 1927 session would be the creation of a committee to consider motor vehicle legislation.

The special rules committee, which also includes Senator Daniel M. Cronin of New London, is not expected to make any recommendation to the legislature on other matters discussed by the governor in his McKinley association address. One of the main points in the governor's address was the practicability of having bills filed far enough in advance of the time for action on them to permit lengthy consideration of them by the members of the committee which have to pass on them.

CATHOLIC COUNCIL BRING CHEER TO COUNTY HOME

The New London County Home for Children on Smith avenue, Norwich, was visited by a committee of the Norwich branch of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women, Thursday. The committee consisted of Mrs. Thomas J. McVeigh, chairman, Mrs. James Purdon, Mrs. Roderick F. Sullivan, Mrs. Henry B. Davenport, Mrs. John R. Tarrant, Mrs. Frank R. McLaughlin, Mrs. Lucien R. Bissonette and Miss Anna McGrory.

Each child received Christmas gifts; the boys received books and games, and each girl a doll. Candy was distributed to all.

The committee was conveyed to and from the home in cars donated by Mrs. Henry B. Davenport and Mrs. T. B. Shahan.

NORWICH TOWN

The Christmas decorations at the Norwich Town Methodist church Sunday morning were effectively arranged by Mrs. George Manning. One large basket was filled with evergreen and laurel combined with red, while another large basket held laurel, intermingled with a variety of straw flowers and branches of arbor-vitae. It Came Upon a Mid-night Clear, was the anthem given, the songs throughout the entire service comprising Christmas carols. Following the sermon, the choir sang Luther's Cradle Hymn.

Instead of the regular Christian Endeavor meeting at the Norwich Town M. E. church, Sunday evening, a Christmas program was given. The opening number was a song service, led by Rev. A. E. Whitten, the pastor, after which carols, readings and exercises were given as follows: Joy to the World, chorus; Christmas—The Birth of Christ, Claude Stanton; Came Upon a Midnight Clear, chorus; Christmas Everywhere, given in concert by a group of boys and girls; It Came Upon a Midnight Clear, chous; An Old Legend, Miss Beulah Rogers; The Coming of the Wise Men, reading by Miss F. Brown. In connection with this a trio of boys, Pearly Gifford, Arthur E. Bennett and Clayton Rose sang Away in a Manger. A Christmas Gift of Jesus, a reading, preceded the offering.

A very effective and impressive exercise was carried out by nine young ladies as Miss Theodora Brown recited a poem, Light the Christmas Candles, Misses Ines Edmiston, Effie Ladd, Ruth Lathrop, Gladys Cruthers, Edna Judson, Doris Rose, Isabelle Gimbel and Mildred Carter in Grecian robes lighted the candles of a Christmas wreath. Virginia Ward concluded this number with the poem, The Light of the World is Jesus.

Rev. A. E. Whitten spoke in connection with worthy objects for the Christmas offering. He also wished his church a "Merry Christmas."

After singing O Little Town of Bethlehem, the pastor dismissed the people with a benediction. Miss Florence Brown who was in charge of the music, was assisted by Mrs. Leroy Miner, in playing the piano accompaniments.

At the First Congregational church at the Sunday morning worship, the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, chose for his text, Galatians 4: 4, "But when the fulness of the time was come, God sent forth His Son, made of a woman, made under the law."

Several from the Congregational Young People's Christian Endeavor society, attended the candle-light service at the Church of the Good Shepherd (Universalist), Sunday evening. The remainder of this society held a service as usual in the chapel, with Irving Manning, leader. The topic assigned was: How Can We Express the Christmas Spirit? Scripture references were in Luke, Galatians and II Corinthians.

The Congregational prayer service usually held Thursday evening, is to be omitted this week, as the Christmas entertainment of the Congregational Sunday school is to be held that evening in the chapel, at 7:30.

Saturday evening, in recognition of the birthday of three of the company present, Mr. and Mrs. William Weaver of Huntington avenue, entertained nine relatives and friends at a delicious oyster supper. Mr. Weaver rounded out 70 years Friday, Dec. 17; one of the guests present, Mrs. Cora Hilliard of Norwalk, observed her birthday on Saturday the 18th, while the other honor guest was Henry Kendall of Lisbon, his anniversary having fallen on Sunday, Dec. 12. Those present included Mr. and Mrs. Charles Senter of Natick, Mass., the former the nephew of Mr. Weaver; Mrs. Hilliard of Norwalk; and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kendall, the last mentioned, Mr. Weaver's niece. At 6 o'clock the hostess served the following tempting menu: Oyster stew, escalloped oysters, bread and butter, squash pie, cheese, doughnuts and tea.

Millard Manning, a student at Trinity college, Hartford, who is spending the Christmas recess at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Manning, was in the congregation Sunday morning, at the Methodist church.

Mrs. Macy Gibson, formerly of Pawcatuck, entered the Johnson home Wednesday, Dec. 15, as a member of the family.

DISPARAGES CONDITION OF THE UNITED STATES ARMY

Brigadier General Reilly, Rainbow Division War Veteran, Describes Personnel as a Demoralized Group of Underfed and Unhappy Men, Living in Tumbledown Shacks, Unfit For Habitation—Asserted Enlisted Men Are Deserting at the Rate of More Than 1,000 Every Month in Protest Against Being Made Victims of Excessive Governmental Economy—Pictured Wives and Children of Officers Suffering From Hardships.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—(AP)—The United States army was pictured today by Brigadier General Henry J. Reilly, Rainbow division war veteran, as a demoralized group of underfed and unhappy men, trooping dejectedly across the military scene on ancient undernourished nags and living in tumbledown shacks unfit for habitation.

So poor are conditions, he said, that American soldiers are deserting at the rate of more than 1,000 every month in protest against being made the victims of excessive governmental economy.

In an article entitled "Our Crumbling National Defense" in the January number of the Century Magazine, issued today, Gen. Reilly said that the country's defense is in a precarious condition due to measure of economy put into effect during the past six years.

The man-power of the army, he wrote, has been cut from the 297,000 officers and men provided for in the national defense act of 1920 to a total of 121,760, and that the contemplated strength of the national guard under the same act has been reduced from 454,600 to 174,270.

"Definite retrogression," he continued, "has set in in our military establishment, both in material and in morale. Owing to existing conditions, nearly 14,080 men deserted from the army last year, and many others, seeing their chances of promotion gone, are taking their discharges. The regular army officers, discouraged over the state of affairs, are beginning to lose heart.

"The American soldier today, in the midst of national prosperity, is being fed with a lighter ration and less variety than before the war. His horse, if he is a mounted man, is given less forage; and in the artillery his mules are underfed.

"Of 40,100 horses and mules in the regular army this year, the average age of over 30,000 is seventeen years. The excessive age of the animals renders them unfit for vigorous drills or marches.
